Texas listed via Laredo; to points in Minnesota listed as "30-2.5 more than Square 478, ck. Minneapolis"; to one-star points in Idaho listed via Weiser; to one-star points in Minnesota listed via Duluth; to one-star points in Georgia and North Carolina listed via Cornelia, Ga.; and to one-star points in Idaho and Montana listed via Armstead, Mont., the other-line tolls will be charged for at the full commercial other-line rate shown in the directory of stations.

19. To certain other one-star points government messages are carried by the other-line free or with a special rate. This is shown by special notation in connection with the listing of such one-star points.

20. On government messages going to two-star, three-star or four-star points the this-line rate will be at government rates, and the other-line rate will be the regular other-line rate shown in the directory of stations unless otherwise indicated in connection with the listing of the point in question.

21. In no case shall the rate charged for a government message exceed the amount charged for a commercial message of the same class of service and of the same length between the same points.

22. The rates for government messages between points in the United States and points in Canada, where there are offices of the Canadian National Telegraphs, and points in Newfoundland and Miquelon Island are shown in the table below. For rates to points in Canada other than those where there are offices of the Canadian National Telegraphs, and the other-line rates shown in the directory of stations to the rates computed from this table.

23. The rates for government messages between points in the United States and points in Alaska and Mexico are shown in the directory of stations with the listings for Alaska and Mexico respectively.

F. C. C. NO. 15
6TH REVISED TITLE PAGE
(CANCELS 5TH REVISED TITLE PAGE)

[14081] R. C. A. COMMUNICATIONS, INC.
TELEGRAPH TARIFF

FOREIGN RADIO-TELEGRAPH AND WIRE-TELEGRAPH RATES

FROM Baltimore, Md.

Boston, Mass.
Camden, N. J.
Chicago, Ill.
Detroit, Mich.
Los Angeles, Cal.

New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Philadelphia, Pa.
San Francisco, Cal.
Seattle, Wash.
Washington, D. C.

TO

All Foreign Countries (Except Alaska, Canada, Mexico, Newfoundland and St. Pierre-Miquelon), Guam, Hawaiian Islands, Midway, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands and to Ships at Sea

AND FROM

Honolulu, T. H. and San Juan, P. R.

TO

All Countries, Including Alaska, Canada, Mexico, Newfoundland and St. Pierre-Miquelon and to Ships at Sea Applicable to All Classifications of Service Shown Herein and Subject to Rules and Regulations Shown Herein

Transmission by Radio-Telegraph or Wire-Telegraph or a Combination Thereof

Issuing Date: Feb. 28, 1940.

Issuing Officer: C. Sandbach, Manager Tariff Bureau, 66 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

Effective Date: April 1, 1940 except as otherwise indicated. Original tariff effective February 1, 1936.

F. C. C. NO. 15
1ST REVISED PAGE NO. 10B
(CANCELS ORIGINAL PAGE NO 10B)

[14082] R. C. A. COMMUNICATIONS, INC.

The sender of an Ordinary Press telegram must write before the address the indicator "PRESSE" which is counted and charged for as one word. Ordinary Press telegrams take equal rank in transmission with ordinary Full Rate and CDE telegrams.

Press telegrams may, if the sender desires, be sent as Urgent Press telegrams. The sender of such a telegram must write before the address the indicator "URGENT PRESSE" which is counted and charged for as two words. Urgent Press telegrams take equal rank in transmission with regular URGENT and CDE URGENT telegrams.

To certain countries a Deferred Press service is also available. The sender of a Deferred Press telegram must write before the address the indicator "LCPS" which is counted and charged for as one word. Deferred Press telegrams take equal rank in transmission with regular Deferred telegrams.

The supplementary services, Reply Paid (RP), Collation (TC), Notification of Delivery (PC or PCP) are not admitted in Press telegrams.

(f) Government Telegrams

Government telegrams must be properly endorsed to the effect that they are on official business of the Government in whose behalf they are sent.

The telegrams of consular agents carrying on private business are only regarded as Government telegrams when they are addressed to an official person and relate to official matters.

Government telegrams are given priority of transmission over all other classes of telegrams, except telegrams relating to safety of life at sea or in the air, unless they are filed as Deferred rate, or Radioletter rate, or unless the sender renounces the priority privilege at the time of filing.

Government telegrams are repeated back by the receiving office at each stage of their transmission.

Unless special reduced Government rates are in effect, Government telegrams are charged the Full Rate or CDE rate according to the language in which they are written.

Issuing date: April 8, 1941

Issuing Officer:

C. Sandbach, Manager Tariff Bureau.

66 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

Effective date: May 12, 1941

[14083]

SECRET

TELEGRAM

Official Business—Government Rates

From: War Department

Bureau: OCSigO, Signal Intelligence Service

R. W. Minckler

R. W. MINCKLER, Lt. Col., Signal Corps

PRIORITY—SECRET

DECEMBER 7, 1941.

734 SIGNALS MANILA, PI.

530—FORT SHAFTER, TH.

403—PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

SEND TO WAR BY PRIORITY ENCIPHERED RADIO ALL JAPANESE CLEAR MESSAGES ENDING WITH ENGLISH WORD QUOTE STOP UNQUOTE SPELLED REPEAT QUOTE STOP UNQUOTE SPELLED COPIED SINCE NOVEMBER TWENTYSEVEN AND HEREAFTER

COLTON, Acting.

SENT NO. 734 to Manila, 12/7

SENT NO. 530 to Hawaii, 12/7

SENT NO. 403 to Pres of S. I., 12/7

[Stamped on reverse side:] Code Section. W. D. M. C. 1941 Dec. 7 PM 2:14.

5302 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14084] Mr. MORGAN. Pursuant to a request of Senator Ferguson at pages 8579-80 of the transcript we have the following communication from the Army liaison officer, dated February 21, 1946:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, 21 February 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson.

At pages 8579-80 of the transcript, Senator Ferguson asked what the radar stations at New York City, San Francisco, and Seattle were doing on 6 and 7 December 1941, and whether they were alerted and operating 24 hours a day.

In response to Senator Ferguson's request, there are transmitted herewith:

- (1) a paraphrase of a 31 January 1946 radio from the Commanding General Eastern Defense Command (Inclosure No. 1);
- (2) an 8 February 1946 memorandum from the Commanding Officer of the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, Bradley Beach, New Jersey (Inclosure No. 2);
- (3) an 18 February 1946 memorandum from the Headquarters First Air Force (Inclosure No. 3);
- (4) a 4 February 1946 radio from the Commanding General of the Fourth Air Force (Inclosure No. 4).

Incls.—4

(Signed) HARMON DUNCOMBE,
Lieutenant Colonel, GSO.

We would like to have these inclosures spread on the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. They will be spread on the record.
(The inclosures referred to follow:)

[14085]

RADIO FROM COMMANDING GENERAL EASTERN DEFENSE COMMAND TO WAR DEPARTMENT, DATED 31 JANUARY 1946

(Paraphrase)

On 6 and 7 December Twin Lights, Atlantic Highlands, N. J. (radar equipment not stated) and SCR 270 at Mount Cadillac, Maine were operated by First Interceptor Command 24 hours a day. Foregoing from 1st Air Force historical records. Officer this command, then Arty Eng Ft. Hancock, informally advises that in December SCR-268 sets operated in secret area Ft. Hancock.

ARMY SERVICE FORCES,
HEADQUARTERS, SIGNAL CORPS ENGINEERING LABORATORIES,
Bradley Beach, New Jersey, 8 February 1946.

Refer to: SPSGS-CO

Memorandum for: Major General G. L. Van Deusen, Chief, Engineering and Technical Service.

Subject: Telephone Request of Captain Carl R. Nelson.

1. These Laboratories are in receipt of a request for information concerning radar operation on the dates of 6 and 7 December 1941. This information was requested by Capt. Carl R. Nelson, Legislative and Liaison Division, War Department Special Staff, Room 4D761, the Pentagon (Ext. 71470).

[14086] 2. As nearly as may be ascertained from a survey of files currently available at this organization, and from discussion with individuals who were present during December 1941, there were no radar sets in tactical operation manned by employees of Signal Corps Radar Laboratory, presently part of Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories. During the month of December 1941, there were in operation by this organization, one SCR-271 at Twin Lights, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., one SCR-271 at Atlantic City, N. J., an experimental 400 mc unit in the vicinity of Fort Hancock, plus a number of sets which were in varying stages of assembly. All of these equipments were being run only for technical observation, such as: life test of components, performance test of newly assembled equipments, and experimental work on new designs. Data from these tests would be in statistical form only and would not include dates of operation or times of day operated. Accordingly, it is not known what equipments under control of this organization were in actual operation on the specific dates of 6 and 7 December 1941.

3. Based purely on the memory of individuals present during that period, it appears that some Radar Sets SCR-270 were in operation in Long Island by the First Signal Air Warning Company and some Radar Sets SCR-268 were in operation by Coast Artillery personnel of Fort Hancock. Since there is no organizational tie between these organizations and the [14087] Signal Corps Engineering Laboratories, there is no detailed information available here on location, method, or times of operation of this equipment.

4. It is requested that if you see no objection to the above it be forwarded to Capt. Nelson.

/s/ Victor A. Conrad
VICTOR A. CONRAD,
Colonel, Signal Corps, Commanding.

In Reply Refer To: J 413.44

HEADQUARTERS, FIRST AIR FORCE,
Mitchel Field, New York, 18 February 1946.

Subject: Photostatic Copy of Logs of Radar Sets in Operation on 6 and 7 December 1941

To: War Department Special Staff, Room 4D761, Pentagon Building, Washington, D. C. (Attention: Capt. C. R. Nelson)

In accordance with letter of Commanding General, Eastern Defense Command, dated 5 February 1946, above subject, to forward copies of radar logs of radar sets operating in the New York area during 6-7 December 1941, a search was made of records. An SCR-271A set was operated at sites 8A on [14088] dates in question by 1st Air Warning Company (SC) as a training measure. Existing records fail to reveal these logs. It is assumed these records were destroyed along with other confidential material due to lack of storage space and no apparent need for preservation by the New York Air Defense Wing prior to its deactivation.

For the Commanding General:

RAYNOR GAREY,
Colonel, A. G. D.,
Adjutant General.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Classified Message Center

INCOMING CLEAR MESSAGE

From: CG, 4th Air Force, San Francisco, California

To: War Department

No: 4 AF 6 E 293 4 February 1946

From Hale CG 4th AF to WDGS attn OPD Wash DC 4AF 6 E 293 ref yr WCL 43319

No radar stations were in operation in Seattle area on 6 and 7 December 1941. Stations in San Francisco area were operating during daylight hours on 6 and 7 December but only for testing and calibration in preparation for a proposed maneuver. No stations were alerted prior to 1400 7 December 1941.

End
[14089] Action: OPD

Info: L & L Div

MC IN 53328 (6 Feb. 46) DTG 042835Z mec

[14090] Mr. MORGAN. Pursuant to a request of Senator Ferguson at page 9550 of the transcript for a copy of a letter written by Admiral Nimitz, then Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, dated 25 November 1941, we have now been supplied by the Navy Department a copy of this letter, which we ask to have spread on the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record.
(The letter referred to follows:)

[14091] Nav-1-MM
Confidential

NOVEMBER 25, 1941.

MY DEAR KIMMEL: I am enclosing a memorandum which will give you a pretty clear picture of what we are doing in connection with Radar instruction.

This, as you know, is highly important and while we have been working at it for sometime, we have been handicapped by the inability to obtain any Radar material. That is coming along now and we are pushing these schools as fast as possible.

From a morale point of view, we felt that it would be most desirable to take radiomen second class and give them this training, but in view of your strong protest, we are endeavoring to obtain recruits having basic knowledge of electronics. The field has been pretty well combed over by Army, Navy, and British agencies and it is impossible to get men with the necessary qualifications to enlist as seamen second class. We are therefore taking them in as second class petty officers and will send them to the Fleet as first class or chief petty officers. They will be specialists in their particular line and while they will have had no previous seagoing experience, I hope they will be found satisfactory. For such specialists we are creating a new rating as specialist third class, second class, first class, or chief specialist, so as to reduce the discontent that would otherwise be felt by petty officers of long standing at sea if men who have had no seagoing experience were placed over their heads as would undoubtedly have been the case if we would send them out as radiomen first class or chief radiomen.

We are constantly keeping your needs in mind and endeavoring to do everything possible to fill up the Fleet, but we do have problems that are most difficult for solution. With the expanding Navy, our recruiting is not producing sufficient men and we have asked for language in the supplementary appropriation for 1942 and in the appropriation bill for 1943 to utilize men from Selective Service. We had to come to this, but men must be obtained and if we cannot get them by straight recruiting, we will have to go to Selective Service for they have to be produced. The Pacific Fleet, I think, is in many ways fortunate. The percentage of men is greater than in the Atlantic which, at present, is engaged in active operations, and the number of Reserves in the Atlantic Fleet is considerably greater than in the Pacific.

With kindest regards and best wishes to you, I am,

Most sincerely,

[C. W. NIMITZ, Admiral]

ADMIRAL H. E. KIMMEL, U. S. N.,
Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet, U. S. S. Pennsylvania, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

[14092] Mr. MORGAN. In accordance with a request of Senator Lucas, at page 9917 of the transcript, with respect to a false weather message, we have a communication from the Navy liaison officer, dated February 6, 1946, which we ask be spread on the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record.

(The communication referred to follows:)

[14093] "Winds"

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 6 February 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

1. On 4 February 1946 Senator Lucas made a query as to a false weather message (Transcript Page 9917). These were two messages intercepted on 4 and 5 December 1941 by the Federal Communications Commission at approximately 2200 GMT and 2130 GMT respectively.

2. These messages were in NCI Exhibit #65 and the full text of each can be found in the Narrative Statement, Volume II, Page 550 and Pages 573-574. Confirmation of the transmittal of these messages by the Federal Communications Commission to the Navy 20-G Watch Officer may be found in the Federal Communications Commission watch log which is Exhibit 142A in the present investigation.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHE,
Lt. Comdr., U. S. N. R.

[14094] Mr. MORGAN. At page 12996 of the transcript, Congressman Murphy requested that there be incorporated in the record information concerning the organization of lend-lease. We now have a detailed letter from Chester T. Lane, Deputy Commissioner, Office of Foreign Liquidation Commission, Department of State, which we would like to have spread on the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record.
(The letter referred to follows:)

[14095]

OFFICE OF FOREIGN LIQUIDATION COMMISSIONER

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Washington

Room 506, 1818 "H" Street, NW

Mr. SETH W. RICHARDSON,

General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, Congress of the United States, Washington 25, D. C.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: 1. This is in reply to your letter dated March 6, 1946, addressed to Mr. Benno C. Schmidt, General Counsel of this Office, requesting a statement, for insertion in the record of the Committee's proceedings, "as to the organization which was set up by this Government (i. e. the United States) for the purpose of determining what distribution should be made under lend-lease and what officials were responsible for such distribution". It is apparent from your letter that our reply may generally be limited to the method of allocating military equipment rather than the method of determining the distribution of non-military items, such as raw materials and supplies for civilian consumption.

2. On December 6, 1939, the President appointed an informal inter-departmental committee for the coordination of foreign and domestic military procurement which became known as the President's Liaison Committee. This Committee functioned as the coordinating body for all foreign military procurement in the United States until it was abolished in April 1941 after passage of the Lend-Lease Act. The membership of this Committee consisted of Rear Admiral Ray Spear, [14096] Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, representing the Navy, Major General James H. Burns, representing the Army, and Mr. Philip Young, representing the Treasury Department. All early requests for lend-lease aid were channeled through this Committee to the appropriate agency of the Government for actual procurement and transfer of defense articles.

3. On May 2, 1941, the Division of Defense Aid Reports in the Office for Emergency Management of the Executive Office of the President was established by Executive Order. The President appointed Major General James H. Burns as Executive Officer of the Division. The Division of Defense Aid Reports was established to provide for the effective administration of the Lend-Lease Act. This Division succeeded the President's Liaison Committee as the channel through which requests for lend-lease aid were forwarded to the procuring agencies.

4. By Executive Order dated October 28, 1941, the President established the Office of Lend-Lease Administration, and transferred to this Administration all the functions previously vested in the Division of Defense Aid Reports and most of the powers conferred on the President by the Lend-Lease Act. Mr. Edward R. Stettinius, Jr. was appointed Administrator, a position which he retained throughout the period with which this letter is concerned.

[14097] 5. Military supplies transferred under the Lend-Lease Act prior to Pearl Harbor may be divided into three categories:

(a) equipment procured by the War and Navy Department with funds appropriated prior to March 11, 1941 (a limit of $1,300,000,000 was placed by the Lend-Lease Act on the value of material transferred out of this category);

(b) equipment in the possession of the Army or Navy, but procured with funds appropriated after March 11, 1941;

(c) equipment procured with funds appropriated to the President for lend-lease purposes, under U. S. contracts placed with suppliers directly in response to requests submitted by foreign governments.

Section 3 (a) (2) of the Lend-Lease Act provides that the equipment described in (a) and (b) above could be transferred to foreign governments only after consultation with the Chief of Staff of the Army or the Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy. Most of the pre-Pearl Harbor lend-lease transfers were in category (a), and all transfers in that category were personally approved by the Chief of Staff or the Chief of Naval Operations. Procurement of defense articles covered by (c) above, was effected by means of requests filed with one of the agencies described in [14098] paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 above. After approval by one of these agencies, procurement was subject to priorities and controls established by the Office of Production Management, which operated in consultation with the Army and Navy Munitions Board.

6. There was created in the War Department by order of the Secretary of War of April 8, 1941, a Defense Aid Division of the Office of the Undersecretary. This Division was responsible for coordinating and maintaining records on the lend-lease operations of the War Department. The officers in charge of the work of this Division were Colonel Henry S. Aurand, Lt. Col. Edward E. MacMorland and Major John H. Franks. Army Air Force lend-lease activities were under the direction of Lt. Col. Benjamin Meyers. In the Navy, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, Liaison Officer for the Secretary of the Navy on lend-lease matters, and Rear Admiral Ray Spear, Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, were chiefly concerned with lend-lease operations. The requests of the foreign governments for military supplies, which were first submitted for approval to the agencies described in paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 of this letter, were routed to these officers in the War and Navy Departments for allocation and procurement of such supplies.

7. A special committee handled allocations of aircraft during the period under discussion, known as the Joint [14099] Aircraft Committee, with membership consisting of General Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, Rear Admiral J. H. Towers, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, two representatives of the Office of Production Management, a representative of the President's Liaison Committee and representatives of the British Air Commission. This Committee controlled the allocation of all aircraft production in the United States prior to Pearl Harbor. The presence of General Arnold and Admiral Towers on this Board assured that no other governments would be allocated any aircraft which in the view of our military authorities was more urgently needed by our own forces.

8. I trust that this explanation will be found to be a satisfactory description of the procedure followed in allocating lend-lease military supplies prior to December 7, 1941. The period in which you are interested was during the formative stages of these operations when the assignment machinery as it ultimately developed was not entirely in operation. However, I believe that it is evident that at all times the allocation of military supplies was subject to the approval of the high officers of the Army and Navy, and this fully safeguarded the interests of the United States Army and Navy in the distribution of valuable equipment.

Very truly yours,

/s/ CHESTER T. LANE,
Deputy Commissioner.

[14100] Mr. MORGAN. We have a series of communications from Admiral Noyes, Mr. Sonnett, former Secretary Hull, Captain Kramer, and Captain McCollum, with respect to certain corrections they would like to have indicated in their testimony.

We would like to have these communications placed in the record at this point.

(The communications referred to follow:)

[14101]

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BOARD OF INSPECTION AND SURVEY,
Washington 25, D. C., 25 February 1946.

Memorandum for Counsel, Joint Pearl Harbor Inquiry Committee.

Enclosure: (A) List of Typographical Errors Found in Record of Proceedings, Investigation of Pearl Harbor Attack.

In reading over my testimony I noted that I failed to bring out the following point, which, however, is supported by my previous testimony and by documentary evidence.

In connection with the alleged telephone conversation with me on 5 December to which Colonel Sadtler testified and which I did not recall in that form:

On 5 December there was received by the Navy Department the message from Colonel Thorpe in Batavia addressed to General Miles in the War Department. This message was transmitted by the Naval Attache to Navy Department for delivery to General Miles. As I have already testified, the subject matter was under discussion between me and the War Department during that day. It is very probable that I would have called Colonel Sadtler and notified him of the fact that this message had been received and was being delivered to the War Department [14102] for General Miles on account of its importance. Since discussion took place between me and the War Department during that day on the subject matter of this message and the War Department recommended that we should make no change in our original translation of the setup of the Winds Code (see previous testimony), it would appear that any possible authentic or false execute of the winds message would have also been discussed and settled during that day.

Very respectfully yours,

/s/ Leigh Noyes,
LEIGH NOYES,
Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy.

Enclosure A

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
BOARD OF INSPECTION AND SURVEY,
Washington 25, D. C., 25 February 1946.

Memorandum for Lieut. Comdr. Baecher, USNR.

Subject: Corrections in Report of Proceedings, Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack—testimony of Rear Admiral Leigh Noyes, U. S. Navy.¹

1. The following is a list of corrections to be made [14103] in the testimony of Rear Admiral Leigh Noyes, U. S. Navy:

- Page 12,559—line 18: Change Bidell to Biddle.
- Page 12,559—line 25: change to read, "Chief of Staff to Commander".
- Page 12,560—line 15: change to read, "No, September 1944, in San Francisco."
- Page 12,561—line 10: change to read, "what I do now."
- Page 12,562—line 1: Witness Noyes.
- Page 12,564—lines 13, 14: strike out, "Who acted in my place" insert "or".
- Page 12,568—line 18: change to read, "they could not decipher the diplomatic traffic and send it all to Honolulu."
- Page 12,571—lines 13, 14: strike out, "or by ML the important ones."
- Page 12,574—line 14: "Inkling."
- Page 12,580—line 12: change "words" to "worries".
- Page 12,581—line 19: change to read, "knew what the rules were."
- Page 12,586—lines 20, 21: change to read, "Chief of Naval Operations and the Army Chief of Staff to the Commanding General."
- Page 12,592—lines 21, 22: change to read, "Naval Communications."
- Page 12,595—lines 20; change to read, "several booklets and the Chief of Naval Communications."
- [14104] Page 12,598—line 7: change to read, "I do now".
- Page 12,603—line 9: change "mine" to "mind".
- Page 12,614—line 6: change "present" to "presented".
- Page 12,615—line 9: change to read, "Safford said".
- Page 12,625—line 19: change to read, "I believe a reference to forty-six words".
- Page 12,643—line 14: change to read, "and it was some time after I got back."
- Page 12,686—line 15: change to read, "information to the Naval Attaches."
- Page 12,687—line 24: change to read, "At the time when Italy came into the war, which".
- Page 12,688—line 14: change "by" to "but".
- Page 12,689—line 21: change "warning" to "morning".
- Page 12,710—line 6: change "technical" to "tactical".
- Page 12,711—line 21: change "Canada" to "Japanese".
- Page 12,729—line 1: strike out, "and I supposed the record was supposed to bear on subsequent events".
- Page 12,735—line 23: change "execute" to "setup".

/s/ Leigh Noyes,
LEIGH NOYES,
Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy.

Enclosure B.

¹Adm. Noyes' testimony appears in Hearings, Part 10, pp. 4710-4792.

5308 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14105]

ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL,
Washington, February 27, 1946.

SETH W. RICHARDSON, Esquire

*General Counsel for the Joint Committee on the Investigation
Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.*

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: The Navy Department has made available to me Volumes 66 and 67 of the transcript before the Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, which contain my testimony along with the testimony of various other witnesses.

In examining the transcript of my testimony I have noted a number of minor typographical and grammatical errors, which I have indicated on the transcript, and respectfully request be corrected.

Very truly yours,

/s/ John Sonnett,
JOHN F. SONNETT.²

Enclosure A.

[14106] The following is a list of corrections to be made in the testimony of John F. Sonnett:

Page 13,330—line 25—add "of Justice" after "Department"

Page 13,331—line 6—add "a" after "was"

Page 13,331—line 17—change "investigate" to "review"

Page 13,331—line 20—add "and in general" after "tion"

Page 13,331—line 22—change "was was" to "as might be"

Page 13,332—line 5—change "1944" to "1945"

Page 13,332—line 16—add "in the Navy" after "where"

Page 13,333—line 13—change "at tempt" to "attempt"

Page 13,334—line 16—change "t en" to "then"

Page 13,335—line 6—change "is" to "was"

Page 13,335—line 6—add "This was in" after "crazy."

Page 13,335—line 7—add "and" after "document"

Page 13,336—line 20—change "Navy" to "Navy,"

Page 13,351—line 6—change "lation," to "lations,"

Page 13,351—line 13—change "S. Correa" to "F. Correa"

Page 13,353—line 9—change "civil" to "civilian"

Page 13,353—line 13—change "civil" to "civilian"

Page 13,358—line 16—change "be" to "be,"

Page 13,359—line 9—change "the Navy" to "Naval matters"

Page 13,362—line 11—strike out "which I have mentioned"

Page 13,366—line 3—strike out "which"

[14107] Page 13,366—line 4—change "so were set" to "and were so set"

Page 13,369—line 25—change "Reports" to "Report"

Enclosure B

[14108]

CORDELL HULL

Wardman Park, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: It will be appreciated if you will cause the following corrections to be made in my testimony as it appears in the transcript of the Pearl Harbor hearings:

Volume 9, page 1460

Line 5: "Explore" should read "expose".

Line 8: "Money" should read "cotton".

Volume 9, page 1470

Line 9: Omit "and for 90 days".

Volume 10, page 1594

In reference to the first sentence of my reply to the Vice Chairman's question I find, upon careful rechecking of the time, that the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor occurred at 1:20 p. m., Washington time, so that the telephone message from the White House must have occurred shortly after 1:20, at which time the appointment to see the Japanese Ambassador had already been postponed upon the Ambassador's request to 1:45 p. m.

² Mr. Sonnett's testimony appears in Hearings, Part 10, pp. 5009-5027.

Volume 10, page 1612

In reference to Senator Lucas' question beginning at line 5, to which I replied, "No," I had in mind the question whether the Army Board had conferred orally with me on this point. As to correspondence, the Secretary of War in a letter [14109] dated September 14, 1944, reciting that it was at the instance of the Army Board, asked me as to the truth or falsity of an allegation that an ultimatum had been delivered to Japan on November 26, 1941. I replied in a letter dated September 28, 1944, stating that my communication to the Japanese representatives on November 26 was in no sense an ultimatum. I added that if I could further assist the Board in its investigation I would be glad to do so. The correspondence was made public by the State Department on August 30, 1945.

Volume 10, page 1614

Line 4: Enclose in quotation marks, "poor, innocent, peace-minded".

Sincerely yours,

/s/ CORDELL HULL¹

The Honorable SETH W. RICHARDSON,

General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, Congress of the United States.

[14110]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 11 March 1946.

Memorandum to: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. Forwarded herewith is a letter of Captain Alwin D. Kramer, U. S. Navy, requesting corrections in the reporter's transcript of his testimony before the Joint Committee.

/s/ John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lt. Comdr., USNR.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 8 Mar. 1946.

Mr. SETH W. RICHARDSON,

Chief Counsel, Congressional Committee Investigating the Attack on Pearl Harbor.

Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SIR: At the request of the reporters, I have checked the transcript of my testimony before the Congressional Committee, [14111] and request that the corrections listed on the attached pages be made in the record.

Very respectfully,

/s/ A. D. Kramer,
A. D. KRAMER,²
Captain, U. S. Navy.

Italics indicates error or omission.

Volume 55, of 6 February 1946

Page Line

Change

10432 19 After "San Diego in" add "1935 and".

433 16 "area" should be "Arear".

435 20 should read "known as OP-20-GZ, OP-20-G being" etc.

436 18 should read "until 9 or 10 or 11" etc.

441 2 "knowledge of"

444 4 & 5 Word after "indicating" should be "punctuation." Text should therefore read: "three letter code groups, indicating punctuation of various kinds."

445 25 "stronger in language".

¹ Mr. Hull's testimony appears in Hearings, Part 2, pp. 403-457, 551-560, and 605-615.

² Captain Kramer's testimony appears in Hearings, Part 8, pp. 3893-3927; and Part 9, pp. 3930-4221.

5310 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

- 450 8 "believe at".
- 451 20 After "folder" add ", i. e. (close quotes).
- 454 21 Should read: "features required in handling".
- 462 24 Put a period after "Fort Myer".
- 464 17 Should read "heading only, and to".
- 22 Should read "this code message, because".
- [14112] 467 17 "between "him", Mr. Hull", etc.
- 470 19 "about to leave".
- 20 Change to "plain language Japanese message."
- 21 Change to "that carried".
- 471 9 & 10 Should read "(blank) country, (name to be inserted) was not in accordance with expectations".
- 11 Should read "yeoman the sense".
- 10472 6 Change "days" to "months".
- 477 20 Insert comma after "interruptions".
- 478 22 Change "quarters" to "country".
- 484 20 Should read "supplements to that, four or five in."
- 488 8 Change "Russian" to "Russia".
- 489 22 Comma after "before".
- 489 23 Read "there was effected at about".
- 10498 20 Read "message of 7 December".
- 510 13 Read "the GY section for".
- 513 14 Read "Yes, sir, if I can finish, etc.

Volume 56, of 7 February 1946

- 10524 8 Change "text" to "technique".
- 12 Read "cancelled".
- 526 17 Read "so indicated".
- 536 3 Read "machine. My presumption."
- 552 24 Read "called for by".
- 553 4 Read "execute"
- [14113] 555 5 Read "reference to England. Things more emphatic" etc.
- 7 Read "been. That is the scheme" etc.
- 10 Read "Thailand with Japan. We knew" etc.
- 558 17 "This".
- 18 Read "indication".
- 21 Comma after "Germans".
- 568 6 "Romaft."
- 572 9 Comma after "messages".
- 583 25 "alone".
- 584 6 Read "running to 12 and 15 feet in length", etc.
- 16 Read "news broadcast".
- 10605 25 Should read "originating an encoded or enciphered message", etc.
- 606 23 Should read "in a Division of Naval Operations" etc.
- 611 13 "subsist out" should be quoted.
- 618 5 Read "from Alusna, Batavia".
- 625 25 Should read "riji yori no tugoo aru ni tuki".
- 627 7 Read "the code indicator "STOP"."
- 635 19 Read "call KANA Morse," etc.
- 654 5 & 6 Read "intercept net and" etc.
- [14114] 660 7 Read "designated as J-12, in my" etc.
- 586 16 & 17 Read "messages 901 to 910".
- 589 8 Put the word "beginning" in quotes.
- 593 11 Should read "That is, presumably other codes intended for distribution."
- 662 7 Read "The JD number" etc.
- 664 10 Read "which I might characterize" etc.
- 690 9 Read "impression on that point."
- 694 22 Should read "Captain Kramer: That is" etc.
- 706 25 Omit comma.
- 710 5 Read "particularly certain" etc.
- 716 19 Omit "must as".

Volume 57, of 8 February 1946

- 10728 16 "shirts" should read "shifts".
 730 14 Should read "broadcast, one of", etc.
 731 9 Read "impression of irritation" etc.
 733 24 Change "should" to "shall".
 735 2 Read "number for" etc.
 4 Read "last night, and there" etc.
 736 2 & 3 Read "during the war in interrogation", etc.
 7 & 8 Read "corresponds in Japan to our Joint Chiefs of Staff, in the months preceding Pearl Harbor."
 743 12 Add "of the" at end of line.
 746 21 Read "inserted".
 747 17 Insert comma after "down".
 748 6 Omit "and now" to read "at the time presumed".
 755 25 Change "was" to "were".
 775 20 Change "day" to "say".
 789 2 Change to "negotiations, but" etc.
 [14115] 780 12 Read "other than that I knew that the Naval" etc.
 794 3 Read "approximately 8:15," etc.
 809 3 Change "sited" to "sighted".
 5 Read "contact with it, special" etc.
 809 25 Read "Intelligence, deals, perhaps 90 percent is more accurate, is of any- 810 2 thing but a positive nature."
 814 20 Change "At" to "—was the arrival" etc.
 816 12 Change "he" to "we".
 837 3 Change "no" to "not".
 837 13 Read "Pearl Harbor at" etc.
 838 14 Extend answer to read: "I did, yes, sir, but the matter of the time of crew's mess, and of the number of ship's personnel above or below decks were simply part of the factors in my mind when I was remarking on 7:30 Sunday morning being the quietest time of the week. These factors were not stated, however, in my present best recollection."
 844 2 Read "refresh my memory on that point. I do not" etc.
 847 7 Change "characters" to "character".
 848 20 Change "hearings" to "hearing".
 875 2 Read "the Japanese word 'KORYAKU', which means" etc.
 18 Read "Alusna, Batavia".
 [14116] 877 24 Omit comma after "at least".
 879 18 Change "Javorach" to "Jabberwock".
 888 17, 18 & 19 Should read: "translation of the Japanese version, which, in the light of seeing the work sheet just a few days ago I believe reads: NIHON TO TO NO KANKEI KITAI NI HAN SU".
 904 12 Read "through 1941, the only" etc.
 907 13 Expand to read: "Yes, sir, the original letter."
 912 17 Read "made by me only".
 919 22 Insert comma after "questions".
 927 6, 7, & 9 Change "Wilkinson" to "Kimmel" on these 3 lines.
 931 14 Read "and no reply to it".
 937 4 Read "impose on any friendships" etc.
 23 Read "what I already had. Not to" etc.

Volume 58, of 9 February 1946

- 10960 8 Read "Greenwich Mean Time, yes, sir".
 961 19 Read "Those trips, however," etc.
 984 7 Change "confirmation" to "consummation".
 10 Change "know" to "knew".
 990 23 Read "between about 8:15 and 9:30, at" etc.
 996 23 Read "Pearl Harbor than" etc.
 997 2 & 3 Read "with Admiral Kimmel's request" etc.
 9 Read "hoped that it would not be" etc.
 11006 25 Read "numerous".

5312 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

- [14117] 11008 7 Add comma after "Sunday".
 010 8 Read "gotten up to it", etc.
 012 17 Read "Have no information" etc.
 018 2 Read "him only rarely" etc.
 18 Read "understanding" etc.
 016 11 Read "Thank you. I hope I don't" etc.

NOTE: The following corrections on pages 11,020 and 11,021 apply to the page numbers as corrected by the Official Reporters in their note of 10 Feb. 1946.

- 11020 2 Read "Communications. When" etc.
 021 5 Read "—by the watch officer" etc.
 027 25 Read "A." "On receipt of" etc.
 031 9 Read "who presumably would get it".
 20 & 21 Read "East Wind, Rain" meaning United States;
 "West Wind, Clear" meaning England;
 "North Wind, Cloudy" meaning Russia.
 051 10 & 11 Change capital to small "i" in the word "Investigation" on both lines.
 11052 8 & 9 Read "It was only, incidentally, in" etc.
 053 12 Read "and which was subsequently" etc.
 077 22 Read "by comparison with days" etc.
 078 21 Read "amounted to perhaps 100 feet" etc.
 097 22 & 23 The statement: "Senator Barkley informed me of that proposal" should appear as a remark of Senator Brewster rather than of the Vice Chairman.
 [14118] 098 14 & 15 Insert to read "Yes, using the touch system. I have never" etc.
 104 8 Read "Colonel Bales" etc.

Volume 59, of 11 February 1946

- 11117 10 & 11 Read "classified papers, reading from this: (brown wrapping paper)", originated" etc.
 119 18 Read "the questions".
 121 19 Read "I therefore feel it" etc.
 127 8 Read "before that hearing" etc.
 129 4 Read "Will show him these later."
 131 22 Read "for the past month because" etc.
 23 Read "they consist" etc.
 133 8, 9, 10, 11 Rearrange to read: "read these papers from mid-day 1944 to this moment, other than to glance at the headings or first paragraphs of each on certain days and times last December" etc.
 134 22 Read "It was her I was about" etc.
 137 22 Read "teletype. Station 2 was" etc.
 24 Read "by Army and retained" etc.
 138 5 Read "except possibly Christmas" etc.
 142 4 Read "for periods varying" etc.
 147 20 Read "I most certainly" etc.
 160 12 to 17 Repunctuate to read: "I recollect that this was interpreted, I am uncertain of the precise wording of the interpretation, this was considered [14119] and I believe it was approximately my consideration at the time, as being an attempt" etc.
 11160 23 Read "Diplomatic posts were" etc.
 25 Read "were usually pared," etc.
 165 6 to 9 Read "the Japanese shoehorned, if I may use that term, military men into the delegation conducting those negotiations. The Ambassador, or Special Envoy, as I recall it, was named Yoshizawa."
 165 17 Read "In Panama and in all parts of" etc.
 170 6 & 7 Read "who, when I was speaking to him, was about ten or fifteen feet away from the conference table, and just outside the closed door of the room, Mr. Hull's office, where the three secretaries were conferring."

- 170 21 Read "because the names associated with each other in my mind."
 172 15 Insert comma after "officials".
 177 14 Read "Lasswell, Commander Roenick," etc.
 181 23 Change "Halsey" to "I".
 188 13 Read "testified to,"
 18 Read "engagement, which I previously testified to, at" etc.
 188 4 Read "That is Greenwich Meridian Time, is it?"
 202 14 Change "code developed" to "word developed" etc.
 17 Read "has" "1, 10, 12, 2X, P, S, G, MIS, BE. B". What is that?"
 [14120] 11202 19 & Read "Pound sign. "AF, X, Y, MONO". Is that correct?"
 204 25-- Read "we actually never used it, sir".
 205 9&10-- Read "'B", "BE" not used. "B" OP-16-B, I think. What is that?"
 17-- Read "'AF". CinCAF, Asiatic Fleet. "X" 20-GL--".
 207 12,13 Read "'Tokyo to Honolulu, 24 September," that being the originator's date; originator's message "number 83", and an asterisk meaning "an interesting message".
 208 16-- Read "would see exhibit 2," etc.
 212 18-- Read "gists were" etc.
 213 12-- Change "Talk" to "Take".
 215 17& Read "footnote says: "JD-1; 6944". "I relayed"" etc.
 18--
 217 7-- Read "that latter".
 250 12-- Read "'No", is a postposition identical" etc.
 16-- Read "mean" for "means".
 258 25-- Read "There you have 4".
 4-- Change "12-41" to read: "12-4-41".
 259 10-- Read "4 or 5 December dates".
 11-- Read "dividing" etc.
 261 24-- Read "Nos. 7152 to 7184 run chronologically" etc.
 262 23-- Change "fact." to "facts."
 263 13-- Read "testified, and those shown" etc.
 [14121] 267 4-- Read "simply to give Admiral Halsey" etc.
 11-- Change "what" to "that", and change "onr" to "our".
 268 12-- Read "did I have that conception" etc.

[14122]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
 OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
 Washington, 1 April 1945.

Memorandum To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

1. There are forwarded as enclosures A and B, respectively, a letter from Captain A. H. McCollum, U. S. N., requesting that certain typographical and grammatical errors be corrected in the transcript of his testimony before the Joint Committee and a list of the items by page and line number.

/s/ John Ford Baecher

JOHN FORD BAECHER
 Lieutenant Commander, USNR

U. S. S. HELENA (CA 75).

Fleet Post Office, New York City, N. Y., March 18, 1946.

The Honorable ALBEN W. BARKLEY,

United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR: I have but recently had the opportunity of reading over the transcript of the testimony I gave on January 30, 1946, [14123] before your committee investigating the Japanese attack on our Fleet at Pearl Harbor on Sunday, December 7, 1941. In reading over the transcript of the record furnished me, I find what appear to be either clerical errors and omissions or errors due to lack of clarity of expression on my part. There are not many of these, and in the interests of clarity and precision I venture to suggest that, subject to the Committee's pleasure, I may be permitted to correct my testimony as transcribed in accordance with particulars listed on a separate page.

5314 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

May I again express to you and to the Committee my appreciation for the thoughtful consideration and courtesy shown me during my testimony before you.
Respectfully,

/s/ A. H. McCollum,
A. H. McCOLLUM,¹
Captain, U. S. N., Commanding.

Enclosure A

U. S. S. HELENA (CA 75)

SUGGESTED CORRECTIONS TO TESTIMONY OF CAPTAIN A. H. MCCOLLUM, USN

Page	Line
9115	18	Change 6th word from "destroyer" to "transport"
9116	5	Change 7th word from "June" to "January"
[14124]	9116 10	After last word of the line add "and"
9117	6	Change last word from "billing" to "billet"
9117	11	After 5th word insert "I served in the Mediterranean and"
9117	22	After 6th word insert "as head of"
9119	24	After 4th word insert "intelligence"
9121	22	Strike out 5th, 6th and 7th words—"on the idea"
9121	23	Strike out 2nd and 3rd words—"and it"
9122	25	After 1st word insert "of it"
9123	21	After 6th word insert "that". Change 8th word "to" to "or"
9128	9	Strike out 4th and 5th words "me and", and 9th word "the". Change 11th word "Plans" to "Operations"
9132	2	After 7th word insert "towards"
9132	12	Change 8th word from "Hurd" to "Heard"
9138	15	After 3rd word insert "had to make"
9139	7	Change 12th word from "much" to "such"
9139	8	Change 8th word from "much" to "such"
9140	14	Change last word from "the" to "a"
9142	19	At end of line insert "from watch standing"
9142	21	Strike out first three words "I take it"
9143	2	After 1st word insert "Saturday night"
9146	12	Change 7th word from "withint" to "without"
[14125]	9146 24	Change 6th word from "is" to "was"
9147	23	Strike out first three words "as they appeared"
9149	22	Change 4th word from "taking" to "checking"
9152	21	Change 1st word from "movement" to "unit"
9152	22	Change 7th word from "movement" to "unit"
9152	24	Change 3rd word "sets" to "setup working"
9152	24	Change 10th, 11th and 12th words "route of entry" to "unit"
9153	21	Change 3rd word "that" to "as"
9158	18	Change 2nd word "a" to "back the"
9161	22	After 11th word insert "no"
9170	11	After 9th word "on" insert "Japanese"
9178	22	Change 4th word "discovered" to "so covered"
9219	13	After 7th word "might" insert "not"
9220	15	Strike out 4th word "and"
9221	12	Last two words change "they did" to "did they"
9252	9	Change 7th and 8th words "at the" to "as to"
9275	24	Change 8th word "1907" to "1904"
9287	15	Change 2nd word "Hurd" to "Heard"

Enclosure B

[14126] Mr. MORGAN. At page 7625 of the record Senator Brewster requested information concerning the sources from which the time table of attacks appearing on page 7622 of the record was prepared. A rather detailed reply has been received from the Navy Department under date of April 4, 1946, and we would like to have this communication spread on the record.

¹ Capt. McCollum's testimony appears in Hearings, Part 8, pp. 8381-8448.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record at this point. (The communication referred to follows:)

[14127]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 4 April 1946.

Memorandum To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

Subject: Time Table of Japanese Attacks—source of material.

Reference:

- (a) My memorandum to Mr. William D. Mitchell, dated 29 Nov. 1945.
- (b) My memorandum to Mr. Seth W. Richardson, file 1083A (HLB) R#112, dated 22 Jan. 1946.
- (c) My memorandum to Mr. Seth W. Richardson, file 1083A (HLB), R#112, dated 24 Jan. 1946.

1. In response to the oral request of 28 March 1946 from Counsel for more specific data as to the information and sources of information which were heretofore forwarded in reference (a) at the request of Mr. William D. Mitchell, in reference (b) at the request of Senator Brewster (Record of Proceedings, page 7625) and in reference (c) at the request of Congressman Keefe, concerning the times of attacks by the Japanese on various places in the Pacific Ocean areas, the information, supplemented as requested, is restated and summarized for purposes of clarity as follows:

Place	Local time	Greenwich time	Washington time	Source of information
Kaneohe, NAS...	7:50 am, 7th...	6:20 pm, 7th...	1:20 pm, 7th...	War Diary of Commandant 14th Naval District.
Pearl Harbor.....	7:55 am, 7th...	6:25 pm, 7th...	1:25 pm, 7th...	Report by Admiral Nimitz dated 15 Feb. 1942 of the attack at Pearl Harbor and War Dairy of the Comdt. 14th Naval District, dated 3 Feb. 1942.
Singapore.....	3:00 am, 8th...	8:00 pm, 7th...	3:00 pm, 7th...	Statement by Captain John M. Creighton, U. S. N., who was at Singapore. This information obtained by oral inquiry of the War Department, Col. McNall, USA, G-2 MIS File.
Khota Baru.....	3:40 pm, 8th...	8:40 pm, 7th...	3:40 pm, 7th...	War Diary of U. S. S. Wm. B. Preston.
Davao Gulf, P. I.	7:10 am, 8th...	11:10 pm, 7th...	6:10 pm, 7th...	War Diary of Comdt. U. S. Marine Corps, dated 31 March 1942.
Guam.....	9:10 am, 8th...	11:10 pm, 7th...	6:10 pm, 7th...	This information obtained by oral inquiry of the War Department, Major R. E. Guest, USA, G-3.
Hong Kong.....	8:00 am, 8th...	Midnight, 7-8th	7:00 pm, 7th...	Report of Comdt. U. S. Marine Corps, dated 31 March 1942.
Wake.....	12:00 noon,	1:00 am, 8th...	8:00 pm, 7th...	This information obtained by oral inquiry of the War Department.
Clark Field, P. I.	9:27 am, 8th...	1:27 am, 8th...	8:25 pm, 7th...	Log of the Coast Guard Cutter WALNUT.
Midway.....	9:30 pm, 7th...	9:20 am, 8th...	4:30 am, 8th...	Report of 16th Naval District Intelligence Officer, file 40207.
Nichols Field (Manila)	3:00 am, 9th...	7:00 pm, 8th...	2:00 pm, 8th...

(sgd) John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lieutenant Commander, USNR.

[14130] Mr. MORGAN. At this point, I would like to read a portion of a memorandum supplied by the War Department, dated January 14, 1946, as follows:

Reference is made to Mr. Mitchell's memorandum of 31 December 1946 forwarding Senator Ferguson's request for any records showing who was in charge of the offices of the Chief of Staff and of General Gerow on the night of 6 December 1941.

General Gerow indicated to the Committee that as of 6 December 1941 War Plans Division had an arrangement whereby a duty officer was designated for the 24-hour period and, though not required to remain at the office throughout the night, was required to stay within calling distance of a telephone (Tr. 4320-1). The Office of the Secretary General Staff maintained a similar duty officer arrangement for the Chief of Staff. A thorough search has been made for the duty rosters of War Plans Division and of the Office of the Secretary General Staff for the period including 6-7 December 1941. Those rosters have not been located and apparently it was not the practice to preserve such rosters.

5316 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Pursuant to a request made by counsel we have a communication from the War Department dated 21 February 1946 setting forth the authority under which Lieutenant Colonel Clausen administered oaths during the course of his investigation. We would like to have this letter spread on the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record.
(The letter referred to follows:)

[14131]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, 21 February 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

With reference to your inquiry concerning Lt. Colonel Clausen's authority to administer oaths during the investigation which he conducted at the direction of the Secretary of War, your attention is invited to U. S. Code, Title 10, Section 1586 (Article of War 114), reading as follows:

1586. Authority to administer oaths (article 114).

Any officer of any component of the Army of the United States on active duty in Federal service commissioned in or assigned or detailed to duty with the Judge Advocate General's Department, any staff judge advocate or acting staff judge advocate, the President of a general or special court-martial, any summary court-martial, the trial judge advocate or any assistant trial judge advocate of a general or special court-martial, the president or the recorder of a court of inquiry or of a military board, any officer designated to take a deposition, any officer detailed to conduct an investigation, and the adjutant, assistant adjutant or personnel adjutant of any command shall have power to administer oaths for the purposes of the administration of military justice and for other purposes of military administration; and shall also have the general power of a notary public in the administration [14132] of oaths, the execution and acknowledgment of legal instruments, the attestation of documents and all other forms of notarial acts to be executed by persons subject to military law; Provided, That no fee of any character shall be paid to any any officer mentioned in this section for the performance of any notarial acts herein authorized (as amended Dec. 14, 1942, ch. 730, 56 Stat. 1050).

(sgd) HARMON DUNCOMBE,
Lt. Colonel, GSC.

[14133] Mr. MORGAN. At various places in the transcript, particularly at pages 5484 and 11853-11854, information has been set forth concerning the air situation in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war. We have received a communication from the War Department dated February 1, 1946, enclosing additional material in this regard, and we would request that this letter and the enclosures be spread on the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. The material will be spread on the record.
(The material referred to follows:)

[14134]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
The Pentagon, Room 4D 761,
Washington, D. C., 1 February 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

Three memoranda have been submitted by this office in response to requests by Committee members for information concerning the air situation in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war. The first, dated 27 December 1945, forwarded an account of the initial Japanese air attack against the Philippines contained in the Army Air Force narrative entitled "Army Air Forces in the War Against Japan 1941-1942". A second memorandum of the same date transmitted the available information on (a) the total number of planes in the Philippines on 7 December 1941, (b) the number of bombers at Clark Field when the Japanese first attacked, and (c) the number of bombers lost at Clark Field in that attack. The third memorandum, sent to you on 30 January, forwarded material from the War Department files with regard to Japanese air reconnaissance over the Philippines and other U. S. possessions in the Pacific prior to 7 December 1941.

Transmitted herewith is further information from the War Department files relating to the initial Japanese [14135] attack against the Philippines. Inclosure No. 1 consists of photostats of documents on which the account of the Japanese attack contained in "Army Air Forces in the War Against Japan" was based. Inclosure No. 2 is a memorandum concerning the command organization of the United States Army Forces in the Far East and the Far East Air Force as of 7 December 1941.

/s/ HARMON DUNCOMBE,
Lt. Colonel, GSC.

Incls.—2.

[14136]

SECRET

HEADQUARTERS
FAR EAST AIR FORCES
APO 925

HISTORY OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE (AND ITS PREDECESSORS)

PART I, DECEMBER 1941 TO AUGUST 1942

December, 1941, Instalment

INVENTORY SHEET accompanying package bearing Message Center Registration No. H43.

1. APPENDIX I, Maps and Charts, History of the Fifth Air Force (and its Predecessors), Part I, December, 1941–August, 1942.
2. APPENDIX II, Documents, History of the Fifth Air Force (and its Predecessors), Part I, December 1941–August, 1942.
3. NOTE: Narrative to which these appendices are transmitted is sent by photo-mail, title: Narrative, History of the Fifth Air Force, (and its Predecessors), Part I, December, 1941–August, 1942, December, 1941, Instalment.

[14137]

DESIGNATION SHEET

(Official designation, including number of unit and of each echelon in chain of command)

AIR FORCE:	FAR EAST AIR FORCES
COMMAND:	-----
WING:	-----
GROUP:	-----
SQUADRON:	-----
AREA:	-----
BATTALION:	-----
CENTER:	-----
COMPANY:	-----
DEPOT:	-----
DETACHMENT:	-----
DISTRICT:	-----
DIVISION:	-----
PLATOON:	-----
REGIMENT:	-----
REGION:	-----
SCHOOL:	-----
SECTION:	-----
UNIT:	-----
ETC.:	-----

Has Security Classification of material been checked? YES.

5318 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14138]

EXPLANATORY NOTE RE HISTORY OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE, PART I, DECEMBER 1941 TO AUGUST (DEC. 1941 INSTALMENT).

This document and its appendices purport to represent only a portion of the story of aerial operations in the Southwest Pacific Theater for December 1941. It incorporates such information as was found during the period of its preparation—namely between January 1944 and June 1944—in the files of Hq. Far East Air Forces (which were the files of Hq. Fifth Air Force until 15 June 1944), Hq. U. S. Army Air Forces in the Far East, and Hq. G. H. Q., S. W. P. A., augmented by personal interviews with several persons who were present in the theater in December 1941. It is expected several additional statements from persons in the latter category will still be obtained at A. P. O. 925.

According to information obtained during the preparation of these documents, and from other sources, the following additional sources of information exist in the U. S.:

1. The office of the Adj. Gen., G. H. Q., S. W. P. A., states that a number of records from the Philippines were transmitted to the War Dept., Washington in October 1942.

2. An oral report states a report on the modification of the P-40E was sent from the Philippines to Washington.

3. Operations reports and unit casualty reports sent from the Philippines to Washington.

4. At the Fighter Command School (later the Army Air Forces School of Applied Tactics), Orlando, Fla., some detailed transcripts of statements by returned pilots, including those of a combat pilot's round table, were taken during the summer, fall and winter of 1942. These included a statement by Lt. Col. Boyd D. ("Buzz") Wagner. The latter also supplied a statement to the A-2 and A-3 offices of Hq., Army Air Forces, Washington.

5. The papers of Lt. Col. W. E. Ryess, and his published book.

6. General Eugene L. Eubank, Commanding General of Army Air Forces Board, Orlando, Fla. He was commander of the 19th Bombardment Group in the Philippines.

7. Lt. Col. H. G. Thorne. In charge of certain phases of P-38 training near Los Angeles. Was 1st Lt. in command of 3rd Pursuit Squadron, Iba, Luzon, P. I., at outbreak of war.

8. Col. Orrin L. Grover. Was stationed at Army Air Forces Tactical Center, Orlando, Fla. in Jan. 1944. Was C. O. of 24th Pursuit Group in the Philippines, and is said to be the author of the History of the 24th Pursuit Group (Doc. I, App. II).

9. Various members of 19th Bombardment Group in the U. S.

Additionally is Major General Lewis H. Brereton who was commanding General, Far East Air Force, in the Philippines.

[14139]

HISTORY OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE (AND ITS PREDECESSORS)

PART I DECEMBER 1941 TO AUGUST 1942
DECEMBER 1941, INSTALMENT

Narrative

[14140]

LIST OF TABLES

Table No.	Title	Page
I-----	Staff of the Far East Air Force-----	2
II-----	Japanese Air Strength, Dec. 8, 1941-----	7
III-----	Far East Air Force Dispositions, Dec. 7, 1941-----	8-9
IV-----	Tactical Missions by the 19th Bombardment Group, Dec. 1941-----	18-19
V-----	Casualties among Officers, 24th Pursuit Group, Dec., 1941-----	27
VI-----	Airplane Status at Brisbane-----	35
VII-----	Dates of Japanese Attacks in Philippines and Areas of Southwest Pacific, Dec. 8, 1941, August 1942-----	40-42

[14141]

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Section	Title	Page
I. The Far East Air Force-----		1
II. Change in Employment of the Air Force-----		20
III. United States Army Forces in Australia-----		31
IV. Transfer of the FEAF to Java-----		48
Maps and charts-----		Appendix I
Documents-----		Appendix II

[14142]

Section I—The Far East Air Force

When the month of December, 1941, opened in the Philippines the Far East Air Force was under the command of Major General Lewis H. Brereton. Units were fully alert. Due to the tense international situation, from November 15¹ "all pursuit aircraft were fully loaded, armed and on constant alert 24 hours each day with pilots available on 30 minutes notice".² Throughout the Air Force intensive training was in progress and a number of newly arrived units were being integrated into the Air Force. Despite this fact, the Far East Air Force had but small forces to meet the attack which was about to be launched.

Organization and Equipment of the Far East Air Force

In the Philippines the Far East Air Force was itself a new organization. The name had undergone two recent changes. The first change had followed the creation of the United States Army Forces in the Far East. Lieutenant General Douglas MacArthur had assumed command of USAFFE on July 27, 1941.³ Following this he had redesignated on August 4, 1941 the Philippine Department Air Force as the Air Forces, United States Army Forces in the Far East.⁴ This operated "directly under the Commanding General, United States Army Forces in the Far East, except for routine administration and supply, which will continue through Headquarters, Philippine Department".⁵ At this date the Commanding General of the Air Forces was Brigadier General Henry B. Clagett, who had arrived in the Philippines on May 4, 1941. Subsequently, on October 7, 1941 (West Longitude Time), the War Department designated Major General Lewis H. Brereton as the air commander.⁶ He brought with him a number of officers, including a new Chief of Staff, Colonel Francis M. Brady. The War Department, on October 28, 1941. (West Longitude Time) redesignated the Air Force as the Far East Air Force. This redesignation became effective on November 16, 1941.⁷

Staff of the Far East Air Force

With the arrival of General Brereton, his staff was organized as follows: (Table I, P. 2).

(Footnotes in original.)

¹ In this narrative all time is given as Philippine Department Standard Time and all dates are East Longitude unless otherwise indicated.

² History of the 24th Pursuit Group in the Philippines (Document I, Appendix II). This document is from Fifth Air Force Files, and is dated October 10, 1942. Lieutenant Colonel Allison W. Ind, Allied Intelligence Bureau, and Colonel L. A. Diller, Public Relations, GHQ, SW7A, both state that this history was written by Colonel Orrin L. Grover, who was the Comm. of the 24th Pur. Gp. in the Philippines.

³ G. O. No. 1, United States Army Forces in the Far East, July 27, 1941.

⁴ G. O. No. 4, USAFFE, Aug. 4, 1941 (Doc. 2, App. II).

⁵ G. O. No. 4, USAFFE, Aug. 4, 1941 (Doc. 2, App. II).

⁶ Chronology of the Fifth Air Force, War Department, Washington, D. C.

⁷ G. O. No. 28, USAFFE, Nov. 14, 1941 (Doc. 3, App. II).

CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

TABLE I.—Organization of Far East Air Force

COMMANDER, FEAF
Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton

CHIEF OF STAFF
Col. Francis M. Brady

GENERAL STAFF

G-1
Not Known

G-2
Maj. R. F. C. Vance

G-4
Maj. K. J. Gregg

Eng. O.
Capt. Harold Eads

Signal
Capt. L. Mason

Adj. Gen.
Capt. J. R. Mamerow

Q. M. C.
Lt. Col. McConathy

Armament
Capt. H. O. Porter

LINE UNITS

5th Bomber Command
Lt. Col. Eugene L. Eubank

19 Bomb Group
27 Bomb Group
7 Bomb Group (part of ground echelon only)

2d Observation Sq.

5th Interceptor Command
Gen. Henry B. Clagett
Col. Harold H. George

Far East Air Service Command
Col. Lawrence Churchill
Executive, Lt. Col. Maitland

Philippine 36 Air Base
Air Depot Group
24 Pursuit Group
5 Air Base Group
20 Air Base Group
803 Eng Bn. (Avn.)

[14144]

Components of the Far East Air Force

Next in chain of command in the Far East Air Force were the Fifth Interceptor Command, Fifth Bomber Command, and Far East Air Service Command. The Fifth Interceptor Command was commanded by Brigadier General Henry B. Clagett, with Colonel Harold H. George as Chief of Staff. The authority for activation of this unit in the Philippines has not been found, but it is listed as operating on December 8, 1941, in the document tracing the chain of command of the Far East Air Force, which is in the USAFFE.⁹ The Fifth Interceptor Command also appears on the movement order to Bataan (Dec. 23),¹⁰ and in subsequent General Orders of USAFFE.¹¹ In the first available strength report this unit is shown as having five officers and fifteen enlisted men.¹²

The Fifth Bomber Command and Far East Air Service Command were activated on November 16, the same day as the creation of the Far East Air Force.¹³ Lieutenant Colonel Eugene L. Eubank, also the commander of the 19th Bombardment Group, became the commander of the Fifth Bomber Command. This was only a skeleton unit, and although authorized full Table of Organization strength, had only one officer and twenty enlisted men on December 23.¹⁴ The Far East Air Service Command, under Colonel L. S. Churchill, had eight officers and sixty enlisted men.¹⁵

Pursuit Units

The pursuit units in the Philippines consisted of the five squadrons of the 24th Pursuit Group, commanded by Major Orrin L. Grover.¹⁶ This unit was an outgrowth of the Fourth Composite Group, which at the start of 1941 had as its components all of the tactical air units in the Philippines. The three pursuit squadrons in this group, the 3rd, 17th, and 20th, were all equipped with P-26's until May, 1941. At that time they were re-equipped with F-35's.¹⁷ Next, in July 1941, one squadron was equipped with P-40B's, and still later, P-40E's were received.¹⁸ On September 16, 1941, the 24th Pursuit Group was activated and the three pursuit squadrons transferred to it from the Fourth Composite Group.¹⁹ In November, two additional squadrons, the 21st and 34th, arrived from the United States. They were a part of the 35th Pursuit Group, but pending the arrival of the rest of its units, were attached to the 24th Pursuit Group.²⁰

[14145]

Training of Pursuit Pilots

In the summer of 1941 "100 new pilots from training schools" in the United States arrived and were used to build up the three original pursuit squadrons to strength. Because these pilots had not received combat training a training unit was formed at Clark Field.²¹ In addition it was necessary to train these pilots in gunnery, so a gunnery training camp was established at Iba.²² In October 35 more new pilots were assigned to the pursuit units and the same program of

⁹ BEAF Chain of Command. (Doc. 4, App. II.)

¹⁰ (Doc. 5, App. II.)

¹¹ GO No. 40, USAFFE, Mar. 14, 1942 (Doc. 6, App. II.)

¹² Movement Order to Bataan (Doc. 5, App. II). It should be noted that Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron of the Fifth Interceptor Command was under movement orders from the United States when war started. It had been activated from the Second Interceptor Command (under WD letter, 14 October, 1941, AG 320, 2 (10-1-41) MR*M*AAF "Constitution and Activation of Air Corps Units"). Under command of Lieutenant Colonel Willis R. Taylor, this unit, with eight radar sets sailed from San Francisco at 1800 on December 6, 1941 (San Francisco Time) on the Tasker H. Bliss. This ship put back into port on December 6 (San Francisco Time) and the Hq. and Hq. Sq., Fifth Interceptor Command debarked and returned to Seattle. History of the Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, II Interceptor Command, II Fighter Command and V Fighter Command. May 1941-December 1942. By Major Edward J. McCormick, Jr., pp. 10-15. This history also states that the 557th Signal AW Battalion, also under orders to proceed to the Philippines, was in the Port of Embarkation at the time, but was also ordered back to Seattle.

¹³ G. O. No. 28, USAFFE, Nov. 14, 1941 (Doc. 3, App. II.)

¹⁴ (Doc. 5, App. II.)

¹⁵ (Doc. 5, App. II.)

¹⁶ History of 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II.)

¹⁷ History of 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II.)

¹⁸ G. O. No. 10, USAFFE, Sept. 16, 1941 (Doc. 7, App. II.)

¹⁹ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II.)

²⁰ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II.)

²¹ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II.)

training was started with them.²¹ At the gunnery camp at Iba "an extreme amount of difficulty was experienced in the malfunctioning of the guns, due to improper adjustment and mal-installation. In order to properly function it was imperative that all gun installations should be modified".²²

Bombardment Units

In the fall of 1941, the 19th Bombardment Group (H), with B-17's arrived in the Philippines. This group was commanded by Lt. Col. Eugene L. Eubank. Prior to its arrival the bombers in the Philippines had been B-10s and B-18's, which were not suitable for combat. These planes had been assigned to the 28th Bombardment Squadron of the Fourth Composite Group. With the arrival of the 19th Bombardment Group the 28th Bombardment Squadron was transferred to the 19th Bombardment Group, re-equipped with B-17s and redesignated from medium to heavy on November 16, 1941.²³ This gave the 19th Bombardment Group a headquarters squadron and a total of four instead of three subordinate squadrons. The group had a grand total of 35 B-17s.

On November 20 the 27th Bombardment Group (D) arrived in the Philippines. This unit was commanded by Major John H. Davies. All of its aircraft (A-24s) were on a later convoy, which was on the high seas at the time war broke out, and had to be diverted to Brisbane, Australia. The non-arrival of the dive bombers left the bombardment component of the FEAF unbalanced, there being no unit specially adapted for use against shipping.

Also in the Philippines was part of the ground echelon of the 7th Bombardment Group (H).²⁴ On December 7 (West Longitude) part of the air echelon, flying from California landed at Pearl Harbor; but none of the air echelon reached the Philippines.

Observation

With the transfer of all units except the 2nd Observation Squadron from the 4th Composite Group, Headquarters squadron of this group was abolished on November 16 and the 2nd Observation Squadron was thus placed directly under Headquarters, FEAF.²⁵ The squadron was equipped with observation type aircraft and was commanded by Captain J. Y. Parker.²⁶

Airdromes

At the start of 1941 there were three major military airfields in the Philippines, Clark Field, near Ft. Stotsenburg about 60 miles north of Manila, and Nielson and Nichols Fields on the outskirts of Manila. These were all extended during 1941. Because of the shortage of suitable fields some had to be used even while under construction, which increased the accident rate among the pursuit.²⁷ [14146] By December 1, the following fields were in use, or rapidly nearing completion: (For location see C. I. U. Map, Chart 1, App. I).

Pursuit Fields²⁸:

- Nichols Field
- Nielson Field
- Clark Field
- Iba Field
- Rosales Field
- Del Carmen Field

Bombardment Fields²⁹:

- Clark Field
- Del Monte Field, Mindanao

Fields Nearing Completion³⁰:

- O'Donnel Field
- San Fernando Field
- Ternate Field
- San Marcelino

²¹ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

²² History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

²³ GO, 28 USAFFE, Nov. 14, 1941 (Doc. 3—App. II).

²⁴ Statement of Colonel R. L. Fry (Doc. 8, App. II) and Statement of Colonel Ray T. Elmore (Doc. 30a, App. II).

²⁵ GO, 28, USAFFE, Nov. 14, 1941 (Doc. 3, App. II).

²⁶ FEAF Chain of Command (Doc. 4, App. II).

²⁷ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

²⁸ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

²⁹ Statement of Colonel Harold Eads (Doc. 3, App. II).

³⁰ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

In addition to the fields listed as nearing completion a more extensive air-drome construction program had been started in Luzon, but had not reached a point where it affected the situation prior to evacuation to Bataan.²¹ The fields provided did not allow for sufficient dispersion, nor for sufficient mobility of the air force. This was a cause of concern to General Brereton.²²

South of Luzon, Del Monte in Mindanao was in use as already indicated. Santa Barbara on Panay, and Cebu, Cebu, together with a few other fields in Mindanao were also used after war started.²³ (See Chart 1, App. I).

Co-Ordinated With Other Commands

It was recognized that any defense of the Far East would demand the closest coordination with the British, Dutch, and Australians. Much of the work to this end was carried out by military staff missions of foreign governments in Washington in consultation with the War Department and does not fall within the limits of this narrative.²⁴ However, a considerable amount of planning was carried on through direct consultation. In the early summer of 1941 General Clagett received instructions to proceed to Singapore and China, where he carried on a number of conferences.²⁵

[14147] Still later, General Brereton, went through the Dutch East Indies, the Australian Mandates, and Australia. He held a number of conferences, concerning the improvement of ferry-routes to the Philippines, and the arrangement of routes for ferrying pursuit aircraft from Australia via Koepang, Kendari, Sandakan, Balikpapan, Tarakan, Del Monte (in Mindanao) and Santa Barbara (on Panay).²⁶ Before the start of the war supplies of bombs and gasoline had already been sent into Rabaul, Port Moresby, and Darwin. Arrangements were also under way to send such stocks to Singapore and Balikpapan, but the war came first. Also General Brereton arranged future plans for staff coordination with the Australians and the Dutch, which paved the way for later developments. Among the most far-sighted of his arrangements was the development of Projects 1 and 2, which envisioned the use of Australian maintenance facilities, and called for considerable expenditures. These plans were left with Sir Charles Burnett, Chief of The Australian Air Staff in Melbourne. Some work was in progress when the war started. This was then speeded up and proved capable of meeting many of the actual requirements of the situation which developed early in December.²⁷

Air warning system and communications

The development of the Air Warning System in the Philippines was based primarily on a system of native observers. These reported in over the lines of the Philippine Telephone System to Interceptor Headquarters at Neilson. Data was then reported to the plotting board at Clark Field and based on it, orders were issued to the various squadrons. Commercial lines of the Philippine Telephone Company were all that existed for receiving reports. Delays were frequent. Clark, Nielson, and Nichols Fields were linked by teletype, and this circuit, supplemented by telephone when necessary, was used for direct communication. The third means of communication was radio, the major fields, each having an SCR 297 which was used for both point to point and ground to air communication.

In addition to the ground observer system the first radar had been installed in the Philippines at Iba. A second was being assembled near Aparri, and a third was enroute to Legaspi. The set at Iba was in tactical use, and operated on a 24 hours per day basis.²⁸

Antiaircraft Artillery

Next to the inadequacy of the Air Warning System, was the shortage of AAA. General Brereton in March 1942, stated that before he left Washington in 1941, ²¹ Radio, General Brereton to General Arnold (Doc. 9, App. II) and History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

²² Radio, General Brereton to General Arnold, March 2, 1942 (Doc. 9, App. II).

²³ Journal of 19th Bombardment Group—(Doc. 11, App. II).

²⁴ Biennial Report of the Chief of Staff 1941-1943 (War Department), p. —. [No page number in original].

²⁵ Lt. Col. Allison W. Ind (Bataan) (Mss.). This book, as an unofficial source, is used only for material where the author was a direct participant, and where the subject discussed falls within his field of military specialty, which is Intelligence. In this case, for example he went on the trip with General Clagett. Permission for use in this official history has been granted by Lt. Col. Ind.

²⁶ Ind. Bataan (Mss.), p. 186 ff.

²⁷ Colonel Merle-Smith to General Clagett, Dec. 24, 1941 (Doc. 12, App. II).

²⁸ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

he declared that—"To put a bomber force in the Philippine Islands without providing adequate anti-aircraft defense measures was almost certain to mean their destruction."³⁹ Also General Brereton mentioned the inadequate fighter protection and inadequate air warning system. The amount of anti-aircraft was inadequate. The one anti-aircraft regiment at the airfields was the 200th CA (AA) Regt., a mobile unit of one battalion of 3" and 1 battalion of 37mm guns. This unit was stationed at Clark Field. The remaining anti-aircraft regiment was the 60th CA with units on Bataan and the harbor forts in Manila Bay.⁴⁰ The remaining airdromes were protected by only a few 50 calibre and 30 calibre machine guns. These offered but slight protection.

[14148]

Japanese Strength

Intelligence estimates showed that the Japanese had overwhelming strength, in comparison with the Far East Air Force equipment in the Philippines. In the R. A. A. F. the air order of battle was given as follows:

TABLE II.—Japanese air strength, Dec. 8th, 1941

Fleet Air Arm-----	612
Manchuria-----	800
Japan-----	600
N. and Cen. China-----	198
Mandated Is-----	100
Malaya-----	300
Phil Inc. Canton Hainan, Formosa-----	250
Total first line strength-----	2,860

While this estimate is from Australian sources, similar figures had been made available to General Brereton and his staff when they were in Australia on Nov. 21-23 (40a). Royal Air Force figures for this date placed the size of the Japanese Air Force as around 4,500 aircraft of front line strength, which is now generally accepted as correct.⁴¹ The RAAF and RAF figures are cited at this point because no estimates from the War Department, Washington, for the period December 8, 1941, are available here (APO 925).

The estimates shown above indicate that from the Japanese bases in Southern Formosa (430 to 450 miles north of Clark Field) it was possible to throw vastly superior formations against the Philippines. It was also possible for the enemy to increase this superiority by the use of carriers. Finally, the southernmost islands of the Philippines were within range of Japanese air units based on Palau. (Chart VII, App. I).

In the field of Intelligence the Japanese knew the disposition of our units, the location of important stores, the capabilities of our planes. They had excellent maps of the entire area, and objective folders on the important targets. Within the Philippines many of the large Japanese minority were organized as Sakhad-listas, a fifth column under the orders of Japan. In addition to transmitting information, this group even lighted flares at night to designate important targets. In some of the islands in the Far East, the Japanese withdrew their nationals prior to the outbreak of the war. In the Philippines they organized them. Our counter-espionage system was inadequate to cope with this organization; and the security measures around our installations were not great enough to prevent observation of the equipment and installations.⁴²

³⁹ Brereton to Arnold, March 1, 1942. (This was actually written over a week earlier)—(Doc. 9, App. II).

⁴⁰ Lt. Col. Melnik, AAA in Philippines (Dec. 24, App. II). It should be noted that a training program for Filipino AAA was in progress at Fort Wint. The organization of the Filipino Units was in progress and a number of regiments were scheduled to be trained by March, 1942. Equipment was being supplied from the U. S. From this equipment, after war was declared two additional regiments were organized; the 200th Provisional CA (AA) which came in part from the parent 200th, was moved to Nichols Field and areas of Manila on the night of December 8th. It was functioning by December 10th and was equipped with 12-3" and 12-37mm AAA guns, as well as some 50 calibre which were placed at Nichols Field and at the port area on the night of December 8th. Also the 51st CA (AA) was organized and used after war began. It does not appear to have operated on air fields.

⁴¹ Central Operational Intelligence Center, Situation Report (now under GHQ SWPA), Dec. 12th, 1941.

⁴² Figure from Enemy Appreciation Section, Allied Air Forces, A-2, SWPA (S/L Felthan).

⁴³ Ind. (Bataan) (Mss), p. 246 ff.

[14149] One of the available estimates of the situation of our forces in the Philippines at the end of November, 1941, was contained in a general intelligence summary used by the Tanaka Force. An exact extract of this document (to which are added translations reports the FEAF as consisting of:

Unit	Type
24th Kuchiku Sentai (Pursuit Group)-----	P-35.
3rd Kuchiku Chutai (Pursuit Squadron)-----	P-36.
17th Kuchiku Chutai (Pursuit Squadron)-----	P-38.
20th Kuchiku Chutai (Pursuit Squadron)-----	P-40.
24th Kuchiku Chutai (Pursuit Squadron) -----	27 planes at Nichols Field above types included.
19th Bakugeki Sentai (Bombardment Group) 1st Chutai of Kuchiku P-38 or P-40-----	27 planes.
14th Bakugeki Chutai B-17-----	12 planes.
28th Bakugaki Chutai B-18-----	13 planes.
36th Bakugeki Chutai (Type of plane unknown).
2nd Teisatsu Chutai (Reconnaissance Squadron) 0-19, 0-46, 0-47, 0-57.
19 Teisatsu Chutai unknown.

The information above is essentially accurate, as comparison with the following table of our dispositions will show. The chief mistake is in listing part of the pursuit as components of the 19th Bombardment Group and not listing two of the squadron numbers in the 19th Bombardment Group. Also aircraft types are listed which were not in the Philippines. About December 1, the summary was shown by the Japanese to include:

Fighters-----	130
Bombers-----	30
Naval Patrol-----	20
Total-----	180

This is also substantially correct, if it is assumed that observation be included under fighters. The fact is that this information is more accurate than that sent to the Australians by their Washington sources following the outbreak of war. The Japanese figure is closer to the number of operational aircraft, whereas those of the Australian Attache included obsolete planes to a greater extent, and also those not in commission.⁴

FEAF Disposition on Dec. 7, 1941

In opposition to the Japanese Army and Navy Air Services, our dispositions on the eve of war were as follows: (See Chart II, App. I.)

TABLE III.—Status and Location of Aircraft ¹

C. O.	Unit	Location	Type	Number operat.
Major O. L. Grover-----	24 Pur Grp-----
Lt. W. B. Putman-----	Hq. and Hq. Sq-----	Clark-----
Lt. W. G. Thorne-----	3rd Pur. Sq-----	Iba-----	P-40-E-----	18
1st Lt. Boyd Wagner-----	17th Pur.-----	Nichols-----	P-40-E-----	18
1st Lt. J. B. Moore-----	20th Pur-----	Clark-----	P-40-----	18
1st Lt. Sam Marett-----	21st Pur-----	Del Carmen-----	P-35-----	18
1st Lt. W. E. Dyess-----	34th Pur-----	Nichols-----	P-40-E-----	18
Total pursuit-----				90

¹ This table has been compiled from the History 24 Pur. Grp. (Doc. 1) and Journal 19 Bomb Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II). Gen. Marshall in his Biennial Report gives the number of P-40s as 107. The discrepancy is due to the fact that Table III above, is of planes operational on Dec. 8th, and excludes planes not erected or out of commission.

There is some question as to who were the commanders of the 21st and 34th Pursuit Squadrons. In G. O. No. 48, USAFFE, Dec. 21, 1941 (Dec. 18, App. II), 1st Lt. Sam Marett is given as commander of the 34th Sq. rather than the 21st. The Bataan Roster of the 24th Pursuit Group (Doc. 27, App. II), also gives this as the status of the command, and gives 1st Lt. Wm. E. Dyess as the commander of the 21st Sq. In this narrative, however, the History of the 24th Pursuit Group has been followed.

⁴ Compare the Japanese "No. 3, The Situation of Both Sides Prior to War", ATIS, Current Translations, No. 46 with COIC SITREP for the period after December 8, and through December 30, 1941. Further, the Australian Naval Attache in Washington reported to his government on Dec. 12, that the 52 A-24's were operational in the Philippines (Doc. 13, App. II). Actually these aircraft were unloaded at Brisbane on December 22. Twelve of them were eventually ready for the Java campaign.

5326 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14180]

C. O.	Unit	Location	Type	No.
Cpt. J. Y. Parker.....	2nd Obs.....	Clark.....	O-46, 52, 79	10-12
Lt. Col. Eugene L. Eubank.....	19th Bomb Group.
Captain MacDonald.....	Hq & Hq Sq.....	Clark.....		12
Major C. E. Combs.....	93rd Sq.....	Del Monte..	B-17-D
Major E. O. O'Donnell.....	14th Sq.....	Del Monte..	B-17-D
Major Wm. Fisher.....	28th Sq.....	Clark.....	B-17-D
Major H. Gibbs.....	30th Sq.....	Clark.....	B-17-D	18

NOTE.—Two planes out of commission at Clark, also three planes of 93rd and 14th Squadron at Clark.

6TH PURSUIT (PHIL. AIR FORCE)

Captain Jesus A. Villamour 6th Sq..... BATANGAS.... P-26 12

MISCELLANEOUS

CLARK }
NICHOLS }.....B-18 10
NEILSON }
CABANTUAN B-10 3
Clark A-27 2
Del Monte B-18 2

Total first line Operational Aircraft Dec. 7th (19th Bomb. 24th Pursuit 2nd. Obsv.)..... 135 or 137
All other operational tactical planes..... 29

Grand Total Operational..... 164 or 166

The total of Far East Air Force personnel in the Philippines on December 8th was about 8,000 of the total of U. S. Army personnel of 19,000.⁴⁴ [14151] Of this air force total, approximately 7,500 was in Luzon. Of the personnel in Luzon, some 1,200 belonged to the 27th Bombardment Group (D) which had no aircraft. Also that part of the ground echelon of the 7th Bombardment Group (H) which had reached the Philippines was awaiting the arrival of the air echelon. The 500 air force personnel outside Luzon were scattered throughout a number of bases with the largest concentration at Del Monte, Mindanao. The Philippine Army Air Force had about 1,200.⁴⁵ Total air force personnel was therefore around 9,200 including the Philippine Army Air Force.

Events Prior to War

Starting on December 2, the Japanese began a series of night and early morning reconnaissance missions over Clark Field. The plane appeared at 0530 each morning, was sighted visually, and also tracked by the radar at Iba. Following the first sighting "instructions were given to force the aircraft to land or destroy it. On the three succeeding nights it was impossible to make the interception, due to inability to see the aircraft in the dark, or the aircraft not getting close enough to be picked up by the seachlights." Accordingly, it was agreed that the AAA would have its turn on the night of December 7th. But on that night no plane came over.⁴⁶

December 8th, 1941

December 8th was the first day of war in the Philippines. Being east of the International Date Line, this was the same as December 7th at Pearl Harbor. Also due to this further distance to the east, it was still dark in the Philippines when the attack on Pearl Harbor came. First news of this attack was flashed to all units upon receipt of the report at 0330.⁴⁷ The official USAFFE warning was sent out at about 0430. Word was also received at 0630 at the bomber base at Del Monte.⁴⁸ War had begun.⁴⁹

⁴⁴ Biennial Report of the Chief of Staff War Department, p. 10. Gen. Marshall's report gives the figure as 8,000. This is in agreement with the rosters and reports in Documents 5, 8, 14, 15 and 30a (App. II).

⁴⁵ Strength Report Philippine Air Force—Jan. 3, 1942. (Doc. 16, App. II.)

⁴⁶ History Pur. Gp. Pg. 3 (Doc. 1, App. II).

⁴⁷ Ibid. This news was by commercial radio and no official action was taken except to order units to stations. The official warning was received by the pursuit units at 0445.

⁴⁸ The message received at Del Monte stated "Hostilities have commenced, govern yourself accordingly." (Interview with Colonel Fry) (Doc. 8, App. II.) Message received at 0630 hrs. according to Major Heald, Communications Officer. He remembers the message as: "Hostilities have begun. All airdromes alert." (Doc. 17, App. II.)

⁴⁹ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

Pursuit Operations⁴⁰

[14152] Prior to receipt of official word that war had begun, the radar at Iba reported a large formation over the China Sea headed in the direction of Corregidor. Accordingly the 3rd Pursuit, stationed at Iba, was ordered to intercept. It proceeded to the heading given in its mission order, and the radar plot showed a successful interception. At this date, however, altitude could not be read from the radar. Actually the P-40's did not see the bombers in the darkness. Therefore they returned to their base for refueling. (Chart III, App. I).

The next development occurred at 0930, with the reporting of a large formation over the Lingayen Gulf headed for Manila. The orders issued from intercept headquarters, where Major Grover and Colonel George were operating, called for the 20th Pursuit Squadron to proceed north from Clark Field and intercept in the vicinity of Rosales. Meanwhile the 17th Pursuit Squadron was sent from Nichols to patrol Clark Field and intercept any planes which might pass the 20th. But the Japs were only feinting. From Lingayen Gulf the Japs did not proceed south. Instead, they swung inland directly past, and hit the army installations at Baguio which was also the summer capital of the Philippines. They also hit airfields at Cabantuan. At the time of the alert at Clark Field, the B-17's were ordered up, so they might not be caught on the ground. They landed again, however, at 1130, their landing being covered by the 20th Pursuit Squadron. (Chart III, App. I).

The last two moves on the part of the Japanese had run two squadrons out of gas and thus limited the number of squadrons which would be available for the main raids. In this they were successful. At 1130 the 20th Pursuit Squadron at Clark Field was being regassed. The B-17's were back at Clark Field; the 17th Pursuit Squadron was being gassed at Nichols. The scene was set for the main strike. (Chart IV, App. I).

There was not long to wait. At 1130 the Iba radar reported a large formation over the China Sea. For the second time during the day the 3rd Pursuit Squadron at Iba was ordered to intercept. It immediately took off, although apparently eight planes were left on the field. Again, in this attempted interception the Japanese were to show one of their tricks. Taking advantage of the limited gasoline supplies of the P-40, the incoming bomber formation feinted and then withdrew. This type of tactics had also been used in China, but for the first time United States air units came in contact with such tactics. The 3rd Pursuit Squadron remained in the air, with its gasoline steadily diminishing.

Believing that interception might not be made by the 3rd Squadron and fearing a direct thrust at Manila and the installations there, the two squadrons on Nichols Field were both sent off, the 17th Squadron to take station over Bataan, while the 34th Squadron was placed on standing patrol over the city of Manila proper. (Chart IV, App. I).

The next report came in at approximately 1145 of an unidentified formation "over Lingayen Gulf, headed south". This raised a new problem and the situation was met by ordering the 21st Pursuit off Del Carmen to cover Clark Field. At the time the 20th, still regassing at Clark Field was ordered up as soon as refueling was completed. But no planes reached Clark Field prior to the attack. Dust on the field at Del Carmen delayed the take off of the P-35s. The first planes of the 21st Squadron which taxied out raised such a cloud that it was necessary to wait for the cloud to settle. The delay was so great that planes of the 21st Squadron did not reach Clark Field until after the Japanese attack was completed. (Chart IV, App. I). At this juncture communications broke down and no further reports were received at Clark Field or Nellson Field concerning the incoming Japanese bomber formation. At 1215 the 20th Pursuit Squadron on Clark Field completed gassing, and the planes started to take off. Four were off the ground and five more were in process of taking off, while five more were on the ground. At either 1217 or 1220 the first Jap planes arrived. There were 54 to 72 bombers in a very shallow V of V's and above 18,000' which bombed with accuracy.⁴¹ These were followed by a number of dive bombers [14153] and fighters which came in to strafe.⁴² The five planes of the 20th Pursuit Squadron which were in process of taking off and the five which were still on the ground were all destroyed. The four in the air, led by the squadron commander, Lt. J. H. Moore, went into combat at low altitude and shot down four of the attacking planes.⁵⁵ The bomber formation laid a pattern which destroyed most of the hangars and buildings, as well as most of the B-17s and B-18s on the field. The dive bombers (probably Vals) then came in strafing and set fire to most of the planes which were in the blast pens.⁵⁶ One of the first bombs made a direct hit on the radio station on the field, so that it was impossible to contact the 17th and 34th Pursuit Squadrons, still on patrol over the area of Manila and Bataan. Finally another radio did make contact with the 17th Pursuit Squadron, but it arrived over Clark Field seventy miles to the north of Bataan, after all enemy planes had withdrawn; the 21st also arrived from Del Carmen after the attack was completed. By this time the 17th Pursuit Squadron was running short of gasoline, so it landed at Del Carmen. (Chart IV, App. I).

⁴⁰ This account follows History 24 Pur. Grp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

⁴¹ "Sallys" predominated in the early attacks over the Philippines and probably constituted the bulk of this formation.

⁴² These were "Zekes" and possibly "Nates."

In the absence of effective interception, the defence of Clark Field was left to the AAA. The field was defended by the 200th CA (AAA). Also a number of air corps crew members heroically went to their planes during the attack and fired the machine guns in the grounded aircraft at the attacking strafers. For outstanding heroism in such action, the Distinguished Service Cross was awarded to the following: Pfc. Joseph G. McElroy, T/Sgt. Anthony Holub and Pfc. Greely B. Williams (posthumously). When the hangar in which his plane was located was set on fire, 1st Lt. Fred T. Crimmins of the 19th Bombardment Group taxied his plane into the open, only to have it destroyed by enemy strafing, he being hit and wounded.⁵⁷

Also, despite the continuous attacks on Clark Field many risked the strafing to help the casualties. Among others, several examples will be mentioned. Private Robert J. Endres secured an abandoned truck and through the midst of the bombing and strafing made seven trips between the field and the station hospital, on each trip carrying a load of wounded.⁵⁸ The 19th Bombardment Group Flight Surgeon, Maj. Luther C. Heidger, stayed in the open during the attack to treat the wounded. The Chaplain, 1st Lt. Joseph F. LaFleur administered religious rites to the wounded and dying throughout the attack, and helped to treat the wounded.⁵⁹ All of these were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Meanwhile, as the 3rd Pursuit Squadron was running low on gasoline, it turned back toward Iba. There it found the formation which it had been unable to intercept. Fifty-four bombers and an unknown number of strafers were attacking the field. Despite being low on gasoline the P-40's pressed home the attack. They arrived too late to prevent the bombing, but did prevent strafing. Casualties on the field were, however, heavy. All of the installations, including the radar, were destroyed. Five P-40's were shot down in the air, and eight planes on the ground were destroyed. In addition, it being impossible to land on the field, three P-40's ran out of gasoline and crash landed on the beach. The remainder of the formation landed at O'Donnell Field. Gasoline and ammunition was dispatched from stores remaining at Clark Field to supply these planes. (Chart IV, App. I).

[14154]

Employment of Bombardment

Information on the employment of the bombardment planes still on Clark Field is not complete. One B-17 took off at 1030 for reconnaissance of Eastern Luzon.⁶⁰ All that is authoritative concerning the remaining bombardment planes is that at the time of the alert at 0930 "all bombardment was dispatched from Clark Field. The 20th Pursuit Squadron returned to Clark Field and gave the ⁵⁵ G. O. No. 48 USAFFE, Dec. 21, 1941 (Doc. 18, App. II). The citation granting Lt. Moore of the 20th Pursuit Squadron the Distinguished Service Cross credits him with leading his formation from the field on December 10, however, the events are those described in the History 24th Pur. Grp. and Journal 19th Bomb. Grp. (Docs. 1 and 11, App. II) as taking place on the 8th.

⁵⁶ The strafing planes probably included fighters ("Zekes") in addition. Reports varied. Cf. History 24th Pur. Grp. and Journal 19th Bomb. Grp. (Docs. I and II, App. II.)

⁵⁷ G. O. No. 48, USAFFE, Dec. 21, 1941 (Doc. 18, App. II) and G. O. No. 2, Hq. Southwest Pacific Command, Lembang Java, Feb. 15, 1942 (Doc. 19, App. II).

⁵⁸ G. O. No. 48, USAFFE, Dec. 21, 1941 (Doc. 18, App. II).

⁵⁹ G. O. No. 2, SWP. command, Lembang Java, Feb. 15, 1942 (Doc. 19, App. II).

⁶⁰ Journal 19th Bombardment Grp. (Doc. 11, App. II).

bombardment cover while they were landing." ⁸⁰ Thus, at 1130, all except the B-17 which was still on reconnaissance over Eastern Luzon, and the twelve aircraft at Del Monte, were on Clark Field.

Of the total of 22 B-17 aircraft on Clark Field at the time of the Japanese attack, fifteen were destroyed. Two or three of those on the field escaped damage and were operational the following day. An additional three or four were repaired and made operational later.

The one B-17 to encounter enemy action in the air on December 8, was a plane which left Del Monte at 0930 for repairs at Clark Field. This plane was piloted by Lt. El E. Tash. ⁸¹ It arrived over Clark Field while the field was under attack, and immediately started back for Del Monte. Three enemy pursuit attacked, and the rear gunner, S/Sgt. Michael Bibin, was severely wounded in both shoulders. The first news of what was taking place to the north reached Del Monte at 1700 when Carpenter called over his radio as he came in to land, "Have been exposed to enemy, have ambulance ready." ⁸² One Zero was believed shot down.

Summary of Raids on Clark Field and IBA

In these two raids the Japanese had effectively destroyed the striking power of the Far East Air Force, had seriously cut down the pursuit strength, had destroyed most of the maintenance facilities for the B-17's, and had inflicted a number of casualties. Our forces had been on the alert. They had not been caught as at Pearl Harbor, with planes not loaded. But the damage inflicted was great.

Before the conclusion of the first twenty-four hours of the war in the Philippines, one more attack was launched by the Japanese—against Nichols Field and its installations. By Midnight telephonic communication was reestablished from Nielson Field to the plotting board at Clark Field and operation of the air warning system was resumed. Shortly after midnight one flight of the 17th Pursuit Squadron was dispatched to intercept an enemy formation. The dust at Del Carmen again hindered the takeoff and one pilot was killed. The remaining four aircraft did not find the enemy formation in the dark, so no interception was accomplished. Some time later, at 0315 a large enemy force appeared over Nichols Field.

The first Japanese aircraft to be shot down during the war is officially credited to 2nd Lt. Randall D. Keator of the 80th Pursuit Squadron, stationed on Clark Field. Taking off while the field was under attack, Lt. Keator's plane was attacked by nine Japanese aircraft. Despite this disadvantage he shot down one of these. Later, during the general combat over Clark Field he shot down another, making his score for the day two. ⁸³

[14155]

Air Situation on December 9th

At the close of the first day's campaign under constant enemy attack, the Far East Air Force was badly mauled. Costly losses in men and equipment had been sustained. Over a third of the pursuit were lost, while more were out of commission. Of B-17s, the operational aircraft had been reduced from 33 to 15 or 16. Moreover, the planes lost were irreplaceable. Wake Island was under attack, which cut the ferry route for B-17s which had been flown in from Hawaii. The destruction of naval forces at Pearl Harbor ended the chance that convoys might bring in pursuit directly. Finally the destruction of hangars, depot facilities, and parts indicated that maintenance constituted a major problem; but the nearest place with even partial facilities was Australia.

Reorganization

During the night the high command of the Far East Air Force reorganized the tactical units. Lt. Wagner's squadron, the 17th, was transferred to Clark Field ⁸⁰ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II). There was a staff meeting of FEEAF at the Headquarters at Nielson Field, which was attended by Captain Harold Eads and Captain Allison Ind, and others. General Brereton also went to GHQ. This is stated by Captain Eads. Statement of Colonel Eads (Doc. 10, App. II). GHQ, SWPA, records contain no information on the matter. A letter has been written through channels, Hq. AAF, Washington, requesting Gen. Brereton for any information but no reply has been received, cf. Reg. 30503, FEEAF, Registered on 23 April 1944.

⁸¹ Journal 19 Bomb Gp. (Doc. 11, App. II).

⁸² Interview with Colonel Fry (Doc. 8, App. II).

⁸³ G. O. 48, USAFFE, Dec. 21, 1941 (Doc. 18, App. II).

and brought to strength by transferring airplanes from the 3rd Pursuit. The rest of the 3rd was absorbed into the 34th at Nichols Field. As already noted, the third had practically been wiped out at Iba. It no longer functioned as a separate squadron from this date. At the same time the ground crews were attempting to repair the pursuit planes³³, and the B-17s at Clark Field which had not burned. The reaction of ground personnel to the bombing had been good on the whole although some had taken to the hills and did not drift in until night. Most were working feverishly to salvage planes and parts. Gun crews had stuck to their posts.

On December 9th the bombardment squadrons at Del Monte were employed as follows: One plane went on reconnaissance of the Davao Area, and then went up to Luzon, landing on the airdrome at San Marcelino. The plane was damaged by fire of our ground forces while landing. At 1430 seven other aircraft took off from Del Monte for San Marcelino, and also were fired on by our ground forces while landing, but no damage resulted. Six aircraft took off on a reconnaissance mission for Catandanes Islands, off Southern Luzon, found no enemy action, and then flew into Clark Field at 1430 to be prepared for a mission the next day. Immediately upon landing they took off because of air raid alarm, and landed after dark. From Clark Field, at 0800, one plane attempted the reconnaissance mission to Formosa, but turned back because of engine trouble, and then stayed up until after dark to avoid enemy attack on the field.³⁴

On the night of December 9/10, reports were received of a large enemy convoy off Vigan and another off Aparri.³⁵ It was accordingly planned to hit them with all the available air power on the following day.

[14156]

SECRET

HISTORY

OF

30TH BOMBARDMENT SQUADRON (H)

19TH BOMBARDMENT GROUP (H)

PERIOD COVERING

DECEMBER 7TH, 1941 TO DECEMBER 31ST, 1942

[14157] On the morning of 8 December 1941 (Philippine Time), word of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor was flashed to members of the 30th Bomb Squadron, then stationed at Clark Field, Manila.

Major David R. Gibbs, the 30th's Commanding Officer, immediately ordered all crews to report to the flight line, and upon the disposal of preliminary preparations, the Squadron's B-17s, geared for action, took to the air.

Ground crews likewise were on the alert, for the Japs were expected to attack Clark Field within the next 20 minutes, according to reports received by the 30th, and everything was considered in readiness to repel the enemy when he struck.

For more than 3 hours, the 30th's planes circled Mt. Aryat, flying in and out of cloud banks, soaring over the plains of Luzon, unsuccessfully seeking traces of the enemy. At approximately noon, Major Gibbs ordered the planes to land, and as they did, they were dispersed around Clark Field. Some crews were requested to stand by their ships, with the remainder instructed to obtain a hasty meal and report to Group Headquarters for briefing.

Shortly thereafter—about 12.30 p. m.—came the Japs! A low, whistling noise, resembling wind through the trees, grew louder and louder with devastating crescendo, and a deafening explosion rocked Clark Field, signaling the beginning of the attack. Blast after blast shattered the earth and nearly everything upon it. The initial Jap formation of 54 bombers unloosed tons and tons of high explosives, following with merciless strafing.

The entire attack lasted about 40 minutes, with casualties heavy, the field torn and wrecked, and only one or two of the 30th's B-17s remaining for service. Brilliant, individual deeds of heroism characterized the efforts of officers and enlisted personnel, but they could not stem the Japs in their relentless assault.

³³ History 24 Pur. Gp. (Doc. 1, App. II).

³⁴ Journal 19 Bomb. Gp. (Doc. 11, App. II).

³⁵ Colonel Ind's Bataan Mss., pp. 260 ff.

Follow-up attacks were naturally expected, and that evening, Major Gibbs moved the 30th from the barracks on Clark Field, establishing headquarters on a small knoll in a cane field about a mile and one-half away. It was shortly thereafter that Major Gibbs, on a mission in a B-18, did not return, and the Squadron lost the first of its several war-time commanding officers.

[14158]

CONFIDENTIAL

E-21

HEADQUARTERS 3RD AIR FORCE
Office of the Commanding General
Tampa, Florida

Lt. Col. LUCIUS P. ORDWAY

A-2 Section Army Air Force, Munitions Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR COLONEL:

Inclosed is a summary of operations in the Southwest Pacific Area as I saw them. After reading over the interview which is on file there in Washington, it appeared to be a good idea to clarify and add to the report. The form admittedly is not so good, but in general includes everything that I could remember that might be of interest.

Sincerely,

W. P. FISHER

W. P. Fisher

Major, Air Corps Asst. G-3

[14159]

SECRET

REPORT OF PHILIPPINE AND JAVA OPERATIONS

By W. P. Fisher, Major, Air Corps

I was assigned as a flight commander in a provisional squadron of nine combat and maintenance crews, equipped with 9 B-17D Airplanes, which was formed at Hickam Field, Hawaii, in August of 1941. This was composed of personnel and equipment drawn from the two tactical groups stationed there. Training of this provisional squadron was carried out until the first of September at which time it was designated as the Fourteenth Heavy Bombardment Squadron and the ground component of the Fourteenth added to the combat echelon. The air echelon left Hickam Field on September 5th with orders transferring it to Clark Field in the Philippine Islands. The first stop was made at Midway Island. The flight remained overnight continuing on to Wake Island the following day. The departure from Wake Island to Port Moresby, New Guinea, was made about midnight the following night under conditions of radio silence, arriving at the destination the following afternoon. After a one-day lay over for maintenance, the squadron continued on to Darwin, Australia. Another day's lay over was made there for maintenance and awaiting weather information before the final hop to Clark Field in the Philippines. This was the first squadron of B-17's to arrive in the Philippines. Following arrival at Clark Field, we immediately began intensive unit tactical training in high altitude formation flying, navigation, bombing, and gunnery. Missions at this time were scheduled from 20,000 to 30,000 feet.

About a month after our arrival, the 19th Group stationed at Albuquerque, New Mexico, was transferred to the Philippine Department and, following the same route, arrived about the middle of October with two combat and one Headquarters Squadron and equipped with 25 B-17D Airplanes. Following arrival of the air and ground echelons of the 19th Group, all Philippine Bombardment units were consolidated into the 19th Group. The organization then consisted of the 30th, 93rd, 14th, and 28th combat squadrons and a Headquarters Squadron. All airplanes and equipment were evenly divided among them, giving 8 B-17's to each combat squadron and 3 in the Headquarters Squadron. At this time, I was relieved from assignment to the 14th Squadron and given command of the 28th Squadron which had been stationed at Clark Field prior to our arrival.

By the first of December the international situation was quite grave and reconnaissance patrols were being run by both ourselves and the Japanese between Formosa and Luzon. Visual contact by the aircraft had been made several times. At about this time, the air echelon of the 93rd and 14th squadrons, consisting of the combat crews, some maintenance men, and all airplanes were sent to Del Monte on the Island of Mindanao, our alternate Heavy Bombardment Base; the 28th, 30th and Headquarters squadrons remaining at Clark field. This was the situation that existed on December 7, when the attack on Pearl Harbor occurred. The training of the entire group was at a high state; all personnel was experienced and our equipment in good condition.

The attack on Pearl Harbor occurred about 3:00 o'clock the morning of the 8th, Philippine time. The report of the attack was received first, of course, [14160] by radio news broadcast and all personnel were aware of it by dawn or shortly thereafter. All airplanes at Clark Field had been dispersed and in revetments for some time prior to this and the entire group was prepared to perform missions at any time. While awaiting orders, the first air warning was received around 8:00 o'clock that a formation of enemy bombers was proceeding in the direction of Clark Field. Immediately all flyable airplanes were taken off and flown away from the vicinity of the field to avoid their destruction. Several warnings were received during the morning of enemy formations but no attacks were made on Clark Field. At about 11:00 o'clock, we were all called back in as no further enemy aircraft were reported. After landing, orders were received to attack Air Bases on Southern Formosa at dusk. Preparations for this mission were being made when at about 12:30 a formation of 54 Heavy Japanese Bombers was seen approaching the field. No warning had been received from our radio locator stations of any enemy aircraft in the vicinity, so our entire strength of aircraft was caught on the ground in their dispersed positions with the exception of one B-17 on patrol. It was later found that all communications to Clark Field had been cut by saboteurs and radio communications jammed by radio interference. The formation had been detected by the radio locators, but they were unable to get warning to Clark Field.

Numerous zigzag trenches approximately 2' wide and 5' deep had been constructed by Colonel Maitland, the base Commander, in previous months in the vicinity of the hangars and working area. Also additional trenches had been constructed near the dispersed positions of the airplanes. Upon sighting the approaching formation, warning was given and most of the personnel were able to take cover in these trenches. There was approximately 5 minutes between the time the formation was first seen and the attack on Clark Field. The attack was made diagonally across the quarters and hangar area by two formations of 27 Heavy Bombers. Each 27 plane formation was in the form of a giant Vee. The bombs used in the attack varied from 100 # bombs down to smaller fragmentation bombs and were dropped in train covering the field from the quarters area through the hangar and shop area. I estimate that approximately 300 bombs were dropped in this attack. Following the bombing attack, a formation of 18 fighters came in, individually attacking the dispersed B-17's and other aircraft with machine guns and cannon fire. This attack lasted approximately 40 minutes. Very few airplanes had been destroyed by the bombing attack which was conducted from approximately 23,000' but all air planes were completely destroyed or filled with bullet holes by the fighter attack. During this attack approximately six P-40's of the squadron stationed at Clark Field were able to get off and engage the attacking fighters. The 200th Coast Artillery (an anti-aircraft regiment) was in position to defend Clark Field and also took the fighters under fire with 30 cal., 50 cal., and 37 mm. gun fire. The damage to Clark Field from this attack was great as the hangars, shore, supply buildings, and other installations were struck by bombs and numerous fires started. Personnel casualties were approximately 100 men and officers killed and 200 wounded. Nearly all of the casualties were persons who were taken by surprise and were unable to take cover in the trenches which had been provided. The Japanese intelligence apparently had been complete as they had attacked only the tactical airplanes and installations.

Operations were begun immediately and missions carried out against enemy surface vessels and convoys by the two squadrons stationed at Del Monte. Japanese landings were made at Aparri, Legaspi and Vigan and were successful. These landings were made from a small number of transports accompanied by surface vessels and under the protection of gun fire from the vessels. . . .

[14161]

Headquarters, Far East Air Forces (P)
Historical Record

Chron No. 40-11-1 to A-1132 Hist. No. 42-4-27

Subject Class: History

Title of Document: 24th Pursuit Group in P. I.

Date of Document: 10 October 1942. File 5AF A-1. "Rosters V Bomber Command P. I.—Java File

Type of Document: _____ PAGES _____ IMP. P PUB. S _____

From: _____ TO _____

Typed by T. Leach Checked by _____ Synopsis: True Copy.

HEADQUARTERS, FIFTH AIR FORCE,
Brisbane, Q. October 10, 1942.

Subject: Activity of the 24th Pursuit Group in the Philippines.

On or about November 1, 1940, the 4th Composite Group in the Philippine Islands was reinforced by the 17th Pursuit Squadron of the 1st Pursuit Group, commanded by K. J. Gregg, Major, Air Corps, and the 20th Pursuit Squadron of the 35th Pursuit Group, commanded by OL Grover, Captain, Air Corps. At this time, the 4th Composite Group commanded by L. S. Churchill, Colonel, Air Corps, was based at Nichols Field. It consisted of the 28th Bombardment Squadron detached at Clark Field, the 2nd Observation Squadron detached at Clark Field, and the following Squadrons at Nichols Field: Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, 3rd Pursuit Squadron, 17th Pursuit Squadron and 20th Pursuit Squadron, all equipped with obsolete P-26 type aircraft. During the month of May, 1941, Colonel Churchill assumed command of Nichols Field, and K. J. Gregg, Major, Air Corps, assumed command of the 4th Composite Group. The 28th Bombardment Squadron and the 2nd Observation Squadron were assigned to Clark Field.

In May, 1941, the Group was re-equipped with P-35 type aircraft destined for Sweden, but diverted to the Philippine Islands. During July, 1941, due to the conditions at Nichols Field, i. e. east-west runway undergoing construction, and north-south runway being unusable due to lack of drainage, the 4th Composite Group (less 17th Pursuit Squadron) was transferred to Clark Field. The 17th Pursuit Squadron was transferred to Iba to undergo gunnery training at that station. During the month of July, 1941, one Squadron was re-equipped with P-40B type aircraft, the other squadrons still being equipped with P-35s. At the same time, one hundred new pilots arrived from the training school in the States, and were assigned to the Group. It became necessary to train these pilots. A training unit was instigated at Clark Field and pursuit training was given. On or about August 1, Major Gregg was transferred to the F. E. A. F., and O. L. Grover, Major, Air Corps, assumed command of the Group. During September the 17th Pursuit Squadron was transferred to Nichols Field and the 3rd Pursuit Squadron was transferred to Iba for gunnery training. This movement was necessary in order to make room for contemplated bombardment reinforcements at Clark Field. Nichols Field's construction was not complete and was not satisfactory for operations. These conditions occasioned a high accident rate for the 17th Squadron.

On October 1, 1941, the 4th Composite Group, less 3rd, 17th and 20th Squadrons was transferred to Clark Field and the 24th Pursuit Group was activated at Clark Field. The 24th Pursuit Group consisted of Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, 3rd Pursuit Squadron, 17th Pursuit Squadron and 20th Pursuit Squadron. During the month of October, 35 new pilots just graduated from the training schools in the States arrived and were assigned, bringing the Group to full T/O officers' strength. It was necessary to train these pilots for duty in combat units.

During the month of November, 1941, the 21st Pursuit Squadron and the 34th Pursuit Squadron arrived from the United States. They were part of the 35th Pursuit Group. They were attached to the 24th Pursuit Group for duty and administration pending the arrival of the remainder of their Group. On December 1, 1941, the Pursuit units were as follows:

a. Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, 24th Pursuit Group, Clark Field, commanded by Lieutenant W. D. Putnam.

[14162] b. 3rd Pursuit Squadron, Iba, commanded by Lieutenant H. G. Thorne, equipped with P-40Es.

c. 17th Pursuit Squadron at Nichols Field, commanded by 1st Lieutenant Boyd D. Wagner, equipped with P-40Es.

5334 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

d. 20th Pursuit Squadron at Clark Field, commanded by 1st Lieutenant J. H. Moore, equipped with P-40Bs.

e. 21st Pursuit Squadron at Del Carmen, commanded by 1st Lieutenant Sam Marrett, equipped with P-35s.

f. 34th Pursuit Squadron at Nichols Field, commanded by 1st Lieutenant W. E. Dyess, partially equipped with P-40Es.

Airdromes available to pursuit were: Nichols Field, Nielson Field, Clark Field, Iba, Rosales, Del Carmen; under construction O'Donnel, San Fernando, Ternate. Other commercial fields in the Islands were unsuitable for fully loaded pursuit aircraft.

Communications for aircraft warning: The aircraft warning system consisted of native air watches, who relayed their reports over the telephone to the 5th Interceptor Headquarters at Neilson. The reports were then relayed via teletype to the plotting board at Clark Field. One R. D. F. set was installed at Iba, one set in process of installation 60 miles west of Aparri and the third set was en route to Legaspi for installation. Delay in time for the relaying of messages due to telephone communications was from five to twenty-five minutes.

From November 15, due to the tense international situation, all pursuit aircraft were fully loaded, armed and on constant alert 24 hours each day with pilots available on 30 minutes notice. On December 6, General Brereton held a conference and stated that war was imminent. At this time all units were placed completely on the alert with all combat crews, enlisted men and officers constantly ready for duty.

On the night of December 7, the status report had shown:

The 3rd Pursuit Squadron had 18 P-40Es in commission;

The 17th Pursuit Squadron had 18 P-40Es in commission;

The 20th Pursuit Squadron had 18 P-40Es in commission;

The 21st Pursuit Squadron had 18 P-35s in commission;

The 34th Pursuit Squadron had 18 P-40Es in commission, giving the Group a total of 54 P-40Es, 18 P-40Bs and 18 P-35s in commission.

The 34th Squadron received their last P-40E from the Depot on the evening of December 7. This squadron was unable to slow time all of the engines, bore-sights or check guns.

During the period November 30 to December 6 all squadrons were undergoing intensive training in interception and gunnery. The squadrons were doing training in conjunction with bombardment in day and night interception in coordination with the anti-aircraft.

Throughout the gunnery camp at Iba an extreme amount of difficulty was experienced in malfunctioning of the guns due to improper adjustment and mal-installation. In order to properly function it was imperative that all gun installations should be modified.

During the period December 2 to December 6, for four consecutive nights an enemy aircraft was sighted over Clark Field at approximately 5:30 a. m. After the first sighting, instructions were given to force the aircraft to land or destroy it. On the three succeeding nights it was impossible to make the interception, due to inability to see the aircraft in the dark or the aircraft not getting close enough to be picked up by the searchlights. On the fifth morning all aircraft were kept on the ground and the anti-aircraft alerted for the interception; however, no aircraft were located. During the same period enemy aircraft were tracked over Iba by the radar set.

[14163] On December 8th approximately 3:30 a. m. the commercial radio station at Clark Field intercepted a message from Pearl Harbor, reference the attack there. Unable to verify this interception no official action was taken other than notifying the Base Commander. However, all units were ordered to constant stations.

At approximately 4 a. m. the radar at Iba reported a formation of unidentified aircraft approximately 75 miles off the coast heading towards Corregidor. The 3rd Pursuit Squadron was dispatched for the interception. No interception was accomplished. However, the tracks on the plotting table showed that the interception was successful and the formation of unidentified aircraft swung off to the west going out of range of the radar. This interception was hampered by darkness and a lack of altitude data from the radar, i. e. it is thought that the pursuit went underneath the formation of unidentified aircraft. At approximately 4:45 official confirmation that a state of war existed was received. The 3rd Pursuit squadron returned to Iba, landed, regassed and went to Stations.

At approximately 9:30, a large force of bombers over Lingayen was reported heading towards Manila. The 20th Pursuit Squadron was immediately dispatched for the interception over Rosales. The 17th Pursuit Squadron was immediately dispatched from Nichols Field to cover Clark Field. The interception was not successful. The bombers proceeded on a course until approximately 30 miles north of Rosales then made a turn to the northeast and proceeded to Baguio, bombed Baguio and Tagagarau and departed for the north. At the time the 20th took off all bombardment were dispatched from Clark Field. The 20th returned to Clark Field and gave the bombardment cover while they were landing. Both the 20th and the 17th then landed, regassed and went on the alert.

At approximately 11:30 a large formation of bombers was reported over the China Sea headed for Manila. The 3rd Pursuit Squadron was dispatched for the interception. Uncertainties of time and place factors, due to the delay in communications, making it doubtful whether the 3rd would accomplish the interception, the 17th was dispatched to cover Bataan, and the 34th was placed on standing patrol over Manila. At approximately 11:45 an unidentified report was received of a bombardment formation over Lingayen Gulf, headed south. The 20th not having completed gassing was not able to take off to investigate. At approximately 11:45 the 21st Pursuit Squadron was dispatched to cover Clark Field. At 12:15 the 20th completed gassing and was ordered to cover Clark Field. At 12:20 54 bombers and an undetermined number of dive bombers attacked Clark Field. The 20th Pursuit Squadron was in the process of taking off when the attack came. Four of their aircraft had cleared the ground. Another five were destroyed in the process of taking off by the bombardment. The remaining five were destroyed by strafing after the bombardment attack. The unidentified plot mentioned above proved to be the bombardment formation approaching Clark Field. Communications break down prevented proper identification. At the time of the attack on Clark Field four squadrons of pursuit were in the air and the fifth in the process of taking off. Due to a direct hit on the center of communications at Clark Field, ground-to-air control was destroyed and thus no control could be maintained of the fighters in the air.

The 3rd Pursuit Squadron, which had been dispatched for the interception over the China Sea, failed to make the interception and was notified of another raid approaching Iba, by the ground station at Iba. The radar set at Iba was plotting the approaching raid and relaying to the central plotting room at Neilson airport. However, due to a breakdown in communications these plots were never received at Neilson. The 3rd Pursuit Squadron returned to Iba and as they were circling the field 54 enemy bombers and an unknown number of dive bombers accompanying them approached the field. These were immediately attacked by the 3rd Pursuit Squadron. In the ensuing engagement one bomber and a number of strafers were claimed to have been destroyed. The 3rd Pursuit Squadron lost in the air five P-40s and although not preventing the bombardment of Iba, did prevent the strafing. After the withdrawal of the enemy, three additional aircraft (P-40s) were forced to crash land on the beaches due to their gas supply being exhausted. The remainder of the squadron proceeded to O'Donnell airport and landed; they remained there until ammunition and gas were dispatched from Clark Field to reload and regas this squadron. The installations and aircraft on the ground at Iba were completely destroyed by enemy bombardment. There were approximately eight airplanes on the ground at the time of the attack which were out of condition due to maintenance, engine change etc.

The 17th Pursuit Squadron over Bataan proceeded towards Clark Field but upon arrival there the enemy had withdrawn. The 17th, unable to contact the ground station, proceeded to Del Carmen and landed. The 21st Squadron was greatly delayed in taking off due to the excessive amount of dust on the field, and made no interception. The 34th Squadron patrolled Manila area and landed at Nichols Field at the completion of the mission.

[14164] Chron No. 10-41-6-44 D-1052

Headquarters, Fifth Air Force
Historical Record

Subject Class: Communications.

Title of Document: Record of an interview with Major Heald, Communications Officer, Fifth Air Service Command.

Date of Document: 15 May, 1944.

File No.: Interview.

Type of Document: Statement. Pages ----- Imp. ----- Pub. S.

From ----- To -----

Extract: Typed by C. Lutton. Checked by -----

5336 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

RECORD OF AN INTERVIEW WITH MAJOR HEALD, COMMUNICATIONS OFFICER, FIFTH AIR FORCE SERVICE COMMAND

15 May, 1944.

When the Fifth Air Base Group came to the Philippines about 15 November 1941, it was transferred from Manila to Mindinao where it established an airdrome at Del Monte. Lieut. Heald with nine men from the 19th Bombardment Group Hdq. Sq., and a large mobile radio truck, proceeded to Del Monte with the Fifth Air Base Group arriving at that base 1st December 1941. Base communications were set up and radio communications established from Del Monte back to Clark Field and Nielson Field during the week from 1 December to 8 December 1941.

At the time of the attack upon the Philippines, Lieut. Heald received the first message radioed to Del Monte from General Headquarters, which he immediately related to Captain Gee (now Lieut Col) then adjutant of the Fifth Air Base Group. This was signed "MacArthur" and was received at approximately 0630 and it read: "Hostilities have begun. All Airdromes alert". Five minutes later another message arrived from Lieutenant Colonel Eubank with about the same wording.

During the latter part of December 1941 and all of January 1942, Lt. Brownwell made daily reconnaissance flights in a P-40 over Davao harbor which fell to the Japanese the first week of the war.

This information (visual only as he had no photographic equipment) was sent by radio to General MacArthur—Great quantities of supplies and ships of all sorts were visible on the bay and in the harbor. At the time of the naval battle in Macassar Sts., 1 February to 6 February 1942, approximately fifty ships were in Davao Harbor—i. e. destroyers, cruisers, aircraft carriers, and cargo vessels. Several attempts were made by the enemy to follow Lt. Brownwell and locate the strip from which he operated, but he always managed to elude them and land on a strip that could not be found.

There were no radio communications between strips on Mindanao. The only means of communication was over the Philippine Commonwealth telephone lines which were very unsatisfactory.

[14166]

15 JANUARY 1946.

Memorandum for Lt. Colonel Duncombe.

Subject: Organization of the Far East Air Force

1. Inclosed herewith is the material you requested concerning the organization of the air force in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war.

2. Inclosure No. 1 is a copy of a 4 August 1941 order stating that the Air Force, United States Army Forces in the Far East "will operate directly under" the Commanding General, United States Army Forces in the Far East. Inclosure No. 2 is a 14 November 1941 order merely changing the name of the Air Force, United States Army Forces in the Far East to "Far East Air Force."

3. Inclosure No. 3 is a chart showing the relationship of the principal air and ground commanders in the Philippines to General MacArthur. Inclosure No. 4 is a chart giving in more detail the organization and location of the various air units in the Philippines. Inclosure No. 5 is a list of air force commanders in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war. The inclosures referred to in this paragraph have been recently prepared on the basis of records on file in the AAF Historical Office, Headquarters Army Air Forces and records in the possession of the Adjutant General.

/s/ JOSEPH B. MITCHELL,
Lt. Colonel GSC.

[14166] 5 Incls

1. Cy of order dtd 4 Aug 41
2. Cy of order dtd 14 Nov 41
3. Chart air & gd comdrs in the Phil
4. Chart Orgn of FEAF
5. List of Air Force cmdrs.

Chron. No. 41-8-4 D-1034

Headquarters, Fifth Air Force
Historical Record

Subject Class: Organization—Units

Title of Document: Redesignation of Air Force

Date of Document: 4 August 1941 File No. USAFFE 300.4

Type of Document: General Order

(Typed by C. Lutton)

True Copy.

HEADQUARTERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY FORCES IN THE FAR EAST,
Manila, P. I., 4 August 1941.

General Orders. No. 4.

The Philippine Department Air Force as now constituted, Brigadier General Henry B. Clagett (O-2152), United States Army, Commanding, and such other units and installations as may be assigned to it, are hereby constituted as the Air [14167] Force, United States Army Forces in the Far East. It will operate directly under the Commanding General, United States Army Forces in the Far East, except for routine administration and supply, which will continue through Headquarters Philippine Department.

By Command of Lieutenant General MacARTHUR:

R. K. SUTHERLAND,
Lieutenant Colonel, Infantry,
Acting Chief of Staff.

Official:

/s/ CARL H. SEALS
Colonel, A. G. D.,
Acting Adjutant General.

True Copy

/s/ MANNING J. DAUER
Capt. Air Corps.

Chron No. 41-11-14 D-1051

Headquarters Fifth Air Force
Historical Record

Subject Class—Organizations—Units

Title of Document—General Order

Date of Document—14 November, 1941 File No. USAFFE—G. O.

(Typed by C. Lutton) Extract

Copy

HEADQUARTERS,
UNITED STATES ARMY FORCES IN THE FAR EAST,
Manila, P. I., 14 November, 1941.

[14168]

General Orders No. 28

1. Pursuant to authority contained in letter, War Department, October 28, 1941, File AG 320.2 (10-20-41) MR-M-AAF, to this headquarters, effective November 16, 1941, the following changes in Air Force Units of the command are announced:

a. The Air Force, United States Army Forces in the Far East is effective this date, redesignated as "Far East Air Force".

b. Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, United States Army Forces in the Far East, effective this date, is redesignated as Headquarters and Headquarters Squadron, Far East Air Force.

* * * * *

By command of Lieutenant General MacARTHUR

E. K. SUTHERLAND
Brigadier General, GSC.
Chief of Staff

Official:

CARL H. SEALS,
Colonel, A. G. D.

7 DECEMBER 1941

CS

3d Purs B Squad
(Iba F pl

*Plane

1
1
-
-
-
1
1
S

[14171] COMMANDERS OF AIR FORCE UNITS IN THE PHILIPPINES AT THE OUT-BREAK OF THE WAR

1. Far East Air Force (Nielson Field)—Maj. Gen. L. H. Brereton
2. 5th Interceptor Command (Nielson Field)—Brig. Gen. H. B. Claggett
3. 24th Pursuit Group (Clark Field)—Maj. O. L. Grover
 - 8rd Pursuit Squadron (Iba Field) 1st Lt. H. G. Thorne
 - 17th Pursuit Squadron (Nichols Field)—1st Lt. B. D. Wagner
 - 20th Pursuit Squadron (Clark Field)—1st Lt. J. H. Moore
 - 21st Pursuit Squadron (Del Carmen Field)—1st Lt. W. B. Dyess
 - 34th Pursuit Squadron (Nichols Field)—1st Lt. S. H. Marett
4. 5th Bomber Command (Nielson Field)—Lt. Col. E. L. Eubank
5. 19th Bombardment Group (H) (Clark Field)—Lt. Col. Eubank
 - 14th Bombardment Squadron (Del Monte Field)—Maj. Emmett O'Donnell, Jr.
 - 28th Bombardment Squadron (Clark Field)—Maj. W. P. Fisher
 - 30th Bombardment Squadron (Clark Field)—Maj. D. R. Gibbs
 - 93rd Bombardment Squadron (Del Monte Field)—Maj. C. E. Combs
6. 27th Bombardment Group (L) (Nielson Field)—Maj. J. H. Davies
 - 16th Bombardment Squadron—Capt. W. G. Hipps

[14172] 17th Bombardment Squadron—1st Lt. H. F. Lowery
 91st Bombardment Squadron—1st Lt. W. E. Eubank

7. 2nd Observation Squadron (Nichols Field)—Capt. J. Y. Parker
8. Far East Air Service Command (Nielson Field)—Col. L. S. Churchill
9. Philippine Air Depot (Nielson Field)—Lt. Col. W. N. Amls
10. 5th Air Base Group (Del Monte Field) Maj. R. T. Elsmore
11. 20th Air Base Group (Nichols Field)—Maj. W. H. Maverick
12. 36th Air Base Group (Nielson Field)
 - (It is believed that this was only a small detachment. The bulk of the group and its equipment went to Australia and never reached the Philippines. The detachment commander is believed to have been Capt. Waller.)
13. Clark Field—Maj. M. J. Daly
14. Del Carmen Field—1st Lt. S. H. Marett
 - (Lt. Marett is also listed above as the Commanding Officer of the 34th Pursuit Squadron of the 24th Pursuit Group.)
15. Del Monte Field—Maj. R. T. Elsmore
 - (Maj. Elsmore is also listed above as the Commanding Officer of the 5th Air Base Group)
16. Iba Field—1st Lt. H. G. Thorne
 - (Lt. Thorne is also listed above as the Commanding [14173] Officer of the 3rd Pursuit Squadron of the 24th Pursuit Group)
17. Nichols Field—Maj. W. H. Maverick
 - (Maj. Maverick is also listed above as the Commanding Officer of the 20th Air Force Group)
18. Nielson Field

(This field was not an operational field. It will be noted that only headquarters units, or units which did not have their planes or equipment are listed as being stationed at this field.)

[14174] Mr. MORGAN. We have a series of communications from the Federal Communications Commission, dated February 11, 14, and 18, 1946, concerning the matter of monitoring by the Federal Communications Commission at Hawaii for a "winds execute" message. Inasmuch as this question came up during the interrogation with respect to this matter, we would like to have these communications, which are from Mr. G. E. Sterling, Assistant Chief Engineer, together with enclosures, spread on the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. They will be spread on the record at this point.

5340 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(The communications referred to follow:)

[14175]

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
Washington 25, D. C., February 11, 1946.

Mr. SETH RICHARDSON,
General Counsel, Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee,
Washington, D. C.
(Attention: Mr. Morgan.)

DEAR SIR: Replies have been received from all officers who were in charge of the Commission's activities in Hawaii on December 7, 1941, in which they all state that they were not requested by any representatives of the military authorities in Hawaii to monitor for the "winds" execute message prior to December 7, 1941.

Copies of their statements are attached to this communication.

Sincerely yours,

(sgd) G. E. Sterling
G. E. STERLING
Assistant Chief Engineer.

Attachments

FEBRUARY 7, 1946.

From: Supervisor H. A. M. A.
[14176] To: Chief, R. I. D.
Subject: "Winds Messages"

My memorandum dated February 4, 1946, contained a blanket denial that any request to monitor for the so-called "Winds Messages" was received from the Army or the Navy prior to December 7, 1941.

This is a repetition of that denial with the added statement that Col. Bicknell did not contact me (or any member of my staff) between November 28 and December 7, 1941, to request that we monitor for the "winds Messages" by making intercepts of Japanese radio transmissions.

/s/ LEE R. DAWSON

RADIO INTELLIGENCE DIVISION,
609 Stangenwald Bldg., Honolulu, T. H., February 4, 1946.

From: Supervisor, H. A. M. A.
To: Chief, R. I. D.
Subject: "Winds Messages"

I, Lee R. Dawson, Supervisor, Radio Intelligence Division, Federal Communications Commission, Hawaiian Monitoring Area, do hereby affirm and state that the following statements are true to the best of my knowledge and belief:

(1) That I was actively in charge of the National [14177] Defense Operations Section of the Federal Communications Commission in the Hawaiian Islands from November 1, 1940, to December 7, 1941.

(2) That no request was received by me or by any member of my staff from the Army or the Navy prior to December seventh, 1941, to monitor for the so-called "Winds Messages."

/s/ LEE R. DAWSON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 5th day of February, A. D. 1946.

[SEAL]

/s/ ELBERT D. KWASHIGI,
Notary Public, Third Judicial Circuit, Territory of Hawaii.

My commission expires June 30, 1949.

FEB. 5, 1946.

From: Earl A. Nielsen, Kealahou, T. H.
To: Chief, R. I. D.
Subject: "Winds" Messages.

I, Earl A. Nielsen, affirm and state that to the best of my knowledge and belief no request to monitor for "Winds" messages was received by me from the Army or the Navy prior to December 7th, 1941. I was employed as Assistant Monitoring Officer at HA-2, Hawaii National Park from July 1st, 1941 thru December 7th, 1941.

EARL A. NIELSEN.

FEBRUARY 5, 1946.

Mr. GEORGE E. STERLING,
Federal Communications Commission, [14178] Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. STERLING: I am writing to confirm our telephonic conversation of last night regarding matters pertinent to the Pearl Harbor Investigation. As you know, I was Inspector in Charge of the Engineering Department's Field Division office in Honolulu from November 1940 to December 1945. At no time prior to December 7, 1941, was I contacted by G-2 of the Army, or by any other government office, with a request that my department make recordings or monitoring runs of radio broadcasts for the purpose of intercepting the so-called "winds" message from Japan.

As I now recall, I was told by one Frank Santos, who operated a pleasure fishing boat out of Honolulu, that he had aboard a fishing party on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941. Amongst the fishermen were some Army officers who became exasperated when their craft was strafed by the Japs because they thought the planes were our own and they were making their practice runs a bit too realistic. I was personally monitoring the 2638 kc band that morning and heard Santos ask the the Coast Guard station NMO for permission to enter the harbor. It was apparent from the conversation from NMO that personnel at the station did not realize that we were being attacked at the time.

Yours truly,

[14179]

(sgd) JOHN H. HOMSY.

P. S. I trust that you can read this letter which is written at my bedside.

73

JHH

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
RADIO INTELLIGENCE DIVISION,
Honolulu 1, T. H., February 7, 1946.

Secret

Via Clipper Airmail

From: Assistant Supervisor, HA-P, Honolulu, T. H.
To: Chief, Radio Intelligence Division
Subject: February radiogram 072007 BUSY SHIP

In your message of February 7, 1946 it was requested that a written statement be prepared by Mr. Dawson, Mr. Wagner and Mr. Klima concerning a "so called" request to the Honolulu office of the FCC for intercepts of Japanese transmissions containing "winds messages" between November 28, 1941 and December 7, 1941.

I make the following statement: I, Tom B. Wagner, Assistant Supervisor, HA-P, can not recall any request made by Col. Bicknell, G-2, Honolulu, Hawaii, or other military personnel between November 28, 1941 and December 7, 1941 to the FCC for Japanese intercepts [14180] containing "Winds Messages". No written record can be found in the HA-P files for such a request.

Such a request as this would require a clearance from the FCC office in Washington, D. C., before such information could be furnished Col. Bicknell. No record of such a request can be found.

TOM B. WAGNER.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT,
RADIO INTELLIGENCE DIVISION,
February 6, 1946.

To: Chief Radio Intelligence Division
From: Monitoring Officer in Chg. Unit HA-3, Koloa Kaula TH
Subject: Army/Navy monitoring requests re: Japanese winds message prior Dec 7 1941.

Ref: Relative information requested Chief's Radiogram.

This unit was placed in service March nineteenth 1941. The unit was located, temporary set up, at Lihue Kauai. Relocation of the unit to the National Guard Armory Hanapepe Kauai was completed April first 1941.

The only office of military representation on the island of Kauai known by this unit was that of the U S Army.

5342 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14181] The commanding officer was contacted in person by myself, and information given as to our location, our aim and purpose in monitoring, and service rendered.

As officer in charge of this unit between the dates of March nineteenth 1941 and that of December eighth, 1941, and cognizant of all requests made for service at this unit by either the U. S. Army or Navy during this period, can state, that to the best of my knowledge neither the U. S. Army or Navy made a request for the monitoring of Japanese broadcasts for the interception of "winds message".

This unit's official case record file substantiates the above statement.

/s/ Theodore H. Tate

THEODORE H. TATE

Monitoring Officer.

WAR DEPARTMENT
FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE
FIELD DIVISION
February 5, 1946.

From: Waldemar M. Klima, P. O. Box FF, Kekaha, Kauai, T. H.

To: Mr. George E. Sterling, Chief, RID, Washington 25, DC

Subject: Your request re the Winds message.

This afternoon I received the following message by telephone from the HA-3, RID, unit near Koloa, Kauai, T. H.

[14182] "Chief wants airmail statements from you and Klima regarding whether Army and Navy requested you to monitor for winds message from Tokyo prior to December 7th"

The message was apparently a paraphrase by King (Wagner of HA-P) of Busy's message received from Washington.

My statement follows: I am sufficiently certain to state that I personally did not receive a written, telephoned, or verbal request from any representative or any of the military agencies (Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, or Marines) on Oahu to monitor for a "Winds message" or any other specific or general monitoring request in the period of a week prior to December 7, 1941. Neither am I aware of any such request having been received by any one of the other HA-P or HA-1 staff members. No announcement of such a monitoring request was made verbally or in written posted form by the officers in-charge of monitoring activities in the Punchbowl in Honolulu, T. H.

(signed) Waldemar M. Klima
WALDEMAR M. KLIMA

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
Washington 25, D. C., February 14, 1946.

Mr. SETH RICHARDSON,

[14183] General Counsel, Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee, Washington, D. C.

Attention: Mr. Morgan

DEAR SIR: I have previously furnished you with statements received from responsible representatives of the Federal Communications Commission, who were on duty in Hawaii prior to December 1941, in which they stated that they had not been contacted by Colonel Bicknell for the purpose of engaging in monitoring Japanese broadcast transmissions for the purpose of intercepting the "WINDS" message.

I now enclose an affidavit made by an employee of the Federal Communications Commission, Mr. A. Prose Walker, in which he states that Colonel Bicknell on two occasions approached him for the purpose of ascertaining if he had any knowledge of Japanese radio stations under surveillance by the FCC, one of the inquiries being directed specifically to the "WINDS" message.

It is very difficult for me to understand why Colonel Bicknell should make affidavit to the effect that he did contact FCC representatives for the purpose of intercepting the "WINDS" message when our own employees in responsible positions indicate they have no knowledge of such a contact.

It is also difficult for me to understand why Colonel [14184] Bicknell endeavored to ascertain information from Mr. Walker on the same subject on two occasions.

I am also enclosing the original sworn statement made by Mr. Lee R. Dawson, a copy of which was furnished you with the other papers. Mr. Dawson was, prior to December 7, 1941, and continues in charge of our Monitoring Activities in Hawaii.

Very truly yours,

G. E. STERLING
/s/ G. E. Sterling
Assistant Chief Engineer.

Enclosures.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT
FEBRUARY 13, 1946.

To: Mr. Sterling
From: Mr. Walker

I recall that on two occasions I was approached by Army personnel relative to any interceptions which the FCC had made of Japanese transmissions prior to or on December 7, 1941. Before the departure of Colonel G. W. Bicknell, Assistant A. C. of S., G2 C. I. D., from the Hawaiian Department, I have a vague recollection that he asked me if I had any knowledge of the Japanese radio stations under surveillance at FCC monitoring stations in Hawaii. My reply was that I had no knowledge of the matter inasmuch as I was [14185] not present in Hawaii at that time, having arrived on March 2, 1942. I probably referred him to Mr. Dawson. I do not recall that any mention was made of the "WINDS" message.

I entered on duty as Chief, Technical Operations Section, RID, on July 7, 1944. Sometime during either July or August of that year, I had lunch with Colonel G. W. Bicknell and he again mentioned the subject of the FCC intercepting any messages on or prior to December 7, 1941. I recall that during this conversation he specifically mentioned the "WINDS" message. Having no knowledge whatever at that time of such a message, my answer to Colonel Bicknell was that I knew nothing about it.

/s/ A. PROSE WALKER.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 13th day of February, 1946.

[SEAL]

/s/ HELEN A. MARSTON
Notary Public

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
Washington 25, D. C., February 18, 1946.

Mr. SETH RICHARDSON

General Counsel, Pearl Harbor Investigating Committee, Washington, D. C.
[14186] Attention: Mr. Morgan

DEAR SIR: There is submitted herewith additional information received from the Supervisor of the Hawaiian Monitoring Area of the Radio Intelligence Division, relative to Colonel Bicknell's affidavit relating to the "WINDS" message.

Very truly yours,

/s/ G. E. Sterling
G. E. STERLING
Assistant Chief Engineer.

Enclosure

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
RADIO INTELLIGENCE DIVISION
Honolulu 1, T. H., February 11, 1946.

From: Supervisor, Hawaiian Monitoring Area
To: Chief, Radio Intelligence Division
Subject: Col. Bicknell's Affidavit.

Following my return this date from an exploratory survey trip around the island of Hawaii I have reviewed the correspondence between your office and HA-P during my absence and I believe the following remarks will shed some light on this controversy.

[14187] In the first place, there is absolutely no evidence on hand to bear out Col. Bicknell's statement that he (1) contacted the local FCC intercept station in Hawaii, (2) requested them to monitor for "winds messages" and (3) that intercepts were furnished him but were not what he was looking for. If Col.

Bicknell had contacted HA-P he would normally have talked to either Mr. Wagner or myself. Neither one of us remembers any such call. If a request had been received by any of the HA-P staff to monitor for "winds messages" it would certainly have been brought to the attention of either Mr. Wagner or myself and such an unusual request would certainly have remained in our memories.

Furthermore, if such a request had been received calling for the release of intercepted material, authorization would first have been obtained from your office before such release was made. Attention is called, in this regard, to the fact that the Navy made a request that HA-P participate in a direction finder problem during the latter part of November 1941 and that your office was immediately notified and authority requested before bearings were released to the Navy.

With regard to the third point, I should like to ask what kind of intercepts we are supposed to have furnished him. I believe that we could show quite clearly that no intercepts were furnished Col. Bicknell. I suspect that, [14188] if pressed on this point, he would describe the translations of the JZI intercepts which we furnished the Office of Naval Intelligence from May through December 1941. I refer to the Japanese propaganda broadcasts which we recorded and which were translated by ONI translators. Copies of these intercepts were furnished the FBI and the Office of Military Intelligence. No request for special monitoring with regard to these intercepts, or any other) was received from either the ONI or the MID during the period between November 28 and December 7, 1941.

One other point comes to mind. You will remember that when I arrived in Washington during July 1943 on special detail, I reported verbally to you that Lt. Col. Henry Christian Clausen of the Judge Advocate General's Department, Army of the United States, had contacted me in Honolulu just prior to my departure and had specifically asked if Col. Bicknell had not requested us to do some monitoring just prior to December 7, 1941. Lt. Col. Clausen was very vague as to just what monitoring Col. Bicknell asked us to do and made no claim that the request had been to monitor specifically for the "winds message". Both Mr. Wagner and I answered Lt. Col. Clausen in the negative and said then, as we do now, that we could recollect no such request from Col. Bicknell.

That is all I can add to the story. I believe it was [14189] during July 1943 that I first learned that there was any such thing as a "winds message". I am absolutely certain that no request to monitor for such a message was received at HA-P prior to December 7, 1941.

/s/ LEE R. DAWSON.

[14190] Mr. MORGAN. We have a telegram, dated August 16, 1941, in five sections, from former Ambassador Grew, to the State Department. This telegram includes the substance of telegrams sent to the British Foreign Office by the British Ambassador reporting his conversation on August 11 with the Japanese Foreign Minister. The release of this document has been cleared with the British, and we request that it be spread on the record at this point with the observation that in a note from the State Department liaison officer, dated January 9, 1946, he indicates:

The British Government has agreed to the use of the attached telegram No. 1235 from Tokyo August 16, 1941. It points out an error in section 2, paragraph (A), fourth line from the bottom, where "Germany's policy" should read "Japan's policy."

As indicated, we would like to have this telegram spread on the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be spread on the record at this point. (The telegram referred to follows:)

[14190-A]

TELEGRAM RECEIVED

TEM

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone. (A). Tokyo via Shanghai and N. R. Dated August 16, 1941. Rec'd 9:20 p. m. 17th.

SECRETARY OF STATE, Washington.

1235, August 16, 3 p. m. (section one).

Following is the (?) telegrams sent to Foreign Office by the British Ambassador reporting his conversation on August 11, with the Japanese Foreign Minister.

"The strong representations to Minister for Foreign Affairs today in regard to spokesman's statement impugning the veracity (?) assurances as to the absence of any British aggressive designs against Thailand. The statement is that such assurances could not be accepted "(?) (?) " was not only calculated to inflame opinion in Japan, but was definitely offensive and I trusted that His Excellency would warn the spokesman of the need of greater (?) in making public statements in the present delicate state of Anglo-Japanese relations. I added that after a public statement of this kind, it was clear from what source the Japanese press received its inspiration for its attacks on my country.

[14190-B] Minister for Foreign Affairs promised to pass on my remarks to Director General of Bureau of Information.

GREW.

WSB

[14190-C]

TELEGRAM RECEIVED

CORRECTED COPY

LET

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone. (A). Tokyo via Shanghai and N. R. Dated August 14, 1941. Rec'd. 11:10 p.m., 17th.

SECRETARY OF STATE, Washington.

1235, August 14 3 p.m. (Section Two).

I proceeded to say how regrettable it seemed to me to be that the Japanese Government should continue to place more reliance on reports (probably emanating from interested quarters) in preference not only to my own assurances but also to the public declaration made by yourself in the House of Commons. Assuming that the Japanese Government were sincere in their desire to avoid trouble over Thailand, such rumors appeared to me to be fantastic and I made an earnest appeal to His Excellency to place his cards on the table and give me some idea of the nature and the source of the reports on which they were acting. If His Excellency would deal with the matter thus frankly I was prepared to be equally frank in explaining the point of view and intention of His Majesty's Government.

Two. Minister for Foreign Affairs agreed that if things were to be prevented from going from bad to [14190-D] worse, a frank interchange of views was essential and he then mentioned several examples of the reports which were creating so much concern in Japan and invited my comments:

(A) Concentration of British troops on Thai frontier. Japanese reports were to the effect that large bodies of British troops had been concentrated ready for an immediate incursion onto Thai territory. I replied that this was a gross exaggeration: such British units as were on the Thai frontier were there purely for defensive purposes—as indeed were all our forces in Malaya and Burmah—with Germany's policy steadily pushing southwards, it was an elementary precaution that the British border defences should be adequately manned.

(B) Report that the WARSPITE was in the Gulf of Siam.

GREW

NPL

[14190-E]

TELEGRAM RECEIVED

EJ

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone. (A). Tokyo via Shanghai and N. R. Dated August 14, 1941. Rec'd. 11:45 p.m., 17th.

SECRETARY OF STATE, Washington.

1235, August 14, 3 p.m. (Section Three).

This report, which he believed had originated with British journalists in Thailand, had received wide currency plausible if untrue, it was unfortunate that they allowed the rumor to spread. I replied that the report in the form in which it had appeared in the press was nonsense on the face of it and I thought it much more likely to have originated in Japanese than British journalistic circles in Thailand (c) Alleged Russo-Japanese clash on Manchukuo front. This report had been spread with particular persistence from Singapore although there was no truth in it whatsoever. No such clash had occurred. I suggested to His Excellency that the report had originated in Manchuria and had received wide currency, so that it was unfair to saddle Singapore with it.

(D) Speeches by Commander in Chief Far East and other high officers in Malaya. The reiterated public assertion of our growing military and air strength in [14190-F] Malaya conveyed an impression of aggressive intentions and had proved most disturbing to the public mind in Japan. Their effect was simply to increase the pressure on the Japanese Government to hasten and augment their own preparations to defend the sphere in which Japan had a vital interest. He made a strong plea for the adoption of a calm and unprovocative attitude on the part of all concerned in handling the present delicate situation, promising to do his best in this direction if the British authorities would do their part. I explained that our authorities in Malaya had to think of the morale of the local population, which might well be affected by Japan's steady advance towards our frontiers were it not for public assurances that all necessary measures had been taken for the defense of British territory. Nevertheless I shared the opinion expressed by His Excellency that in such matters "silence is golden" and promised to impart his representations on this point to you.

GREW.

HSM

[14190-G]

Corrected Copy

TK

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone. (A). Tokyo via Shanghai and N. R. Dated August 14, 1941. Rec'd 10:50 a. m., 17th.

SECRETARY OF STATE, Washington.

1235, August 14, 3 p. m., (Section Four).

Three. I then reverted to the signs of Japanese pressure on Thailand, quoting reports of concentration of Japanese troops along the Thai border and giving him recent examples of mendacious Japanese press attacks and allegations against us. His Excellency replied that only quite weak Japanese units had proceeded to the Thai frontier and that I would be surprised if I knew how small was the Japanese force which had landed in Indochina. (I abstained from asking for figures for fear of a request referring to our strength along Thai frontier).

Four. A long conversation then ensued on the economic position as regards Thailand, particularly as regards rice, rubber, and other materials which it was now more vital than ever for Japan to secure from that country. His Excellency observed that Netherlands East Indies under British influence had [14190-H] decided to join in the freezing of Japanese assets, with the result that it is now more than ever essential for Japan to satisfy her urgent needs in such markets as were open to her. Japanese-Thai trade had recently showed a natural tendency to increase owing to the difficulties of trade with third powers and the Japanese Government felt that they had a serious grievance against us for our attempts to induce Thailand to stop the export to Japan of even such a vital foodstuff as rice. I was able to show that in this respect His Excellency was laboring under a complete misapprehension, adding, however, that we were equally determined that our own right to purchase reasonable supplies of rice, rubber, et cetera, in Thailand, should not be interfered with by Japanese agencies. On His Excellency's charge that the surest way to ease the economic situation as regards Thailand would be to induce the Netherlands East Indies to lessen the restrictions on exports to Japan, I suggested that he was putting the cart before the horse and that the allaying of British and Netherlands East Indies apprehensions in regard to Japan's intentions in Thai

GREW.

CSB

[14190-I]

TELEGRAM RECEIVED

LET

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone. (A). Tokyo via Shanghai and N. R. Dated August 16, 1941. Rec'd. 10 a.m., 18th.

SECRETARY OF STATE, Washington.

1235, August 16, 3 p.m. (Section five).

should be the prelude to any overhauling of the economic restrictions imposed in the Netherlands East Indies or elsewhere.

Five. I took the opportunity to say that the main point of our economic restrictions on trade with Japan was, I believed, to bring home to the Japanese Government the fact that in our view Japan's successive southward advances had now reached a point at which words and protests were useless and deeds were necessary to bring it home to the Japanese Government and public how close they were to the danger zone. In denying that Netherlands East Indies action in this matter had been due to British pressure or influence I said that I assumed that the above considerations had also weighed with the Netherlands East Indies Government who must feel themselves threatened equally with us by the Japanese action in Indochina. I did not need to inform His [14190-J] Excellency that the lifeline of our communications with Australia and New Zealand ran through the Netherlands East Indies thus creating a common problem of defense. When he inquired "defense whom" and I replied "against Japan" His Excellency merely smiled and shook his head.

Six. In conclusion we agreed that the main difficulty lay in the suspicions which each power entertained of the intentions of the other, though I did not fail to ridicule the apprehensions of a power which had been steadily advancing southwards until it had reached a point 1500 miles from Tokyo. Minister for Foreign Affairs reasserted that this advance was necessitated solely by Japan's determination to bring her war with China to a successful conclusion and he could only regret our apparent inability to accept his formal assurances that the advance into South Indochina was neither directed against us nor connoted any Japanese intention of attacking Thailand. We also agreed that our conversation might have been useful as tending to dissipate unnecessary misunderstandings and that it would be desirable to have similar frank discussions from time to time.

Seven. While apologizing for the length of this telegram I am anxious to convey to you as correct an [14190-K] impression as I can of the character and views of the new Minister for Foreign Affairs. The conversation lasted for an hour and a half and touched on many subsidiary points which were useful for our mutual understanding though perhaps unnecessary to report by telegram".

Sent Department, via air, mail to Shanghai.
(End of message.)

GEW.

GW.

[14191] Mr. MORGAN. At various places throughout the transcript requests have been made for information with respect to "water-tight integrity of major vessels" located at Pearl Harbor. In order to bring together at one place all communications relating to this matter, we would like to have spread on the record at this time the following communications from the Navy Department:

11 December 1945.

Another one dated 11 December, 1945.

One dated 3 January 1946.

And a final memorandum dated 29 January 1946.

This will enable us to have at one place all of the communications with respect to the condition of "water-tight integrity of major vessels."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. They will be spread on the record at this point.

(The communications referred to follow:)

[14192]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY,
Washington, 11 December 1945

Memorandum to: Mr. William D. Mitchell.

1. With further reference to my memorandum to you dated 11 December 1945 the subject of which was "Conditions of water-tight integrity of major vessels", there is attached hereto a table¹ showing the scheduled inspection of ships at Pearl Harbor during October, November and December 1941. It will be noted that this table does not contain all of the ships which were at Pearl Harbor on December 7; the explanation for this is, the ships which are not shown were not scheduled for inspection during the period October-December 1941.

5348 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

/s/ John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lt. Comdr., USNR.

[14193]
R-#16

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY
Washington, 11 December 1945

Memorandum:

To: William D. Mitchell.

Subject: Condition of water-tight integrity of major vessels.

1. Pursuant to your request concerning the above matter, the following information has been obtained and is submitted.²

(a) An examination of the logs and records of the major vessels at Pearl Harbor indicates that only one vessel did not have an equivalent of the condition "all water-tight openings below the third deck closed" at the time of the attack. That vessel, the USS California, had ten inner and outboard voids open for maintenance work. Its remaining water-tight openings below the third deck were closed.

(b) The logs of the USS Oklahoma and USS Arizona were destroyed. However information has been obtained through Commander Fuqua, the Damage Control Officer of the Arizona, that on his ship all water-tight doors below the third deck were closed. This was also the condition that prevailed in the USS Oklahoma, according to information stated by the Commanding Officer of that ship.

[14194] (c) Material conditions of readiness referred to as conditions "Baker" or "X-ray" or "Yoke" are higher than the minimum. The minimum requirements are considered to be those prescribed by Navy Regulations, that is, that all water-tight openings below the third deck be closed from 1600 to 0800.

(d) According to the best available analysis in the Navy Department, the USS California is the only ship that might have been saved from sinking by the closing of manhole covers that had been left open for maintenance.

(e) The USS Pennsylvania was in dry dock and is not included within the above general statement concerning the conditions of water-tight integrity that prevailed at that time.

2. If more specific and detailed information on these matters is desired, an attempt will be made to locate and have present necessary witnesses.

/s/ John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lt. Comdr. USNR.

[14195]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington 3, January 1945²

Memorandum:

To: Mr. William D. Mitchell

1. With reference to your memorandum of 11 December 1945 referring to the memorandum to you of the same date from Lt. Comdr. John F. Baecher entitled "Conditions of Water-tight Integrity of Major Vessels," it is believed that the further memorandum to you from Lt. Comdr. Baecher of the same date (11 December 1945) with enclosure "Compilation of Inspection Schedules Applicable to Vessels Present at Pearl Harbor 7 December 1941," together with the first mentioned memorandum constitutes the desired response to the inquiry concerning the "inspection" charge."

¹ The table referred to appears in Hearings, Part 4, p. 1678.

² See Hearings, Part 6, pp. 2675-2676.

2. There has also been compiled a statement dated 20 December 1945 from the logs of the various ships of inspection that occurred on 5 and 6 December 1941. A copy of this compilation is enclosed herewith since it bears on the same question.

3. With reference to the inquiry concerning the names of persons from the various ships "who could testify about each vessel," it is believed that the best witnesses would be the Senior Surviving Officer from each vessel along [14196] with that ship's Damage Control Officer. In addition to those officers, the names of whom are listed on the "Report of Senior Surviving Officers and Damage Control Officers," also enclosed herewith, Captain Leslie A. Kniskern, attached to the Bureau of Ships, Navy Department, Washington, D. C., who made a study and analyzed the damage to vessels at Pearl Harbor, may have something to contribute in the way of testimony, if the same is desired. Many of these prospective witnesses are located at points far distant from Washington and none of them have as yet been interviewed since the scope of any preliminary interview has not yet been determined.

4. It will be appreciated if you will give advance notice in the event you desire to call any of these individuals as witnesses, or if you desire them to be preliminarily interviewed by the Navy representatives.

/s/ John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHE
Lt. Comdr, USNR.

A. Arizona

1. SSO: Ellis H. Geiselman, Capt., USN.
2. DCO: Samuel G. Fuqua, Capt., USN.

B. California

1. SSO: Joel W. Bunkley, R. Adm., USN.
2. DCO: Marion N. Little, Capt., USN.

[14197] C. Maryland

1. SSO: John M. Haines, Capt., USN.
2. DCO: Wm. S. G. Davis, Capt., USN.

D. Nevada

1. SSO: Francis W. Scanland, Commodore, USN.
2. DCO: George C. Miller, Capt., USN.

E. Oklahoma

1. SSO: Thomas D. Cullins, Capt., USN.
2. DCO: W. M. Hobby, Lt. Comdr., USN.

F. Pennsylvania

1. SSO: C. M. Cooke, Jr., Vice Admiral, USN.
2. DCO: Wm. E. Stock, Comdr., USN.

G. Tennessee

1. SSO: Charles E. Reordan, Capt., USN.
- *2 Ass't. DCO: Robert R. Moore, Comdr., USN (Ret.)

H. West Virginia

1. SSO: R. H. Hillenkoetter, Capt., USN.
2. DCO: J. S. Harper, Capt., USN.

* DCO deceased.

20 December 1945.

Inspections made on U. S. Battleships which were at Pearl Harbor on 7 Dec. 1941. These inspections occurred on 5 or 6 Dec. 1941 as designated.*

[14198] USS Arizona

No log received for Dec. 1941.

USS California

5 Dec. 1941

1149 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

6 Dec. 1941

1020 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

Made monthly inspection of all indices of smokeless powder on board; conditions normal.

*See Hearings, Part 3, p. 2677.

5350 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

USS Maryland

5 Dec. 1941

0710 Food inspection.

6 Dec. 1941

0800 Made daily visual examination of all smokeless powder samples, violet paper, and test for local heating of magazines on board ship; conditions normal.

1330 By order of the Commanding Officer, Lt. (jg) Nelson H. Randall, C-V(S) USNR, was suspended from duty for a period of five days from and including this date for improper performance of duty as Communication Watch Officer failing to deliver a despatch to the Commander Battleships Battle Force. The Commanding Officer further ordered that, due to the exigencies of the service [14199] Lt. (jg) Randall is restored to duty for the duration of the Annual Military Inspection and Damage Control Practice of this vessel on December 8, 1941 and December 9, 1941.

USS Nevada

5 Dec 1941

No inspections.

6 Dec 1941

0705 Food inspection.

0900 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

USS Oklahoma

No log received for Dec 1941.

USS Pennsylvania

5 Dec 1941

0800 Food inspection.

1150 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

6 Dec. 1941

0833 Landing force left the ship to be inspected by Commander Battleship Division TWO. 1045 Landing force returned.

USS Pennsylvania

6 Dec 1941

1155 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

[14200] USS Tennessee

5 Dec. 1941

1010 Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

1445 Secured boiler number 8 after having conducted tests on safety valves.

6 Dec 1941

0745 Commenced embarking Landing Force for Annual Military Inspection.

1130 Landing Force returned aboard. Made daily inspection of magazines and smokeless powder samples; conditions normal.

USS West Virginia

No log received for Dec 1941.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, 29 January 1946

R #16

Memorandum:

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

1. In response to the suggestion in the Record of Proceedings page 7236 that the Navy would make a further check in respect of the logs of certain battleships that were at Pearl Harbor concerning water-tight integrity, it is thought advisable to first refer to the several memoranda previously [14201] forwarded counsel on that subject.

Three previous memoranda with enclosures on this subject have been forwarded to counsel, two being dated 11 December 1945 and one 3 January 1946. The enclosures were dated October, November and December 1941 and 20 December 1945.

2. One of the 11 December 1945 memoranda forwarded as an enclosure a table showing the schedules of inspections of ships at Pearl Harbor during October, November and December 1941. This memorandum was referred to in the Record of Proceedings at pages 4436-4439 and the enclosure became Exhibit #69 your investigation.

The second memorandum dated 11 December 1945 referred to information which had been obtained regarding water-tight integrity of major vessels, including that only one vessel, the U S S California, might have been saved from sinking if certain manhole covers had not been left open for maintenance work. This memorandum was quoted in the Record of Proceedings at pages 7233-7235, and the enclosure at pages 7237-7239.

It is noted that the memorandum of Mr. William D. Mitchell to Admiral Colclough dated 11 December 1945 which is quoted in the Record of Proceedings at page 7235, referred to only one of the two Navy Department memoranda to him of that date, and dealt with the question of the names of prospective [14202] witnesses concerning the "inspection charge". This memorandum of Mr. Mitchell was a response to one of the Navy memoranda of 11 December 1945, quoted in the Record of Proceedings at pages 7234-7235, in which the Navy had previously volunteered to furnish the names of witnesses if such were desired by the committee or counsel, and it did not refer to the other Navy memorandum of 11 December bearing on the "inspection charge".

The Navy memorandum of 3 January 1946 referred to the Navy memoranda of 11 December 1945, and enclosed a statement of mention in the logs of the major vessels at Pearl Harbor of inspections on 5 and 6 December 1941 and also a list as prospective witnesses of the names of Senior Surviving Officers and Damage Control Officers of the several major ships sunk or damaged at Pearl Harbor.

A perusal of the Record of Proceedings does not disclose that the Navy memoranda of 11 December 1945 forwarding the schedule of inspections which became your Exhibit #69, or the Navy memoranda of 3 January 1946, or the list of prospective witnesses enclosed therewith in response to the memorandum of Mr. Mitchell printed in the Record of Proceedings at page 7235, have been incorporated in the record. Such incorporation may be appropriate in order to make the record complete.

3.* With respect to the further check to be made by the Navy referred to in the Record of Proceedings at page 7236, [14203] and supplementing the 20 December 1945 enclosure forwarded with the memorandum of 3 January 1946, the logs of the USS California, Maryland, Nevada and Tennessee have been examined for any record of any inspections, and for any references concerning water-tight integrity precedent to or in preparation for any inspections on 5, 6, and 7 December 1941, with negative results.

/s/ John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHER
Lieutenant Commander, USNR

[14204] Mr. MORGAN. We have a communication from Commander Baecher dated April 8, 1946, directed to Mr. Richardson, as follows:

Washington, 8 April 1946.

Memorandum:

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. In response to your request for the information, official notification to the Navy Department of the air raid on Pearl Harbor was received by Radio Washington from Radio Honolulu at 1850 GCT (1350 EST), 7 December 1941, by dispatch as follows:

NPM 1516

A0F2 1830 0F3

FROM CINCPAC

ACTION CINCLANT CINCAF OPNAV

AIR RAID ON PEARL HARBOR X THIS IS NOT DRILL

2. At 1930 GCT (1430 EST), 7 December 1941, an ALNAV message was sent by the Secretary of the Navy to all ships and stations reading "Execute WPL-46 against Japan."

/S/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR."

*See Hearings, Part 3, p. 2676.

5352 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14205] Mr. MORGAN. We have a further communication from the War Department with respect to reels of microfilm received from General MacArthur's headquarters, and we ask that this communication, dated 28 February 1946 be spread on the record.

(The communication referred to follows:)

[14206]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ROOM 4D757, THE PENTAGON,
Washington, D. C., 28 February 1946

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

In addition to the 12 reels of microfilm previously received from General MacArthur's headquarters (see Committee transcript pages 7874 and 13,062), there have now been received two more reels containing material from the Japanese file on United States-Japanese negotiations prior to the Pearl Harbor attack. From an examination by qualified Japanese linguists, it appears that of the 80 items in these two reels all were intercepted by the United States at the time of transmission in 1941, except the following:

1. A message from Berlin to Tokyo dated 22 May 1941, giving the substance of an article published in Pravda.
2. A message from New York to Tokyo dated 10 July 1941, giving the substance of an article published in Newsweek.
3. A message from Rome to Tokyo dated 15 September 1941, giving the substance of two United Press dispatches.
4. A message from London to Tokyo dated 19 May [14207] 1941, giving the substance of an article published in the Telegraph and Mail.
5. A memorandum related to the "draft" submitted by Ambassador Nomura to the Secretary of State on 12 May 1941. The draft itself appears at page 420 of Volume 2 of Foreign Relations.

Although none of the above items would appear to be helpful to the Committee, the War Department will of course furnish them if the Committee so requests.

/s/ Harmon Duncombe
HARMON DUNCOMBE
Lt. Colonel, GSC

[14208] Mr. MORGAN. Pursuant to a request made by Senator Ferguson at page 522 of the record we have the following pertinent portion from a communication received from the Navy Department dated April 5, 1946:

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Page 522), which is referred to in Item 4 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, there is forwarded herewith a copy of the document containing information of the Japanese plans leading up to the attack on Pearl Harbor based on information obtain subsequent to 7 December 1941, that was presented to the Secretary of State, the Honorable James F. Byrnes, during the latter part of October.

We request at this point that the entire memorandum be spread on the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be so spread on the record.

(The memorandum referred to follows:)

[14209]

RECONSTRUCTION OF JAPANESE PLANS LEADING UP TO THE ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR.

(BASED UPON INFORMATION OBTAINED SUBSEQUENT TO 7 DECEMBER 1941)

The following summarization has been prepared on the basis of reliable information obtained from various sources subsequent to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Although this summary does not represent a resume of Japanese Combined Fleet Operation Order No. 1, it will be apparent that heavy reliance has nevertheless been placed upon that document, a translation of which is submitted under separate cover.

The Japanese Naval High Command completed preparations during the summer and fall of 1941 to carry out a projected 2-phase plan of conquest and consolidation in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre. The essence of the plan lay in the element of surprise in a sudden attack which at one fell swoop would cripple the major potential opposition—the American Fleet maintained at Pearl Harbor. Following the crippling of this opposition weapon, coincident with the seizure and occupation of land masses desired for the economic, political, and military reasons that together determined the borders of the Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere, Phase 1 of the campaign would be completed, and Phase 2—the consolidation of these gains by the seizure or neutralization of outer areas, together with the continued attrition of the enemy forces and his lines of [14210] supply—could be carried out to ensure the permanence of the new Empire.

The Japanese fleet, which had been in training over a period of years for combat fleet operations, was in a state of readiness by the summer of 1941. By late August of 1941, there is evidence based on information believed to be reliable, that the Commander in Chief of the Combined Fleet ordered all fleet commanders and their key staff members to Tokyo for war games* preparatory to a final formulation of operation plans. The final games reportedly got underway on 2 September 1941, with most of the high ranking officers participating on one of the three teams that were organized: the "N" (Nippon) Team, "A" (America) Team, and "E" (England) Team.

During the afternoon of 3 September, 50 copies of an outline of conditions under which the games were to be held were prepared and contained the heart of Operation Order No. 1. These plans must have been under development for several months, as extensive preliminary planning was indicated.

On 5 September, it is known that Pearl Harbor plans were under discussion and the Japs apparently expected to catch all major U. S. Fleet units in the Pacific in Pearl Harbor, as well as units which they believed were recently transferred from the Atlantic. "N" Team expected to lose one-third of the units participating in the attack on Hawaii and one Akagi-class [14211] aircraft carrier and one Soryu-class aircraft carrier were estimated as sunk.

On 6 and 7 September, "N" Team debated the best means of assaulting Pearl Harbor. Captain Kurojima (Deputy Chief of Staff) and Rear Admiral Ito (Chief of Staff) differed as to the practicability of conducting an amphibious assault on Hawaii. Ito was in favor of an early landing but Kurojima won the discussion by pointing out insuperable logistic problems.

These early sessions apparently were confined primarily to two general problems: first, the details for a surprise raid on Pearl Harbor; and second, a schedule for occupying, Malaya, Burma, N. E. I., the Philippines, the Solomons, and Central Pacific Islands, including Hawaii. The conferences and games were ended about 13 September. At the end of September, the Main Body of the Jap Fleet moved to Saeki and four revisions of Combined Fleet Operation Order No. 1 were made while Nagato (Flagship) was at Saeki, although no major changes are indicated.

The actual operation plan itself—Combined Fleet Top Secret Operation Order No. 1—has since been recovered and is reproduced in its entirety under separate cover. The objectives of the campaign strategy, the outline and sequence of operations planned, and the organization of the naval forces allotted to each phase of the operations were set forth in the Operation Order, and are analyzed below.

[14212] Objectives:

The general aims of the entire campaign were predicated on the desires for military conquest and security, and enhancement of the Empire by the occupation of areas rich in natural resources:

"1. In the east, the American Fleet will be destroyed and American lines of operation and supply lines to the Orient will be cut.

"2. In the west, British Malaya will be occupied and British lines of operation and supply lines to the Orient, as well as the Burma Road, will be cut.

"3. Enemy forces in the Orient will be destroyed, bases of operations will be seized, and areas with natural resources will be occupied.

"4. Strategic areas will be seized and developed; defenses will be strengthened in order to establish a durable basis for operations.

"5. Enemy forces will be intercepted and annihilated.

"6. Victories will be exploited to break the enemy's will to fight."

Outline of operations:

For the accomplishment of the objectives stated above, it was contemplated that operations would be carried out in two phases—the First Phase, comprising conquest of the American Fleet and occupation of areas desired, in large part, [14213] for economic reasons (the Philippines, British Malaya, Netherlands East Indies); the Second Phase, comprising consolidation of these gains by mopping-up operations, establishment of advance bases for defense of the occupied territory, and the continued attrition of enemy forces and lines of communication. The conquest or neutralization of areas deemed of strategic importance primarily from the point of view of military security was to occur during the Second Phase, no definite plan being provided initially for the chronology of those operations. Apparently both the precise timing of that portion of the campaign and the determination of which of these strategic areas (listed as Eastern New Guinea, New Britain, Fiji, Samoa; Aleutians and Midway; Andaman Islands, strategic points in the Australia Area) would be seized and which merely neutralized, were problem to be worked out in detail following the completion of the occupation of the areas desired for their economic value as integral portions of the new Co-Prosperity Sphere, and to be solved "as quickly as operational conditions permit."

* See Appendix 1.

A. Occupation: "First Phase Operations":

Basically, at this initial stage of the war, the Imperial Navy had four missions to fulfill:

- [14214] (i) The destruction of the American Fleet in the Hawaiian area.
- (ii) The maintenance and extension of control over the Central and South Pacific, to deny these waters to any force which might menace the flank of the forces driving southward.
- (iii) The support of army invasion of the Philippines-N. E. I.-Southeast Asiatic areas and the destruction of Allied naval forces therein.
- (iv) The protection of the North, both against thrusts by the United States from the Aleutians and also against a possible attack by the U. S. S. R.

Aside from the considerably inferior air power and the relatively few scattered surface fleet units possessed by the Allies in the Asiatic-N. E. I. area, the only obstacle of consequence was the American Fleet and air-power based at Hawaii. While Japanese land-based air and surface task groups could suffice to support the amphibious landings in the Philippines-N. E. I.-Asiatic area, a major Japanese task force, built around a carrier striking group, was essential to conduct a surprise attack on the American Fleet. Accordingly, the following general allocation of Japanese forces* was planned for the first Phase operations.

(i) For the Pearl Harbor Attack:

[14215] The Striking Force under the Commander in Chief, 1st Air Fleet, comprising 2 fast battleships, 6 first-line carriers (with a maximum of 400 planes of all types), 2 heavy cruisers, 1 light cruiser, and 16 destroyers plus.

The Advance Expeditionary Force under the Commander in Chief, 6th Fleet, comprising 1 training cruiser, 2 light cruisers, 20 fleet submarines, and 5 midget submarines.

(ii) For the Invasion of Wake and Guam (and of Rabaul if conditions warranted):

The South Seas Force under the Commander in Chief, 4th Fleet, comprising 4 heavy cruisers, 3 light cruisers, 1 training cruiser, 12 destroyers, 16 submarines.

(iii) For the Invasion of the Philippines-N. E. I.-Malaya:

The Southern Force under the Commander in Chief, 2nd Fleet, comprising 2 battleships, 2 small aircraft carriers, 11 heavy cruisers, 7 light cruisers, 52 destroyers, 16 submarines.

(iv) For the protection of the High North:

The Northern Force, under the Commander in Chief, 5th Fleet, comprising 1 heavy cruiser, 2 light cruisers, 2 destroyers.

(v) In Reserve:

The Main Body under the Commander in Chief, Combined Fleet, comprising 6 battleships, 2 light cruisers, 8 destroyers.

The operations of these forces during the First Phase were to be divided into three periods:

(a) First Period Operations:

Operations from the outbreak of war until the main body of the invasion army had been landed in the Philippines. To end about X plus 20.

(b) Second Period Operations:

Operations after (a) and until the main body of the invasion army had been landed in British Malaya. To end about X plus 40.

* See Appendix 2 for allocation of Japanese Task Forces.

(c) Third Period Operations:

Operations after (a) and until the completion of the occupation of the Netherlands East Indies.

(1) Central Pacific Operations:

(a) Attack on Pearl Harbor—Assumptions by the High Command:

It is clear from a study of the operation plans that the Japanese High Command made the following assumptions about the American Fleet:

(a) That the main body of the United States Pacific Fleet would be at anchor within Pearl Harbor, or at least in [14217] the Hawaiian area.

(b) That a fast carrier force could be moved from the Empire across the Pacific to the north of Midway, within striking distance of the main islands of the Hawaiian group without undue risk of detection by American defensive reconnaissance.

(c) That should assumption (a) or (b) be in error, a reserve group of heavy units could sortle from the Inland Sea to give support to the carrier striking force in a decisive engagement against the American Fleet. The other task forces of the Japanese Fleet—the Southern Area Force, Northern Area Force, South Seas Force—would also be available. Implicit in the plan is the assumption that in the event of such an engagement, the combined strength of the bulk of the Japanese major fleet units could defeat the American Fleet.

(d) That a powerful carrier air strike directed against the American forces based in Hawaii could, if tactical surprise were effected, achieve the strategic result of crippling the American Fleet, and the tactical result of destroying the American land-based air to permit the Japanese striking force to withdraw without damage. While the latter assumption does not appear explicitly in the copy of the Japanese Combined Fleet Operation Order No. 1 recovered in the Philippines, it is logically implicit in the plan, and probably was a feature of the specific Operation Order issued by the Striking Force [14218] Commander. The seizure of air superiority is part of the classic Japanese naval doctrine.

The four assumptions outlined above were well grounded. An espionage network in the Hawaiian Islands, together with uninterdicted cable communications between Hawaii and Japan undoubtedly aided the Japanese in establishing their basic hypothesis—namely, that the bulk of the American Pacific Fleet would be waiting at anchor at Pearl Harbor at the time of their surprise attack. The feasibility of a surprise attack prior to a declaration of war was, of course, borne out by events.

(i) Diplomatic Deception:

The operation plan providing for the outbreak of war and the attack on Pearl Harbor was published on 5 November 1941 as Combined Fleet Top Secret Operation Order No. 1, and Y day (8 December, Japanese time) was set in Combined Fleet Top Secret Operation Order No. 2 on 7 November 1941. At the same time, the Japanese envoy Mr. Kurusu was en route to Washington to join the Japanese Ambassador in conducting conversations with the American Government. On 7 November—the date that Y day was set—a “leading Japanese and reliable informant” visited the American Ambassador in Japan reportedly at the request of Foreign Minister Togo and urged repeatedly that, whether or not Japanese concessions were deemed inadequate by the United States, it was “of the highest importance [14219] that the Washington conversations be continued and not permitted to break down.” These conversations were continued throughout November and until the actual launching of the surprise attack. While it is true that Operation Order No. 2, setting Y Day, was not sufficient by itself to effect the launching of the attack on that day, it was sufficient to despatch the various Japanese task forces to their scheduled pre-invasion rendezvous points (Takan Bay in the Kuriles for the Pearl Harbor Striking Force; Mako in the Pescadores for the main body of the Philippines Force, etc.) and have the Fleet complete its basic preparations for an attack on that day. And it seems evident, from a study of such available subsidiary orders as were issued during November 1941 by certain of the task forces involved in the plan, that the supplementary orders that were to cause the task forces to move forward to their attack positions and were to specify precisely the time for the outbreak of war, were to be issued almost as inevitable concomitants of the initial decision embodied in Operation Orders Nos. 1 and 2. While a radical change in the diplomatic situation might have caused the plan to be abandoned, it seems probable that nothing short of complete American acceptance of the Japanese terms in their note of 20 November 1941 would have been regarded as sufficient to cancel the plans already set in motion. In any event, the continuation of diplomatic negotiations by the Japanese after their task forces were already [14220] en route to their final goals must be deemed nothing short of deception.

(ii) Radio Silence:

The Striking Force, as it moved north to the sortie point in the Kuriles, and thence, to the eastern Pacific, was operating under strict injunctions to maintain radio silence to help assure the secrecy of its movement and mission.

(iii) Radio Deception:

The 1st Combined Communications Unit was directed to maintain deceptive traffic to simulate the presence of the main strength of the Japanese Fleet in the Inland Sea. At the same time, the early December movements of the Japanese units en route to the south were not conducted under complete radio silence—possibly because the element of surprise for that part of the campaign could not be preserved by silence since Allied visual observations could be made of those movements and possibly because of the belief that the ability of Allied intelligence to trace the southward movements of the Southern Force, and only those movements, would further bolster the effectiveness of the strategic surprise desired for the operations of the Striking Force.

Composition of the Forces Attacking Pearl Harbor:

Striking Force

Commanding Officer: Commander in Chief, 1st Air Fleet—Vice Admiral Chui-chi Nagumo.

Battleship Division #3 (1st section) (Hiei, Kirishima), 2 battleships.

Carrier Division #1 (Kaga, Kagi).

Carrier Division #2 (Hiryu, Soryu)

Carrier Division #5 (Shokaku, Zuikaku), 6 aircraft carriers.

Cruiser Division #8 (Tone, Chikuma), 2 heavy cruisers.

Destroyer Squadron 1 (Abukuma, 4 destroyer divisions) 1 light cruiser; 16 destroyers, plus 11 train vessels.

Advance Expeditionary Fleet

Commanding Officer: Commander in Chief, 6th Fleet—Vice Admiral Mitsumi Shimizu. Isuzu, Yura), 2 light cruisers; (Katori), 1 training cruiser; I-class submarines (including Submarine Squadrons #1, #2, #3: (I-1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22-24, 68, 69, 74), 20 submarines. Midget submarines, 5 midget submarines, plus 6 train vessels.

Execution of the Operation:

The Striking Force assembled at Takan Bay in Etorofu Island (Kuriles) during late November 1941, and sortied for [14222] the attack on or about 27 November, following a course to the eastward and then southward, as indicated on the captured track chart appended (see Appendix 3). Of the 11 train vessels allotted in the Operation Plan, reliable information suggests that only 3 tankers and 1 supply ship actually accompanied the Force. Apparently also, 3 submarines of the Advance Expeditionary Force (submarine fleet) accompanied the Striking Force—the other submarines having proceeded from the Inland Sea independently of the Striking Force. During the fast voyage to their destination 200 miles due north of Oahu, the vessels of the carrier force were kept fueled successfully, albeit with considerable difficulty in many cases. Upon arrival at their destination, about 200 miles due north of Oahu, the carriers launched their aircraft, which rendezvoused further south and then flew in for a coordinated attack. Three waves of these carrier aircraft were employed, commencing at 0747 and ending at 0936, local time; the first attack was on various airfields, followed by attacks on the warships in Pearl Harbor. Following the successful completion of these surprise attacks, the carrier force withdrew to the Empire, taking a circuitous route to Hashirajima and arriving on 23 December. En route, Carrier Division #2 (Hiryu, Soryu) and Cruiser Division #8 (Tone, Chikuma) were detached as a small reinforcement group for the Wake Island operation. Losses sustained by the Striking Force during the Hawaiian operation reportedly [14223] totalled 29 aircraft.

Until the completion of the surprise attack on Hawaii by the Striking Force, the "Advance Expeditionary Force" of submarines was under the command of the Striking Force Commander. The precise movements of the participating submarines prior to the actual attack are not clear, although some information suggests that the bulk of those units left the Empire in late November. So far as is known, the functions allotted the submarines in Operation Order No. 1 were carried out as planned, viz:

(a) Until X-3, submarines were to reconnoiter important points in the Aleutians, Samoa, Fiji, and Tutulla, and were to observe and report on any powerful American forces discovered.

(b) One element was to patrol along the route of the Striking Force in advance of the movement of that Force—ensure the undetected approach of the carrier group to its destination.

(c) Until X-5, the remaining submarines were to surround Hawaii at extreme range while one element approached and reconnoitered without being observed.

(d) On X day, the function of the submarines would be to "observe and attack the American Fleet in the Hawaii Area; make a surprise attack on the channel leading into Pearl Harbor [14224] and attempt to close it; if the enemy moves out to fight he will be pursued and attacked."

Prior to the attack on X Day, the force of I-class submarines took up scouting positions in several allotted patrol sectors covering the waters in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor, while the 5 midget submarines were launched as a Special Attack Force to conduct an offensive attack against American warships within the Harbor and to prevent the escape of the fleet through the Harbor entrances during the scheduled aerial strike. Available data indicates that only one of the five subs penetrated into the Harbor; none of the five inflicted any damage on American units, and none of the five rejoined the Japanese Fleet. American naval units accounted for 3, possibly 4, of the total, and the 5th beached itself at Oahu.

During and after the attack, submarines outside of the Harbor area remained on patrol to oppose any possible sortie of American warships. The following is a translation of an extract from the "Report of the I-69's Operations off Pearl Harbor, 8-10 December 1941" (Tokyo time), written by the Commanding Officer of the I-69 (flagship of Submarine Division 12) and presents a picture of the operation as experienced by one of the Japanese units on patrol:

"During daylight on December 8 (December 7 Honolulu time), the I-69 was cruising submerged, engaged in surveillance in Scouting Sector D (about 17 miles southwest of Pearl [14225] Harbor). Immediately after the attack upon the enemy by the Striking Force and the Special Attack Force, we were able to hear easily, by means of submarine sound detectors, explosions of bombs and torpedoes, and upon hearing the sound of depth charges, I judged that the Special Attack Force was engaged in heavy fighting.

"At 1400 radio orders from the Commander of Submarine Forces were received, assigning the I-69 to a surveillance in the central sector of E Inner Scouting Area (a circle with a radius of 8.5 nautical miles, with Pearl Harbor as the center). The orders further specified the annihilation of the remaining enemy forces.

"After sunset we surfaced, in an attempt to assist as much as possible, but during the night we sighted five destroyers. While submerging, we received a close-range depth-charge attack----- At 0015 on the 9th (Tokyo time) we surfaced, making certain that no enemy patrol boats were within close range. On a course obliquely to the west, and at battle speed, we hurriedly recharged batteries.

"We sighted 2 patrol vessels on our port quarter and beam respectively, each about 5 kilometers away, and in about 30 minutes we reversed course. Pearl Harbor shone red in the sky, like a thing afire. It was already dawn."

In the post-attack phase, the I-class submarines maintained their patrols for some time, and at least one of the [14226] group—the I-7—launched its aircraft to conduct a reconnaissance of Pearl Harbor to ascertain the status of the American fleet and installations. The operation plan had provided, in the event of the virtual destruction of the American Fleet at Pearl, that one Submarine Division or less would be placed between Hawaii and North America to destroy sea traffic and in fact at least one submarine—the I-17—was despatched for the Oregon coast about 14 December.

5358 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14227]

APPENDIX 1.

Naval general staff	Rank	Official duties
Umpires
Nagano, Osami.....	Admiral.....	Head of First Section (War Planes and Operations).
Fukutome, Shigeru.....	Rear Admiral.....
Uozumi, Jisaku.....	Captain.....	Member First Section.
Yamamoto, Chikao.....	Captain.....	Head of Sub-Section, First Section.
Mayuzumi, Harue.....	Commander.....	Member Sub-Section, First Section.
Tamura, Saburo.....	Commander.....	Member Sub-Section, First Section.
Sanagi, Tsuyoshi.....	Commander.....	Member Sub-Section, First Section.
Uozumi, Yorichi.....	Commander.....	Member Sub-Section, First Section.
Navy Ministry
Takata, Toshitane.....	Captain.....	Member of Military Affairs Bureau.
Shiki, Tsuneo.....	Commander.....	Member of Military Affairs Bureau.
Toibata, Kurie.....	Commander.....	Member of Office of Military Supply.
[14228] Fujii, Shigeru.....	Commander.....	Private Secretary to Navy Minister (Admiral Shimada, Shigetaro).
N-Team—Combined Fleet
Yamamoto, Isoroku.....	Admiral.....	CinC Combined Fleet.
Ito, Swiichi.....	Rear Admiral.....	Chief of Staff.
Kurojima, Kameto.....	Captain.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.
Goto, Shigeru.....	Commander.....	Staff Adjutant.
Isobe, Taro.....	Commander.....	Staff Engineering Officer.
Sugi, Toma.....	Commander.....	Staff Gunner Officer.
Sasaki, Akira.....	Commander.....	Staff Air Officer.
Wada, Yushiro.....	Commander.....	Staff Communication Officer.
Nagata, Shigeru.....	Commander.....	Staff Navigation Officer.
Watanabe, Yasuji.....	Commander.....	Staff Operations and Plans Officer.
Arima, Takayasu.....	Commander.....	Staff Torpedo Officer.
Seimi, Ichiyoshi.....	Commander.....	Staff Supply Officer.
Ota, Kanai.....	Commander.....	Meteorologist Attached to Staff.
1st Combined Communications Unit (Radio Intelligence)
Kakimoto, Gonichiro.....	Rear Admiral.....	Commander.
Arisawa, Naosada.....	Commander.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.
E-Team—Second Fleet
[14229] Kondo, Nobutake.....	Admiral.....	Commander.
Yanagizawa, Kuranosuke.....	Captain.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.
Oishi, Tamotsu.....	Commander.....	Staff Navigation Officer
Fourth Fleet
Inoue, Semi.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Fifth Fleet
Hosogaya, Boshiro.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Eleventh Air Fleet
Tsukahara, Nishizo.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Kusaka, Jinichi.....	Rear Admiral.....	Chief of Staff.
A-TEAM—Third Fleet (Amphibious Forces for Southern Invasions)
Takahashi, Ibo.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Ishihara, Majime.....	Captain.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.
Sixth Fleet
Shimizu, Mitsumi.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Kanoaka, Tomojiro.....	Captain.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.
First Air Fleet (Carrier Fleet)
Nagumo, Chuichi.....	Vice Admiral.....	Commander.
Kusaka, Ryunosuke.....	Rear Admiral.....	Chief of Staff.
Genda, Minoru.....	Commander.....	Deputy Chief of Staff.

[14230]

APPENDIX 2

Japanese Task Forces

Main Body (Commander in Chief Combined Fleet) (Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto) ; (6 Battleships, 2 Light Cruisers, 8 Destroyers) ; Battleship Division #1 (2 Battleships) (Mutsu, Nagato) ; Battleship Division #2 (4 Battleships) (Isc, Hyuga, Fuso, Yamashiro) ; Cruiser Division #9 (2 Light Cruisers) (Kitagami, Oi) ; 8 Destroyers (Names uncertain)

Striking Force (Commander in Chief 1st Air Fleet) (Vice Adm. Chuichi Nagumo) ; (2 Battleships, 6 Aircraft carriers, 2 Heavy Cruisers, 1 Light Cruiser, 16 Destroyers) ; Battleship Division #3 (1st Section) (2 Battleships) (Hiei, Kiri-shima) ; Carrier Division #1 (2 Aircraft carriers) (Kaga, Akagi) ; Carrier Division #2 (2 Aircraft carriers) (Hiryu, Soryu) ; Carrier Division #5 (2 Aircraft carriers) (Shokaku, Zuikaku) ; Cruiser Division #8 (2 Heavy Cruisers) (Tone, Chikuma) ; Destroyer Squadron #1 (1 Light Cruiser, 16 Destroyers) (Abukuma, Destroyer names uncertain)

Southern Force (Commander in Chief Second Fleet) (Vice Adm. Nobutake Kondo) ; (2 Battleships, 2 Small Aircraft carriers, 12 Heavy Cruisers, 7 Light Cruisers, 52 Destroyers, 16 Submarines) ; Battleship Division #3 (2nd Section) (2 Battleships) (Kongo, Haruna) ; Carrier Division #4 (1st Section) (2 Small Aircraft carriers) (Probably Shoho and Ryujo) ; Cruiser Division #4 (4 Heavy Cruisers) (Atago, Takao, Maya, Chokai) ; Cruiser Division #5 (3 Heavy Cruisers) (Haguro, Myoko, Nachi) ; Cruiser Division #7 (4 Heavy Cruisers) (Mogami, Mikuma, Kumano, Suzuya) ; Cruiser Division #16 (1 Heavy Cruiser, 3 Light Cruisers) (Ashigara, Kuma, Kinu, Nagara) ; Destroyer Squadron #2 (1 Light Cruiser, 12 Destroyers) (Jintsu, Destroyer names uncertain) ; Destroyer Squadron #3 (1 Light Cruiser, 16 Destroyers) (Sendai, Destroyer names uncertain) ; Destroyer Squadron #4 (1 Light Cruiser, 12 Destroyers) (Naka, Destroyer names uncertain) ; Destroyer Squadron #5 (1 Light Cruiser, 12 Destroyers) (Natori, Destroyer names uncertain) ; About 16 Submarines (Names uncertain)

[14231]

APPENDIX 2

Japanese Task Forces—(continued)

South Seas Force (Commander in Chief 4th Fleet) (Vice Adm. Shigeyoshi Inoue) ; (4 Heavy Cruisers, 4 Light Cruisers, 12 Destroyers, 16 Submarines) Kashima (Light Cruiser) ; Cruiser Division #6 (4 Heavy Cruisers) (Aoba, Furutaka, Kinugasa, Kako) ; Cruiser Division #18 (2 Light Cruisers) (Tenryu, Tatsuta) ; Destroyer Squadron #6 (1 Light Cruiser, 12 Destroyers) (Yubari, Destroyer names uncertain) ; About 16 Submarines (Names uncertain)

Northern Force (Commander in Chief 5th Fleet) (Vice Adm. Boshiro Hosokaya) ; (2 Light Cruisers, 2 Destroyers) ; Cruiser Division #21 (2 Light Cruisers) (Tama, Kiso) ; 2 Destroyers

Advance Expeditionary Force (Commander in Chief 6th Fleet) (Vice Adm. Mitsumi Shimuzu) ; 3 Light Cruisers (Katori, Isuzu, Yura) ; About 26 Submarines Attached Forces (Training) ; Carrier Division #4 (2nd Section) (2 Small Aircraft carriers) (Probably Hosho and Zuiho) ; Miscellaneous Vessels.

[14232]

APPENDIX 3

Above [opposite] is shown a captured track chart of Jap carriers, covering the period from Pearl Harbor to Midway. During the operations noted, this Jap Carrier Force was commanded by the late Vice-Admiral Nagumo as CinC First Air Fleet. The approximate approach of the Carrier Task Force to Hawaii is indicated. According to another document, recovered from a crashed enemy plane shortly after the raid, Jap aircraft flew off their carriers about 200 miles due north of Oahu, rendezvoused further south, and then flew in for a coordinated attack. From 0755 to 0825 (Honolulu Time), VT and VD attacks were made on U. S. installations. After a 15-minute lull, these were followed by horizontal VB strikes and recurrent VD attacks.

[14233] Mr. MORGAN. Consistent with a request made by Senator Ferguson for information regarding reports of Japanese air reconnaissance over the Philippines, or other U. S. possessions in the Pacific prior to December 7, 1941, we have from the Navy Department a communication dated February 8, 1946, concerning this matter transmitting enclosures. We would request that the letter of transmittal and the enclosures be spread on the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. They will be spread on the record at this point.

(The letter of transmittal and enclosures follow:)

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, 8 February 1946.

1083A

R. #119

Memorandum:

To: Mr Seth W. Richardson

1. In response to Senator Ferguson's request for information regarding reports of Japanese air reconnaissance over the Philippines or other U. S. Possessions in the Pacific prior to December 7, 1941, the following references are given:

a. " * * * 'Rear Admiral Toshio Matsunago, Retired, in [14234] interview published in Hochi States Japanese should face future with calm confidence in ability Army Navy repel air attacks x Japan need not worry about weak ABCD powers encirclement plans x quoted as stating he has flown over Guam total sixteen times this year without sighting single American plane x American air power Far East negligible x prior retirement Matsunaga served twelve years as aviator Commander Ryujo Acagi Tateyama Air Station now Director Japan airways.'" (Narrative Statement, page 239; NCI exhibit 12).

b. Dispatch from Marine detachment, Wake Island to ComFOURTEEN, dated 25 November 1941, stating that on 24 November 2115 hours the Pan-American clipper sighted four Japanese sea planes about 1,000 miles east of Guam, flying south at an altitude of 10,000 feet. Narrative statement, page 392; Hewitt exhibit 27, page 127).

c. Dispatch from GovGuam, 240610, dated November 24, 1941. Copy attached.

d. Extract from the interrogation of Captain Takahashi. Copy attached.

2. It is possible that support was given to the belief that Japanese air reconnaissance was being made throughout the Pacific (over all Allied Island possessions) by a report of such reconnaissance over the Gilberts, given in a dispatch originated by the naval attaché at Singapore [14235] on 22 November, paraphrase of which is made in the Hewitt exhibit 27, page 14T. Copy of dispatch #220228 is attached.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lt. Comdr., USNR.

5362 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14236]

NAVAL MESSAGE

NAVY DEPARTMENT

From: ALUSNA Singapore
To: OPNAV (Action)
CINCPAC, CINCAF (Info.)

Date: 23 November 1941

220228

Routine

Dependable reports here of reconnaissance flights over Gilbert Islands on November 15 by monoplane with tapered wings, single tailfin, twin engines. Next day repeated by monoplane flying boat silver color number of engines unobserved.

Top secret.

[14237]

NAVAL MESSAGE

NAVY DEPARTMENT

From: Governor Guam
To: OPNAV (Action)
CINCPAC, CINCAF (Info.)

Date: 24 November 1941

240610

Deferred

At 1217 local time today unidentified two-engined plane sighted, circling southern end of island. Altitude approximately 15,000 feet. At 1226 local time plane passed out of sight to southwest.

Top secret

[14238]

INTERROGATION OF CAPTAIN TAKAHASHI ON 20 OCTOBER 1945

I. Positions held by Captain Takahashi

May 1941–December 1942: On staff of Eleventh Air Fleet in Philippine Islands and Dutch East Indies. This was the duty period on which Captain Takahashi was questioned.

January 1943–June 1945: Senior member of Navy Aeronautical Bureau, Tokyo.

July 1945–August 1945: Senior Staff officer of Fifth Air Fleet and senior staff officer of Third Air Fleet.

20 October 1945–: Chief of Sendai Naval Personnel Bureau.

II. Summary

* * * The primary mission of the Japanese Force in FORMOSA, composed of about 300 fighters and bombers, was the annihilation of the American Air Force in the PHILIPPINES. In this, it was successful partly because complete information relative to the American Air Force [14239] was obtained by Aerial Reconnaissance prior to commencement of hostilities.

III. "Q" What gave the Japanese impression that there were 900 planes in the area and how did you discover that there were 300 instead of 900?"

"A" The Navy received on 20 November 1941, a report from the Foreign Affairs Department that there were about 900 planes in the LUZON area. A photographic reconnaissance plane conducted a search on the 24th or 25th of November over that area and discovered that there were only 300 planes. One reconnaissance plane made flights at that time."

[14240] Mr. MORGAN. We have here a letter from Commander Baecher, dated 7 March 1946, setting forth a request by Mrs. T. S. Wilkinson, the widow of Admiral Wilkinson, that certain information with respect to her husband and his testimony, and also a letter from Admiral Ingersoll to Admiral Wilkinson dated 26 December 1945 be placed in the record.¹ We request that this letter from the Navy Department of March 7, together with the enclosures be spread on the record at this point.

¹ Adm. Wilkinson's testimony appears in Hearings, Part 4, pp. 1723–1782, 1798–1858, 1864–1911.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. They will be spread on the record at this point.

(The letter and enclosures referred to follow:)

[14241]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 7 March 1946.

Memorandum:

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

1. It will be recalled that during the course of his interrogation Vice Admiral T. S. Wilkinson testified concerning the duties of his office which, at least in part, was transcribed at pages 4576-4577 of the Record of Proceedings.

2. It further appears that at the request of Vice Admiral Wilkinson there were read into the Record of Proceedings, at pages 5100-5104, a memorandum of Vice Admiral A. G. Kirk, and two dispatches exchanged between Vice Admiral Wilkinson and Rear Admiral James, pertaining to matters referred to in the testimony of Vice Admiral Wilkinson at said pages 4576-4577 of the Record.

3. In connection with the same matter Vice Admiral [14242] Wilkinson wrote a letter to Admiral R. E. Ingersoll on 20 December 1945, in which he referred to his own and Admiral Turner's testimony, and forwarded as the first enclosure a copy of the memorandum of Vice Admiral Kirk referred to above and as the second enclosure a copy of his own testimony as transcribed at said pages 4576-4577 of the Record of Proceedings before the Joint Committee, and inquired as to Admiral Ingersoll's recollection of the matter. Admiral Ingersoll answered Vice Admiral Wilkinson's letter by letter of 26 December 1945.

4. Mrs. T. S. Wilkinson states that her lately deceased husband, Vice Admiral Wilkinson, refrained at the time from forwarding to the committee the exchange of correspondence with Admiral Ingersoll because he thought the subject matter would be covered when Admiral Ingersoll appeared as a witness. She feels that it now appears that the interrogation of Admiral Ingersoll did not cover the particular question, and has found the letters among Vice Admiral Wilkinson's effects. Accordingly Mrs. Wilkinson, having first obtained the permission of Admiral Ingersoll to such use of his letter, requests in behalf of her husband that the pertinent parts of the exchange of correspondence between Vice Admiral Wilkinson and Admiral Ingersoll be read into and made a part of the stenographic record of the committee's proceedings. Accordingly there are attached [14243] hereto, marked Enclosures A and B respectively, copies of the second enclosure to Vice Admiral Wilkinson's letter of 20 December 1945 to Admiral Ingersoll and of Admiral Ingersoll's letter dated 26 December 1945.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Lt. Comdr. USNR.

ENCLOSURE A

Admiral WILKINSON. I said that the text of the regulations which you introduced read "Evaluate the information collected and disseminate as advisable."

I understood our duties to be, and still understand, to disseminate and spread abroad all types of basic information, what General Miles has termed static information, such as the defenses of the country, its economics, the diplomatic relations, the characters and activities and previous careers of its military and naval men, the location of its fleets, the actual movements of its fleets and everything other than the enemy probable intentions, and such specific information as in itself might give rise or might require action by our fleet, or by our naval forces.

5364 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

In the latter case before dissemination I would consult higher authority, either the Assistant Chief, the Chief of Naval Operations, or my Colleague, Chief of War Plans, in order that this information which I sent out would not be in conflict with his understanding of the naval situation, [14244] and the operations for which he was responsible.

Mr. GESELL. In other words, you had the responsibility to disseminate, but where you reached a situation which led you to feel that the information disseminated might approach the area of a directive, or an order to take some specific action to the recipient then you felt you were required to consult War Plans, or the Chief of Naval Operations?

Admiral WILKINSON. Exactly.

ENCLOSURE B:

STAFF HEADQUARTERS
WESTERN SEA FRONTIER
FEDERAL OFFICE BUILDING

San Francisco, California, 26 December, 1945.

MY DEAR WILKINSON: I have your letter of 20 December regarding your testimony before the Committee and also the two enclosures.

My understanding of the instructions given to Naval Intelligence in 1941 is exactly in accord with your testimony as you gave it in the hearings, and as embodied in the second enclosure of your letter.

I remember that discussions took place sometime in '41 although I had forgotten that Kirk took part in the discussions. I remember it more as a discussion with you. I do remember distinctly, however, pointing out that our [14245] organization was not like military intelligence and that the Estimate of the Situation should be prepared by the War Plans Division, although the data for the part "Enemy Intentions" naturally would have to be based on data and information gathered by Naval Intelligence.

With kindest regards and all best wishes for the New Year, I am

Very sincerely yours,

/s/ INGERSOLL

Vice ADMIRAL T. S. WILKINSON, USN.,
3043 "N" Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

[14246] Mr. MORGAN. I believe that is all, Mr. Chairman.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. There being nothing further, the committee will stand adjourned subject to the call of the Chair.

(Whereupon, at 5:40 p. m., the Committee adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.)

[14247]

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

THURSDAY, MAY 23, 1946

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION
OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
Washington, D. C.

The joint committee met, pursuant to call, at 10:30 a. m., in the committee room of the Committee on the District of Columbia, United States Capitol, Senator Alben W. Barkley (chairman) presiding.

Present: Senators Barkley (chairman), Lucas, Brewster, and Ferguson and Representatives Cooper (vice chairman), and Murphy.

Also present: Seth W. Richardson, general counsel; John E. Masten, Edward P. Morgan, and Logan J. Lane, of counsel, for the joint committee.

[14248] The CHAIRMAN. The committee will come to order.

Mr. Richardson.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, Mr. Lane wants to offer, with the permission of the committee, a number of answers to requests which have been made in the record, in order to clean up that part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. I might state before you start that the Senate meets at 11 o'clock today and the House also meets at 11 o'clock. We will have to work pretty fast here to get through before the two Houses meet.

I just wanted that to be understood, so that we wouldn't waste any time.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Mr. Chairman, I suggested to Senator Ferguson and counsel, while talking informally, that in view of the fact that the Senate is meeting at 11 o'clock today and the House is also meeting at 11 o'clock, that probably the best thing to do would be for us to receive these documents for the record, close the record, and then adjourn subject to call of the Chair, with the idea that as early next week as can be conveniently arranged we could have another meeting of the committee.

The CHAIRMAN. Senator George cannot be here this morning as he is presiding at a Finance Committee meeting; and Mr. Clark is away, as is also Mr. Gearhart. So it would be my purpose to call an executive committee meeting the first [14249] day of next week that is available.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Mr. Clark will in all probability be back next week.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, it would be my suggestion that we hold this record open to put these things in. I would like to have time to go over them after they are in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair wishes to state this, Senator, that the committee voted last week to close the record today, and I wouldn't feel at liberty to hold the record open unless the committee reverses its action taken last week.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, I received the answers to questions put to Mr. Hull yesterday. As the Chair knows we have had very important sessions. We had a very important session yesterday and finally voted. It was necessary that I stay on the floor. I haven't had time to properly analyze the material to see whether or not other questions should be submitted. Those I analyzed were very unsatisfactory, so far as I personally was concerned.

I feel that we have failed utterly to get information by the system of using interrogatories. It was difficult enough to get testimony from the witnesses in the hearings. I feel that it has failed and that we should have some time to submit interrogatories.

For instance, I asked many questions of Mr. Stimson. He didn't see fit to answer the first set of questions at all. [14250] Personally I don't feel that he even answered the second questions, but he did at least give us some answers to those.

Now, if we spend months, and we have spent months, on this matter, I feel that we should have a complete record. I certainly want to have a complete record of the Pearl Harbor facts. I feel that by closing this record today, without the right to submit further questions, without the right of getting the Stimson diary, that we are not getting all of the facts.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, the committee will have to pass on that.

Senator FERGUSON. I realize that, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. We will go ahead. We don't want to argue that now.

Senator FERGUSON. I am not arguing it.

The CHAIRMAN. No; but we have taken time, which is very short and very precious. I will be perfectly frank to state that unless the committee itself orders it, reverses the action that it took to close the record today, that is what the order was, with only two votes against that motion, made by Mr. Keefe, unless the committee desires otherwise I am going to adhere to the action taken by the committee.

I don't see how I can do otherwise as chairman of this committee. If the committee wants to take a different action when it meets again, that is its business, but so far as the orders of the committee are at present, the hearing of evidence [14251] and the record was to be closed today.

Whether you or I, or the committee, or anybody else, could get any additional information from Mr. Stimson than his reply to interrogatories, I do not know. It is unfortunate that Mr. Stimson's health has been such that he couldn't appear in person. I think that we all have the greatest respect for Mr. Stimson and that the country has the greatest respect for Mr. Stimson. I haven't had a chance to read his replies, but I don't think it is necessary for me to read them in order to determine whether there should be any more hearings or any more questions asked of him. I presume he gave us the best information he could in reply to the questions. If he hasn't, I don't know whether additional questions sent to him would elicit anything further or not.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, it is only that I think we ought to be given that opportunity. At least I would like to have made a part of this record the questions that I submitted and a showing that he did not answer.

The CHAIRMAN. I presume that the questions submitted are a part of the record, that they were made a part of the record, as much as the answers. Without seeing the questions and the answers, I assume the questions would be made a part of the record just as if they had been asked in open hearing.

Senator FERGUSON. I didn't know. That is the reason I asked.

[14252] The CHAIRMAN. I assume so. Isn't that true, Counsel?

Mr. RICHARDSON. My idea would be that whatever we got from Mr. Stimson would appear in this record.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes, and the same with regard to Mr. Hull. Let's go ahead.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire if the Hull answers are here ready to be put in the record today?

Mr. LANE. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. I presume all members received them and that they are here ready to be put in the record today. Go ahead.

Mr. LANE. The Committee sent certain interrogatories to former Secretary of State Cordell Hull on April 5, 1946. We have received his answers to the interrogatories, and ask that the interrogatories, the answers thereto, and their letter of transmittal dated May 16, 1946, be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, that will be done.

(The answers given by Mr. Hull to interrogatories submitted to him by the Committee follow:)¹

[14253]

MAY 16, 1946.

The Honorable ALBEN W. BARKLEY, Chairman,

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

MY DEAR MR. BARKLEY, Reference is made to your letter of April 5, 1946, enclosing a set of 169 interrogatories which the committee desired me to consider and make such reply thereto as my recollection of the facts might warrant.

In pursuance of your request I enclose my replies to the interrogatories. I feel that most of the matters covered in my replies have already been set forth in the record of the Department of State or in my prepared statement to the committee. I trust that my replies satisfactorily dispose of the questions concerning which the committee has inquired.

Sincerely yours,

[S] CORDELL HULL.

Enclosure:

Replies to interrogatories.

[14254] REPLIES TO INTERROGATORIES PROPOUNDED BY THE HONORABLE HOMER FERGUSON, MEMBER OF THE JOINT COMMIT-TEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

1. Question: Is it correct to say, Mr. Secretary, that the first specific point in the 10 points of the American note of November 26, 1941, proposed that Japan enter a seven-power nonaggression compact? (See For. Rel. vol. 2, 769.)

¹ Mr. Hull was sworn by the Chairman at the time of his appearance before the Committee on November 23, 1945. See Hearings, Part 2, p. 403 et seq.

Answer: In this Government's outline of a proposed basis for agreement between the United States and Japan communicated to the Japanese Government on November 26 there were listed in section 2 under 10 headings steps to be taken by the Government of the United States and by the Government of Japan of which the first heading reads as follows:

1. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan will endeavor to conclude a multilateral non-aggression pact among the British Empire, China, Japan, the Netherlands, the Soviet Union, Thailand, and the United States.

2. Question: [14255] Is it correct to say that, in your conversation with the Japanese Ambassadors on November 22, 1941, you broached the matter of proposing to Japan SOMETIME a broad comprehensive plan involving the collaboration of other nations? (For. Rel. vol. 2, 761.)

Answer: On November 22, 1941, I told the Japanese Ambassador that I had in mind taking up with him sometime a general and comprehensive program which we had been engaged in developing and which involved collaboration of other countries. Our broad approach was toward a world objective, not a local, regional, or bilateral objective. While the initial step was bilateral as between the Japanese and ourselves, what we were trying to do was to get Japan to adopt a peaceful program on world-wide lines. Had we been successful Japan would have been able to satisfy all her needs by taking advantage of the principles, for example, of the Nine-Power Agreement and the Good Neighbor policy. We envisaged, of course, the assumption by Japan of obligations along with the acquisition by her of rights.

3. Question: Did the Japanese Ambassadors reply that Japan was interested in a bilateral agreement with the United States? (For. Rel. vol. 2, 762.)

[14256] Answer: The Japanese Ambassador said that the Japanese had in mind negotiating a bilateral agreement with us to which other powers could subsequently give their adherence. The Japanese, throughout the conversations, had shown apparently little thought for the rights and interests of countries in the Pacific area other than Japan and the United States. From the outset of the conversations I had endeavored to make it clear to the Japanese that this Government could not join with Japan in disposing of questions affecting the rights and interests of the other concerned powers without consulting them prior to entering into formal negotiations on these matters with the Japanese. There could not have been, however, any doubt in the mind of the Japanese Ambassador that our conversations looked to our entering into a bilateral agreement with Japan as our immediate objective even though we held to the view that other powers should be consulted.

4. Question: Did the Japanese Ambassadors say to you, after reading the note of November 26 and the oral statement of the 26th, that the American proposal was unacceptable and was to be interpreted as tantamount to meaning the end? (For. Rel. vol. 2, 766.)

Answer: [14257] After the Japanese Ambassadors had read the documents handed to them on November 26 containing an outline of the proposed basis of an agreement between the United States and Japan and an explanatory oral statement, Mr. Kurusu said that he felt that our response to their proposal could be interpreted as tantamount to meaning the end. Neither Mr. Kurusu nor Ambassador Nomura stated that the American proposal was unacceptable.

5. Question: Is it correct to say that the position of the State Department has been that the American note of the 26th was a necessary restatement of American policy as the only logical and practical means by which peaceful conditions might obtain in the Pacific Ocean? (For. Rel. 767 et. al.)

Answer: In answer to this question, I refer to my statement before the joint committee on November 19, 1945, in which I said:

Our Government's proposal was offered for the consideration of the Japanese Government as one practical example of a program to be worked out. It did not rule out other practical examples which either Government was free to offer.

In that same statement I also said:

[14258] The Japanese were spreading propaganda to the effect that they were being encircled. On the one hand we were faced by this charge and on the other by one that we were preparing to pursue a policy of appeasing Japan. In view of the resulting confusion, it seemed important to restate the fundamentals.

That confusion prevailed both in Japan and the United States. We knew from Japanese acts and utterances that the Japanese proposal of November 20 was their last word and it was obviously desirable that the record of the American Government's position throughout the conversations be made crystal clear. Therefore, the proposals of November 26 were directed toward making our position utterly clear and toward keeping the door open for further conversations notwithstanding the ultimative character of the Japanese proposal of November 20. The principles set forth in our November 26 proposal were in all important respects essentially the same principles we had been proposing to the Japanese right along. Had the Japanese had the least disposition to pursue a peaceful course, a more desirable program could not have been offered to them. All Japan had to do to take advantage of our offer was to abandon her course of aggression and to adopt the accepted rules of peaceful international conduct. In the explanatory statement which accompanied the proposal there was reviewed [14259] briefly the objective sought in the exploratory conversations, namely, that of arriving at an agreement regarding Pacific questions on a basis of peace, law and order, and fair dealing among nations.

6. Question: It was stated, was it not, by the American Government to Japan in the note of the 26th that the Japanese proposal of November 20 fell short of the objectives desired? (For. Rel. vol. 2, 767.)

Answer: In this Government's communication to the Japanese Government of November 26 it was stated:

The proposals which were presented by the Japanese Ambassador on November 20 contain some features which, in the opinion of this Government, conflict with the fundamental principles which form a part of the general settlement under consideration and to which each Government has declared that it is committed. The Government of the United States believes that the adoption of such proposals would not be likely to contribute to the ultimate objectives of ensuring peace under law, order, and justice in the Pacific area, and it suggests that further effort be made to resolve our divergences of views in regard to the practical application of the fundamental principles already mentioned.

The Japanese asked in their proposal of November 20 that the United States [14260] agree to cease giving aid to China; that the United States desist from augmenting its military forces in the western Pacific; that the United States help Japan obtain products of the Netherlands East Indies; that the United States undertake to resume commercial relations with Japan; that the United States undertake to supply to Japan "a required quantity of oil"; while Japan on her part would be free to continue her military operations in and against China and to keep her troops in Indochina and to attack the Soviet Union, would have her funds unfrozen, would be able to buy with comparative freedom from the United States, would be assured adequate supplies of oil, and would be under no obligation to remove her troops from Indochina until she should have completed her conquest of China or conditions of peace satisfactory to her had been established "in the Pacific area."

Before and after presenting that proposal, Ambassador Nomura and Mr. Kurusu talked emphatically about the urgency of the situation and intimated vigorously that this was Japan's last word and if an agreement along those lines was not quickly concluded ensuing developments might be most unfortunate.

What Japan asked in that proposal would, had it been agreed to by the United States, have meant condonement by the United States of Japan's past aggressions, assent by [14261] the United States to unlimited courses of conquest by Japan in the future, abandonment by the United States of its whole past position in regard to the most essential principles of its foreign policy in general, betrayal by the United States of China, and acceptance by the United States of a position as a silent partner aiding and abetting Japan in her effort to create a Japanese hegemony in and over the western Pacific and Eastern Asia.

Acceptance by us of the Japanese proposal of November 20 would have placed Japan in a commanding position in her movement to acquire control of the entire western Pacific area; would have destroyed our chances of asserting and maintaining our rights and interests in the Pacific; and in its final analysis would have meant a most serious threat to our national security. She also clung to her vantage point in Indochina which threatened the security of the countries to the south and menaced vital trade routes. Their conditional offer to withdraw troops from southern Indochina to northern Indochina was meaningless as they could have brought those troops back to southern Indochina within a day or two, and furthermore they placed no limit on the number of troops they might continue to send there.

7. Question: Did our Government reject the Japanese note of [14262] November 20, 1941, which you described as an ultimatum?

Answer: The Japanese proposal of November 20, which I have described in response to question No. 6, was of so preposterous a character that no responsible American official could ever have dreamed of accepting it. Nevertheless, I felt that I should not be violent in my comment to the Japanese in regard to it so as to avoid giving them any pretext to walk out on the conversations.

Therefore, despite the ultimative character of the Japanese proposal, and despite the slim possibility that Japan would elect to continue the conversations, we proposed to keep alive that possibility while restating our fundamental principles. The Army and Navy were asking for more time, as they had for months past, and I had that situation very much at heart. Moreover, we wanted to show our interest in peace up to the last split second and at the same time to expose the bad faith of the Japanese. Everything we said or did was with those considerations in mind. In drawing up a full restatement of our principles, we gave exemplifications of their application to the situation in the Pacific area, and we invited the Japanese to continue the conversations with that statement as a basis.

8. Question: It was stated, was it not that, therefore, the United [14263] States was setting forth to Japan a broad and comprehensive program under which the desired objectives could be attained? (For. Rel. vol. 2, 767.)

Answer: In this Government's oral statement to the Japanese Government of November 26 it was stated:

* * * the Government of the United States offers for the consideration of the Japanese Government a plan of a broad but simple settlement covering the entire Pacific area as one practical exemplification of a program which this Government envisages as something to be worked out during our further conversations.

As I said in my statement before the joint committee of November 19, 1945, in reviewing what I had told press correspondents on the day following the date of delivery to the Japanese of the communication under reference,

I found there had been so much confusion and so many collateral matters brought in along with high Japanese officials in Tokyo proclaiming their old doctrines of force, that I thought it important to bring the situation to a clear perspective. So I had recounted and restated the fundamental principles and undertook to make application of them to a number of specific conditions such as would logically go into a broad basic peaceful settlement in the Pacific area.

[14264] There had been every kind of suggestion made as we had gone along in the conversations. I said that I had considered everything in the way of suggestions from the point of view whether it would facilitate, keep alive, and if possible carry forward conversations looking toward a general agreement, all the while naturally preserving the fullest integrity of every principle for which we stood. I had sought to examine everything possible but always to omit consideration of any proposal that would contemplate the stoppage of the conversations and search for a general agreement for peace.

9. Question: When did you prepare the message which President Roosevelt was to send to the Japanese Emperor the night of December 6, 1941?

Answer: The idea of a message from the President to the Emperor had been under consideration by the President and myself as far back as the middle of October, as is clear from the record before the committee. The message as actually sent was prepared in final form on December 6, and included contributions made in the White House as well as material contained in drafts prepared in the State Department during preceding weeks.

- [14265] 10. Question: For the purpose of a question I shall quote from the President's message to the Emperor: "Thus a withdrawal of the Japanese forces from Indochina would result in the assurance of peace throughout the whole of the South Pacific area"—end of quotation and I ask: Is it correct to say that the withdrawal of the Japanese from Indochina, under a neutral guarantee of the integrity of Indochina by the interested parties, was the single specific proposal of the message of the Emperor, sent by President Roosevelt on December 6? And fulfillment of it would have assured peace in the southwest Pacific, in the opinion of the President?

Answer: In the President's message to the Japanese Emperor the President stated that "both Japan and the United States should agree to eliminate any form of military threat." The President was seeking to make a broad appeal. The withdrawal by Japan of its armed forces from Indochina would have assured the creation of an atmosphere which would have rendered possible resumption of conversations looking to a peaceful settlement covering the entire Pacific area. Conversely, Japan's refusal to accept the President's proposal would expose her real purpose. Indochina was the logical and by far the most feasible jumping-off place for a Japanese movement to the south. The [14266] President by his proposal for the neutralization of Indochina on July 24 had already strongly tested Japan's purposes in her continued movement south by proposing that she get out of Indochina—and the Japanese Government by its clear-cut refusal betrayed its military designs on the South Sea area. This proposal also served to expose Japan's intentions not to consider peaceful arrangements with us unless we were prepared to make all the concessions. The President was now making an additional last-minute appeal. He, of course, knew that the huge Japanese armada had already left the jumping-off place in Indochina, which, from our viewpoint, meant that the danger of attack could not have been more imminent. Nevertheless, the President believed that he should not neglect even the slim chance that an additional last-minute appeal might save the situation. It also served to make clear to the American people and to the world our interest in maintaining peace up to the very last minute.

11. Question: Was there anything in the December 6 message proposing a Japanese withdrawal from China—a pledge not to interfere should the United States be drawn into war by Germany—or a proposal for Japan's adherence to a seven-power nonaggression pact?

Answer: [14267] Inasmuch as the November 26 proposal of this Government was already before the Japanese, the appeal to the Emperor was made specifically applicable to the critical situation created by the Japanese military movement from and within Indochina which we had very much in our minds. Indochina was the seat of the most acute and imminent danger at that moment. The other subjects at issue with Japan mentioned in your question had been thrashed out over and over again during 6 months of conversations.

Throughout the conversations we had vainly urged on Japan that she abandon conquest, including the conquest of China. We also had asked the Japanese to give up her alliance with Germany and Italy which was directed against us, but they clung to that alliance like they clung to their very life. We had fully demonstrated the utter impossibility of getting Japan to budge on these questions.

Questions 12, 13, and 38 are grouped in a single answer.

12. Question: The intercepted diplomatic messages of the Japanese show that on November 26 Nomura and Kurusu requested permission of Tokyo to request that President Roosevelt wire to a Japanese official, Premier Tojo, I presume, and ask that peace be maintained for the sake of posterity and that Japan replied with a cordial message, were you aware, on November 29, that this document was in the possession [14268] of the American Government as decoded on November 28? (Intercepted messages, exhibit 1, p. 180.)

13. Question: The intercepted Japanese messages show that, on November 28, the Japanese Ambassadors received from Tokyo a message that was secretly intercepted and decoded by the American Government on the same day, and which said: I quote: "I contacted the man you told me to in your No. 1180 and he said that under present circumstances what you suggest is entirely unsuitable" end quotation: were you aware of the existence of this document on November 30? (Cf. Intercepted messages, exhibit 1, p. 195, last two sentences of No. 844.)

38. Question: You saw the intercepted Japanese messages, did you not?

Answer: I was at all times intensely interested in the contents of the intercepts. I instructed my secretaries to show me promptly any and all intercepts of material value and importance to the State Department. This, it seemed to me, they did. So far as I was able to judge, all of such intercepts were shown to me. The State Department was on a 24-hour basis and messages received in the Department after office hours in whatever form when important were delivered to me at my home. At this late [14269] date, in 1946, I cannot be certain whether I received and read at the time all important intercepts or whether it might be possible that some of those I have read since that time or recently are confused in my mind with what I read at the time. I kept no records as to when particular messages reached me.

Questions 14, 82, and 83 are grouped in a single answer.

14. Question: It is proved by the intercepted messages, is it not, that Japan on November 28 had rejected the proposition of an exchange of peace messages between the heads of their respective states? (No. 844, p. 195, exhibit 1.)
82. Question: Will you please look at message No. 844, page 195, exhibit 1, and state as to whether or not that message relates to a message from the President to the Emperor?
83. Question: If your answer to the last question is "yes," then will you explain why the message was sent on the night of the 6th of December 1941, when you and the President had knowledge of the message of exhibit 1, message 844, page 195?

Answer: The intercepted message cited (No. 844, exhibit 1, p. 195) seems to refer to a suggestion by the Japanese [14270] Ambassador for a Japanese initiative in proposing to this Government an exchange of messages between the President and a Japanese official, presumably the Minister for Foreign Affairs. The Japanese Foreign Minister, after consulting with the Navy Minister, apparently did not approve of that suggestion. In the situation in which we found ourselves grabbing at straws to save the peace, this Government believed that no possibility should be overlooked even at the last minute to appeal for peace. In any case, there was no reason why the President should not send a message to the Emperor regardless of the attitude of any particular subordinate Japanese official.

15. Question: On November 29, 1941, you rejected, did you not, as useless a suggestion of the Australian Minister that he try to mediate through Kurusu?

Answer: On November 9, 1941, the Australian Minister called on me and brought up the question of his conferring with the Japanese representative, Mr. Kurusu, and suggesting to Kurusu that Australia would be glad to act as a mediator. I offered no objection to his taking such a step, but merely stated my opinion to the Minister that the diplomatic stage was over and that nothing would come of such a move.

16. Question: [14271] On November 30, or around that date, did you recommend to the President that he deliver a message to Congress on the subject of American-Japanese relations?

Answer: On November 29, I sent to the President a draft message to Congress, which Secretary Stimson and Secretary Knox had helped to prepare, together with a draft message from the President to the Emperor. In my memorandum to the President I said:

If you should send this message to the Emperor it would be advisable to defer your message to Congress until we see whether the message to the Emperor effects any improvement in the situation. I think we agree that you will not send message to Congress until the last stage of our relations, relating to actual hostility, has been reached.

17. Question: What did the President say?

Answer: I have no specific recollection as to what President Roosevelt said regarding a message to Congress. But the record is that he did not send the message to Congress.

18. Question: Why did he not send it to Congress?

Answer: [14272] The President and I had for some time been communicating to various Members of Congress our views on the imminent dangers in the situation in connection with such matters as neutrality legislation and extension of selective service. A message to Congress during the last few days would have contained very little that was new without giving to the Japanese leaders material which would have enabled them to arouse their people against us all the more, a thing we wished to avoid so long as there was even the slightest possibility of keeping the discussions alive.

Furthermore, the powerful isolationist groups in this country would probably have renewed their oft-repeated charges of "war-mongering" and "dragging the nation into foreign wars." The Japanese leaders would then have been in a position to play up the situation as evidencing disunity in the United States in order to gain support in Japan for plunging ahead.

19. Question: Did it occur to you, in making such a recommendation that, either in wording or by precedent, there applied in the situation of November 30, 1941, that clause in the Constitution of the United States which provides that, from time to time, the President shall inform the Congress of the state of the Union?

Answer: [14273] I would say that among the considerations which led to the drafting of the message to Congress was the Constitutional clause you cite, but there was also the consideration whether sending such a message at that particular time would have been helpful or otherwise in the critical situation then existing.

20. Question: Did you tell a press conference on or about December 3, 1941, that the Japanese Government on November 12 had taken the position that these talks were not informal and exploratory, rather that they constituted real negotiations, which were in their final stages and that in the event of their failure a critical and dangerous situation would result? (Cf. For. Rel. p. 75.)

Answer: The question whether the conversations with the Japanese in 1941 constituted real negotiations was not a matter of unilateral determination. This Government had made it clear to the Japanese from the outset that our conversations must remain on an exploratory basis until we could determine whether there existed a basis for negotiations. That point was never reached. Later, the Japanese Government advanced the contention that we were in negotiation, with Ambassador Grew at Tokyo on November 12 and with us here on November 13. On that day, I made [14274] the position of this Government quite clear to the Japanese representatives, as follows:

The Secretary, after asking the Japanese Minister to make accurate note of what the Secretary was about to say, replied that if we are to work out a peaceful settlement in the Pacific area he could do this only on the basis of carrying on exploratory conversations until we reached a stage when he could go to Great Britain, to China and to the Dutch and say to them that he believes that the attitudes of Japan and the United States are such as to afford a basis for negotiation and that we could call what took place thereafter a negotiation. (Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-41, vol. II, pp. 731-732.)

Inasmuch as the Japanese Government did not subsequently refer to this point, it was to be assumed that it had accepted this Government's position. There was no occasion for referring to this point in conference with the press. I did, however, make clear to the representatives of the press on November 27 and again on December 3 the seriousness of the situation.

Questions 21 and 22 are grouped in a single answer.

21. Question: From page 43 of your statement, I quote: "On November 30, I was informed by the British Ambassador [14275] that the British Government had important indications that Japan was about to attack Siam and that this attack would include a seaborne expedition to seize strategic points in the Kra Isthmus" and quotation—I ask if you recall having any information on that day from the First Lord of the British Admiralty indicating a Japanese attack upon the United States?

22. Question: I quote from the New York Times of December 1, a dispatch from London under date of November 30: "A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said that 'if Japan breaks with and attacks the United States we must go with the United States and I am glad we have been able to send naval reinforcements to the Far East,' end quotation: Did you see any official message to the United States of such a nature?

Answer: I do not recall receiving any information or messages on or about November 30 from the First Lord of the Admiralty or from any other official source indicating a Japanese attack on the United States or pledging support to the United States if attacked; nor has there been found in the Department of State any record of such information having been communicated to the Department of State.

23. Question: [14276] Was it a fact that, on November 30, and thereafter, the predominant opinion in the War Council was that the attack would come against others rather than the United States?

Answer: While it was my judgment that the Japanese were likely to attack in widely separated areas, all observable indications pointed to the likelihood that the attack would occur in the Southwest Pacific area. The most threatening activities known to our Government, so far as I saw or heard, were the Japanese movements near the jumping-off place in Indochina.

Malaya, the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies, and Siam were well within range of attack from that jumping-off place. The competent and appropriate military officials, I believe, have spoken for themselves on this subject.

24. Question: When did you first see the cablegram from Ambassador Winant, dated December 6, and received in the State Department December 6, as to the movement of the Japanese fleet toward the Kra Peninsula?

Answer: The telegram in question, No. 5918 from the American Embassy in London, England, was received, according to the records, in the State Department at 10:40 a. m. [14277] December 6. In view of the message's character, of the notation that it was "most urgent," and of the fact that it was headed "Personal and Secret to the Secretary and the President," it must have been shortly after its receipt that I saw it.

25. Question: In your prepared statement to this committee, Mr. Secretary, I find no reference to your conversation with the Japanese Ambassador on August 16, the day preceding the delivery of two notes to Japan by the President; and I ask if it is correct to summarize that conversation of August 16 in these words: to the Ambassador's "pointed" request for a resumption of the conversations you stood by your position of July 23 in which you stated that because of Japan's violation of the basis of the conversations by its seizure of Indochina you saw no basis remaining; and after you had suggested that the Ambassador might see the President, if he desired, Nomura replied that he would be in no position to talk to the President until his Government had wired him concessions which he, as previously stated, believed his Government was willing to make in order to have the conversations resumed? (Cf. Foreign Relations II, pp. 553-554.)

Answer: The conversation of August 16 with the Japanese [14278] Ambassador is correctly summarized in Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-41, volume II, pages 553-554:

The Ambassador of Japan called at his request. He proceeded to say that he had again read over the documents that he and I had had under discussion, that he had been in communication with his Government, and that he believed there were grounds for progress in the conversations. He said that his Government was very desirous of working out peaceful relations between our two countries and he elaborated further along this line and against the idea of war. He stated that he would favor concessions in order to avoid war and that from what he heard from his Government, it would make concessions in order to avoid war. He said that in fact it would be glad to have a high Japanese official meet a high American official half way between the two countries in order to take up the matter in its final form.

The Ambassador then pointedly inquired of me whether conversations such as he and I had been conducting could be resumed between our two Governments. I proceeded to reiterate and repeat the circumstances leading up to the cessation of our conversations and the reasons which I set forth through Mr. Welles for their discontinuance. I did not pass further on the question which he propounded [14279] but left it as it was. The Ambassador remarked that the situation was critical and it was very important in his judgment for suitable steps to be taken to avoid serious developments but I still revealed no sign whatever of saying anything favorable about his request for a resumption of conversations. I said that as the matter stands Japan with her Army, Navy, and air forces was establishing many bases in and about French Indochina under her continued policy of conquest by force, that this would mean about the last step prior to a serious invasion of the South Sea area if it should be decided upon by Japan, that such an invasion would be a serious menace to British success in Europe and hence to the safety of the Western Hemisphere, including the United States, and that, therefore, this Government could not for a moment remain silent in the face of such a threat, especially if it should be carried forward to any further extent. The Ambassador remarked that the people of Japan did not have enough foodstuffs and went to Indochina to secure such needed commodities as rice. To this I promptly replied that if Japan had been willing to go forward with a peaceful settlement of the Pacific area in line with the principles and policies the Ambassador and I had discussed, Japan would have been able peacefully and without the use or threat of force to have equal access with every other nation to world [14280] markets for rice and all other foodstuffs.

The Ambassador repeatedly said that his country was very desirous of peaceful relations with this country in the future as well as now and that he believed his Government would make some concessions in order to resume conversations to this end. I expressed interest in this and again referred to Japan's continuing policy of conquest by force and of bitter denunciation of this country by the Government controlled press which is loudly supporting such a policy, and again I said that I would not be in a position to say anything relative to his request in addition to what I said some days ago when he first brought up the matter.

I suggested to the Ambassador that the situation was very serious and that if he desired to talk to any others on this subject or to the President it would be perfectly agreeable with me and I would not consider it as in any way going around me, et cetera. The Ambassador said that he would not be in a position to talk to the President until he first telegraphed his country for instructions as to what concessions it might be willing to make in connection with a resumption of conversations.

26. Question: In your memorandum of the conversation in the White House among the President, Ambassador Nomura and [14281] yourself on August 17, you state that the President requested the Ambassador to come to the White House (cf Foreign Relations 11, p. 554): my question is: Had the President been informed that on the previous day, August 16, the Japanese Ambassador had stated that he did not wish to see the President until he had received concessions from the Japanese Government which he, the Ambassador, believed his Government would make?

Answer: I find from the records that I informed the President prior to the White House conference on August 17 of the substance of my conversation with the Japanese Ambassador on the previous day. I refer to President Roosevelt's telegram to Prime Minister Churchill, of August 18, 1941, which is a committee exhibit.

27. Question: Is it correct to state that the State Department records show no offer of concessions by Japan on August 17, 1941?

Answer: This Government at no time in the course of the conversations of 1941 talked to the representatives of the Japanese Government in terms of "concessions" to be made by Japan as condition for an agreement. It made known to the Japanese Government that its willingness to [14282] enter into an agreement with Japan was contingent upon Japan's adopting consistently peaceful courses. At no time did the Japanese Government give any practical evidence on which this Government could rely or dependable pledges that the Japanese Government intended to pursue policies of peace.

28. Question: When did the war with Japan become inevitable?

Answer: The question of the inevitability of war with Japan involved two factors, the factor of Japanese plans and objectives and the factor of time.

With regard to Japanese objectives, it is clear from the record that following the advent in 1927 of the Cabinet of General Tanaka, who inaugurated the so-called positive policy toward China, Japan had consistently been pursuing only one fixed policy—that of expansion by aggression. In 1931 Japan occupied Manchuria by force; in 1933, Japan seized Jehol, penetrated Chahar and extorted from China a demilitarized zone in north China. The truculent statement of Amau, spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Office, on April 17, 1934, in which Japan made clear a purpose to compel China to follow Japan's dictate and to permit other countries to have relations with China only as Japan allowed, made crystal clear [14283] Japan's policies of aggression. In 1937 Japan embarked upon military operations in north China which soon developed into an all-out attack on the whole of China. On September 21, 1938, I told the Canadian Minister that I had been proceeding on the theory that Japan definitely contemplated domination, by any and every kind of means, of East Asia and the Western Pacific area. In furtherance of these objectives Japan in September 1940 entered into the Tripartite Pact with Germany and Italy, Japan's program thus being merged into a far-flung drive for world domination of which Japan's share was to be East Asia. On January 15, 1941, in a statement in support of the lend-lease bill before the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, I pointed out that Japan was out to establish herself in a dominant position in the entire region of the Western Pacific and that her leaders had openly declared their determination to make themselves masters of an area containing almost one-half of the entire population of the world. In the light of Japan's steady course of expansion by force, it was manifest that she would attack in her own good time unless we surrendered our principles.

As I have repeatedly stated, this Government had fully taken into account Japan's record when it entered into the conversations with the Japanese in 1941. [14284] Nevertheless, the American Government responded favorably to the Japanese request that we enter into conversations looking to a settlement of Pacific questions even though it realized that there was but a slight chance that thereby Japan could be brought around to adopt peaceful courses.

The second factor, that of time, was considered by us in the light of contemporary developments. Through the years that the Japanese Government was standing for policies of aggression, this Government was standing for policies of peace and of law and order with justice, as is clear from the record. These opposing policies were utterly irreconcilable. We knew that would would not surrender at any time our basic principles. As a result of our close-up conversations with the Japanese, we could not escape the conclusion that Japan would not abandon her policy of aggression. Our long-standing appraisal of Japanese policies and purposes of aggression and of attacking us and other countries in the Pacific area in furtherance of those purposes, was supported by Japanese utterances and acts. As regards the element of time, I was satisfied by early October from the evidence of feverish Japanese military activities and movements, the bellicose pronouncements of Japanese spokesmen and of the Japanese press, reports of growing political tension [14285] in Japan, as well as from what was disclosed by the intercepted Japanese messages that the time when they would attack us was rapidly approaching.

In looking back upon the developments in their entirety during the last weeks and months prior to Pearl Harbor it can be clearly seen that our judgments and our methods of dealing with Japan as we did were overwhelmingly vindicated by Japanese acts and utterances as they later unfolded.

At any time prior to Japan's attack it lay within her power to avert a war in the Pacific by abandoning her policy of aggression, just as a bandit might avert a clash with his intended victim by suddenly becoming law-abiding. Up to that time there was always open to her an honorable and reasonable alternative to the courses of aggression which she was pursuing—an alternative which would have given her all she professed to seek in the way of access to raw materials and markets, as well as other rights and opportunities enjoyed by all nations. It lay solely within Japan's disposition to adopt a peaceful alternative and to revoke the decisions reached at the Imperial Conference of July 2, which reaffirmed Japan's purpose of subjugating China and which called for military advance to the south to establish "the great East Asia sphere of co-prosperity", that is to say, to establish Japanese [14286] domination in Southeast Asia and the islands of the Western Pacific area.

Questions 29 to 33 and 45 to 47 are grouped in a single answer.

29. Question: When did you decide that further negotiations were useless and that you were going to turn the matter over to the Army and Navy?

30. Question: When did you advise either the Army or the Navy that you were turning the matter over to the army or navy or both?
31. Question: What had happened that you told Secretary Stimson you were turning the mater over to the Army and Navy?
32. Question: Had you conferred with the President on the matter of turning the matter over to the Army and Navy?
33. Question: Give date and conversation with the President on this.
45. Question: Do you recall having a conversation with the Secretary of War, Mr. Stimson, about the negotiations with Japan being terminated and that you were turning the matter over to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy, or the Army and Navy?
- [14287] 46. Question: Will you state the date and the conversation.
47. Question: If such a conversation took place, did you consider that such conversation turned the matter over to the Army and Navy?

Answer: After this Government had received and studied the Japanese proposal of November 20, which has already been described, together with Kurusu's representation to me on November 21 that Japan had nothing more to offer, it became obvious, especially in the light of Japan's menacing military movements and of the indisputable proof derived from intercepted Japanese messages that the November 20 proposal was their last word, that the chances of meeting the crisis by diplomacy had practically vanished. From November 22 on it was my individual view that Japan was through with any serious conversations looking to a peaceful settlement. From that day I and my associates had reach a stage of clutching at straws in our effort to save the situation. We groped about for anything that might offer any possibility for keeping serious conversations going. We gave consideration to possible choices in an effort to determine the wisest and most feasible course.

[14288] From November 22 on I did not conceal my conclusions on these points. It was on November 25 at the meeting of the War Council that I again emphasized the critical nature of the situation and stated more formally that, "the matter is now in the hands of the Army and the Navy." My most accurate recollection of my conversations along this line with the President and the War and Navy officials was contained in my statement of December 30, 1941, to the Roberts committee. I rely upon that statement to refresh my present recollection. The portion of that statement dealing with this point is as follows:

On November 25 and on November 28, at meetings of the War Council, at which the highest officers of the Army and the Navy of course were present, I emphasized the critical nature of the relations of this country with Japan: I stated to the conference that there was practically no possibility of an agreement being achieved with Japan; that in my opinion the Japanese were likely to break out at any time with new acts of conquest by force; and that the matter of safeguarding our national security was in the hands of the Army and Navy. At the conclusion I with due deference expressed my judgment that any plans for our military defense should include an assumption that the Japanese might make [14289] the element of surprise a central point in their strategy and also might attack at various points simultaneously with a view to demoralizing efforts of defense and of coordination for purposes thereof.

The expression, "the matter is now in the hands of the Army and the Navy," as applied in the situation which then arose, does not imply any idea of a transfer from the Department of State to the Departments of War and of the Navy of any part of the Department of State's functions or responsibilities. Nor do I think that there was any misunderstanding on the part of the President or of the Secretaries of War and of the Navy as to the sense in which this expression was used. It seemed self-evident that the Army and the Navy would be our chief reliance in the light of the critical situation known to all of us. It was, of course, the understanding of each of us that the Department of State would continue to function and coordinate its action with that of the Army and Navy, but I emphasized that we could no longer be expected materially to control the situation.

Questions 34 and 35 are grouped in a single answer.

34. Question: Other than the Winant message, dated December 6, received by the State Department about 10:40 a. m., December 6, 1941, did you have any other information as to the [14290] Japanese Fleet movements as indicated in the Winant message?

35. Question: If so, will you state what the information was and when you received it?

Answer: According to State Department records, similar information was received from the Navy Department (from the commander in chief, Asiatic Fleet) and from the War Department (from the United States military observer at Singapore). The Navy report was available in Washington at 10:57 a. m., December 6, and I am informed that the War Department report, so far as the records indicate, came in December 6 followed by a lengthy conference on the morning ment to the committee, the records show several telephone conversations between War and Navy officials and myself on December 6 followed by a lengthy conference on the morning of December 7 between Secretary Stimson and Secretary Knox and myself. These conversations on December 6 and 7, according to my best recollection, comprised discussion of the Japanese convoys and other information regarding Japanese military movements which we had previously received.

Questions 36 and 37 are grouped in a single answer.

36. Question: [14291] I show you a memorandum, exhibit 40, and ask you if there was any discussion with you or anyone else to your knowledge on this subject of armed support?

37. Question: Who assured the British of American armed support as mentioned in their instructions to Singapore as shown by the message of our naval observer at Singapore to Admiral Hart?

Answer: There was no discussion with me or with anyone else to my knowledge on the subject of advance assurance to Britain of armed American support which would have served as a basis for the telegram from the commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet to the Navy Department quoted in exhibit No. 40, or for the message from Singapore referred to in question 37. I do not know who, or whether anyone, assured the British of American armed support. However, after witnessing the suicidal experiences of countries like Belgium and Holland which had failed to confer with the Allies before they were invaded, it seemed to me but natural and necessary that the three or four governments deemed in imminent danger of attack by Japan may well have had conversations before the attack, subject, so far as we were concerned in the matter of commitments, to our constitutional limitations.

[14292] 38. See answer to questions 12 and 13.

Questions 39 and 40 are grouped in a single answer.

39. Question: Do you recall the one of November 7—"all arrangements must be completed by the 25th?"

40. Question: Did that message cause you to give the warning to the Cabinet?

Answer: I recall the message of November 5 (exhibit No. 1, p. 100) that, "all arrangements for the signing of this agreement must be completed by the 25th." I do not definitely recall whether the message referred to in question 39 was before me when I warned the Cabinet of the dangers in the situation on November 7. The record shows that the message in question was available on November 5, and presumably I saw it. I would say that my statement to the Cabinet was prompted by conclusions derived from a number of sources.

Questions 41 and 42 are grouped in a single answer.

41. Question: Mr. Secretary, you were familiar with our exhibit 16 and exhibit 17, wherein both Admiral Stark and General Marshall requested time?

42. Question: [14293] Prior to your sending the note of the 26th, were you familiar with the contents of the memorandum to the President, dated November 27, by Admiral Stark and General Marshall?

Answer: I was familiar with the joint memoranda of Admiral Stark and General Marshall of November 5 and November 27. I do not know just when those memoranda were brought to my attention, but I am satisfied that I did not see either memorandum prior to its date. I was, of course, familiar with the views of General Marshall and Admiral Stark in regard to their desire for time, and I myself was animated by a desire to do everything I could to gain time.

Questions 43 and 44 are grouped in a single answer.

43. Question: What did you do to obtain the time as asked for by Marshall and Stark in their memorandums of November 5 and 27?

44. Question: Did you discuss this question with the President and what was said by the President and you in that discussion?

Answer: Generally speaking, our entire 8 months of conversations involved gaining time. There was no conflict between this objective and our intensive efforts to persuade [14294] the Japanese to pursue policies of peace. After the Imperial Conference at Tokyo on July 2, 1941, the Japanese in pursuance of the decision to move south, proceeded rapidly with the necessary preparations for a military movement on a large scale.

It was obvious that the time of such attack as Japan would make would be of Japan's own choosing, and would depend upon Japan's own estimate of her readiness and of favoring circumstances. It was not within the power of this Government otherwise than by abject submission to Japan's terms, to halt Japan in her course. However, I endeavored at all times to treat with the Japanese in a spirit of open-mindedness, patience and goodwill. I sought from the outset of the conversations to explore thoroughly every possibility of bringing about a peaceful, fair and stabilizing settlement of the situation in the Pacific, and I spared no effort to keep always open a door to the continuation of the conversations. At the same time I had to be on guard against any manifestation of weakness which might have encouraged the Japanese to be more precipitate than they were in their action. In this way, I believe that we gained months of valuable time. It became clear, however, in October, as I saw it, that the Japanese had decided to strike in their own time unless this Government should be willing to yield abjectly [14295] to Japan's terms. I constantly discussed with the President the question of gaining as much time as possible and we had the subject very much in mind throughout the conversations with the Japanese.

45-47. See answer to questions 29 to 33.

48. Question: Did the Secretary of State's office prepare a final draft, one ready for delivery to the Japanese, of a modus vivendi?

Answer: A draft of the modus vivendi dated November 25 which was labeled "Final draft," meaning that that was the last draft that was made of that document, has been furnished the committee. It cannot be accurately said that that draft was "ready for delivery to the Japanese," as it is impossible to tell what further revision might have been made if a decision had been made to offer the Japanese a modus vivendi.

49. Question: Did you show such a draft to the Ambassadors of Britain, China, and the Netherlands?

Answer: The latest draft of the modus vivendi shown to the British, Chinese, and Netherlands diplomatic representatives was the draft of November 24. There were only [14296] minor differences between the November 24 and the November 25 drafts.

50. Question: I call your attention to exhibit 19, page 1, where you used the following words: "My personal view continued as on yesterday, November 28, to be that its sending will be of doubtful efficacy. Except for the purpose of making a record, it might even cause such a complication as Colonel Stimson and I referred to on yesterday." I ask you, Mr. Secretary, to explain what conversations you and Colonel Stimson had with the President and what was said by each of the parties in that conversation?

Answer: I do not recall precisely what conversations Mr. Stimson and I had with the President on or about November 28 in regard to the proposed message to the Emperor other than the points mentioned in my memorandum which you cite. We all realized, of course, that the Emperor at that time was powerless before the military leaders. I recall very clearly that I had in mind that the sending of a message to the Emperor might have prejudiced the situation owing to the probability that such an appeal would be likely to arouse resentment among the real leaders of Japan, because of our having gone over their heads, and moreover might have been interpreted as [14297] weakness, since the Japanese themselves do not normally shift from a bold front attitude to one of pleading until the situation with them is desperate. These points, to the best of my recollection, were all brought out in the discussions I had with the President and Mr. Stimson.

51. Question: What did you mean by the expression "for the purpose of making a record"?

Answer: The expression, "for the purpose of making a record," has reference to the matter of making perfectly clear to both the American and Japanese peoples then and for the future that all the efforts of this Government were directed toward maintaining peace to the very end.

52. Question: When did you first know that the President had sent a message to the Emperor?

Answer: I was in consultation with the President at all stages of the drafting of the message to the Emperor and the message, of course, was sent through the State Department. I, therefore, was aware of the message being sent at the time of its sending, about 9 p. m., December 6, 1941.

Questions 53 to 56 and 84 to 87 are grouped in a single answer.

53. Question: [14298] Was it before or after you learned of the pilot message, being message 901, exhibit 1, page 238?

54. Question: Was it before or after you learned that Japan was replying to your November 26 message?

55. Question: Was it before or after you knew the contents of any part of the 14-part message, a reply to your November 26 message?

56. Question: Had you learned of the receipt of any of the 13 parts of the 14-part message, being message 902, page 239, exhibit 1, before it was decided by the President, or by you, to send a message to the Emperor?

84. Question: When did you first learn that the Japanese were replying to your note of November 26?

85. Question: When did you first see any of the parts of the 14-part message 902, exhibit 1, page 239?

86. Question: When did you first learn that the message was to be delivered in accordance with a time later to be determined?

87. Question: When did you first see the message No. 844, page [14299] 195, exhibit 1, which contained the language: "therefore, with a report of the views of the Imperial Government on this American proposal which I will send you in 2 or 3 days, the negotiations will be de facto ruptured. This is inevitable. However, I do not wish to give the impression that the negotiations are broken off.”?

Answer: I cannot recall definitely the exact time when any of the messages referred to were seen by me.

During the period in which those messages were being received and distributed, my attention was focused on reports of the extremely menacing movement made manifest by the sailing of the large Japanese armada from the jumping-off place in Indochina. Those reports thus were of more serious and urgent import than any threatening phase of intercepted messages relating to Japan's reply to our communication of November 26. As I made clear in my conversations and statements during those last days prior to Pearl Harbor, I felt that war would break out at any time and that the Japanese had given clear indication as to the course they would take. Notification through the intercepts of a forthcoming Japanese communication announcing that the Japanese would not continue the conversations was only confirmatory of the judgment which I had been passing on to my colleagues in the [14300] Government during the previous fortnight.

Even had the intercepted messages clearly indicated immediate war, they could only have referred to attack by the gathering Japanese forces whose movements we had been watching for days.

From the time the Japanese presented their drastic ultimatum on November 20, no intimations were given us that the Japanese would make the slightest concessions in their demands, but, on the contrary, they drove steadily forward to the attack with their armed forces, while, at the same time, misrepresenting the attitude of this Government. The Japanese reply of December 7 was a false and fraudulent statement in the worst of bad faith of Japan's case and a monstrous misrepresentation of our position in what turned out to be a brazen attempt to shift from themselves to us responsibility for their attack upon us.

Questions 57 to 60 are grouped in a single answer.

57. Question: Did you discuss with the President the modus vivendi message?

58. Question: If so, what was said about it by the President and what did you say to the President?

59. Question: [14301] Did you ever discuss with the President the fact that you were not going to send the modus vivendi but were going to send the note of the 26th?

60. Question: If you had such a conversation or discussion with the President about that date on the modus vivendi will you give us the conversations?

Answer: I was in constant touch with the President and consulted him fully at all stages of our consideration of the modus vivendi proposal. It is impossible to recall the details of the discussion, but the trend of our thought was indicated in my statement before the committee on November 19, 1945. The President at no time expressed any dissent from views expressed by me. On November 26 I recommended to the President—and he approved—my calling in the Japanese representatives and handing them the broad basic proposals while withholding the modus vivendi plan.

Questions 61 and 62 are grouped in a single answer.

61. Question: Was it usual for the President to confer with Ambassadors on Sunday?

62. Question: Can you state why the meeting was held between the [14302] Japanese Ambassador and the President on Sunday, August 17, 1941, the day the President returned from the Atlantic Conference?

Answer: Although, during the conversations with the Japanese in 1941, August 17 was the only Sunday occasion on which the President had received them, I had conversations with them by appointment made at their request on four other Sundays: namely, May 11, June 15, June 22, and December 7. I, therefore, attached no special significance to the President's receiving them on Sunday and I do not know the reason, other than possibly the President's convenience, why the President received them on August 17 rather than an early subsequent weekday. It is true, of course, that the President did attach great importance to the communications which he made to the Japanese Ambassador on that occasion.

63. Question: Would you say that only an extraordinary matter required that the President on a Sunday, and at the hour of his return to Washington from a conference with the head of another Government should deliver to a third Government a note which he said, "he regretted the necessity to deliver but which he felt compelled to deliver"?

Answer: [14303] I would not conclude that otherwise than as indicated in replay to your question No. 62, only an extraordinary matter required the President on a Sunday, and at the hour of his return to Washington, to receive the Japanese Ambassador. The world was then on fire and the aggressor nations, including Japan, were wholly untrustworthy and treacherous, capable of undertaking a desperate stab at any time. Those of us in charge of foreign policy during this critical period were accustomed to spend most Sundays in our respective offices, including Sunday conferences involving both the President and foreign ambassadors.

64. Question: Was the situation between the American and Japanese Governments on August 17, the following: Because of Japan's violation of the basis of the conversations, by the seizure of Indochina, the American Government had broken off informal, exploratory conversations looking to the reestablishment of traditional relations and, because of the aggression against Indochina, the American Government had broken economic relations with Japan?

Answer: An accurate description of the situation between the American and Japanese Governments on August 17 will be found in the two oral statements handed by President [14304] Roosevelt to the Japanese Ambassador on August 17, 1941.

I think I should add that it was my strong opinion that the Japanese had convinced themselves that we were inadequately prepared and that therefore we would make sacrifices of our principles before undertaking to fight in their defense. It was incumbent on us, in justice to the Japanese as well as to ourselves, to tell them that if they pushed us too far, we would resist. I repeatedly and pointedly made this clear to the Japanese representatives in my conversations with them. President Roosevelt did likewise when he conferred with Ambassador Nomura on August 17 and agreed to resume the conversations. These representations were calculated to sober somewhat the Japanese militarists bent on aggression. But the Japanese did not take them as a threat, as the record of subsequent events shows.

65. Question: In your memorandum of the White House conversation of August 17, you say: "The President thereupon said that this Government should really bring the matters between the two Governments literally up to date and that he would therefore, offer certain observations about the position of this Government; he added that he regretted the necessity of so doing but that he had no other recourse;" (cf. Foreign Relations, vol. 2, p. 555). Will you give the [14305] interpretation in the terms of diplomacy of the statement by the head of one nation to another nation, with whom relations are critically strained, that he regrets the necessity of a note which he is about to deliver but that he has no other recourse but to deliver it?

Answer: It seems perfectly clear to me that what the President regretted was that the Japanese should have created a situation which rendered necessary a message of the import of the one which he at that time delivered to the Japanese. The President was endeavoring, in friendly fashion, to impress upon the Japanese Government our attitude as I have described it in answer to question 64.

66. Question: Do you know of any agreement with another power which had fixed the date of delivery of this note, and the second note, to be August 17?

Answer: I do not know of any agreement with any other power which called for delivery on August 17 of the two communications which were made to the Japanese on that date. The official record shows, however, that President Roosevelt told Prime Minister Churchill at their Atlantic meeting that he, the President, planned to see the Japanese Ambassador immediately on his return to Washington.

[14306] Questions 67 and 68 are grouped in a single answer.

67. Question: Do you know on what date that other power took the same action as the President took in line with their agreement for the making of parallel representations to Japan?

68. Question: Have you ever seen the text of the representations which were made by the British Government on August 17, or any subsequent or preceding date, agreed upon to be made parallel with those made by the President on or about August 17?

Answer: The Department has no record of any parallel action taken by the British Government corresponding to the action taken by the President vis-a-vis the Japanese on August 17, and I know of no parallel action taken by the British other than the radio address of the British Prime Minister on August 24, 1941.

69. Question: The President by his action of August 16 was deciding ipso facto, not to await a bid which you had every reason to believe was coming from Japan. Did you suggest waiting?

Answer: Our judgment as to potentialities of Japanese policy [14307] had to be formed in the light of Japan's actions toward implementation of the decision of the Imperial Conference of July 2, 1941, which called inter alia for a military advance south, of Japan's rejection of the President's proposal of July 24 to neutralize Indochina, and of 3 months of searching conversations with the Japanese Ambassador. With these in mind, it was idle to expect that the "concessions" which the Japanese Ambassador suggested might be forthcoming from his Government would be addressed to the fundamentals of the situation, which from our point of view called for Japan's removal of the menace she was creating to the United States and other peaceful nations and for her desisting from her aggressive courses. If Japan had in fact any intention of revising her position and adopting peaceful courses, there was nothing in the President's communication to the Japanese Ambassador on August 17 which would have tended to discourage Japan from adjusting her position; on the contrary, what the President said on that occasion was calculated to help rather than hinder reconsideration by Japan of her policies. There was therefore no advantage whatever in awaiting a further Japanese initiative.

Questions 70, 71, and 72 are grouped in a single answer.

70. Question: I find no reference, Mr. Secretary, in your prepared [14308] statement, to a communication from the Japanese Foreign Minister and an accompanying commentary by Ambassador Grew received by the State Department soon after midnight on August 18, 1941: Do you recall such documents which the State Department published in Foreign Relations 11, pages 560-565?

71. Question: They establish, do they not, that at the time the President was delivering the first and then the second note of August 17, the Japanese Foreign Minister was delivering to Ambassador Grew a lengthy overture for the resumption of the conversations looking to a restoration of traditional relations? (N. B. Tokyo time, 14 hours later.)

72. Question: And in transmitting the Japanese message, Ambassador Grew quote: "With all the force at his command, for the sake of avoiding the obviously growing possibility of an utterly futile war between Japan and the United States, that this Japanese proposal not be turned aside without every prayerful consideration . . ." also that the proposal was "unprecedented in Japanese history" and had been made with the approval of the Emperor and the highest authorities of the land; that is correct, is it not?

Answer: [14309] There is no controversy about the contents of the documents referred to in Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-41, volume II, pages 560-565, containing an account of the approach made by the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs to Ambassador Grew in regard to a proposal for a meeting between the Japanese Prime Minister and the President and a statement of Ambassador Grew's reaction. That Japanese proposal is discussed and analyzed at some length in my prepared statement to the committee, which it is unnecessary to repeat here. The President and I, together with our Far Eastern advisers, were looking at the situation with the benefit of all the worldwide information available to us in Washington. We judged that the Japanese Government had no serious expectation of reaching an understanding at the proposed meeting unless the American Government surrendered its basic position while Japan rigidly adhered to and went forward with its policy of aggression and conquest. We had fully tested out the Japanese Government by preliminary inquiries and found it adamant in its position.

Nothing in the record of subsequent developments has contradicted our judgment at that time, but on the contrary, events have vindicated it. For example, the memoirs of Prince Konoye subsequently published in serial form in the Asahi Shimbun, a leading Tokyo newspaper [14310] running from December 20 to December 31, 1945, state that the Japanese army leaders agreed, in writing, on August 4, 1941 to Konoye's proposal for a meeting with the President only on condition that Japan adhere firmly to its fundamental policy and that in the event the President did not see eye to eye with the Japanese, Konoye would leave the meeting place determined to make war on the United States. Konoye also disclosed in his memoirs that at an Imperial Conference on September 6, 1941, the Japanese Government decided, in case there was no expectation within the first 10 days of October to gain her demands on the United States by diplomacy, to go to war with the United States, and accordingly to parallel diplomatic efforts with military preparations.

These disclosures by Konoye show conclusively that the Japanese would attack in their own chosen time unless we should surrender abjectly to the drastic Japanese ultimatum of November 20 and that if we had made no reply instead of delivering our communication of November 26, the 10-point proposal, the Japanese would have attacked just the same.

73. Question: On November 7, 1941, you warned the Cabinet they might look for an offensive by Japan at any time. What did you base that warning on?

[14311] Answer: My warning to the Cabinet on November 7 was based upon the acceleration of Japanese military activities and disquieting military disposals, especially in Indochina, the growing agitation in the Japanese press and among Japanese spokesmen for positive action, the pressure tactics employed by the Japanese Government toward forcing acceptance by this Government of the Japanese proposals, as well as the corroborative evidence of the intercepted Japanese messages.

74. Question: When did you draft the 10-point note of November 26?

Answer: Under the modus vivendi proposal the Japanese would have been committed to affirming that their national policies were directed toward lasting peace throughout the Pacific area and that they had no territorial ambitions therein. Its acceptance was also subject to the understanding that during its life (of 3 months subject to a further extension) there would be further conferences looking to a peaceful settlement covering the entire Pacific area. There was attached to the modus vivendi proposal a plan of a comprehensive settlement as one practical exemplification of what we had in mind. This plan, consisting of two sections, a draft of a mutual [14312] declaration of policy and a statement of the steps to be taken by the two Governments, was common to both the modus vivendi proposal and the communication of November 26. Some of the material in section 1 was drafted months earlier, the remainder, including the material in section 2, in the course of a few days preceding November 26, and the latter part of the accompanying explanatory statement, which was not contained in the modus vivendi draft, on November 26.

Questions 75 and 76 are grouped in a single answer.

75. Question: At any time before it was sent, did you show it to the President or call the contents to his attention?

76. Question: If so, what was your conversation?

Answer: In the light of the foregoing explanation, it is clear that as the President was thoroughly familiar with the entire proposal, all that was called for was to consult with him about dropping the modus vivendi feature of the proposal. This I did by presenting to him a memorandum on November 26, a copy of which is in the hands of the committee, and obtained his prompt approval. I do not recall the details of any conversation on this.

Questions 77 and 78 are grouped in a single answer.

[14313] 7. Question: Did you see the message from General Marshall to General Short on November 27?

78. Question: If you saw such a note, when was its contents called to your attention?

Answer: I have no recollection that I saw before the publication of the Roberts Report the substance of General Marshall's message to General Short of November 27, 1941.

Questions 79 and 80 are grouped in a single answer.

79. Question: Did you the diplomatic relations between Japan and America grow worse after November 27?

80. Question: If they did grow worse how do you account for no other message being given to the commanders in the field?

Answer: Diplomatic relations between Japan and the United States could scarcely grow worse after November 27, except in the sense that the crisis foreseen by us and planned by the Japanese approached closer at hand. There was nothing fundamentally new in the diplomatic situation. That situation as we viewed it, especially from November 21 until the attack on Pearl Harbor, was that Japan [14314] might strike at any time and that the diplomatic establishment could not be expected to preserve national security.

81. Question: Will you explain in detail if you were consulted in connection with the message to Short which contained the phrase "If hostilities cannot be avoided the United States desires that Japan commit the first overt act" and also in regard to not arousing the citizens?

Answer: I have no recollection of having been consulted in connection with the considerations which entered into inclusion in General Marshall's message to Short of the phrase, "If hostilities cannot be avoided the United States desires that Japan commit the first overt act," or in regard to the caveat against arousing the citizens. This was primarily a military question.

- 82, 83. See answer to question 14.

- 84, 85, 86, 87. See answer to questions 53-56.

88. Question: Did not that message 844, exhibit 1, page 195, indicate to you that your note of the 26th was not acceptable and, therefore, that war was imminent?

Answer: I was already satisfied that the Japanese would not agree to anything short of complete yielding by the United [14315] States to Japan's demands. The intercepted Japanese message to which you refer did no more than confirm what we already knew. As I have pointed out repeatedly Japan was bent on attacking us unless we made abject surrender to her demands as an aggressor. We had no serious thought that Japan would accept our proposal of November 26. I said at the time that there was only the barest possibility of her accepting. She would have proceeded to attack us whether we had presented that proposal or any other proposal—unless it had been one of humiliating and abject surrender—or whether we had offered no proposal at all. Furthermore, while a number of us in the State, War and Navy Departments were desirous of grabbing at any straw and therefore hoped for favorable action on the modus vivendi, most of us agreed that the chances of its acceptance were very slim. The testimony of Army and Navy officials on this point is in the record.

The November 26 proposal was another test of whether Japan was willing to abandon conquest and to adopt peaceful policies; if she were so willing she would have seized upon our ten-point program as highly desirable.

89. Question: Where were you on the night of December 6, 1941?

Answer: I was most invariably at home at night working on [14316] Departmental matters. While it is possible that I might be mistaken, my best recollection is that I was at home on the night of December 6, 1941.

90. Question: When did you first see or obtain information as to the contents of the following messages in exhibit 1:

#904—page 245.

#907—page 248.

#908—page 248.

#909—page 240.

#910—page 249.

Answer: I do not recall the exact times that I first saw or learned of the contents of the messages you cite.

Questions 91 to 96 are grouped in a single answer.

91. Question: Did you discuss any of the intercepted Japanese messages with the President?

92. Question: If so, give us the conversations.

93. Question: Did you discuss any of the intercepted Japanese messages with General Marshall?

94. Question: If so, give us the conversations.

[14317] 95. Question: Did you discuss any of the intercepted Japanese messages with Admiral Stark?

96. Question: If so, give us the conversations.

Answer: At this late date in 1946 I do not recall whether I discussed any particular messages or the details of the discussion with the President, with General Marshall, or with Admiral Stark. It is true that in many of our conversations, including those with Secretaries Knox and Stimson, and some with the President, some of us would bring up one or another of the intercepted messages. But I have no recollection of discussions of specific messages.

97. Question: Who called the meeting in your office on the morning of December 7?

Answer: As I recall it, the meeting in my office on December 7 was the result of a mutual agreement on the part of Mr. Stimson, Mr. Knox, and myself. It might have been suggested in the first instance by any one or two of us three. According to my best recollection, the proposal for a meeting grew out of a desire to continue our dis- [14318] cussion of the situation created by the movement of the huge Japanese armada southward and westward of the southernmost point of Indochina.

98. Question: Tell us with whom you talked personally, by phone, or messenger, about this meeting and what was said.

Answer: I cannot recall material details beyond what I have given in reply to question 97.

99. Question: Please state in detail what was said by the persons attending the meeting in your office on December 7, 1941.

Answer: As I indicated in my prepared statement to the joint committee as well as in my oral testimony, Secretary Stimson, Secretary Knox, and I in our conference of December 7, 1941, discussed the critical situation created by the large-scale Japanese military movement from the jumping-off place in Indochina. I cannot recall details of that discussion. Secretary Stimson has described the discussion in his statement to the Committee and that statement speaks for itself.

Questions 100 to 102 are grouped in a single answer.

100. Question: Our record shows that the President saw the 13 parts [14319] of the 14-part message at about 9:30 p. m., December 6, 1941. Did you see or talk to the President from that time until after the attack at Pearl Harbor?

101. Question: If so, give us your conversations.

102. Question: If you did not see him or talk to him or contact him—were you available?

Answer: I have no record of nor do I recall having seen or having talked with the President between 9:30 p. m. on December 6, 1941, and the moment of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. According to my best recollection, I was available during all of that period.

Questions 103 and 104 are grouped in a single answer.

103. Question: Did anyone from the Army, Navy, or State Departments, or executive offices contact you on Saturday, December 6, and/or Sunday, December 7, up to 2 p. m. Sunday?

104. Question: If so, give the conversations.

Answer: I was in constant contact during Saturday, December 6, and Sunday, December 7, with officers of the State Department and of the Army and Navy. As recorded in annex A [14320] of my statement to the committee, I had on those 2 days conferences, consultations and telephone conversations—as entered in engagement books—with representatives of the Army and the Navy, as follows:

December 6 10:45 a. m.: Telephone call from Secretary Knox.

11:50 a. m.: Telephone call from Secretary Stimson.

1:00 p. m.: Telephone call from Secretary Stimson.

1:15 p. m.: Telephone call from Admiral Stark.

1:50 p. m.: Captain Schuirmann.

5:15 p. m.: Telephone call to Admiral Stark.

8:45 p. m.: Telephone call to Secretary Knox.

December 7 10:30 a. m.: Telephone call to Admiral Stark.

10:30 a. m.: Secretary Stimson, Secretary Knox.

2:10 p. m.: Telephone call from Admiral Stark.

In addition, I had many conferences on those days with officers of the Department of State. It would be [14321] impossible to recall the details of all the conversations which took place, but I might say that the Japanese large-scale military movement from the jumping-off place in Southern Indochina was very much in the minds of all of us who were called upon to consider that situation. We were striving to ascertain the full significance of those military movements, their probable destination, etcetra.

Questions 105 and 106 are grouped in a single answer.

105. Question: Mr. Secretary, will you agree that the official records of American-Japanese relations from August 28, 1941, until December 7, 1941, show that the Secretary of State never considered that the Japanese Government was bluffing in its assertions that, should no agreement be reached with the United States, Japan would strike?

106. Question: In this connection, Mr. Secretary, will you agree that the records established that the Secretary of State accepted at face value the statements in diplomatic exchange wherein Konoye on August 28, Toyoda on September 27, Togo on November 12, Nomura on November 12, and Kurusu on November 17 and 18, indicated or said that a rupture of the conversations would mean war in the Pacific? (Cf. Foreign Relations 11, pp. 572-3, 642, 719-22, 725, 740, 747.)

[14322] Answer: My view, as set forth in the record of American-Japanese relations over several years, was that Japan was not bluffing but was on a steady and fixed course of conquest which would reach us in Japan's own chosen time. I believed that Japan was playing the role of an international desperado, and it is the principal business of a desperado—whether a nation or an individual—to fight. During that period Japan believed that she was exceedingly well armed for the purpose of achieving her intended conquests in the Pacific area. She likewise knew that at that time we were by no means sufficiently armed in the Pacific to resist successfully a Japanese attack. Therefore, at the time, to which your inquiry related, I was satisfied that Japan was not bluffing but rather was giving us a last chance to yield our basic principles which would enable her to continue her course of aggression and conquest without further serious risk of successful resistance.

When we realize that Japan was carrying on flagrant aggressions and ruthless invasions of peaceful countries, that the United States was pleading with her from the beginning to cease her course of military conquest in close partnership with Hitler, and that all problems in the Pacific would practically settle themselves at once [14323] when Japan adopted a policy of peace, it becomes apparent that she had no more right to make demands on the United States—as though we too were an aggressor, instead of a law-abiding country pleading for peace—than an individual gangster has to assume a like attitude toward his intended victim. It is in the light of these circumstances that we must view all the arguments which the Japanese used in trying to browbeat the United States into yielding, such as those described in the reference cited in your question.

Questions 107 to 109 are grouped in a single answer.

107. Question: In this respect was the Secretary's evaluation of the situation at one with Ambassador Grew's, namely that the Japanese were not bluffing but could be expected to strike suddenly and dramatically?

108. Question: Did the Secretary, with the information from Ambassador Grew that the Tojo cabinet had advised the Emperor as to how far it would go with the United States, and, with the information from an intercepted Japanese message that a deadline had been fixed for November 25, tell the American Cabinet on November 7 that a new and sudden Japanese aggression was to be looked for? (Cf. Foreign Relations 11, pp. 700-1, Intercepts, [14324] ex. 1, p. 100, Peace and War, pp. 135-7.)

109. Question: Did the Cabinet thereupon vote unanimously that Secretary Knox and Under Secretary Welles should deliver addresses on Armistice Day to the end of informing the nation as to American-Japanese relations? (Cf. Peace and War, pp. 136-7; 776-87.)

Answer: In reply to these questions, I quote the first paragraph of page 29 of my prepared statement to the committee:

On November 7, I attended the regular Cabinet meeting. It was the President's custom either to start off the discussion himself or to ask some member of the Cabinet a question. At this meeting he turned to me and asked whether I had anything in mind. I thereupon pointed out for about 15 minutes the dangers in the international situation. I went over fully developments in the conversations with Japan and emphasized that in my opinion relations were extremely critical and that we should be on the lookout for a military attack anywhere by Japan at any time. When I finished, the President went around the Cabinet. All concurred in my estimate of the dangers. It [14325] became the consensus of the Cabinet that the critical situation might well be emphasized in speeches in order that the country would, if possible, be better prepared for such a development.

I also quote a paragraph from Peace and War, pages 136-137:

Four days later, on November 7, Secretary Hull stated at a Cabinet meeting that relations between Japan and the United States were extremely critical and that there was "imminent possibility" that Japan might at any time start a new military movement of conquest by force. It thereupon became the consensus of the Cabinet that the critical situation might well be emphasized in speeches in order that the country would, if possible be better prepared for such a development. Accordingly, Secretary of the Navy Knox delivered an address on November 11, 1941, in which he stated that we were not only confronted with the necessity of extreme measures of self-defense in the Atlantic, but we were "likewise faced with grim possibilities on the other side of the world—on the far side of the Pacific"; that the Pacific no less than the Atlantic called for instant readiness for defense. On the same day Under Secretary of State Welles, [14326] carrying out the cabinet suggestion in an address, stated that beyond the Atlantic a sinister and pitiless conqueror had reduced more than half of Europe to abject serfdom and that in the Far East the same forces of conquest were menacing the safety of all nations bordering on the Pacific. The waves of world conquest were "breaking high both in the East and in the West," he said, and were threatening, more and more with each passing day, "to engulf our own shores." He warned that the United States was in far greater peril than in 1917; that "at any moment war may be forced upon us."

110. Question: Subsequent to November 7, will the witness agree that the official records and his testimony here show that he advised high military officials of the Government and also the British Ambassador that a sudden attack anywhere in the Pacific by Japan must be anticipated?

Answer: In reply I quote from Peace and War, 2 paragraphs appearing on pages 144-145:

On November 25 and on November 28, at meetings of high officials of this Government, Secretary Hull emphasized the critical nature of the relations of this country with Japan. He stated that there [14327] was practically no possibility of an agreement being achieved with Japan; that in his opinion the Japanese were likely to break out at any time with new acts of conquest by force; and that the matter of safeguarding our national security was in the hands of the Army and the Navy. The Secretary expressed his judgment that any plans for our military defense should include an assumption that the Japanese might make the element of surprise a central point in their strategy and also might attack at various points simultaneously with a view to demoralizing efforts of defense and of coordination for purposes thereof.

On November 29, 1941, Secretary Hull conferred with the British Ambassador. The Secretary said that, "the diplomatic part of our relations with Japan was virtually over and that the matter will now go to the officials of the Army and Navy." He said further that it would be "a serious mistake for our country and other countries interested in the Pacific situation to make plans of resistance without including the possibility that Japan may move suddenly and with every possible element of surprise and spread out over considerable areas and capture certain positions and posts before the [14328] peaceful countries interested in the Pacific would have time to confer and formulate plans to meet these new conditions; that this would be on the theory that the Japanese recognize that their course of unlimited conquest now renewed all along the line probably is a desperate gamble and requires the utmost boldness and risk."

Furthermore, I and my associates were in daily consultation with the Army and Navy officials throughout the period after November 7, exchanging information and views as to the critical character of the situation.

111. Question: Is it correct to say that the intercepted dispatch from Tokyo on November 28 (No. 844, p. 195, Ex. 1) giving the reaction to the American notes of November 26, and also the intercepted dispatch from Tokyo to Berlin on November 30 (No. 985, p. 204, Ex. 1) informing Hitler of Japan's intentions, confirmed the judgments you had been stating in official councils since November 7?

Answer: During this period all the information we received made clearer Japan's purpose to attack unless the United States yielded to them. In other words, Japan had no intention of yielding any part of her plan of conquest by force, but was giving the United States, by its proposal of November 20, a last opportunity to choose between yielding or fighting. Insofar as the intercepted Japanese messages cited in the question indicated that in consequence of the refusal of the United States to yield to Japan's unreasonable demands the Japanese intended to take forcible measures to gain their ends, those intercepted messages served to confirm my judgments as expressed by me in official councils, especially during those last few weeks.

112. Question: Did not the fact that Japan, without a declaration of war, attacked Pearl Harbor on December 7, confirm, in their entirety, the judgments you had been offering in official councils since November 7?

Answer: Japan's attack on a number of points over a sweep of thousands of miles, one of which points was Pearl Harbor, at about the same time confirmed our judgment as to the critically dangerous character of the situation.

113. Question: Do you recall, Mr. Secretary, your meeting with the Japanese Ambassadors in your apartment on the night of November 22 in which they pressed for a reply to the Japanese note of November 20? (Cf. How War Came, p. [14330] 304, also For. Relations 11.)

Answer: I do recall my meeting with the Japanese Ambassadors on November 22 when they pressed for a reply to the Japanese proposals of November 20. During the month of No-

- vember the Japanese representatives were insistently worrying me with their importunities for a quick understanding, intimating that otherwise something awful would happen.
114. Question: I quote in full a secret message from Tokyo to the Ambassadors, under date of November 22, intercepted by the Army at Washington and translated on the same date:

(Secret)
 From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 22, 1941
 (Urgent)
 #812
 To both you Ambassadors.

It is awfully hard for us to consider changing the date we set in my No. 736. You should know this, however, I know you are working hard. Stick to our fixed policy and do your very best. Spare no efforts and try to bring about the solution we desire. There are reasons beyond [14331] your ability to guess why we wanted to settle Japanese-American relations by the 25th, but if within the next 3 or 4 days you can finish your conversations with the Americans; if the signing can be completed by the 29th (let me write it out for you—twenty-ninth); if the pertinent notes can be exchanged; if we can get an understanding with Great Britain and the Netherlands; and in short if everything can be finished we have decided to wait until that date. This time we mean it, that the deadline absolutely cannot be changed. After that things are automatically going to happen. Please take this into your careful consideration and work harder than you ever have before. This, for the present, is for the information of you two Ambassadors alone." (Cf. Intercepts No. 812, p. 165, exhibit 1, our record.)

Did you telephone the President on the night of the 22 concerning this intercepted message? (Cf. How War Came, p. 304.)

Answer: To the best of my recollection I did not telephone to the President on the night of the 22d of November in regard to the intercepted message quoted in the question, and I find no record of having made such a call.

115. Question: Did you on November 26 hand the Japanese Ambassador [14332] an oral statement which rejected the Japanese note of November 20?

Answer: Please refer to my replies to your questions Nos. 6 and 7.

116. Question: Did you, at the same time, hand them a tentative 10-point proposal for a broad settlement of the Pacific situation?

Answer: Please refer to my reply to your question No. 8.

117. Question: Did the Japanese Ambassadors say that their Government would throw up its hands because of these American documents and that their nature was tantamount to meaning the end of the conversations?

Answer: What the Japanese representatives said is covered in the memorandum of my conversation of November 26, 1941, with the Japanese representatives. (Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan. 1931-41, vol. II. pp. 764-766).

As I saw the situation at that time, the Japanese had in fact already "thrown up their hands," and, as subsequent disclosures show, their fleets and armed forces [14333] were then moving for an attack on some five points extending over a vast space. The attitude evinced by the Japanese on the occasion under reference was confirmatory of their fixed purpose of requiring us to surrender our basic policy while they maintained intact their policy of aggression and force.

118. Question: Did the reports of the Japanese Ambassadors to their Government concerning the meeting of November 26, reports known to you by the interception of the messages to Tokyo, coincide in the main with your understanding of what had taken place on November 26?

Answer: The published record of this Government (Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-41, vol. II, pp. 764-765) contains a full account of the substance of the conversation which I had with the Japanese representatives on November 26. The accounts in the Japanese intercepted messages of that conversation in order to be correctly evaluated must be considered in the light of the background of the situation. It is my understanding that the main object of the Japanese Government in pressing for a reply to their November 20 proposal was to ascertain beyond any doubt whether this Government would yield to the Japanese or whether this [14334] Government was going to stand firm, and if the Japanese had learned that we were standing firm they would continue forward with the attack. Our position of not yielding was as clear as crystal to the Japanese Ambassadors, and all their talk of being "dumb-founded" at the nature of our November 26 proposal was a prelude to an attempt, by outrageously false statements uttered in the utmost of bad faith, to shift to this Government responsibility for what they were planning. As showing this thought was specifically in their minds, I quote from the Japanese message 1190 of November 26, appearing on pages 182 and 183 of exhibit 1, especially that portion which reads as follows:

The United States is using the excuse that she is at present negotiating with the various competent countries. In view of the fact that she will propagandize that we are continuing these negotiations only with the view of preparing for our expected moves, should we, during the course of these conversations, deliberately enter into our scheduled operations, there is great danger that the responsibility for the rupture of negotiations will be cast upon us. There have been times in the past when she could have considered discontinuing conversations because of our invasion of French [14335] Indochina. Now, should we, without clarifying our intentions, force a rupture in our negotiations and suddenly enter upon independent operations, there is great fear that she may use such a thing as that as counterpropaganda against us.

The foregoing is a virtual admission that the Japanese Ambassador recognized that responsibility for a rupture would be Japan's and of a purpose to attempt to shift that responsibility.

119. Question: There is, in the record, an intercepted message from Tokyo, No. 823, page 173, which advised Nomura and Kurusu that the deadline fixed for November 29 was to be reckoned in Tokyo time: thus when the President left Washington for Warm Springs at 3 p. m. on November 28, the time in Tokyo was 5 a. m. of November 29; do you know if there were any coincidence in the fact that the President was leaving Washington at the time of the expiration of the deadline set by Tokyo?

Answer: I do not myself recall anything on this point. The fact was that for some days the President and I believed that the chances of meeting the crisis by diplomacy had practically vanished.

On the day the President left for Warm Springs, [14336] November 28, he told the press that he was leaving on a vacation that had twice been postponed, and that while he did not know when he would return, he hoped that it need not be before December 2, adding that he might have to return because of existing conditions in the Pacific. Asked how long he expected these conditions to exist, the President referred the inquirer to Tokyo rather than to Washington.

120. Question: In a talk at the Thanksgiving Day dinner at Warm Springs on the night of November 29 the President said, speaking in terms of the Thanksgiving of the following year; "It is always possible that our boys at the military and naval academies may actually be fighting for the defense of these American institutions of ours" (cf. N. Y. Times, November 30): in the circumstances would you say that the limitation to the boys of the military and naval academies was intended to have particular significance to the Japanese or to the American people?

Answer: I, myself, would not be a party to giving the President's statement the narrow construction suggested. The statement, directed toward national defense and made to an American audience, speaks for itself.

Question 121 and 122 are grouped in a single answer.

- [14337] 121. Question: I have found, Mr. Secretary, a discrepancy in the date given by you in your statement to the committee as to an address by Premier Tojo of Japan and your telephoning the President concerning that address and other developments; on pages 43-44 of your statement the date is fixed as of Sunday, November 30; the New York Times of the morning of November 30, fixes both occurrences as of November 29 and gives this authorized statement by the President's secretary, Mr. Early, issued at Warm Springs on the night of November 29: I quote Mr. Early's statement: "As soon as the President returned to the cottage following the dinner this evening he found a call waiting from the Secretary of State, and they held a lengthy conversation. In view of the reported statement—an Associated Press dispatch by the Premier of Japan—the President tonight is of the opinion that he may have to leave Warm Springs tomorrow afternoon, arranging the railroad schedule so as to arrive in Washington Monday before noon": In view of this record would you say that the Tojo speech was delivered on November 29 and that you telephoned the President concerning it on November 29?

122. Question: Will you give the conversation between you and the President?

[14338] Answer: I seem to have telephoned the President on November 29, instead of on November 30 as, by inadvertence, was inaccurately stated in my prepared statement to the Committee. The statement of Premier Tojo was, according to State Department records, delivered in the form of a message to a Japanese meeting held on November 30. (See Foreign Relations of the United States, vol. II, p. 148.) The apparent discrepancy in time may have resulted from the fact that Japanese time is about 14 hours later than Washington time, or perhaps the message may have been available to the press prior to its delivery.

I have no record of exactly what was said in that telephone conversation. As I told the committee in my prepared statement, in that conversation I advised the President to advance the date of his return to Washington.

Questions 123 and 124 are grouped in a single answer.

123. Question: From page 195 of the record of the Intercepts, exhibit 1, I quote:

(Secret)

From Tokyo

To Washington

November 28, 1941

[14339] # 844

Re your file # 1189

Well, you two Ambassadors have exerted superhuman efforts but, in spite of this, the United States has gone ahead and presented this humiliating proposal. This was quite unexpected and extremely regrettable. The Imperial Government can by no means use it as a basis for negotiations. Therefore, with a report of the views of the Imperial Government on this American proposal which I will send you in 2 or 3 days, the negotiations will be de facto ruptured. This is inevitable. However, I do not wish you to give the impression that the negotiations are broken off: Merely say to them that you are awaiting instructions, and that, although the opinions of your Government are not clear to you, to your own way of thinking the Imperial Government has always made just claims and has borne great sacrifices for the sake of peace in the Pacific. Say that we have always demonstrated a long-suffering and conciliatory attitude, but that, on the other hand, the United States has been unbending, making it impossible for Japan to establish negotiations. Since things have come to this pass, I contacted the man you told me to in your No. 1180 and he said that under the present circumstances what you suggest is entirely unsuitable. From now on do the best [14340] you can.

The record is that this intercepted message had been decoded and translated on November 28; do you recall discussing it with the President before his departure for Warm Springs on the afternoon of the 28th?

124. Question: Did you discuss this intercepted message in your telephonic conversation with the President at Warm Springs on the night of November 29?

Answer: I do not recall discussing with the President the intercepted Japanese message quoted by you.

125. Question: Would you say that it was the Tojo address which alone prompted your call and the President's return?

Answer: The gravity of the situation was evident from many sources. As Tojo's statement reflected the extreme acuteness of the situation, in that sense it may be said that the statement prompted my telephone call and the President's return.

126. Question: Did the intercepted message of the 28th constitute the first official knowledge you had of the Japanese Government's reaction to the notes of the 26th?

[14341] Answer: As I have already stated, I kept no record of when particular messages reached me. I can therefore only presume that the intercepted Japanese message in question was the first knowledge I had of what purported to be the Japanese Government's reaction to this Government's proposal of November 26. This reaction was fully expected in the light of the delivery of the Japanese ultimatum on November 20 and of subsequent developments.

127. Question: The message said definitely, did it not, that the American note was unacceptable, that a rupture was inevitable within a few days, and that Nomura and Kurusu were to make a pretense of carrying on the conversations until the official word came to them of the break?

Answer: The message indicated among other things that the Japanese Government would not accept as a basis for negotiations the American communication of November 26, that the "negotiations" would be de facto ruptured within 2 or 3 days and that the Japanese ambassadors were to avoid giving the impression the "negotiations" were broken off. I have hereinbefore pointed out that I considered serious conversations over after the 20th or 21st barring the very slight possibility that the Japanese might come [14342] back. When the full facts later came out they further confirmed our appraisal of the situation.

128. Question: Did you have in mind, in any way, the secret Tokyo message of the 28th when, on the day following, you told Lord Halifax that the diplomatic phase was over and that the situation was now in the hands of the American Army and Navy? (Peace and War, pp. 816-817.)

Answer: I do not recall whether I had the message in mind when I talked to the British ambassador on November 29. What I told the British ambassador was substantially what I had been saying to the President and to representatives of the Army and Navy for some days previously, based on conclusions derived from various sources.

129. Question: In line with your convictions as to the intentions of Japan did you accept at full value the statements expressed by Tokyo to Nomura and Kurusu on the 28th?

Answer: I considered this message in the light of previous instructions to Nomura and Kurusu to do their utmost to induce the Government of the United States to surrender its basic policies. In the message of November 28 the Japanese Government, realizing that the effort had ended [14343] in failure, was thanking the Japanese representatives for their efforts; secondly the Japanese addressed themselves to framing up a cloak to cover their attack already under way, which cloak included what was in effect the fantastic and monstrously false charge that this Government was treating the Japanese outrageously by refusing to surrender to them.

130. Question: You have testified that on November 29, you prepared for the President's consideration a draft of a Presidential message to Congress advising that body of the American-Japanese situation?

Answer: Please refer to my reply to your question No. 16.

131. Question: Did you, on the evening of November 29, in your telephonic conversation with the President, discuss such a proposed message to Congress?

Answer: I do not recall whether I discussed the proposed message to Congress in a telephone conversation with the President on November 29.

132. Question: In the preparation on the 29th of a proposed Presidential message to Congress did you have in mind, in any [14344] way, that provision of the Constitution which provides that from time to time the President shall give to Congress information as to the state of the Union and recommend to the Congress such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient? (Cf. art. 11, sec. 3.)

Answer: Please refer to my reply to your question No. 19.

133. Question: If your answer to the previous question is "no" I ask you why such a course was considered even to preparation of a message.

Answer: In the critical situation which then existed it was deemed important to give consideration to any and all lines of action that might in the least be helpful in meeting the situation.

134. Question: You have testified that on Sunday, November 30, Lord Halifax told you that the British Government had important indications that Japan was about to attack Siam and the Kra Peninsula; did Lord Halifax tell you that the British had obtained this information through interception of a Tokyo message intended for Hitler, personally?

Answer: [14345] I do not recall that the British Ambassador informed me of the source from which the British Government had had important indications that Japan was about to attack Siam and the Kra Peninsula, and I find nothing in the record indicating that he mentioned the source.

Questions 135 and 137 are grouped in a single answer.

135. Question: A message from the Japanese Ambassador at Berlin to Tokyo, dated November 29 and decoded in Washington on December 1, has the Japanese Ambassador advising his Government that Ribbentrop had informed him that Germany had information that America's stiff front had practically ended the Washington conversations; whereupon the Ambassador had told Ribbentrop that he had no official word from Tokyo as to the conversations or as to Japan's intentions; my question is: Did this intercepted message from Berlin to Tokyo fit in with the evidence of previous intercepts, and of Ambassador Grew's reports, that Japan had been keeping Hitler in the dark as to the Washington conversations? (Cf. Intercepts, exhibit 1, p. 200.)

137. Question: Is it not clearly indicated, if not established, by the intercept from Berlin of November 29 that on that day neither the Japanese Ambassador nor Hitler had [14346] definite information as to Japan's intentions toward the United States?

Answer: It would seem clear from the message under reference that the Japanese Ambassador at Berlin had not communicated from his Government to the German Government at that time a report on the current situation regarding the Japanese-American conversations. The Germans had more than one way of keeping in touch with Japan. The possibility is not excluded that Hitler and also Ribbentrop had received reports from the German Ambassador at Tokyo of the progress of the conversations. Therefore, I would not wish to undertake to interpret the message.

136. Question: November 29 was the day of the Japanese dead line?

Answer: Tokyo's message to the Japanese Ambassador No. 812 of November 22, 1941, of which a translation appears on page 165, exhibit 1, contains the following passage:

There are reasons beyond your ability to guess why we wanted to settle Japanese-American relations by the 25th, but if within the next 3 or 4 days you can finish your conversations with the Americans; if the signing can be completed by the 29th (let me write it out for you— [14347] twenty-ninth); if the pertinent notes can be exchanged; if we can get an understanding with Great Britain and the Netherlands; and in short if everything can be finished, we have decided to wait until that date. This time we mean it, that the dead line absolutely cannot be changed.

The foregoing bald confession by the Japanese Government of its plan and patent movement to attack unless the United States surrendered to the demands in Japan's ultimatum fits in with all that I said and did following that date.

138. Question: Also intercepted, and decoded in Washington on December 1, was a message from the Japanese Government to its Ambassador at Berlin, dated Tokyo, November 30; Therein the Japanese Ambassador is informed that American-Japanese conversations now "stand ruptured—broken"; the Japanese Government instructs the Ambassador to see Hitler and Ribbentrop immediately and to say "very secretly to them that there is extreme danger that war may suddenly break out between the Anglo-Saxon nations and Japan through some clash of arms" and to "add that the time of the breaking out of this war may come quicker than anyone dreams"; my question is: Did this message and the attendant circumstances of it strengthen your [14348] convictions as to Japan's intentions? (Cf. Intercepts, exhibit 1, p. 204.)

Answer: The message to which you refer was cumulative evidence of the conclusions which I had already reached in regard to Japan's intentions, and which were overwhelmingly supported by the surrounding facts and circumstances.

Questions 139 and 140 are grouped in a single answer.

139. Question: In fixing the deadline for November 29, Tokyo had secretly advised Nomura and Kurusu that after that date things would happen automatically, had it not?

140. Question: Did you consider the message to Hitler on November 30, a portentous automatic happening in the crisis?

Answer: On November 22 the Japanese Government instructed Nomura and Kurusu in regard to the extension from November 25 to November 29 for the deadline for the conclusion of an agreement and stated that: "After that things are automatically going to happen" (exhibit No. 1, p. 165). The message from Tokyo to Berlin of November 30, 1941 (exhibit No. 1, p. 204), was, of course, in harmony with what the Japanese had in mind as revealed through numerous sources.

[14349] 141. Question: Did the President return to Washington on December 1?

Answer: The record shows that the President returned to Washington from Warm Springs on December 1.

Questions 142 to 145 are grouped in a single answer.

142. Question: Did he direct the preparation of a strong note to Japan asking of that Government an explanation for its concentration of forces in the southern part of Indochina?

143. Question: Did the President on December 2, direct the State Department to hand the Japanese a communication in which the President stated that Japanese concentrations in southern Indochina implied the utilization of these forces by Japan for aggression against the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, Malaya or Thailand? (Cf. For. Rel. 11, pp. 778-779.)

144. Question: Was such a communication handed to the Japanese?

145. Question: Did that communication state that the Hitleresque nature of the Japanese concentrations and the broad problem of American defense had prompted the President's representations? (Cf. For. Rel. 11, p. 779, last [14350] paragraph of text of note.)

Answer: The President on December 2 simply directed that inquiry be made at once of the Japanese Ambassador in regard to the reasons for the continued Japanese troop movements in Indochina. On the same day the Under Secretary of State, in compliance with the President's instruction, informed the Japanese Ambassador and Mr. Kurusu of the President's inquiry. The record of the matter appears in Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-41, volume II, pages 778-781.

146. Question: Did the Japanese military concentrations and military movements, known to the American Government in the period November 30-December 6, 1941, constitute threats to American Pacific possessions, to the countries neighboring Japan in the Pacific, and to the American sources of vital materials?

Answer: The Japanese military concentrations and military movements known to the American Government in the period November 30-December 6, 1941, so far as I could judge as Secretary of State, did constitute serious threats to American Pacific possessions, to the countries neighboring Japan, and to American sources of vital [14351] materials.

Questions 147 and 148 are grouped in a single answer.

147. Question: Did such threats require that the United States immediately take any and all steps to meet them in conformity with the statement of the American Government to Japan on August 17, 1941, to-wit:

* * * this Government now finds it necessary to say to the Government of Japan that if the Japanese Government takes any further steps in pursuance of a policy or program of military domination by force OR THREAT OF FORCE of neighboring countries, the Government of the United States will be compelled to take immediately any and all steps which it may deem necessary toward safeguarding the legitimate rights and interests of the United States and toward insuring the safety and security of the United States.

(Cf. For. Rel. 11, pp. 556-7.)

148. Question: Did the Japanese military concentrations and movements of November 30-December 6 constitute a challenge to the Government of the United States to implement the position it had taken in its note of August 17 to Japan?

Answer: The purpose of the United States, in making the statement of August 17 under reference, was to tell [14352] Japan in a friendly way that if she kept encroaching upon our rights and interests, we would defend ourselves. This Government at that time was acutely concerned over Japan's refusal to agree to our proposal for the neutralization of Indochina, to abandon her jumping-off place there, and otherwise to desist from the menace she was creating to us and other peace-minded nations. It wholly misrepresents the attitude of the United States in the period after August 17 to allege that this Government was planning any step other than that of pure defense in the event the Japanese should attack. Other aspects of this question, for example, where, when and how we would resist the Japanese, were essentially a military matter.

149. Question: Had the Secretary of State, in September 1940, informed Lord Lothian that American actions towards Japan in the Pacific would be predicated upon a policy of doing everything legitimately possible to help England win the war? (Cf. Peace and War, p. 575.)

Answer: What I said to Lord Lothian on September 30, 1940, in regard to this matter is accurately described in my memorandum of conversation with him appearing on pages 574-575 of Peace and War. My comments to Lord Lothian [14353] had to do with the broad aspects of the situation created by the conclusion of the Tripartite Pact but also had special reference to the winning of the war by Great Britain against Germany. At that moment Germany had already overrun much of the Continent of Europe and the British and the entire Allied cause was virtually hanging by a thread. Every rational person realizes what would have happened to this country if Hitler and his allies had succeeded in their program. It was in these circumstances that I had my conversation with Lord Lothian. I said:

The relations between Germany, Italy, and Japan, each having a common objective of conquering certain areas of the world and each pursuing identical policies of force, devastation and seizure, have been during recent years on a basis of complete understanding and of mutual cooperation for all purposes mutually desirable and reasonably practicable, with the result that the recent announcement was part and parcel of the chain of related events.

I then proceeded to say that this Government has pursued a definite and somewhat progressive line of acts and utterances in resisting Japanese aggression and treaty violations during recent years; that these acts and utterances have comprised repeated aid to China, suc-[14354] cessive moral embargoes, abandonment of the commercial treaty, actual embargoes under law, the sending of our Navy to Hawaii, together with appropriate statements and notes of strong remonstrance against Japanese steps of aggression and constant repetition of the basic principles of world order under law. I added that I did not undertake to predict, much less to make commitments, as to how fast and how far this Government may go in following up the various acts and utterances in which it has been indulging; that, of course, the special desire of this Government is to see Great Britain succeed in the war and that its acts and utterances with respect to the Pacific area would be more or less affected as to time and extent by the question of what course would, on the part of this Government, most effectively and legitimately aid Great Britain in winning the war.

150. Question: Had the Secretary of State in August 1941, informed Lord Halifax that a Japanese movement into the South Pacific would constitute a danger to England second only to a German invasion across the English Channel? (Cf. Peace and War, pp. 710-711.)

Answer: What I said to Lord Halifax on August 9 in regard to this matter is accurately described in my memorandum [14355] of conversation with him appearing on pages 710-711 of Peace and War which reads as follows:

The Ambassador made some inquiry about the amount of aid this Government might give in case Singapore or the Dutch East Indies should be attacked. I replied that I myself visualized the problem and issue in the broader way and that issue is presented by the plan of the Japanese to invade by force the whole of the Indian Ocean and the islands and continents adjacent thereto, isolating China, sailing across probably to the mouth of the Suez Canal, to the Persian Gulf oil area, to the Cape of Good Hope area, thereby blocking by a military despotism the trade routes and the supply sources to the British. I added that this broad military occupation would perhaps be more damaging to British defense in Europe than any other step short of the German crossing of the Channel. I said that this Government visualizes these broad conditions and the problem of resistance which they present; that the activities of this Government in the way of discouraging this Japanese movement and of resistance will be more or less affected by the British defensive situation in Europe and hence by the question of the number of American naval vessels and other American aid that may be needed by Great Britain at the same time. I said that in the event of further [14356] Japanese movements south this Government and the British Government should naturally have a conference at once and this Government would then be able to determine more definitely and in detail its situation pertaining to resistance, in the light of the statement I had just made.

151. Question: Had the Congress, on November 13, 1941, at the solicitation of the President and the Secretary of State, committed the nation to keeping open the sea lanes so that Lend-Lease might fulfill its function? (Cf. New York Times, November 14.)

Answer: My view of the significance of the measure passed by the House of Representatives on November 13, 1941, providing for the amendment to the Neutrality Act is contained in a letter I wrote to Speaker Rayburn and Representative McCormack on that same day.

In that letter I stated:

The breadth of our self-defense must at all times equal the breadth of the dangers which threaten us. In the circumstances of today, we must be free to arm our merchant ships for their own protection; and we must be free, in the event of particular and extreme emergency, to use these ships for the carriage of supplies to nations which are resisting the world- [14357] wide movement of conquest headed in our direction. This Government would, of course, use caution in carrying out the power which it could exercise upon the passage of the bill.

I also stated:

The greatest intermediate objective of Hitler's armed forces is to capture Great Britain and to gain control of the high seas. To this end, Hitler has projected his forces far out into the Atlantic with a policy of submarine ruthlessness. By intimidation and terror he would drive our ships from the high seas, and ships of all nations from most of the North Atlantic. Even in the waters of the Western Hemisphere he has attacked and destroyed our ships, as well as ships of other American republics, with resulting loss of American lives.

The action of Congress in amending the Neutrality Act was only one factor in promoting the broad problem of self-defense, the necessity of which at that time was urgent and compelling.

152. Question: In addition to the physical threat to the Philippines as stated in the President's communication to Japan of December 2, did the Japanese military movements constitute a danger to the commitments made by Congress in authorizing [14358] lend-lease and in re-establishing the American policy of freedom of the seas?

Answer: I would say that the Japanese military movements constituted a danger to the defense of free nations resisting the world-wide movement of conquest. The intent of lend-lease was to assist in that defense. The broad question of danger to this and to all peaceful countries was Japan's military partnership with Hitler for conquest. A material factor in the situation was Japan's flagrant violations of American rights and interests and the jeopardizing of American lives in China, which portended the extension of such violations over a much wider area. This Government could not afford to be deluded by Japan's false claims and pretensions which masked her designs of conquest, and to be oblivious to our own serious dangers.

153. Question: You have testified, have you not, that the decision of the Executive, in the period November 29-December 6, was not to advise Congress in a message of the state of American-Japanese relations?

Answer: In my testimony on November 26, 1945, in reply to questions by counsel as to "what the facts and circum- [14359] stances were which led to the decision not to deliver that message to the Congress prior to December 7, "I set forth various considerations which influenced the President and myself against acting prematurely in that matter. I have also discussed this in answer to your questions Nos. 18 and 19. The issue between isolationists and nonisolationists was then at fever heat and its line of cleavage extended through the Congress. The sending of a message to Congress at this critical juncture would have greatly accentuated that issue and would have correspondingly encouraged the Japanese militarists. The fact was that we had been doing our best to acquaint the Congress and the public with the critical dangers in the situation, and at the same time to avoid precipitating the crisis which the military people were anxious to defer as long as possible.

Questions 154 to 156 are grouped in a single answer.

154. Question: As one reason for this decision not to send a message to Congress, you have testified that Congress only a few weeks before November 29, had by only one vote, sustained the Selective Service. Are you aware that the vote in question was in the House on August 13, 1941, 3½ months before November 29, 1941?

155. Question: [14360] Are you aware that the vote had to do with the matter of releasing at the end of a year's service those whose service had been limited to one year in the original bill?

156. Question: Are you aware that the House took this vote in ignorance of the fact that, a day or two before, the President, at the Atlantic Conference, was agreeing with the British Prime Minister on a course of American action with relation to Japan?

Answer: Without discussing the technicalities of the selective service extension bill under consideration in August 1941, it is still my conviction that the close vote in the House on that bill, 203 to 202, indicated the violently divided character of national opinion at the time. Furthermore, had the bill been defeated, the forces of aggression would have been greatly encouraged and the nations resisting aggression correspondingly discouraged.

In his message to Congress on this subject, July 21, 1941, President Roosevelt said:

Today it is imperative that I should officially report to the Congress what the Congress undoubtedly knows: That the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago. [14361] Occasional individuals, basing their opinions on unsupported evidence or on no evidence at all, may with honest intent assert that the United States need fear no attack on its own territory or on the other nations of this hemisphere by aggressors from without.

Nevertheless, it is the well-nigh unanimous opinion of those who are daily cognizant, as military and naval officers and as Government servants in the field of international relations, that schemes and plans of aggressor nations against American security are so evident that the United States and the rest of the Americas are definitely imperiled in their national interests. * * *

I told the press on August 11, 1941, in response to a question whether failure of the bill would have any effect on Japan, that "the psychological effect alone on many phases of the international situation would be exceedingly bad, to say nothing of the actual results."

With regard to the President's communication to the Japanese Ambassador of August 17, 1941, the President had nothing in mind except a friendly approach to discourage Japan from attacking us. Having participated in that interview, I received no impression from the President's tone or demeanor of any suggestion of a threat. The [14362] President in the same friendly tone agreed that the two Governments should resume amicable conversations looking to a peaceful understanding. Such conversations were then continued in a friendly way for nearly four months. I, therefore, do not see how the attitude of this Government could in any way be construed as offensive or unfriendly or how there can be any warrantable basis for criticism of the President.

Questions 157 and 158 are grouped in a single answer.

157. Question: Were you advised by anyone as to when the Army would be ready for war in the Pacific?

158. Question: Were you advised by anyone as to when the Navy would be ready for war in the Pacific?

Answer: The views of the Chief of Staff and the Chief of Naval Operations on the need of more time for preparedness as set forth in their memoranda of November 5 and November 27, 1941, were known to me at the time. Furthermore, the Army and Navy heads for some time had been representing to me their need of more time in which to strengthen the defense of the United States.

Questions 159 and 163 are grouped in a single answer.

159. Question: [14363] Will you advise the Committee as to who saw the final modus vivendi as prepared by the State Department?

163. Question: Will you advise the committee as to who saw your November 26, 1941, message to Japan?

Answer: The November 25 draft of the modus vivendi was of course, seen, as were all previous drafts, by the far-eastern advisers of the Department of State. It contained nothing of material substance that was not contained in the November 24 draft and the revisions it represented were largely refinements in the interests of precision. The November 24 draft was seen by the diplomatic representatives of the British, Netherlands, and Chinese Governments, and to the best of my recollection by the President and the representatives of the War and Navy Departments. I do not know who outside the Department of State saw the November 25 draft, and in any case there would hardly have been time for it to have any wide circulation before the decision was reached on the following day to withhold, in delivering our reply to the Japanese, the modus vivendi feature. On this point I refer to the three successive drafts of the modus vivendi which are a part of the record. With regard to the 10-point proposal, it is clear [14364] from my reply to your question No. 74 that the contents of the 10-point proposal were seen by all who saw the modus vivendi drafts. However, I cannot say who, other than the far-eastern advisers of the State Department, saw the 10-point proposal in the exact form in which it was set up for delivery to the Japanese. To all of the modus vivendi drafts, the 10-point proposal was attached, as the modus vivendi was intended only to facilitate conversations with the proposals in the 10-point communication as a basis. Japan could not have accepted our modus vivendi draft without being prepared to take as a basis for further conversations a program along the lines of the 10-point proposal, nor could she have avoided declaring at the outset of the conversations that she would pursue a peaceful course, such declaration being set forth in paragraphs 1 and 2 of the modus vivendi in language as follows:

1. The Government of the United States and the Government of Japan, both being solicitous for the peace of the Pacific, affirm that their national policies are directed toward lasting and extensive peace throughout the Pacific area and that they have no territorial designs therein.

2. They undertake reciprocally not to [14365] make from regions in which they have military establishments any advance by force or threat or force into any areas in southeastern or northeastern Asia or in the southern or the northern Pacific area.

Questions 160, 161, 164, and 165 are grouped in a single answer.

160. Question: Will you advise the committee as to who opposed the sending of this modus vivendi?

161. Question: Will you tell us who favored the sending of this modus vivendi?

164. Question: Will you advise the committee as to who opposed the sending of this message (the November 26 message)?

165. Question: Will you advise us who favored the sending of this message?

Answer: While I, of course, consulted the military and naval authorities of this Government and with the far-eastern advisers of the Department of State on all plans for dealing with the critical situation in relation with Japan, the responsibility for decisions, except in matters which I felt should be referred to the President, rested [14366] with me, and I took no poll of "ayes" and "nays." So far as I am aware, however, among the top officials whose function it was to make decisions, there was no dissent at any stage of our intensive consideration in the days between November 22 and November 26 of the modus vivendi proposal or the 10-point proposal.

The situation with which we were called upon to deal between November 22 and November 26 was briefly as follows: We had the indisputable evidence of the intercepted Japanese message of November 22, referred to in my reply to your question No. 136, that the Japanese Government had instructed its representatives that there must be acceptance of its terms without any possibility of further concessions and within a definite time limit—November 29. I and my associates could not escape the conclusion from a reading of the Japanese message that the Japanese had decided to attack unless the United States made basic concessions.

In our clutching at straws to see how far we could go toward tiding over the situation we got up the modus vivendi plan for possible inclusion as a part of our reply along with a plan for a broad but simple settlement covering the entire Pacific area. The modus vivendi plan called for the participation of the Governments of Great Britain, Australia, and the Netherlands in connec- [14367] tion with the provisions in the plan for the modification of the freezing measures. We consulted those Governments and also the Chinese Government which was vitally concerned. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's reaction to the modus vivendi plan as communicated to this Government was that if there was any relaxation of the embargo by this Government, or even a belief on the part of the Chinese people that such action would be taken, Chinese morale would be shattered, Chinese resistance would collapse, and the Japanese would be able to gain their ends. In the light of this serious development and of the chances being overwhelmingly against Japan's acceptance of the modus vivendi proposal, especially as we had convincing evidence that Japan was already moving forward with her military forces and had reached the jumping-off place in Indochina, consideration of all the surrounding circumstances relating to the difficulties and the imminent dangers in the situation led to a conclusion not to propose our modus vivendi draft to the Japanese.

In any event the modus vivendi plan would not have enhanced appreciably the chances of Japan's adopting our counterproposal, for what we would have offered the Japanese in the modus vivendi was mere chicken feed compared with what they were asking for, as set forth in their ultimatum of November 20. The view that Japan would not accept our counterproposal, even with the [14368] modus vivendi feature, was, to the best of my recollection, shared by all the high officials in the Government who are known to have expressed any views on the subject, as, for example, the following instances: On November 24 Admiral Stark, in a circular message, addressed, among others, to the Commander in chief, Pacific Fleet, pointed out that the chances of a favorable outcome of the negotiations with Japan were very doubtful and that a surprise aggressive movement by the Japanese in any direction was a probability. On November 25 Admiral Stark followed up that message with a letter to Admiral Kimmel. In the letter he stated that he had held up dispatch of the letter pending a meeting with the President and Mr. Hull. Admiral Stark stated that neither the President nor Mr. Hull would be surprised over a Japanese surprise attack and that they had confirmed the view expressed in the previous message regarding the gravity of the situation. Secretary Stimson in his diary entry for November 25 stated that at a meeting at the White House the President expressed the view that, "We are likely to be attacked perhaps as soon as—perhaps next Monday."

Some persons, in attempting to reconstruct the situation which then existed, seem to have been misled by Japanese charges misrepresenting the character of the 10-point proposal. They seem to have completely over- [14369] looked the fact, which was subsequently disclosed, that by November 26 when our proposal was delivered to the Japanese, orders had already been given to their fleet to sail preparatory to the attack which was later made according to schedule. It was this movement to attack which prompted the Japanese to start preparing their utterly false and fraudulent misrepresentations, which amounted to the monstrous charge, made in the worst of bad faith, that they had been forced to fight because our statement of policy as contained in our November 26 proposal was harsh and humiliating. Neither the Japanese leaders who falsely pretended to be "dumb-founded" over our proposal of November 26, notwithstanding the fact that it was along lines we had been discussing for months, nor those who supported this Japanese contention had at any time claimed that the Japanese would make the least concession beyond their proposal of November 20, nor have they advanced any suggestion as to what further concessions the United States would have to make, short of complete acceptance of the Japanese proposal of November 20.

There was no reason for the Japanese to have come to us at any stage with their demands, nor was there any need for a new agreement between the United States and Japan. All that was necessary was for Japan to [14370] abandon her course of aggression and adopt one of peace, and the situation in the Pacific area would have adjusted itself almost automatically by the observance on the part of Japan, along with other signatory powers, of the Nine-Power Treaty, of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact, and other treaties and commitments, including a commitment to respect the "open door" in China, to which Japan was a party. Nor must also the fact be overlooked that while Japan was repudiating these solemn treaty obligations by taking the aggressive and moving her armed forces toward us and other peaceful countries, we were pleading, as a peaceful and law-abiding nation, with Japan to abandon her course of conquest and likewise become law-abiding and peaceful.

Our position, as summed up in the 10-point program, was really nothing new to the Japanese. We had been discussing with them throughout months of conversations broad-gaged principles, practical applications of which were along the lines of the 10-point proposal. The proposal was not presented to them in the form of demands, but merely as an example of a kind of settlement we would like to see worked out in the Pacific area. We were not bargaining with the Japanese as if we ourselves had been offenders. The only issue or question to be settled was whether we could prevail upon Japan to abandon [14371] her increasingly dangerous movements of conquest and agree to become law-abiding and to adopt a peaceful course. This was the all-important issue which the Japanese in the end sought to cover up and dodge.

The 10-point program also summed up, so the general public might understand, many of the general and special benefits which might accrue to Japan if she renounced a course of aggression; such as, enhancement of her national security through participation in a multilateral nonaggression pact and through measures calculated to stabilize the situation in the Far East, including the abrogation by the powers of extra territoriality in China and the giving of mutual pledges regarding respect for the integrity of Indochina; and an advantageous economic program: A generous trade agreement with the United States, removal of the freezing regulations, an agreement upon a plan for stabilization of the dollar-yen rate. What Japan was asked to do in return was to give practical application to the professions she had made of her peaceful intent by agreeing to withdraw her armed forces from China and Indochina, to support no regime in China other than the National Government of China, and to agree not to interpret any agreement to which she was a party in such a way as to conflict with the establishment and preservation of peace throughout the [14372] Pacific area. Surely, these latter were reasonable and necessary conditions for the privileges that were offered to Japan. The 10-point proposal would have been highly welcome to Japan if she had had any intention of adopting peaceful courses. It would be a monstrous travesty of the facts and an unspeakable libel on this country if the Japanese war lords in their effort to disclaim responsibility should be permitted to screen and shift their guilt in the face of all the facts to the contrary.

162. Question: Did you agree with Ambassador Grew and others that the placing of the embargo upon Japan would mean war?

Answer: The general proposition regarding the effect of embargoes upon Japan, especially as applicable to the situation from 1938 to 1940, is set forth on page 88 of Peace and War, U. S. Foreign Policy. The important fact, however, which had to be taken into account in the situation at the time when this Government applied freezing measures to Japan in July, 1941, was the advance of Japan's armed forces so as seriously and immediately to imperil the security of this and other countries. At that stage, Japan was in effect brazenly demanding military supplies with which to attack this and other [14373] countries to the south. The question of our self-defense had by that time become supreme with us and impelled us to refuse to furnish the invader with military supplies.

Questions 166 to 169 are grouped in a single answer.

166. Question: Were you or anyone in the State Department to your knowledge consulted in regard to the military plan being drawn up by America, Britain, the Netherlands, and China, sometimes known as the ABCD block?
167. Question: If you were so consulted will you state who consulted you and what was said at the conference?

168. Question: Did representatives of the State Department participate in any of these conversations?

169. Question: If so, state the name of that representative.

Answer: From time to time I participated from the political angle, in discussions with the President and the leaders of the Army and of the Navy in regard to the subject of the military conversations with the British and the Dutch for joint defensive plans. No representative of the Department of State participated in those [14374] staff conversations, but there was a Department of State representative who participated in the conversations regarding defense which were held with the Canadians. There was no Chinese participation in the foregoing conversations.

In the discussions which I held with the President and the leaders of the Army and of the Navy in regard to those conversations, as made clear above, I did not pass upon the military aspect of questions, but occasionally offered comments and suggestions as a layman. The views that I expressed were along the lines I had expressed publicly as well as in talks with diplomatic representatives. I refer you to what I said in that regard in an address on March 17, 1938 (Peace and War, pp. 412-413), as follows:

Prudence and common sense dictate that, where this and other nations have common interests and common objectives, we should not hesitate to exchange information and to confer with the governments of such other nations and, in dealing with the problems confronting each alike, to proceed along parallel lines—this Government retaining at all times its independence of judgment and freedom of action. For nations which seek peace to assume with respect to each other [14375] attitudes of complete aloofness would serve only to encourage, and virtually invite, on the part of other nations lawlessly inclined, policies and actions most likely to endanger peace.

In the present Far Eastern emergency, we have consistently collaborated with other peace-seeking nations in the manner I have just described. I have said often, and I repeat again, that in this collaboration there is not a trace of alliance or involvement of any sort. We have scrupulously followed and we intend to follow the traditional policy of our country not to enter into entangling alliances or involvements with other countries.

On November 25, 1940, I gave my views to the British Ambassador, Lord Lothian, in commenting upon his expressed view that there should be conferences between the naval experts of our two governments with respect to what each would or might do in case of military outbreaks on the part of Japan. I said that, of course, there could be no agreements entered into in this respect, but that there should undoubtedly be collaboration with a view to making known to each other any and all information practicable in regard to what both might have in mind to do, and when and where, in case of a military move- [14376] ment by Japan in the south or in some other direction.

There was no suggestion on the part of any of us in this Government, so far as I knew, that in the military staff conversations our representatives could go beyond, at the very most, making recommendations which, of course, would have been subject to congressional approval.

Mr. LANE. The committee received a sworn statement dated March 1946 from former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. This statement was in response to inquiry by committee counsel for certain portions of a diary kept by Mr. Stimson. We ask that the statement and appendix thereto be spread on the record at this point.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The statement referred to follows:)

[14377] STATEMENT BY HENRY L. STIMSON, FORMER SECRETARY OF WAR, TO THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK, S. CON. RES. 27, WITH APPENDIX, MARCH 1946

[14378—*p. 1*¹] STATEMENT OF FACTS AS SHOWN BY MY CURRENT NOTES AND MY RECOLLECTION AS REFRESHED THEREBY

The committee already has before it my testimony before the Army Pearl Harbor Board. At that time I undertook to give the board the answers to the questions which were asked me as fully as I was then able, having in mind certain limitations on what I then felt was proper to discuss, including particularly any matters the revelation of which might in any way have jeopardized the safety of our then pending military operations. I am now able, however, to amplify in certain respects the testimony which I gave before the board.

The evidence which I am able to give the committee comes not only from my recollection of the events which transpired preceding the Pearl Harbor attack, but I am able to refresh my recollection from a contemporaneous record which I kept from day to day for my own personal use. As I explained to the Army board, I had a dictograph at my house at which I dictated these memoranda each morning before going to the War Department. I read many excerpts from these to the Army Pearl Harbor Board. This committee last autumn asked me for my notes covering the dates of November 5, 6, 7, 10, 21, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, and December 2 and 7, 1941. [p. 2] I am attaching to this statement as an appendix copies of my notes covering these dates, of matters [14379] relevant to the Far Eastern situation and the events leading up to the attack on Pearl Harbor. Although these extracts speak largely for themselves, they were made roughly and hastily and were not revised when dictated. They therefore naturally need some addition to tie them in as a connected story and to give the whole picture as I saw it. It is for this reason that I am accompanying them with this statement.

No accurate understanding can be had of the situation which existed in the weeks preceding the Pearl Harbor attack or of the conduct of the various individuals concerned unless they are viewed in the light of the historical events which had been going on for some time and which ultimately led to the crisis that occurred in December and the war of the United States with the Axis powers. From some of the comments which have been made and given wide publicity, one receives the impression that many people have already forgotten the trend of events which were coming to a head in the autumn of 1941 and the threat to our own safety which had unmistakably developed in the actions of the two great aggressor nations, Germany and Japan, who already in the preceding months and years had begun spreading destruction and terror throughout a large portion of the civilized world.

¹ Additional numbers in italics enclosed by brackets represent original pages in the statement submitted by Mr. Stimson, which pages were frequently referred to during the examination of certain witnesses.

[p. 3] Japan had started on her current path of aggression in the Far East as early as September 1931. She then attacked the Chinese in Manchuria and overran that territory, flouting her [14380] obligations under the Pact of Paris and the Nine Power Treaty. There then followed her attacks on the Chinese in Shanghai. She invaded China in 1937, after the conclusion of the Anticomintern Pact with Germany. The brutal and barbarous type of military aggression for which she stood was typified by the outrages committed by her Army in the occupation of Nanking and similar incidents, which by 1941 had become notorious events of history. In September 1940, after Germany had set out on her temporarily triumphal path toward the subjugation of the nations of Europe, Japan concluded a military alliance with Germany and Italy and placed herself formally in the camp of the Axis powers.

By the summer of 1941, the Japanese intentions in the Far East became very clear. After Germany attacked Russia in June of that year, Japan began extensive military preparations—among other things, calling an additional 2,000,000 men to the colors. The utterances of her war lords became increasingly threatening. She extended her military operations into southern French Indochina. That she was headed toward the ultimate occupation of Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies, and thence the domination of the [p. 4] entire Southeast Asia, was evident not only from her overt act and announcements but from certain of her intercepted diplomatic messages in which her intentions were expressed in more detail.

All of this presented a great threat to our safety and interests. If Singapore and the Netherlands Indies should be [14381] occupied, Japan would be strengthened by the acquisition of a great fortress and a great source of natural resources in rubber and oil, which would help her greatly to carry on her program of depredation. The Philippines, which lay between Japan and these British and Dutch targets, would inevitably be the next victim, and at her mercy. China might easily be forced to capitulate and taken out of the war. Our military advisers had given the President their formal advice that, if Japan attacked British Malaya or the Dutch East Indies or moved her forces west of a certain line in Indochina, we would have to fight for the sake of our own security.

On the other side of the world, we were faced with a situation which was even more critical. Hitler, having seized Norway, France, Belgium, Denmark, and Holland, had just attacked Russia in June of 1941 and the Russians were fighting a desperate battle to stop the German Army from overrunning a large portion of her territory and her capital. [p. 5] In the meantime, the Germans were maintaining large forces deployed on the north coast of Europe as a continual threat of an invasion of England which, as we know, was ill prepared to meet it. As we now know from the evidence presented at the trial of the German war criminals in Nuremburg, Hitler was planning ultimately to attack the United States and was conspiring with the Japanese to aid them while they attacked us in the meantime. It was then very apparent to everyone who had carefully followed the course of [14382] events that we would sooner or later have to meet the threat to civilization which these aggressor nations were presenting to the world, and the great danger was that the nations who were then fighting desperately and gallantly to stem this threat would be knocked out of the war one by one before our turn came and that we would ultimately be left to face the onslaught alone.

The American people had been slow to recognize the danger, but by the autumn of 1941 it was beginning to be understood more clearly. Early in 1941, Congress, in the Lend-Lease Act, had authorized the furnishing of munitions to the nations fighting the Axis and the shelter of our ports to their warships. In August 1941 the Congress passed a bill extending the draft. In November 1941, Congress voted to repeal important sections of the neutrality law, thus per- [p. 6] mitting the arming of our ships and their sailing into any combat zone or belligerent port in the world. On November 23, 1941, Representative Gearhart of California, in a broadcast on the "American Forum of the Air," after pointing out Japan's breaches of treaty obligations and her subsequent aggression in China, stated:

Japan's ruthlessness makes her an enemy not only of China but also a common foe of all nations.

From some of the comments quoted in the public press, one would get the impression that the imminent threat of war in October and November 1941 was a deep secret, known only to the authorities in Washington who kept it mysteriously to themselves. [14383] Nothing could be further from the truth. At least one of our destroyers had been attacked by German war vessels. Aside from the war warnings which were sent to our military and naval commanders in the various theaters of danger, the imminence of war with Japan was a matter of public knowledge and the people were being warned time and time again of the danger which was approaching. One need only read the headlines of the newspapers during this period. For example, on October 17 the Navy ordered all American merchant ships in the Pacific to put into safe ports. On October 24 Secretary Knox publicly warned of a "clash" with Japan and the "seriousness [p. 7] of the situation." On November 11, 1941—Armistice Day—the President himself warned the people that the Nation was facing a world war again. Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, declared on that day that "our people realized that at any moment war may be forced upon us." During this period, day after day, the headlines warned of the approaching crisis with Japan. On November 26 there appeared on the front page of the "New York Times" the notice that the United States consulate in Tokyo had warned Americans to get out of Japan promptly. On Monday, December 1st, appeared the headline that "Roosevelt Hurries Back in the Crisis." In Honolulu itself the papers were carrying equally sensational headlines. For example, on November 30 appeared the headline "Japanese May Strike Over Weekend."

Meanwhile we had been doing what we could to get ready for [14384] war if and when it came. After the long period necessary to lay the foundations of our ultimate enormous production, the output of war materials in this country was beginning to increase rapidly; but we were still using large quantities of it under the Lend-Lease Act to satisfy the demands of the nations who were already in the battle and holding off the enemy. We were shipping all we could spare to England and in particular to Russia, which was then in the forefront of the fight.

[p. 8] In the meantime, the War Department was doing what it could to fortify the Pacific. We were giving all the material and effectives that we could spare to Hawaii in particular, which was in fact prior to the time of the Pearl Harbor attack reported to me by the Staff as the best manned and equipped of all our outposts on the Pacific, including the Panama Canal. We were also doing our best to reenforce the Philippines. The effectiveness of the airplane against a navy in narrow seas had been recently demonstrated in the Mediterranean by the German air attacks on British naval forces, as well as by the success of the British attack on the Italian fleet at Taranto. We decided that if a sufficient number of our bombing planes, which would be able to proceed to the Philippine Islands under their own power, could be gathered there, this would present a very effective nucleus of a defense against the advances of the Japanese Navy or convoys in South Asiatic waters. Accordingly, in August we started sending out to the Philippines as many four-engined [14385] bombers as we could spare, and by December 7 we had in fact gathered there some 35 of these ships. This was the largest group of such American bombers yet in existence anywhere. We felt at the time that these presented a strong striking force which could be used with great effect in operations against the Japanese Navy. We underestimated, as did everyone else, the effective power of Japanese aviation, which [p. 9] asserted itself at Pearl Harbor and 1 day later in the Philippines by its attack on our installations there, including the destruction of many of the bombers themselves.

In mid-October the Japanese Konoye cabinet fell and a new cabinet under General Tojo came into power, which all expected would be even more aggressive and warlike.

To sum up, the salient features of the situation, as they appeared to me early in November 1941, were as follows:

1. War with Germany and Japan would ultimately be inevitable.
2. It was vitally important that none of the nations who were then desperately fighting Germany—England, Russia, or China—should be knocked out of the war before the time came when we would be required to go in.
3. While we very much wanted more time in which to prepare, nevertheless we felt we had a fair chance to make an effective fight against Japan for the Philippines [14386] even if we had to enter the war at that time, in view of the air power that we were building up in the Philippines.
4. If war did come, it was important, both from the point of view of unified support of our own people as well as for the record of history, that we should not [p. 10] be placed in the position of firing the first shot, if this could be done without sacrificing our safety, but that Japan should appear in her true role as the real aggressor.

During this entire period I kept in constant and close touch with Mr. Hull and Mr. Knox, as well as having frequent meetings with the President. In 1940 Messrs. Hull and Knox and I had inaugurated regular weekly meetings in Mr. Hull's office so that there would be close liaison between the three of us. These meetings were held on Tuesday mornings at 9:30 whenever we were present in Washington and able to go. They were being held during this period, in October and November 1941, as well as meetings between us on other occasions.

Early in November we received word that the Japanese were sending an additional special envoy, Kurusu, to Washington to participate in the conversations that were being held. I had little hope that anything would come of his proposal, in view of all the information which we had been receiving as to the Jap's determination to proceed with their program of aggression.

On November 6, I had an hour's talk alone with the [14387] President with regard to the Far Eastern situation and his approaching conference with Kurusu, who was coming from [p. 11] Japan. The thing uppermost in his mind was how we could gain more time. I quote from my notes:

The President outlined what he thought he might say. He was trying to think of something that would give us further time. He suggested he might propose a truce in which there would be no movement or armament for six months and then if the Japanese and Chinese had not settled their arrangement in that meanwhile, we could go on on the same basis.

I personally did not approve of a truce on such a basis and told him so. I felt that it would tie up our hands just at a time when it was so important that we should go on completing our reenforcement of the Philippines and our military advisers then felt that if we could accumulate enough of them there it would place us in a favorable strategic position, and I did not approve of any arrangement that would prevent our continuing this program. Secondly, it was still very important that we keep the Chinese in the war, and I believed that they would feel that such a truce was a desertion of them, and that this would have a very serious effect on Chinese morale.

On Friday, November 7, we had the usual weekly Cabinet meeting. The Far Eastern situation was uppermost in many of our minds. Mr. Hull informed us that relations had become [14388] extremely critical and that we should be on the outlook for an attack by Japan at any time. Our military [p. 12] advisers, while desirous of delay, had urged military action if Japan attacked territory whose security was vital to us and in this connection specified American, British, or Dutch territory. The President at the meeting undertook to take an informal vote of the Cabinet as to whether it was thought the American people would back up if it became necessary to strike at Japan, in case she should attack England in Malaya or the Dutch in the East Indies. The Cabinet was unanimous in the feeling that the country would support such a move. The Cabinet voted this way even though only Mr. Hull and the President knew of the efforts which we had been making to reenforce the Philippines with the big bombers and which we in the Army felt could be effective support in case any attack should be made on the British or Dutch in southeastern Asia. On November 10 at a staff meeting, General Marshall, among other things, read us a long letter from General MacArthur in the Philippines, telling us of hopeful progress in the reorganization of the Philippine Army and the construction of airports throughout the islands.

Between November 10 and 21, talks were commenced in Washington between Nomura and Kurusu on the one hand, and the President and Mr. Hull on the other. During this period a very serious crisis developed by reason of the threatened [p. 13] strike of the coal miners; which would have been a most serious obstacle [14389] to our preparations for defense. Not only was the President occupied with this but we in the War Department during this period were obliged to make preparations for taking over and operating the coal mines in case the strike should eventuate. Much of my personal time was occupied during these days with these preparations. Fortunately, the strike was ultimately averted and the matter resolved shortly after November 20. My notes contain no reference to any developments in the Japanese situation during this period. It was during this period, on November 20, that Kurusu presented the Japanese proposals to Mr. Hull which, among other things, demanded that we should withdraw all material and moral support to China and at the same time resume supplying to Japan the oil she required to assist her in carrying on her war with China.

My notes recall to me the fact that on November 24 I had a good talk with General Olmstead, who had recently been promoted to be Chief Signal Officer. This department was of particular interest to me because I had been giving a great deal of personal attention during the past months to the development of radar by the Army. I had for some time become convinced of the importance of radar, both as an antiaircraft protection as well as its uses for [p. 14] installation in planes and ships for combat purposes. We had made every effort to get as much radar equipment to Hawaii as possible, particularly for antiaircraft protection; and, as the committee has undoubtedly heard, [14390] substantial amounts of this equipment of the movable type were in Hawaii and capable of operation.

On Tuesday, November 25, Secretary Knox and I met in Mr. Hull's office for our usual Tuesday morning meeting. Mr. Hull showed us a proposal that he had prepared, which he was considering laying before Nomura and Kurusu for a 3 months' truce.

At 12 o'clock on the same day, we three went to the White House, where we met with the President and also General Marshall and Admiral Stark. The President at once brought up the relations with the Japanese. Mr. Hull said the Japanese were poised for attack—that they might attack at any time. The President said the Japanese were notorious for making an attack without warning and stated that we might even be attacked, say next Monday, for example.

One problem troubled us very much. If you know that your enemy is going to strike you, it is not usually wise to wait until he gets the jump on you by taking the initiative. In spite of the risk involved, however, in letting the Japanese fire the first shot, we realized that [p. 15] in order to have the full support of the American people it was desirable to make sure that the Japanese be the ones to do this so that there should remain no doubt in anyone's mind as to who were the aggressors. We discussed at this meeting the basis on which this country's position could be most clearly explained to our own people and [14391] to the world, in case we had to go into the fight quickly because of some sudden move on the part of the Japanese. We discussed the possibility of a statement summarizing all the steps of aggression that the Japanese had already taken, the encirclement of our interests in the Philippines which was resulting and the threat to our vital supplies of rubber from Malay. I reminded the President that on August 19 he had warned the Japanese Ambassador that if the steps which the Japanese were then taking continued across the border into Thailand, he would regard it as a matter affecting our safety, and suggested that he might point out that the moves the Japanese were now apparently on the point of making would be in fact a violation of a warning that had already been given.

When I got back to the War Department after this meeting on that same day, I found news from G-2 that was very disturbing. It indicated that the Japanese were embarking a large expeditionary force of 30, 40, or 50 ships at [p. 16] Shanghai and that this expedition was proceeding along the China coast south of Formosa. I at once telephoned Mr. Hull and also sent copies of the report to the President.

The next morning, November 26, Mr. Hull told me over the telephone that he had almost decided not to make the proposition of the three months' truce that he had discussed with Knox and me on November 25. The Chinese, for one thing, had pointed out strong objections to the proposal, particularly the effect on the [14392] morale of their own people. Mr. Hull stated that he felt the best thing to do was simply to tell the Japanese that he had no further action to propose.

I telephoned the President shortly thereafter and asked him whether he had received the news of the new expedition from Shanghai proceeding down the China coast toward Indo-China. He had not received it. He was shocked by it, and at once took it as further evidence of bad faith on the part of the Japanese, that while they were negotiating with him—negotiations in which we were asking for a withdrawal of their invading troops in China—they should be sending a further expedition down to Indochina.

On Thursday morning, November 27, the news was still coming in of the movement of the large Japanese expeditionary force south from Shanghai and eventually [p. 17] headed toward Indochina, with a possibility that it might be proceeding to the Philippines or to Burma to cut off the Burma Road, or to the Dutch East Indies. It seemed probable, however, that it was a concentration to move over into Thailand, from which they could be in a position to attack Singapore at the proper moment; or, as the President later pointed out, it might develop into an attack on Rangoon and thus effectually stop the Burma Road at its beginning.

Early that morning I had called up Mr. Hull to find out what his final word had been with the Japanese—whether he had [14393] handed them the proposal for 3 months' truce, or whether he had told them he had no other proposition to make. He told me that he had broken the whole matter off. His words were: "I have washed my hands of it and it is now in the hands of you and Knox—the Army and the Navy." I then called up the President, who gave me a little different view. He said that it was true that the talks had been called off, but that they had ended up with a magnificent statement prepared by Mr. Hull. I found out afterwards that this was the fact and that the statement contained a reaffirmation of our constant and regular position without the suggestion of a threat of any kind. I personally was relieved that we had not backed down on any of the fundamental principles on which we had stood for [p. 18] so long and which I felt we could not give up without the sacrifice of our national honor and prestige in the world. I submit, however, that no impartial reading of this document can characterize it as being couched in the terms of an ultimatum, although the Japanese were of course only too quick to seize upon it and give it that designation for their own purposes.

Shortly after this General Arnold came in with proposed orders for the movement of two of our biggest planes from San Francisco out across the Mandated Islands to Manila. We were to arrange to have these fly high over the Mandated Islands, beyond the reach of their pursuit planes, and photograph them with the idea of trying to detect any naval concentrations [14394] that might be going on there.

Later Mr. Knox and Admiral Stark came over and conferred with me and General Gerow. General Gerow was Chief of the War Plans Division. General Marshall was absent, having left the Department to attend certain Army training maneuvers which were doing on that day. Both Admiral Stark and General Gerow were urging that any crisis be postponed as long as possible, to enable our preparations to proceed. A memorandum had been prepared by General Marshall and Admiral Stark to the President on this subject. The opinion of our top military and naval advisers was that [p. 19] delay was very desirable, but that nevertheless we must take military action if Japan attacked American, or British, or Dutch territory or moved her forces in Indochina west of 100° east or south of 10° north. I told them, which was the fact, that I also would be glad to have time but I did not want it at the cost of humiliation of the United States or of backing down on any of our principles which would show a weakness on our part.

We then discussed the messages that might be sent to the commanding officers of the various theaters, including in particular General MacArthur, who was in the Philippines and in the forefront of the threatened area. We had already sent MacArthur a warning but I felt that the time had now come for a more definite warning. In talking with the President on the telephone that morning, I had suggested, and he had approved [14395] the idea, that we should send out a final alert, namely that they should be on the qui vive for any attack, and explaining the exact situation. Ordinarily, of course, there would be no reason for me to participate in the sending of any such message which was the normal function of the military staff. As the President himself, however, had now actually directed the sending of the message, and as I wanted the [p. 20] message clearly to apprise the commanding officers in the various areas as to exactly what the diplomatic situation was, I undertook to participate in the framing of this message myself. In order that it should be strictly accurate, I called up Mr. Hull myself on the telephone and got his exact statement as to the status of the negotiations, which was then incorporated in the first sentence of the message. My papers also indicate that I inserted in the second sentence the words "BUT HOSTILE ACTION POSSIBLE AT ANY MOMENT."

This same message was sent to commanding office, Hawaiian Department, and to the three other commanding officers of our Pacific theaters or outposts, viz: Panama, the Philippines, and the west coast which included Alaska, except that in the case of the message to General MacArthur in the Philippines there were omitted from the third sentence from the end the following words: "BUT THESE MEASURES SHOULD BE CARRIED OUT SO AS NOT COMMA REPEAT NOT COMMA TO ALARM CIVILIAN POPULATION OR DISCLOSE INTENT." The message as sent to General Short read as follows:

[14396]

COMMANDING GENERAL, HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT,
Fort Shafter, T. H.

Negotiations with Japan appear to be terminated to all practical purposes with only the barest possibilities that the Japanese Government might come back and offer to continue period Japanese future action unpredictable but hostile action possible at any moment period If hostilities [p. 21] cannot comma repeat cannot comma be avoided the United States desires that Japan commit the first overt act period This policy should not comma repeat not comma be construed as restricting you to a course of action that might jeopardize your defense period Prior to hostile Japanese action you are directed to undertake such reconnaissance and other measures as you deem necessary but these measures should be carried out so as not comma repeat not comma to alarm civil population or disclose intent period Report measures taken period Should hostilities occur you will carry out the tasks assigned in Rainbow Five so far as they pertain to Japan period Limit dissemination of this highly secret information to minimum essential officers.

MARSHALL.

This message has been criticized as ambiguous and described as a "do-don't" message. The fact is that it presented with the utmost precision the situation with which we were all confronted and in the light of which all our commanding officers, as well as we ourselves in Washington, had to govern our conduct. The [14397] situation was admittedly delicate and critical. On the one hand, in view of the fact that we wanted more time, we did not want to precipitate war at this moment if it could be avoided. If there was to be war, moreover, we wanted the Japanese to commit the first overt act. On the other hand, the matter of defense against an attack by Japan was the first consideration. In Hawaii, because of the large numbers of Japanese inhabitants, it was felt desirable to issue a special warning so that nothing would be done, unless necessary to the defense, to alarm the civil population and thus possibly to precipitate an incident [p. 22] and give the Japanese an excuse to go to war and the chance to say that we had committed the first overt act.

All these considerations were placed before the commanding officers of their respective areas, and it was because they were thought competent to act in a situation of delicacy requiring judgment and skill that they had been placed in these high posts of command. One of the basic policies of the Army command, which has been adhered to throughout the entire war, and in most instances with complete success, has been to give the local commander his objective and mission but not to interfere with him in the performance of it. When General Short was informed on November 27 that "Japanese action unpredictable" and that "hostile action possible at any moment," and that the policy directed "should not comma repeat not comma be construed as restricting you to a course of action that might jeopardize your [14398] defense," we had a right to assume that he would competently perform this paramount duty entrusted to him. We assumed that when he had been warned that hostile action was possible at any moment, it would not be necessary to repeat that warning over and over again during the ensuing days. The fact was of course that General Short did receive, not [p. 23] only from Washington but from other sources, repeated intelligence of the impending crisis.

You will notice that this message of November 27 specifically mentions that reconnaissance is to be undertaken. This to my mind was a very important part of the message, not only because of its obvious desirability but also because we had provided the Hawaiian Department with what I regarded as a most effective means of reconnaissance against air attack and one to which I had personally devoted a great deal of attention during the preceding months. I refer to the radar equipment with which the Hawaiian Department was then provided. This equipment permitted approaching planes to be seen at distances of approximately 100 miles; and to do so in darkness and storm as well as in clear daylight. In the early part of 1941 I had taken up earnestly the matter of securing such radar equipment for aircraft protection. I knew, although it was not then generally known, that radar had proved of the utmost importance to the British in the Battle of Britain, and I felt in the beginning of 1941 that we were not getting this into production [14399] and to the troops as quickly as we should, and put on all the pressure I could to speed up its acquisition. By the autumn of 1941 we [p. 24] had got some of this equipment out to Hawaii, and only a few days before this I had received a report of the tests which had been made of this equipment in Hawaii on November 19, which indicated very satisfactory results in detecting approaching airplanes. I testified at considerable length with regard to this before the Army Pearl Harbor Board (A. P. H. B., 4064, et seq.). When we specifically directed the commanding officer at Hawaii, who had been warned that war was likely at any moment, to make reconnaissance, I assumed that all means of reconnaissance available to both the Army and Navy would be employed. On the same day a war warning was dispatched to the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet by the Chief of Naval Operations. The standing instructions to the theater commanders were that all messages of this character were to be exchanged between the Army and Navy commands.

I repeat that my participation in the drafting of this message of November 27 was unusual, since I do not believe it is advisable for the Secretary of War to meddle with military staff matters. As already stated, I did so on this occasion because I felt I was conveying a message from the President. The President had taken a [p. 25] momentous decision that day, namely to send what I call a final alert. The Chief of [14400] Staff was away for the day, and I wanted to make certain that the President's orders were carried out accurately.

You will note that my notes speak only of the message to General MacArthur. This is evidence of what was the fact—namely that we all felt in Washington that the first and most likely danger was an attack on the Philippines and that such an attack would be most difficult to meet. Such information as we had been able to gather as to the movements of the Japanese forces indicated a movement toward the south, which might easily be diverted either to Indochina, Malay Peninsula, Dutch East Indies, or the Philippines. We were correct in this inference. Such an attack on the Philippines was being prepared and immediately followed the attack on Pearl Harbor. The movements of the fleet which attacked Pearl Harbor were entirely unknown to us.

When the replies to these messages came in from General MacArthur and General Short, they were checked to me by General Marshall, undoubtedly for the [p. 26] purpose of reassuring me that our messages had been duly received. The original documents bear my initials, indicating that they were noted by me.

The first thing in the morning of the next day—Friday, November 28—I received information from G-2 of such a formidable character with regard to the movements of the Japanese forces along the Asiatic coast that I decided to take it to the President before he got up. I saw him while he was still [14401] in bed, and we discussed the situation. He suggested that there were three alternatives, as my notes show: First, to do nothing; second, to make something in the nature of an ultimatum, stating a point beyond which we would fight; or, third, to fight at once. I said that I felt that to do nothing was out of the question and the President agreed with me. As to the other two alternatives, the desirable thing to do from the point of view of our own tactics and safety was to take the initiative and attack without further warning. It is axiomatic that the best defense is offense. It is always dangerous to wait and let the enemy make the first move. I was inclined to feel that the warning given in August by the President against further moves by the Japanese [p. 27] toward Thailand justified an attack without further warning, particularly as their new movement southward indicated that they were about to violate that warning. On the other hand, I realized that the situation could be made more cleancut from the point of view of public opinion if a further warning were given.

I went at 12 o'clock that day to a meeting of the so-called War Cabinet—that is to say, the President, Mr. Hull, Mr. Knox, Admiral Stark, General Marshall, and myself. The President had been studying the latest report of G-2 as to the movements of the Japanese expeditionary force, and we discussed the various possibilities as to what it meant. The various [14402] alternative mentioned were that it might develop into an attack on the Philippines, the landing of further troops in Indochina, an attack on Thailand, on the Dutch Netherlands, or on Singapore, or that it might develop into an attack on Rangoon and thus cut off the Burma Road at the beginning. The possibility of an attack on Pearl Harbor was not discussed at the meeting, since our thoughts were all focused on this movement toward southeast Asia, which indicated a crisis in that direction. All agreed that if the expedition were permitted to land in the Gulf of Siam it would place a strong Japanese force in such a strategic position as to [p. 28] be a severe blow at all three of the powers in southeast Asia—the British at Singapore, the Netherlands in the Indies, and ourselves in the Philippines. We all agreed that it must not be allowed; that, if the Japanese got into the Isthmus of Kra, the British would fight; and, if the British fought, we would have to fight. We realized that if this expedition was allowed to round the southern point of Indochina, this whole chain of disastrous events would be set on foot.

We decided, therefore, that we could not just sit still and do nothing. On the other hand, we also decided that we could not attack without a further warning to Japan, and we discussed what form that warning should take. The President suggested a special telegram from himself to the Emperor of Japan. After some discussion it was decided that he would send such a letter [14403] to the Emperor, which would not be made public, and that at the same time he would deliver a special message to Congress reporting on the danger and reporting what we would have to do if the danger happened. The President left after the meeting to keep his engagement at Warm Springs, where he was going to have Thanksgiving with the children. The rest of the week end was largely taken up with preparing [p. 29] a suggested draft of a message for the President to deliver to Congress, in which Secretary Knox and I cooperated with Mr. Hull and his associates in the State Department.

On Monday morning, December 1, the President returned to Washington. I recollect that in the meantime we had received evidence that the Japanese expedition which we had been watching was landing in Indochina in the neighborhood of Saigon, rather than going on to the Peninsula and up into the Gulf of Siam. This appeared to give us a little respite, since it indicated that perhaps they were not going to invade Thailand at once. The Russians had also made a new counter-attack against the Germans at Rostov, and we thought that possibly this had given the Japanese some pause.

On Tuesday, December 2, Secretary Knox, Sumner Welles, and I met with the President, as Mr. Hull was laid up with a cold. The President went step by step over the situation, and I felt sure that he had made up his mind to go ahead with the message to Congress and possibly the message to the Emperor. [14404] We also learned that he had asked the Japanese through the State Department what they intended by this new occupation of southern Indochina and had demanded a quick reply. We were watching the situation in the Far East very carefully. I was in frequent [p. 30] conference with General Marshall and with General Miles of G-2 and also General Gerow of the War Plans Division of the General Staff. We were particularly concerned with supplies which were on the way to the Philippines and additional big bombers which we were trying to fly over there, some of which were scheduled to start at the end of the week. I gave up another engagement in order to stay in Washington over the week end.

On Sunday, December 7, Mr. Knox and I went to Secretary Hull's office at 10:30 in the morning and talked the whole matter over. This was the day on which we knew the Japanese were going to bring their answer, and Mr. Hull said he was certain that the Japanese were planning some deviltry; and we were all wondering where the blow would strike. The messages we were receiving now indicated that the Japanese force was continuing on in the Gulf of Siam, and again we discussed whether we would not have to fight if Malaya or the Netherlands were attacked and the British or Dutch fought. We all three thought that we must fight if those nations fought. We realized that if Britain were eliminated it might well result in the destruction or capture of the British Fleet. Such a result would give [14405] the Nazi allies overwhelming power in the Atlantic Ocean and would make the defense of the American Republics enormously difficult if not impossible. [p. 31] All the reasons why it would be necessary for the United States to fight, in case the Japanese attacked either our British or Dutch neighbors in the Pacific, were discussed at length and at my request Mr. Hull and Mr. Knox dictated their views. These views are attached to my notes of that day as submitted herewith.

I returned to lunch at my home. At just about 2 o'clock, while I was sitting at lunch, the President called me on the phone and told me that the Japanese were bombing Hawaii. My notes for the remainder of December 7 speak for themselves and need no comment.

SUMMARY OF MY VIEWS AS TO THE RESPONSIBILITY OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMY

My views as to these responsibilities are stated at length in my final official report made under the Joint Resolution of Congress approved June 13, 1944, after the Army Board and the Judge Advocate General had made their investigations and reports to me. Many of the discussions on this subject indicated a failure to grasp the fundamental difference between the duties of an outpost command and those of the commander in chief of an army or nation and his military advisers. The outpost commander is like a [p. 32] sentinel on duty in the face of the enemy. His fundamental duties are clear and precise. He must assume that the [14406] enemy will attack at his particular post; and that the enemy will attack at the time and in the way in which it will be most difficult to defeat him. It is not the duty of the outpost commander to speculate or rely on the possibilities of the enemy attacking at some other outpost instead of his own. It is his duty to meet him at his post at any time and to make the best possible fight that can be made against him with the weapons with which he has been supplied.

On the other hand, the Commander in Chief of the Nation (and his advisers), particularly of a nation which has been as habitually neglectful of the possibility of war as our own, has much more difficult and complex duties to fulfill. Unlike the outpost commander, he must constantly watch, study, and estimate where the principal or most dangerous attack is most likely to come, in order that he may most effectively distribute his insufficient forces and munitions to meet it. He knows that his outposts are not all equally supplied or fortified, and that they are not all equally capable of defense. He knows also that from time to time they are of greatly varying importance to the grand strategy of the war.

[p. 33] For all these reasons he is compelled to give constant and close attention to the reports from all his intelligence agencies in order that he may satisfactorily solve the innumerable problems which are constantly arising in the performance of the foregoing duties.

[14407] During those days in November 1941 we at the War Department had been informed and believed that Hawaii had been more generously equipped from the Nation's inadequate supplies of men and munitions than either of the other three important Pacific outposts, and we believed that with the fleet at hand there it was more capable of defense. We also knew that the Philippines was by far the least capable of defense, although we were working vigorously to get it into a position to put up a hard fight. We also knew that a disaster there would have an incalculably bad moral effect on account of our relations to the Filipinos—well known throughout the Far East—and our pledges given for their protection. Finally, we had received these specific warnings of a Japanese expedition being on its way to a commanding position from which it would attack the Philippine Islands.

From the foregoing I believe that it was inevitable and proper that a far greater number of items of information coming through our Intelligence should be [p. 34] collected and considered and appraised by the General Staff at Washington than those which were transmitted to the commander of an outpost. General Short had been told the two essential facts: (1) A war with Japan is threatening. (2) Hostile action by Japan is possible at any moment. Given those two facts, both of which were stated without equivocation in the message of November 27, the outpost commander should be on the alert to [14408] make his fight.

Even without any such message, the outpost commander should have been on the alert. If he did not know that the relations between Japan and the United States were strained and might be broken at any time, he must have been almost the only man in Hawaii who did not know it, for the radio and the newspapers were blazoning out those facts daily, and he had a chief of staff and an intelligence officer to tell him so. And if he did not know that the Japanese were likely to strike without warning, he could not have read his history of Japan or known the lessons taught in the Army schools in respect to such matters. Under these circumstances which were of general knowledge and which he must have known, to cluster his airplanes in such groups and positions that in an emergency they could not take the air for several hours, and to keep his antiaircraft [p. 35] ammunition so stored that it could not be promptly and immediately available, and to use his best reconnaissance system, the radar, only for a very small fraction of the day and night, in my opinion betrayed a misconception of his real duty which was almost beyond belief.

In the next place, having made these mistakes and disregarded the whole tenor of the warning message to him, he then sent a reply message to Washington which gave no adequate notice of what he had failed to do and which was susceptible of being taken, and was taken, as a general compliance with the [14409] main warning from Washington. My initials show that this message crossed my desk, and in spite of my keen interest in the situation it certainly gave me no intimation that the alert order against an enemy attack was not being carried out. Although it advised me that General Short was alert against sabotage, I had no idea that being "alerted to prevent sabotage" was in any way an express or implied denial of being alert against an attack by Japan's armed forces. The very purpose of a fortress such as Hawaii is to repel such an attack, and Short was the commander of that fortress. Furthermore, Short's statement in his message that "liaison" was being carried out with the Navy, coupled with the fact that our message of November 27 had specifically directed recon- [p. 36] naissance, naturally gave the impression that the various reconnaissance and other defensive measures in which the cooperation of the Army and the Navy is necessary, were under way and a proper alert was in effect.

With the aid of "hindsight" I believe now that to a staff officer whose specific duty was to make dead sure that the warning order was being intelligently and thoroughly put into effect, the lack of detail in the reply should have suggested the importance of a follow-up inquiry and I have so stated in my final official report of August 1945.

With the further aid of such "hindsight" and in the same official report, I also reached the opinion that the War Plans Division of the General Staff would have placed itself and [14410] the safety of the country in a sounder position if it had transmitted to General Short more information than it did. The novelty of the imminence of war and the fact that our outpost commanders were untried in their positions now indicate that more details and repeated emphasis would have been a safer policy. Also there seems to have been a lack of coordination in the General Staff in respect to the method in which the warnings against sabotage were sent, which would not have occurred later in the war after the staff was fully organized.

[p. 37] Yet none of these things in my opinion alter in any material degree the responsibility of General Short for the complete absence of a real alert, which he had been directed to take in the message of November 27, and for the placing of his defense in a more helpless position than it was before that alert message was sent. After all, he was the man upon whom the country had a right to rely for the defense of Hawaii, and he had been sufficiently warned.

I have tried to review these various responsibilities with fairness to both the outpost commander and the staff officers at home. I am particularly led to do so because of the difficulty of reproducing now after the lapse of more than 4 years the background and atmosphere under which the entire Army was then working. Our general staff officers were working under a terrific pressure in the face of a global war which they felt was probably imminent. Yet they were surrounded, outside of [14411] their offices and almost throughout the country, by a spirit of isolationism and disbelief in danger which now seems incredible. A single incident gives striking evidence of this. During the very last week before the Pearl Harbor attack there was made a most disloyal and almost unbelievable attack on the chief work of the staff. For months the [p. 38] general staff had been laboring over the construction of a strategic and tactical plan for the fighting of a global war in case it should eventuate. The making of such a plan is the highest and most important duty of a general staff—the chief purpose for which it exists. It is also naturally the most highly secret paper in the possession of the Government. On December 4, 1941, the Chicago Tribune published practically in full a copy of that plan. The impact of such a blow was very severe. It involved implications which stretched far and suspicions (happily not fulfilled) of disloyalty in the Army itself. The officers of the Army were then trying to do their duty in the deadening, if not actually hostile, atmosphere of a nation that was not awake to its danger. We are now engaged in passing judgment upon their actions in the wholly different atmosphere of a nation which has suffered some of the horrors of the greatest and most malignant war in history. In my opinion, it would be highly unjust to them if this complete difference of atmosphere was not given the weight which it deserves.

(S) HENRY L. STIMSON.

[14412—p. 38-A] STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Henry L. Stimson, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I have prepared the foregoing statement, and the same is true and correct to the best of my recollection, information, and belief.

(S) HENRY L. STIMSON.

Sworn to before me this 19th day of March 1946.

[SEAL]

(S) THOMAS DEROSA,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

Office address: 32 Liberty Street, New York City; Residence: Bronx County.

Bronx County Clerks No. 3, Reg. No. A-33D7; New York County Clerks No. 9, Reg. No. 439D7; Commission expires March 30, 1947.

[14413—p. 39] MR. STIMSON'S NOTES—APPENDIX TO STATEMENT OF HENRY L. STIMSON

[14414—p. 40] WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1941.

Matters are crystallizing on both sides of us now and the Navy is meeting with big losses in the Atlantic and Japan is sending somebody to us, who, I think, will bring us a proposal impossible of acceptance. I spent part of the morning reading matters—secret reports—on the latter matter.

[p. 41] THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1941.

Then I left for the White House conference and had about an hour's talk with the President—on the whole a good talk. He was apparently in very good feeling. We talked about the Far Eastern situation and the approaching conference with the messenger who is coming from Japan. The President outlined what he thought he might say. He was trying to think of something which would give us further time. He suggested he might propose a truce in which there would be no movement or armament for 6 months and then if the Japanese and Chinese had not settled their arrangement in that meanwhile, we could go on on the same basis. I told him I frankly saw two great objections to that: first, that it tied up our hands just at a time when it was vitally important that we should go on completing our reenforcement of the Philippines; and second, that the Chinese would feel that any such arrangement was a desertion of them. I reminded him that it has always been our historic policy since the Washington conference not to leave the Chinese and [14415] Japanese alone together, because the Japanese were always able to overslaugh the Chinese and the Chinese know it. I told him that I thought the Chinese would refuse to go into such an arrangement.

[p. 42]

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1941.

Cabinet meeting this afternoon. The President opened with telling the story of Lincoln and his Cabinet—how he polled the Cabinet and found them all polling “no” and then he said, “the ayes have it.” With that he started to have what he said was the first general poll of his Cabinet and it was on the question of the Far East—whether the people would back us up in case we struck at Japan down there and what the tactics should be.¹ It was a very interesting talk—the best Cabinet meeting I think we have ever had since I have been there. He went around the table—first Hull and then myself, and then around through the whole number and it was unanimous in feeling the country would support us. He said that this time the vote is unanimous, he feeling the same way. Hull made a good presentation of the general situation. I told them I rather narrowed it down into a following-up the steps which had been done to show what needed to be done in the future. The thing [14416] would have been much stronger if the Cabinet had known—and they did not know except in the case of Hull and the President—what the Army is doing with the big bombers and how ready we are to pitch in.

[p. 43]

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1941.

In the second place he (General Marshall at a staff meeting) read us a long letter from General MacArthur in the Philippines, telling us of the progress of the reorganization of the Philippine Army and the construction of airports throughout the Islands. This was very interesting to me.

[p. 44]

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1941.

I talked to the President about the question (danger) of poison gas in the Philippines. We have learned that the Japanese have used it on the Chinese at Ichang, where they killed some 700 Chinamen and disabled about ²—I don't want to be caught without gas in the Philippines. And yet we have been afraid to send it for fear it would leak out and be misconstrued during these negotiations. But I thought the time had come when we ought to not delay any longer and I told the President so quietly and privately after the conference and he [14417] agreed with me. So when I got back I called in General Gerow in the absence of General Marshall and told him to look up all the facts and get ready for the possible shipments with the idea that it should be done so that it would not come out in the press.

[p. 45]

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1941

I had a good talk with General Olmstead, whom I have recently promoted to be the chief signal officer on General Mauborgne's retirement. He is doing very well and outlined to me the work of reorganization of his office which he has accomplished. It was very good.

¹ NOTE.—See statement, p. 11, as to this Cabinet meeting.

² NOTE: Blank in notes.

NOTE.—This conference was on the subject of the use of radar as a defense against surprise attacks. See statement p. 13.

[p. 46]

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1941.

This was a very full day indeed. At 9:30 Knox and I met in Hull's office for our meeting of Three. Hull showed us the proposal for a 3 months' truce, which he was going to lay before the Japanese today or tomorrow. It adequately safeguarded all our interests. I thought as we read it, but I don't think there is any chance of the Japanese accepting it, because it was so drastic. In return for the propositions which they were to do; namely; to at once evacuate and at once to [14418] stop all preparations or threats of action, and to take no aggressive action against any of her neighbors, etc., we were to give them open trade in sufficient quantities only for their civilian population. This restriction was particularly applicable to oil. We had a long talk over the general situation.

Then at 12 o'clock we (viz, General Marshall and I) went to the White House, where we were until nearly half past one. At the meeting were Hull, Knox, Marshall, Stark, and myself. There the President, instead of bringing up the Victory Parade,³ brought up entirely the relations [p. 47] with the Japanese. He brought up the event that we were likely to be attacked perhaps (as soon as) next Monday, for the Japanese are notorious for making an attack without warning, and the question was what we should do. The question was how we should maneuver them into the position of firing the first shot without allowing too much danger to ourselves. It was a difficult proposition.⁴ Hull laid out his general broad propositions on which the thing should be rested—the freedom of the seas and the fact that Japan was in alliance with Hitler and was carrying out his policy of world aggression. The others brought out the fact that any such expedition to the South as the Japanese were likely to take would be an encirclement of our interests in the Philippines and cutting into our vital supplies of rubber from Malaysia. I pointed out to the President that he had already taken the first steps towards an ultimatum in notifying Japan way back last summer that if she crossed the border into Thailand she was violating our safety and that therefore he had only to point out (to Japan) that to follow any such expedition was a viola- [p. 48] tion of a warning we had already given. So Hull is to go to work on preparing that. When I got back to the Department I found news from G-2 that an (a Japanese) expedition had started. Five divisions have come down from Shantung and Shansi to Shanghai and there they had embarked on ships—30, 40, or 50 ships—and have been sighted south of Formosa. I at once called up Hull and told him about it and sent copies to him and to the President of the message from G-2.

³ This was an office nickname for the General Staff strategic plan of national action in case of war in Europe.

⁴ See statement, pp. 11 and 14. Our military and naval advisers had warned us that we could not safely allow the [14419] Japanese to move against British Malaysia or the Dutch East Indies without attempting to prevent it.

[p. 49]

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1941.

[14420] Hull told me over the telephone this morning that he had about made up his mind not to give (make) the proposition that Knox and I passed on the other day to the Japanese but to kick the whole thing over—to tell them that he has no other proposition at all. The Chinese have objected to that proposition—when he showed it to them; that is, to the proposition which he showed to Knox and me, because it involves giving to the Japanese the small modicum of oil for civilian use during the interval of the truce of the 3 months. Chiang Kai-shek had sent a special message to the effect that that would make a terrifically bad impression in China; that it would destroy all their courage and that they (it) would play into the hands of his, Chiang's, enemies and that the Japanese would use it. T. V. Soong had sent me this letter and has asked to see me and I called Hull up this morning to tell him so and ask him what he wanted me to do about it. He replied as I have just said above—that he had about made up his mind to give up the whole thing in respect to a truce and to simply tell the Japanese that he had no further action to propose.

A few minutes later I talked to the President over the telephone and I asked him whether he had received [p. 50] the paper which I had sent him over last night about the Japanese having started a new expedition from Shanghai down toward Indochina. He fairly blew up—jumped up into the air, so to speak, and said he hadn't seen it and that that changed the whole [14421] situation because it was an evidence of bad faith on the part of the Japanese that while they were negotiating for an entire truce—an entire withdrawal (from China)—they should be sending this expedition down there to Indochina. I told him that it was a fact that had come to me through G-2 and through the Navy Secret Service and I at once got another copy of the paper I had sent last night and sent it over to him by special messenger.

[p. 51]

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1941.

A very tense, long day. News is coming in of a concentration and movement south by the Japanese of a large expeditionary force moving south from Shanghai and evidently headed toward Indochina, with a possibility of going to the Philippines or to Burma, or to the Burma Road or to the Dutch East Indies, but probably a concentration to move over into Thailand and to hold a position from which they can attack Singapore when the moment arrives.

The first thing in the morning I called up Hull to find out what his finale had been with the Japanese—whether he had handed them the new proposal which we passed on 2 or 3 days ago or whether, as he suggested yesterday he would, he broke the whole matter off. He told me now that he had broken the whole matter off. As he put it, "I have washed my hands of it and it is now in the hands of you and Knox— [14422] the Army and the Navy.” I then called up the President. The President gave me a little different view. He said they had ended up, but they ended up with a magnificent statement prepared by Hull. I found out afterward that this was not a reopening of the thing but a statement of our constant and regular position.

General Arnold came in to present the orders for the movement of two of our biggest planes out from San [p. 52] Francisco and across the Mandated Islands to Manila. There is a concentration going on by the Japanese in the Mandated Islands and these planes can fly high over them, beyond the reach of their pursuit planes and take photographs.

Knox and Admiral Stark came over and conferred with me and General Gerow. Marshall is down at the maneuvers today and I feel his absence very much. There was a tendency, not unnatural, on the part of Stark and Gerow to seek for more time. I said that I was glad to have time but I didn't want it at any cost of humility on the part of the United States or of reopening the thing which would show a weakness on our part. The main question has been over the message that we shall send to MacArthur. We have already sent him a quasi alert, or the first signal for an alert, and now, on talking with the President this morning over the telephone, I suggested and he approved the idea that we should send the final alert; namely, that he should be on the qui vive for any attack and telling him [14423] how the situation was. So Gerow and Stark and I went over the proposed message to him from Marshall very carefully; finally got it in shape and with the help of a telephone talk I had with Hull, I got the exact statement from him of what the situation was.

[p. 53]

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1941.

Pursuant to my instructions G-2 had sent me a summary of the information in regard to the movements of the Japanese in the Far East and it amounted to such a formidable statement of dangerous possibilities that I decided to take it to the President before he got up. I told him there was an important coalition of facts and that I thought he ought to read it before his appointment which he had made for us at 12 o'clock, when the so-called War Cabinet was to meet him—Hull, Knox, myself with Stark and Marshall. He branched into an analysis of the situation himself as he sat there on his bed, saying there were three alternatives and only three that he could see before us. I told him I could see two. His alternatives were—first, to do nothing; second, to make something in the nature of an ultimatum again, stating a point beyond which we would fight; third, to fight at once. I told him my only two were the last two, because I did not think anyone would do nothing in this situation, and he agreed with me. I said of the other two my choice was the latter one.

[14424] When we got back there at 12 o'clock he had read the paper that I had left with him. The main point [p. 54] of the paper was a study of what the expeditionary force, which we know has left Shanghai and is headed south, is going to do. G-2 pointed out that it might develop into an attack on the Philippines or a landing of further troops in Indochina, or an attack on Thailand or an attack on the Dutch Netherlands, or on Singapore. After the President had read these aloud, he pointed out that there was one more. It might, by attacking the Kra Isthmus, develop into an attack on Rangoon, which lies only a short distance beyond the Kra Isthmus and the taking of which by the Japanese would effectually stop the Burma Road at its beginning. This, I think, was a very good suggestion on his part and a very likely one. It was the consensus that the present move—that there was an expeditionary force on the sea of about 25,000 Japanese troops aimed for a landing somewhere—completely changed the situation when we last discussed whether or not we could address an ultimatum to Japan about moving the troops which she already had on land in Indochina. It was now the opinion of everyone that if this expedition was allowed to get around the southern point of Indochina and to go off and land in the Gulf of Siam, either at Bangkok or further west, it would be a terrific blow at all of the three Powers, Britain at Singapore, the Netherlands, [p. 55] and ourselves in the Philippines. It was the consensus of [14425] everybody that this must not be allowed. Then we discussed how to prevent it. It was agreed that if the Japanese got into the Isthmus of Kra, the British would fight. It was also agreed that if the British fought, we would have to fight. And it now seems clear that if this expedition was allowed to round the southern point of Indochina, this whole chain of disastrous events would be set on foot of going.

It further became a consensus of views that rather than strike at the Force as it went by without any warning on the one hand, which we didn't think we could do; or sitting still and allowing it to go on, on the other, which we didn't think we could do—that the only thing for us to do was to address it a warning that if it reached a certain place, or a certain line, or a certain point, we should have to fight. The President's mind evidently was running towards a special telegram from himself to the Emperor of Japan. This he had done with good results at the time of the Panay incident, but for many reasons this did not seem to me to be the right thing now, and I pointed them out to the President. In the first place, a letter to the Emperor of Japan could not be couched in terms which [p. 56] contained an explicit warning. One does not warn an Emperor. In the second place it would not indicate to the people of the United States what the real nature of the danger was. Consequently I said there ought to be a message by the President to the people of the United States, and I thought that the best [14426] form of a message would be an address to Congress reporting the danger, reporting what we would have to do if the danger happened. The President accepted this idea of a message but he first thought of incorporating in it the terms of his letter to the Emperor. But again I pointed out that he could not publicize a letter to an Emperor in such a way; that he had better send his letter to the Emperor separate as one thing and a secret thing, and then make his speech to the Congress as a separate and a more understandable thing to the people of the United States. This was the final decision at that time, and the President asked Hull and Knox and myself to try to draft such papers.

[p. 57]

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1941.

Dr. Alfred Sze and Dr. T. V. Soong came in to see me on their own request. I think Soong was anxious to have someone present as a witness to get me to corroborate what I said to him sometime ago about our intentions to fortify the Philippines. I told him simply that I knew what a difficult situation the Generalissimo was in and it was very presuming for me, sitting here in comfort, to ask him to be patient when he was in the middle of such anxieties and responsibilities there. Nevertheless I told him that that was, I am sure, the course that he should take. I said, I can only say that there is no change in the American policy from what I said to Dr. Soong some- [14427] time ago, and he can report that to the Generalissimo and tell him that I also counsel him to have just a little more patience and then I think all things will be well. Apparently that was all they wanted, for they at once got up and thanked me and went away. I warned them, of course, that they should not in any way make public or leak about what I had said to them. I called in Marshall and told him what had happened and asked him to remember what I said.

I left for the White House conference at 12 o'clock, and there were present there just Knox, Sumner Welles [p. 8] and myself, as Hull is laid up with a cold. The President went step by step over the situation and I think has made up his mind to go ahead. He has asked the Japanese through Sumner Welles what they intend by this new occupation of southern Indochina—just what they are going to do—and has demanded a quick reply. The President is still deliberating the possibility of a message to the Emperor, although all the rest of us are rather against it, but in addition to that he is quite settled, I think, that he will send a message to the Congress and will perhaps back that up with a speech to the country. He said that he was going to take the matters right up when he left us.

[14428—p. 59]

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1941.

Today is the day that the Japanese are going to bring their answer to Hull, and everything in MAGIC indicated that they had been keeping the time back until now in order to accomplish something hanging in the air. Knox and I arranged a conference with Hull at 10:30 and we talked the whole matter over. Hull is very certain that the Japs are planning some deviltry and we are all wondering where the blow will strike. We three stayed together in conference until lunch time, going over the plans for what should be said or done. The main thing is to hold the main people who are interested in the Far East together—the British, ourselves, the Dutch, the Australians, the Chinese. Hull expressed his views, giving the broad picture of it, and I made him dictate it to a stenographer and I attach it to the end of this. Knox also had his views as to the importance of showing immediately how these different nations must stand together and I got him to dictate that and that is attached hereto. Hull was to see the Japanese envoys at 1 o'clock but they were delayed in keeping the appointment and did not come until later—as it turned out, till 2 o'clock or after. I returned to Woodley to lunch and just about 2 o'clock, while I was sitting at lunch, the President called me up on the telephone and in a rather excited voice asked me, "Have you heard the news?" I said, [p. 60] "Well, I have heard the telegrams which have been coming in about the Japanese advances [14429] in the Gulf of Siam." He said, "Oh, no. I don't mean that. They have attacked Hawaii. They are now bombing Hawaii." Well, that was an excitement indeed. The messages which we have been getting through Saturday and yesterday and this morning are messages which are brought by the British patrol south of Indochina, showing that large Japanese forces were moving up into the Gulf of Siam. This itself was enough excitement and that was what we were at work on our papers about. The observer thought these forces were going to land probably either on the eastern side of the Gulf of Siam, where it would be still in Indochina, or on the western side, where it would be the Kra Peninsula, or probably Malay. The British were very much excited about it and our efforts this morning in drawing our papers was to see whether or not we should all act together. The British will have to fight if they attack the Kra Peninsula. We three all thought that we must fight if the British fought. But now the Japs have solved the whole thing by attacking us directly in Hawaii.

As soon as I could finish my lunch, I returned to the office and began a long conference which lasted until 6 o'clock. The news coming from Hawaii is very bad. [p. 61]. They seem to have sprung a complete surprise upon our fleet and have caught the battleships inside the harbor and bombed them severely with losses. They have also hit our airfields there and have destroyed a great many of our planes, evidently before [14430] they got off the ground. It has been staggering to see our people there, who have been warned long ago and were standing on the alert, should have been so caught by surprise. At 4 o'clock McCloy had the chiefs of the arms of the services in his room and I went in there and made them a little pep-up talk about getting right to work in the emergency but most of the time was spent in conference with Marshall, Grenville Clark, Miles, Patterson, McCloy, and their assistants, Lovett and General Gullion, the Provost Marshal General. The main subject that we were talking about was the form of a declaration of war. Grenville Clark had drawn up a copy based largely on the Woodrow Wilson one. We all thought that it was possible we should declare war on Germany at the same time with Japan, but that, of course, is an open question. There will be no doubt about declaring war on Japan now, I think. The President has set a conference at the White House at 8:30 this evening, in which the Cabinet had a conference and then a conference at 9 to which the leaders of the House were coming.

[p. 62] When the news first came that Japan had attacked us, my first feeling was of relief that the indecision was over and that a crisis had come in a way which would unite all our people. This continued to be my dominant feeling in spite of the news of catastrophes which quickly developed. For I feel that this country united has practically nothing to fear; while the apathy and divisions stirred up by unpatriotic men have [14431] been hitherto very discouraging.

Our meeting with the President in the evening was in the Oval Room in the White House. He sat behind his desk and we in a semi-circle in front of him. He opened by telling us that this was the most serious meeting of the Cabinet that had taken place since 1861 and then he proceeded to enumerate the blows which had fallen upon us at Hawaii. Before he got to that, Knox who sat next to me told me with a rather white face that we had lost seven of the eight battleships in Hawaii. This, however, proved later to be exaggerated. Steve Early sat near the President and dispatches were brought in every few minutes during the meeting. The President had hastily drawn a draft of a message to Congress which he then read to us slowly. It was a very brief message, presenting the same thoughts which he actually presented the following day in his finished message to the Congress.

[p. 63] After the talk with the Cabinet which lasted for at least three-quarters of an hour, the leaders of Congress who had been waiting below came in. I can remember the following as being present: The Vice President, Senators Barkley, Connally, Austin, Hiram Johnson, perhaps George; Representatives: Speaker Rayburn, Sol Bloom, Eaton of New Jersey, Joe Martin; possibly others. The President began by a very frank story of what had happened, including our losses. The effect on the Congressmen was tremendous. They sat in dead silence [14432] and even after the recital was over they had very few words. The President asked if they would invite him to appear before the Joint Houses tomorrow and they said they would. He said he could not tell them exactly what he was going to say to them because events were changing so rapidly. We didn't finish until after 11 o'clock, when I returned to the office and stayed there until after 12.

On my return to the office from lunch I had started matters going in all directions to warn against sabotage and to get punch into the defense move. Marshall had sent out word of the attack to all of the corps area commanders and all our people throughout the world, particularly in the Philippines. I ordered all the officers thereafter to appear in uniform and I found that others [p. 64] had ordered the armed guards out over the War Department Building and additional guards over my house. We offered a guard to the White House but it was thought better there to have the FBI. This same activity went on during the intervals of my visit to the White House.

[14433—p. 65] PROPOSED STATEMENT FOR PRESIDENT BY HULL—
(SEE RECORD, DECEMBER 7)

The Japanese Government, dominated by the military fireeaters, is deliberately proceeding on an increasingly broad front to carry out its long proclaimed purpose to acquire military control over one-half of the world with nearly one-half its population. This inevitably means Japanese control of islands, continents, and seas from the Indies back near Hawaii, and that all of the conquered peoples would be governed militarily, politically, economically, socially, and morally by the worst possible military despotism with barbaric, inhuman, and semi-slavery methods such as Japan has notoriously been inflicting on the people in China and Hitler on the peoples of some 15 conquered nations of Europe. This would virtually drive and force all free and peaceful peoples off the high seas.

At this moment of serious, threatened, and imminent danger, it is manifest that control of the South Sea area by Japan is the key to the control of the entire Pacific area, and therefore defense of life and commerce and other invaluable rights and interests in the Pacific area must be commenced within the South Sea area at such times and places as in the judgment of naval and military experts would be within sufficient time and at such strategic points as would [p. 66] make it most effective. In no other way can it be satisfactorily determined that the Pacific area can be successfully defended.

[14434] More than ever is the cohesive, closely related world movement to conquer and destroy, with Hitler moving across one half of the world and the Government of Japan under the military group moving across the other half of the world by closely synchronizing their efforts and collaborating and cooperating whenever to their individual or their mutual advantage.

This at once places at stake everything that is precious and worth while. Self-defense, therefore, is the key point for the preservation of each and all of our civilized institutions.

[14435—p. 67] SUGGESTION BY KNOX—(SEE RECORD, DECEMBER 7)

1. We are tied up inextricably with the British in the present world situation.

2. The fall of Singapore and the loss to England of Malaya will automatically not only wreck her far eastern position but jeopardize her entire effort.

3. If the British lose their position the Dutch are almost certain to lose theirs.

4. If both the British and the Dutch lose their positions we are almost certain to be next, being then practically Japanese surrounded.

5. If the above be accepted, then any serious threat to the British or the Dutch is a serious threat to the United States; or it might be stated any threat to any one of the three of us is a threat to all of us. We should therefore be ready jointly to act together and if such understanding has not already been reached, it should be reached immediately. Otherwise we may fall individually one at a time (or somebody may be left out on a limb).

6. I think the Japanese should be told that any movement in a direction that threatens the United States will be met by force. The President will want to reserve to himself just how to define this. The following are suggestions to shoot at: Any movement into Thailand; or any [p. 68] movement into [14436] Thailand west of 100° east and south of 10° north—this in accordance with the recommendation of the British and Dutch and United States military authorities in the Far East; or any movement against British, Dutch, United States, Free French, or Portuguese territory in the Pacific area.

Mr. LANE. At this point, Mr. Chairman, I ask to have spread on the record those interrogatories submitted to former Secretary Stimson by Senator Ferguson which were not answered as explained in former Secretary Stimson's letter of transmittal covering the interrogatories which he did subsequently answer. The letter of transmittal, the interrogatories and answers thereto will be in our next offer.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The interrogatories [unanswered] referred to follow:)

[14437]

MARCH 6, 1946.

The Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack being advised that the former Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, is unable to appear before the committee because of illness, I submit the following questions to Mr. Stimson to be answered fully, completely, and under oath, and it is to be understood that the questions and answers are to be made part of the official record as if taken in open hearings.

[S] HOMER FERGUSON,
Homer Ferguson,
United States Senate.

1. In your testimony before the Pearl Harbor Board, you stated that you had memoranda and records of what took place at certain meetings relating to Japan and American relations during 1941. Will you please furnish for the committee copies of these memoranda and records so far as they disclose the Far East situation between November 1 and December 8, 1941?

2. Did the Chief of Staff, General Marshall, have knowledge of what was taking place between you and other Cabinet members and the President in relation to the Far Eastern situation?

3. On the 25th of November 1941, you had a conversation [14438] with the President wherein he stated that hostilities with Japan might start perhaps next Monday, and that you had a discussion with him at that time as to what we should do in relation thereto. Will you please give us in detail what was said by you and by the President at that time?

4. Having appointed a board under the statute to investigate the Pearl Harbor catastrophe, how do you account for the fact that after the Board had completed the examination of witnesses you appointed Major Clausen to complete the investigation?

5. Will you give us the details as to those with whom you discussed this matter and the conversations?

6. Did you have Major Clausen investigate our policy in the Far East as far as the Secretary of State's office was concerned?

7. If not, will you tell us why not?

8. Did you have Major Clausen investigate our policy in the Far East as far as the White House was concerned?

9. If not, will you tell us why not?

10. Why did you not have the Board appointed to investigate this matter consider the so-called Clausen affidavits?

11. Were all Magic, that is, intercepted Japanese messages, furnished to you?

If not all Magic, were the messages furnished to War Plans and Chief of Staff delivered to you?

Will you tell us what Japanese messages you did discuss with the President?

[14439] Will you state what discussion you had with the President on the following Japanese messages:

No. 985----- Page 204, Exhibit 1.
 No. 986----- Page 206, Exhibit 1.
 No. 865----- Page 208, Exhibit 1.
 No. 844----- Page 195, Exhibit 1.

12. Did you discuss these Magic messages with the President?

13. I call your attention to the message in exhibit 2 and ask if you saw these messages prior to December 7, 1941.

14. I call your attention to the message on page 12 of exhibit 2 and ask you if you saw that message.

15. I ask you what evaluation you placed on the messages on pages 12, 13, 14, and 15 of exhibit 2.

16. Did you discuss the messages asked about in the previous 3 questions with any person? If so, give us the details of the discussion.

17. Did you ever discuss with Secretary Hull why he decided not to send the modus vivendi?

18. Did he ever tell you why he decided to send the note of November 26, 1941, and not the modus vivendi? If so, will you state what he said?

19. Upon what conversations was it based and what was the reason for it?

20. I show you exhibit 45 and ask you to explain in detail [14440] why this language was used in that memorandum: "be sure that the memorandum would not be construed as a recommendation to the President that he request Japan to reopen the conversations."

21. I call your attention to exhibit 45 and ask you whether it was originally intended to send this message discussed in this exhibit to General Short?

22. Isn't it true that a message was only to be sent to General MacArthur and that you had discussed with the President this message only to General MacArthur?

23. Did you ever discuss with Secretary Hull the modus vivendi? Give us the details of your conversation.

24. Did you advise for or against sending that proposal? If so, tell us what was said.

25. Did Secretary Hull ever tell you why he sent the note of November 26 and not the modus vivendi? If so, give us the conversation.

26. Exhibit No. 36 in the present investigation entitled "Memorandum for the Adjutant General (Through Secretary, General Staff), subject: Far Eastern Situation," signed by L. T. Gerow, Brigadier General, Acting Assistant Chief of Staff, contains the following statement: "The Secretary of War directs that the following secret, first priority, message be despatched by cable, radio, or telegraph (whichever method is the most secure from the viewpoint of secrecy) to each of the following:

[14441] Commanding General, Hawaiian Department
 Commanding General, Caribbean Defense Command"

There then follows the message sent by the War Department to General Short on November 27, 1941, signed "Marshall" being No. 472, which is set forth on page 7 of exhibit 32.

When you directed that this despatch be sent to the Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, did you intend to cause him to alert the Hawaiian Department against hostile Japanese attack in the Hawaiian area?

27. Exhibit No. 46 in this investigation is a copy of General Short's reply to the message from General Marshall referred to in the preceding interrogatory. This reply reads as follows:

Report department alerted to prevent sabotage period. Liaison with Navy re URAD four seven two twenty seventh.

SHORT.

This exhibit containing General Short's reply bears the notation:

Noted H. L. S. (Stimson)

the "H L S" appearing to be your initials placed on the original War Department radiogram in your handwriting.

When you read General Short's reply did you consider that it was an adequate and responsive answer to the War Department's message of November 27th signed: "Marshall," No. 472, [14442] referred to in question 26?

28. If your answer to the preceding question is in the negative, what, if any, action did you take to cause the character of alert in the Hawaiian Department to conform to the type of alert you considered to be required by the message of November 27, 1941, to General Short from the War Department?

29. Did you discuss General Short's reply to the War Department message from General Marshall described in question 26 with any officer in the War Department during the period from November 28, 1941, to and including December 7, 1941.

30. After November 27, 1941, up to and including December 7, 1941, did the President address any inquiry to you as to the condition of alert maintained in the various overseas departments of the Army, and, specifically, as to whether in the Philippines and Hawaii, the Army was prepared to meet any type of Japanese attack?

31. If your answer to question 30 is in the affirmative, what was the nature of the inquiry made to you by the President, and your response thereto?

(Please state in complete detail, as you now recall, what was said by the President and by you in any such conversation.)

32. I am informed that you suggested to the President, and he approved the idea, that a final alert should be sent to General MacArthur. Will you give us the details of your [14443] conversation with the President on this matter?

33. I call to your attention a message sent by General Miles to the Commanding General at Panama dated December 5: "U. S.-Jap relations strained. Stop. Will inform you if and when severance of diplomatic relations imminent.—sgd. Miles," and ask you if you ever knew that that was sent?

34 (a) If you knew of this message referred to in the last question, will you explain when it was drawn up and sent to the Commander in Panama?

(b) Why was it sent?

(c) Why was the same message not sent to General Short at Pearl Harbor?

35. Were you familiar with the reply that the commander in Panama made to the order of the 27th of November?

36. You have spoken in your testimony before the Pearl Harbor Board that the President had made a momentous decision on the 26th or near that date. It appears to be in connection with sending the final alert as indicated in your diary. Will you state what that decision was and all the conversations you had with the President in relation to it?

37. In that message the following language was used: "negotiations with Japan appear to be terminated to all practical purposes with only the barest possibility that the Japanese Government might come back and offer to continue. Japanese future action unpredictable but hostile action possible [14444] at any moment." Is this your language and, if so, did you discuss it with anyone before the message of November 27 was sent?

38 (a) If the language used in the previous message is not your language, will you tell whose it was and what discussions you had in relation to it?

(b) Did you discuss this language with the President? If so, will you give us the details of the conversation?

39. Isn't it true that the Japanese did come back for discussions and that the newspapers carried accounts of further discussions on December 1, 2, and 5?

40. Would not the reports in the newspapers that negotiations had been resumed tend to make General Short feel that the situation was less critical, especially when he had been given no further information by the War Department?

41. You used the following language in the message:

If hostilities cannot, repeat, cannot be avoided, the United States desires that Japan commit the first overt act.

Whose language is this?

41½. You having directed the preparation of the message of November 27 to General Short in General Marshall's absence, if that message was subject to more than one interpretation was it not your responsibility to check up on the reply to it under "report action taken"?

42. Tell us as to the discussions you had concerning [14445] whether it should be put in the message to General Short?

43. Did you ever discuss this first overt act as used in the Marshall message to Short on November 27 with the President? Tell us what was said and when you had the conversation.

44. (a) Did you ever discuss this first over act language with Secretary of State Hull? Tell us what was said and when you had the conversation.

(b) You knew that the message from Marshall to Short required Short to report measures taken?

45. Do you know whether any follow-up was made by the War Department on the report of measures taken made by Short to this message?

46. For the purpose of this question let us assume that General Short misinterpreted the Marshall message. If the answer is "no" to the previous question, is the fault that Short misinterpreted the message or that Washington failed to follow up his reply and see he misinterpreted your message? Was the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor caused by Short's misinterpretating the Marshall message of November 27 or Washington failing to see that he had misinterpreted your alert and not sending a new alert calling this error to his attention.

47. On the morning of November 28, you went to see the President, as you describe it "before the President got up." You had with you a November 28 G-2 report, or some other report from G-2. Will you tell us the conversation you had with [14446] the President—what was said by each of you.

48. (a) If this was important to discuss with the Commander in Chief, the President, why did you not think it was also important to discuss it with General Short or to give him notice of it?

(b) Did you discuss the same thing with General Marshall or General Gerow?

(c) Did you discuss it with anyone else—if so, give names and conversation.

49. You have described the decision as "momentous." If this is true, should it not have been transmitted to General Short?

50. Where did you expect the Japanese to strike on December 7, 1941?

51. Did the President say or intimate that he did not desire Short or Kimmel to fire the first shot or commit the first overt act?

52. Did you concur without question in that attitude—that the first overt act should not be committed by Admiral Kimmel or General Short?

53. If so, will you give us the reasons for such concurrence?

54. Had not the military movements of the Japanese clearly indicated that Japan was not coming back and not going to offer to continue the conferences?

[14447] 55. Did you ever see the message of November 26, 1941, sent by Secretary Hull to the Japanese?

56. If your answer to the last question is "yes", did you know the contents of that message at the time it was sent or shortly thereafter? Will you explain as to whether or not you believed it broke off relations with Japan?

57. Will you state the full conversation you had with Secretary Hull in relation to the fact that he was through and that it was then up to the Army and Navy?

58. Did Mr. Hull explain why he was sending that message?

59. Are you conversant with an official document of the State Department of the United States wherein it is to be found these two sentences: "He (the Secretary of State) said that our proposed agreement (that is, the agreement proposed by Hull on the same day, the 26th) would render possible practical measures of financial cooperation which, however, were not referred to in the outline for fear that this might give rise to some misunderstanding. He (that is Mr. Hull) also referred to the fact that he had earlier in the conversations acquainted the Ambassador (that is, Nomura) of the ambition that had been his of settling the immigration question but that the situation had so far prevented him from realizing that ambition."

60. Do you understand that these are Secretary Hull's own words, contained in a memorandum, transcribed for him by Assistant Secretary Ballantine who was present at the meeting? [14448] Do you understand that this is what Secretary Hull says he said to the Jap Government in the person of its ambassadors?

61. Do they represent what is known as an unnamed consideration in the event of the American note of the 26th being accepted by the Japanese?

[14449] 62. Were you acquainted, when you reviewed the Army board's definition of the nature of the note of the 26th, with the fact that having read the note and having heard the Secretary's supplementary propositions, Ambassador Kurusu said "that when they reported our answer to their Government it would be likely to throw up its hands." (of Public Relations, vol. 2, p. 765) and that "Mr. Kurusu said that he felt that our response to their proposal could be interpreted as tantamount to meaning the end * * *." (of Foreign Relations, vol. 2, p. 766).

63. Your diary shows that Secretary Hull stated at the meeting on December 7 at the meeting between you, Secretary Knox, and Secretary Hull that the Japanese are planning some deviltry and that he wondered where the blow would strike. Did you discuss Hawaii, or any other American possession at that time?

64. If so, will you state what was said and by whom?

65. (a) Did anyone at that meeting bring up the question of 1 p. m. Washington time being dawn or morning in Pearl Harbor?

(b) Did you three Secretaries on December 7, 1941, discuss the 1 p. m. time of delivery and what was said by each of you?

66. Did anyone suggest or bring up the fact that this might or could mean an attack upon Hawaii or Pearl Harbor?

67. If so, give us the details of that discussion. Give us the detailed conversation that took place in the Secretary of State's office on Sunday a. m., December 7, 1941.

[14450] 68. On December 6, 1941, was an appointment arranged for a meeting between you, the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of the Navy, to be held at the State Department on December 7, 1941, at or about 10 o'clock a. m.?

69. (a) Who arranged the meeting referred to in the preceding question and at what time? What was to be the purpose of the meeting?

(b) Why was not General Marshall and/or Admiral Stark invited or in attendance?

(c) If the meeting was to consider Japan's reply to the Secretary of State's note of November 26, why was the President not also conferred with?

70. What was the occasion for arranging the meeting referred to in question 68?

71. (a) Who attended the meeting at the State Department on December 7, 1941, at or about 10 o'clock a. m.?

(b) What intercepted Japanese messages were before you at that meeting?

72. What discussion or discussions took place at the meeting held at the State Department on the morning of December 7, 1941, which you attended in company with the Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, and the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Knox? (Please state in complete detail what was said by you and by the other participants in the discussions at the meeting referred to.)

[14451] 73. What action did you take, or direct to be taken, on the morning of December 7, 1941, (a) when you learned of the existence and tenor of the fourteenth part of the Japanese reply to the American note of November 26, 1941, which appears on page 245 of exhibit 1; and (b) when you learned that the Japanese Ambassador in Washington was directed to present the Japanese reply to the American note of November 26 at 2 p. m., Washington time?

74. Was there any discussion between you and any individual on December 7, 1941, prior to the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor, as to the significance of the Japanese message directing the Japanese Ambassador in Washington to present the Japanese reply to the American note of November 26, 1941, at 1 p. m., Washington time?

75. If your answer to the preceding question is in the affirmative, what was said by you and any other individual in connection with the subject matter of the significance of the hour fixed for the delivery of the Japanese note to the United States on December 7, 1941?

76. After you learned of the existence of the fourteenth part of the Japanese message and the additional message fixing the time of delivery as 1 o'clock p. m., Washington time, did you discuss either of these messages with the President, with General Marshall, or with Admiral Stark or any officer of the State Department, the Navy Department, the War Department?

[14452] 77. If your answer to the preceding question is in the affirmative, what was said by you and what was said by the person or persons with whom you had any discussion or conversation referred to in the preceding question?

78. Did you talk with the President personally or by phone or contact him through a messenger on Saturday, December 6 or 7 from 4 p. m. to the time of the attack?

79. If you did communicate in any way with the President, personally or otherwise, give the details of that conversation.

80. Did you at any time on December 6, 1941, receive the first 13 parts of the Japanese reply to the American note of November 26, which appears on pages 239, 240, 242, 243, and 244 of exhibit 1 in this investigation?

81. If your answer to the preceding question is in the affirmative, at what time and from what individual, did you receive the message referred to?

82. When on December 6, 1941, did you learn that the first 13 parts of the Japanese reply to the American note of November 26 had been intercepted and translated by the Army and Navy?

83. From whom did you receive the information referred to in the preceding question? (Please state in complete detail, as you now recall, what was said by any person or persons informing you of the receipt of the 13-part message, and your [14453] response thereto.)

84. Exhibit 58 of this investigation (item 2) contains a list of "telephone calls made from outside through White House switchboard on December 6, 1941, and December 7, 1941, as compiled from operators' notes available." The following calls appear among others with the following notations as to time on December 6:

1258 p. Secy Stimson cld Secy Hull-----	1wc—OK	1259 p.
830 p. Secy Knox cld Secy Stimson-----	OK
845 p. Secy Knox cld Secy Hull-----	OK
847 p. Secy Knox cld Secy Stimson-----	OK

(a) What was said by you and by Secretary Hull in the course of your telephone conversation at 12:58 p. m. on December 6, 1941?

(b) What was said by you and Secretary Knox in the course of your telephone conversation at 8:30 p. m. on December 6, 1941?

(c) What was said by you and Secretary Knox in the course of your telephone conversation at 8:47 p. m. on December 6, 1941?

85. Did you have any conversation or conversations with Secretary Hull and Secretary Knox on 6 December 1941, other than those referred to in the preceding question?

86. If your answer to the preceding question is in the affirmative, what were the time or times of any such conversation [14454] or conversations, and what was said by you and the other party to each such conversation?

87. This question not used.

88. This question not used.

89. This question not used.

90. At any time on December 6, 1941, did you discuss the "pilot message," so-called or the 13-part message referred to in question 80 with any of the following individuals:

- (a) The President.
- (b) Secretary of State Hull.
- (c) Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox.
- (d) Mr. Sumner Welles.
- (e) Gen. George C. Marshall.
- (f) Admiral H. R. Stark.
- (g) General Miles—G-2.
- (h) General Gerow.
- (i) Col. Rufus Bratton.

(Please specify in your answer to this question the name of the individual or individuals referred to, with whom you had such discussion or conversation, and the time or times of such discussions or conversations.)

(See question 94 for description of the pilot message.)

91. What was said by you and by any of the individuals referred to in question 90 in the course of any conversations [14455] or discussions on December 6, 1941, with reference to:

(a) The meaning of the so-called "pilot message" (see question 94.)

(b) Any action to be taken by the War and Navy Departments, or the State Department, in connection with the so-called "pilot message";

(c) The meaning of the 13-part message referred to in question 80;

(d) Any action to be taken by the War and Navy Departments or the State Department with respect to the 13-part message.

92. Where were you on December 6, 1941, from 4 p. m. to 12 midnight?

93. Did you learn of the contents of the thirteenth part of the 14-part message before you saw it? If so, relate the circumstances.

94. Your attention is directed to pages 238 and 239 of exhibit 1 of this investigation, and specifically to the message appearing on such pages from Tokyo to Washington, No. 901, on December 6, 1941. This message has been described in the course of this investigation as the "pilot message" because it informs the Japanese representatives in Washington that Japan has prepared a memorandum in reply to the American note of November 26 to be sent in 14 parts, and that the time of its presentation was to be specifically fixed [14456] in a later message. Col. Rufus Bratton has testified before this committee (record, p. 12050) that he disseminated this so-called "pilot message" around 3 o'clock of the afternoon of December 6, 1941, to "Secretary of State, Secretary of War, Chief of Staff, Chief of the War Plans Division, G-2, and my own section."

What action did you take upon receipt of this message?

95. With whom did you discuss the so-called "pilot message" referred to in the preceding question?

96. What was the nature of your discussion of the so-called "pilot message" with any person or persons on the 6th of December 1941? (Please state in complete detail what you said in any such discussion, and what was said by the person or persons with whom you discussed the "pilot message"?)

97. When did you see the pilot message which is No. 901, page 238 of exhibit 1?

Had the contents of the pilot message been called to your attention before you saw it? If so, relate the circumstances.

98. When did you first see or obtain information as to the contents of the following messages in exhibit 1:

No. 904.....	Page 245.
No. 907.....	Page 248.
No. 908.....	Page 248.
[14457] No. 909.....	Page 240.
No. 910.....	Page 249.

99. If you made plans at this meeting on the 7th between the three Secretaries as to what was to be said or done (the words said and done were used by you in your testimony before the Army board) did you discuss with anyone that this information should be sent to the field, particularly to Short?

Give us the conversations on what was to be said.

Give us the conversations on what was to be done.

100. At what time did you first get the fourteenth part of the 14-part message? Give hour if possible.

101. Did you see General Marshall on December 6? If so, give us detailed conversations between you.

Did you see General Marshall on December 7 prior to the Japanese attack? If so, give us detailed conversation.

Did you see General Gerow on December 6 or 7 up to the Jap attack? If so, give us detailed conversations between you.

102. Did you talk with any Army officer after 4 p. m. on December 6, 1941, up to the time of the attack on the 7th of December? If so, give us the conversations.

103. I quote from exhibit 16 dated November 5, 1941, memorandum from Chief of Naval Operations and Chief of Staff to the President:

The Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of Staff are in accord in the following conclusions:

[14458] a. The basic military policies and strategy agreed to in the United States-British staff conversations remain sound. The primary objective of the two nations is the defeat of Germany. If Japan be defeated and Germany remain undefeated, decision will still have not been reached. In any case, an unlimited offensive war should not be undertaken against Japan, since such a war would greatly weaken the combined effort in the Atlantic against Germany, the most dangerous enemy.

b. War between the United States and Japan should be avoided while building up defensive forces in the Far East, until such time as Japan attacks or directly threatens territories whose security to the United States is of very great importance. Military action against Japan should be undertaken only in one or more of the following contingencies:

(1) A direct act of war by Japanese armed forces against the territory or mandated territory of the United States, the British Commonwealth, or the Netherlands East Indies;

(2) The movement of Japanese forces into Thailand to the west of the 100° East or south 10° North; or into Portuguese Timor, New Caledonia, or the Loyalty Islands.

[14459] c. If war with Japan cannot be avoided, it should follow the strategic lines of existing war plans, i. e., military operations should be primarily defensive, with the objective of holding territory, and weakening Japan's economic position.

d. Considering world strategy, a Japanese Advance against Kunming, into Thailand except as previously indicated, or an attack on Russia, would not justify intervention by the United States against Japan.

e. All possible aid short of actual war against Japan should be extended to the Chinese Central Government.

f. In case it is decided to undertake war against Japan, complete coordinated action in the diplomatic, economic, and military fields should be undertaken in common by the United States, the British Commonwealth, and the Netherlands East Indies.

The Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of Staff recommend that the United States policy in the Far East be based on the above conclusions.

Specifically, they recommend:

That the dispatch of United States armed forces for [14460] intervention against Japan in China be disapproved.

That material aid to China be accelerated consonant with the need of Russia, Great Britain, and our own forces.

That aid to the American Volunteer Group be continued and accelerated to the maximum practicable extent.

That no ultimatum be delivered to Japan.

104. Did you discuss the above (question 103) with first the President? If so, give us the details of the conversation; secondly, the Secretary of State? If so, give us details of the conversation; third, with General Marshall? If so, give us details of the conversation.

105. Following is the fourteenth part of the 14-part message:

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

7 December 1941

#902 Part 14 of 14

(NOTE.—In the forwarding instructions to the radio station handling this part, appeared the plain English phrase "VERY IMPORTANT")

7. Obviously it is the intention of the American Government to conspire with Great Britain and other countries to obstruct Japan's efforts toward the establishment of peace through the creation of a New Order in East Asia, and especially to preserve Anglo-American rights and interests by keeping [14461] Japan and China at war. This intention has been revealed clearly during the course of the present negotiations. Thus, the earnest hope of the Japanese Government to adjust Japanese-American relations and to preserve and promote the peace of the Pacific through cooperation with the American Government has finally been lost.

The Japanese Government regrets to have to notify hereby the American Government that in view of the attitude of the American Government it cannot but consider that it is impossible to reach an agreement through further negotiations.

[14462] 106. How do you account for the delay from 5 o'clock a. m., the date of the receipt of the fourteenth part of the 14-part message, until you did receive it?

107. If any of the delay was caused by delay in decoding and translation, it seems clear it was translated by 8 a. m. or 8:15 a. m. on the morning of the 7th of December 1941. How do you account for the delay from 8 a. m. until you did see it?

108. Did you at any time prior to the attack discuss with the President the contents of any part of the 14-part message?

109. If so, what was the discussion?

110. Did you discuss with General Marshall any of the Japanese messages received by our Government on December 6 or 7, 1941, and set forth in our exhibit 1? If so, state the time; give the number of the message and page of exhibit 1, also the details of what was said by each of you.

111. If you discussed with the Secretary of State any of the Japanese messages received by our Government on December 6 or 7, 1941, and set forth in our exhibit 1 at any time other than at the meeting in his office at 10 or 10:30 a. m. on Sunday, December 7. State the times and give the number of the message, page of exhibit 1, and also the details of what was said by you and Mr. Hull.

112. Did you discuss with anyone in the Army and Navy any of the Japanese messages received by our Government on December 6 or 7 and set forth in our exhibit 1? Give the names of [14463] persons, time of discussion or conversations, and conversation by you and the other party or parties.

113. At the meeting of the three Secretaries on Sunday, December 7, 1941, at 10 or 10:30 a. m. You, Mr. Stimson, were familiar with the message sent to General Short on November 27. Did you not consider with the information you had received here in Washington from that date until your meeting time on December 7 that a new alert was necessary to General Short?

114. You had seen on November 28, 1941, the reply from General Short to the message of November 27 which was as follows:

Report department alerted to prevent sabotage. Liaison with Navy REURAD Four Seven Two Twenty Seventh.

having in mind that reply showing his interpretation of the message of November 27 that a new alert was necessary.

Your findings as to General Short indicate you believed he was subject to criticism for his interpretation of the message from General Marshall to him on November 27; is not the same thing true of the failure to properly evaluate his reply to that message.

115. When did you first learn that General Marshall and General Gerow had failed to note what General Short had replied to their note of November 27?

116. Did not the failure of the responsible Army officers in Washington to properly evaluate General Short's reply to General Marshall's message of November 27 contribute to the Pearl Harbor [14464] disaster?

117. Did you know what messages were sent from Washington to General Short between November 27 and the 8th of December 1941?

State the message you knew had been sent between November 27 and December 8, 1941.

Did you believe that General Short was getting all decoded Japanese diplomatic messages?

118. Did you believe that Pearl Harbor had the means to intercept, decipher, and translate Japanese diplomatic messages?

119. Did you know that General MacArthur had access to the intercepted Japanese diplomatic messages through the Navy in the Philippines?

120. Did you discuss with the President the 1 o'clock message, exhibit 1, No. 907, page 248?

121. If so, give time and what was said by you and by the President.

122. Why did our Government adopt the policy of leaning over backwards to keep from advising Japan that we were ready for any attack that they might make?

123. If such was the plan, or our policy, who was responsible for its adoption?

124. With whom did you discuss it and give us the contents of the discussion.

125. Do you know why General Marshall did not use the telephone to advise General Short of an anticipated attack or give [14465] him an alert?

How could the fact that we were alerted to air attack (if known by the Japs) been detrimental to the United States?

126. You have made a statement that there was a preliminary alert given prior to the 27th and a full alert given on the 27th. As time went on, and the deadline date of the 29th passed, new developments arose as to the destruction of the codes, and other information came to our Government here in Washington. Did you discuss with anyone the sending of a new message to keep parties alerted and, if not, why not?

127. The fact that General Marshall did send a message at 12:18 on the 7th of December 1941, to General Short would indicate, would it not, that General Marshall did not consider the message of the 27th as sufficient considering the further information that was obtained as to Japan's intentions?

128. This being true, can you tell us why, if a new alert was to be given at all, it was not given earlier than 12:18, December 7?

129. Was your Secretary of War's office alerted to war on the 5th or on the 6th or on the 7th of December 1941?

130. If not, can you explain why not?

131. If it was, will you explain just how it was alerted and who was on duty in the office?

132. When, in your opinion, did war between Japan and America become imminent?

[14466] 133. Did you make any effort to contact General Marshall on the afternoon or night of December 6, or on the morning of December 7, 1941?

134. If your answer to the preceding question is in the affirmative, were you successful?

135. If your answer to question 133 is in the affirmative, what was said by you and by General Marshall?

136. Did you during the time, the 6th of December, contact Admiral Stark?

137. If so, give us the conversations and what was discussed.

138. This question was not used.

139. This question not used.

140. Did you contact the Secretary of State, or did he contact you, or were you in communication with him either personally or by message on the 6th?

141. If so, give us the details of the conversation and the time of contact.

142. When did you receive notice or information concerning a message from Ambassador Winant purporting to come from Churchill to the President, received in the State Department at 10:40 on December 6?

143. If you had a conference with the Secretary of the Navy about a meeting the next day, and were familiar with the fact that a 13-part message was in, and 1 part part had not been [14467] received, can you explain why the meeting was held as late as 10 or 10:30?

144. When did you learn that the President was preparing a message to the Emperor?

145. When did you first know or hear that that message was sent?

146. If you had any conversations with the President about that message to the Emperor will you give us the conversations?

147. Did you have a conversation at any time in November or December 1941, with the President about a message to Congress concerning the Far Eastern situation? If so, give us details of that conversation.

148. Were you aware that the President, in informing the press on December 2, that he was asking Japan about the Indochina concentrations, was asked by a reporter if any time limit had been set for a reply and that the President had said that the question was silly, had answered in the negative, and said that those tactics were used in the last century not in this, and had said that the United States was at peace with Japan and that the two nations were perfectly friendly?

149. Were you aware of the Jap Ambassador telling Under Secretary Welles, on delivery of the December 2 note, that it was apparent that both sides were preparing? (See Foreign Relations, p. 780.)

150. Were you aware on December 4 that the Japanese [14468] movements in Indochina alone as represented in the President's note of December 2, constituted actions which the President in his note of August 17 had formally pledged the United States to resist?

151. Do you have any evidence that that commitment on August 17 had been made known to the American people or to the American Congress before December 7, 1941?

152. Will you state your conversation with General Marshall, or any other military authority, in relation to the fact that negotiations were ended so far as the Secretary of State was concerned and that it was up to the Army and Navy?

153. When the President returned from the Atlantic Conference, did you discuss with him his conversations or negotiations with Prime Minister Churchill in relation to the Far East?

154. I refer you to Foreign Relations, volume 2, page 556, at the bottom of the page, the last paragraph, which continues on page 557. Did you know that that message was given by the President to the Japanese and did you discuss with him the message, or the contents thereof, and will you state your discussions, what he said and what you said?

155. Did you know what our Government policy was in giving armed aid or support to Britain or the Dutch if there was an attack made by the Japanese upon the Malay Peninsula or any other British or Dutch possession and no direct attack [14469] against American possessions?

156. Why were you concerned with the movement south of the Japanese to Thailand or the Malay Peninsula if we had no policy as to what we intended to do in case of any attack on the British and/or the Dutch?

157. Did you ever discuss with the President and/or Secretary of State Hull the question of our policy in case of an attack upon the British and/or Dutch and no attack by the Japanese upon America or American possessions?

158. If you had such a discussion, give us the dates and details.

159. At the meeting on December 7, 1941, with Secretary Hull and Secretary Knox, during that meeting or from the time of that meeting up until the attack, did you or anyone to your knowledge present at that meeting, or in that conference, communicate with the President and, if so, what were the contents of the conversation?

160. At the meeting between you and the other Secretaries and Cabinet members, you have stated that you stayed in conference until lunch time going over the plans for what should be said and done. Will you give us the details of that conversation or, if you do not remember the exact words, then the substance of the conference, particularly what you meant by "plans for what should be said" and what is meant by that. Also in regard to "as to what should be done," will you tell us what [14470] was said by each on "as to what should be done."

161. I refer you to a memorandum, exhibit 40, and ask you if there was any discussion with you or anyone else to your knowledge on this subject of armed support.

Who assured the British of American armed support as mentioned in their instructions to Singapore as shown in the message of our naval observer at Singapore to Admiral Hart?

162. As Secretary of War on December 5, 1941, had you prepared or acted in any way to implement the declaration of the President to Japan on August 17 that the United States immediately would resist a Japanese threat or move into the Southwest Pacific?

163. You were certain, if only from the President's note of December 2, were you not, that Japanese concentration in southern Indochina, constituted a threat within the meaning and letter of the declaration of August 17, 1941?

164. As Secretary of War, on December 5, had you anticipated that American resistance to a Jap attack against some other nation would follow the pattern of American resistance to Germany's attacks on Great Britain in the Atlantic Ocean?

165. Was it ever called to your attention that the Secretary of Interior was holding up the installation of the permanent radar sets? If so, what was done to expedite these installations?

166. What evidence was before you when General Short was [14471] relieved of his command?

Whose decision was it to relieve General Short of his command?

167. It is true, is it not, that in late November and early December 1941 you and General Marshall shared with General Short the belief that Japan would not attack Pearl Harbor? (See par. 19, Stimson statement August 29, 1945.)

168. It is true, is it not, that the American General Staff "completely underestimated the Japanese military capabilities and particularly the advance which they had made in the use of aircraft"?

169. Do you still think that "It is probably true that the emphasis on sabotage in several War Department warnings and the Department's caution against alarming the civilian population, coupled with the failure to comment on Short's report of November 27, confirmed him in his conviction that he had chosen the correct form of alert and might disregard all others, as you stated in your official report regarding the Pearl Harbor disaster, released to the press on August 29, 1945?"

170. If there was, in the opinion of the War Department General Staff, any "threat from without," in an overseas command, and the reports from that area showed only an alert against sabotage, who, if anyone, had the duty or authority in the War Department to transmit a message to correct the situation?

[14472] 171. In your public report of August 29 you stated that G-2 "had duties of collecting and analyzing information and transmitting information * * * to the theater commanders"; it is true, is it not, that neither G-2 nor the War Department sent any information to General Short between November 28, 1941, and December 7, 1941?

172. In your opinion, was the War Department on a sufficient alert on December 6, 1941 so that the Chief of Staff could reasonably assume that information such as was received indicating a breach of diplomatic relations would get to him before the next morning, or do you regard the delay in getting this information to General Marshall as an unusual circumstance which he could not have reasonably foreseen?

173. Do you believe that in early December 1941 the War Department had an efficient functioning system to get important intelligence promptly to the Chief of Staff?

174. It is true, is it not, that neither you nor Colonel Clausen, your investigator even asked General Short about his knowledge of the "winds" code, but that, nevertheless, you made a finding in your official report that "this information was available to General Short or his command prior to December 7, 1941?"

175. Were you consulted and did you have anything to do with the appointment of the Roberts Commission?

176. Did you see the Roberts Finding of Facts prior to its [14473] signing and submission to the President?

Mr. LANE. As just previously referred to, subsequently the committee submitted certain additional interrogatories to Mr. Stimson. His reply has been received and we request that the interrogatories, the answers thereto, and the letter of transmittal dated April 23, 1946, be spread on the record at this point.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.
(The matter referred to follows:)

[14474]

Law Offices of WINTHROP, STIMSON, PUTNAM & ROBERTS
Mutual Life Building No. 32 Liberty Street
NEW YORK 5, N. Y.
Whitehall 3-0700

HENRY L. STIMSON, COUNSEL

APRIL 23, 1946.

Hon. ALBEN W. BARKLEY,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SENATOR BARKLEY: I have received your kind letter of April 4th enclosing the two sets of interrogatories which Senator Ferguson has submitted.

I confess to disappointment that my previous effort to give your Committee a fair and full statement of what I could recollect in regard to the Pearl Harbor attack, based upon such effort and investigation as my health would allow, should now be followed by no less than 237 interrogatories submitted by Senator Ferguson. In preparing my statement I went to the very margin of the rules imposed upon me by my physicians.

The interrogatories which you now send me are divided into two lists. The first dated March 6th must have been prepared before my statement sent to the Committee on March 13th could have been received by them. While I have not been able to examine [14475] it carefully, it must have been in large part answered by that statement of mine.

Senator Ferguson's second list by its title is related to my statement and is in substance a cross-examination of that statement. This second list I have now tried to answer to the best of my recollection and belief.

I assume that the committee will be satisfied with my original statement as an answer to the first list and, if there are any questions in that list directed to matters not in the statement, it will assume that my recollection does not extend to that question. I really cannot in my present condition of health undertake the very heavy burden which would inure to another reexamination of all papers, documents, and evidence heretofore submitted. I did the best I could in that respect in my first statement. I hope you will find my answers to Senator Ferguson's supplemental questions satisfactory. I enclose them herewith.

With many thanks for your courtesy and personal good wishes.

I am, very sincerely, yours,

(Signed) HENRY L. STIMSON.

[14476] ANSWERS OF HENRY L. STIMSON TO SUPPLEMENTAL QUESTIONS PROPOSED BY SENATOR FERGUSON

1. Mr. Secretary, you state in your statement to the Pearl Harbor Committee that our military advisers had given the President their formal advice that if Japan moved beyond certain lines we would have to fight for the sake of our own security. Are you referring to the memoranda to the President, dated November 5 and November 27, 1941, and signed by Admiral Stark and General Marshall?

Assuming this statement is addressed to the sentence on page 4 of my statement, my answer is "yes."

2. Was this advice on the request of the President?

I have no recollection as to this.

3. Was that advice accepted and did it become our Government policy prior to the Pearl Harbor attack?

It has always been the fixed and permanent policy of the United States Government to defend itself and its possessions. The Congress itself reaffirmed and endorsed this policy on numerous occasions as the dangers to this country from the war which was starting across the world became more acute. It reaffirmed it when the regular size of our ordinary military appropriations were enormously increased by the Congress in May and June 1940, at the time of the fall of France, Belgium, and the Netherlands. It reaffirmed it in September 1940, when it passed the draft law, and by the joint resolution in August [14477] 1940, which authorized the total mobilization of the National Guard for large scale maneuvers or training. It reaffirmed it by its passage of the lend-lease legislation to assist in arming the nations who were fighting in the front line against aggression by the Axis and in opening our ports for the repairs of their warships. Each of these extraordinary congressional enactments indicated beyond peradventure a policy to prepare the United States against an immediate impending attack by the Axis nations.

It is the President of the United States who is charged with the execution of that policy, both as Chief Executive and as Commander in Chief of the armed forces. It was his duty to make the decisions as to how this policy of defense should be best carried out. The adoption of plans for defense are ultimately for his decision and if the adoption of a particular strategy is to be termed policy at all, it is executive policy the decision of which it entirely a matter for the President. In making this decision, the President receives the advice of numerous advisers, including his military advisers and the members of his Cabinet. Their views and recommendations, however, are purely advisory, and the final policy and strategy is for the decision of the President and it is his alone.

As I have already pointed out in my statement, and as my contemporaneous notes indicate, it was the consensus of [14478] opinion of the President's advisers that if the Japanese in the latter part of November should advance beyond a certain point the security of this country demanded that we would have to fight. It was also the consensus of opinion that a further warning by us to Japan should be given. The President was in fact during the early part of December engaged in preparing an address to the Congress which would incorporate such a warning, and was also considering a special telegram to the Emperor of Japan. Before the address to the Congress was delivered, however, the Japanese struck on December 7. I do not recollect that the President prior to December 7 formally announced any decision on his part to fight if the Japanese passed the point in question, but he was undoubtedly considering such a decision most seriously, because it was the advice of his best qualified advisers.

4. If so, what plans were promulgated to carry out that advice?

See answer to question 3.

5. Did you have information from the President that we would fight for the sake of our security upon the happening of that event mentioned in question 1?

See answer to question 3.

6. If so, did you convey that information to General Marshall?

See answer to question 3.

7. Will you state if the Secretary of the Navy had such advice and if he conveyed it, or caused it to be conveyed, to [14479] Admiral Stark?

I have no information as to this.

8. On page 9 of your mimeographed statement to the committee, you have set forth four salient features of the situation as they appeared to you in November of 1941. Were any or all of these discussed with any other person?

All of these points were discussed many times and with numerous persons. I have already indicated in my statement the discussions that took place with the President, at Cabinet meetings and at meetings with the Secretary of State and Secretary of the Navy and with the chiefs of staff, all of whom shared my views, to the best of my information and belief.

9. If so will you state with whom they were discussed and if anyone else shared your views on these features? Will you give their names?

I have nothing to add beyond what I have already said in my statement of March 1946, and in my last answer.

10. On page 12 of the mimeographed statement you speak of the vote of the Cabinet as to whether or not it was thought that the American people would back you up if it became necessary to strike Japan in case she attacked England in Malay or the Dutch East Indies, does this mean that it became the policy of this Government at that time to take such steps?

See answer to question 3.

[14480] 11. If so, to whom was this policy communicated?

See answer to question 3.

12. Did you advise General Marshall and was he to advise others in the field of this policy?

See answer to question 3.

13. Did you, Mr. Secretary, keep in close touch with the program of installing permanent radar in the Hawaiian Islands?

I took a very active interest in insisting that proper installations of radar, both mobile and permanent, be installed in Hawaii as promptly as possible, but I, of course, left the details as to how and where the permanent apparatus should be installed to the military members of the staff and the local military commander. I have no recollection at this time as to how much detail I knew with regard to the permanent installations at Hawaii prior to December 7, 1941. I do remember distinctly the very favorable report of the test of the mobile apparatus that was made shortly before the Pearl Harbor attack, and that that report indicated that the mobile apparatus was in operation and was capable of detecting the approach of enemy planes at a distance of at least 80 miles.

14. Will you state specifically what was done to expedite the installation of permanent radar in Hawaii?

I have no recollection at the present time.

15. Was it not called to your attention that there were many [14481] delays in the installing of radar equipment in the Hawaiian Islands?

I have no recollection at the present time.

16. On pages 14 and 15, you tell of a conversation between the War Cabinet—the President, Secretary of War, Secretary of Navy, General Marshall, Admiral Stark, and the Secretary of State—on page 15 you state that certain things were discussed at the meeting. Was there any policy formulated by virtue of that discussion?

See answer to question 3.

17. If so, will you state what the policy was and how it was to be carried out? On page 15, you state that you reminded the President of his warning of August 19, I ask you if the correct date of that is not Sunday, August 17, when the President returned from the Atlantic Conference with Mr. Churchill?

See answer to question 3. I believe the correct date of the warning which I described as of August 19 should be August 17, 1941.

18. I also ask you what the President replied to you when you made the statement to him as stated by you on page 15 as to the warning that he had given Japan?

I do not recollect.

19. Will you state what the President said about this warning and your suggestion?

[14482] I do not recollect, except that I do remember that the final view was that an additional warning to Japan should be given.

20. When did you first become familiar with the warning that the President gave to Japan on August 17, 1941, as related in the White Paper (vol. 2, Foreign Relations of the United States, pages 556-557)?

I do not recollect. See answer to question 52 below.

21. Did England ever give a parallel warning? If so, when?

I do not recollect. See answer to question 52 below.

22. Was it not important that you, as Secretary of War, be advised as to our policies in the Far East and that you advise General Marshall of that policy and that he, in turn, advise General Short and other officers in the field?

I think it was important that the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff should be advised as to our policies in the Far East. As to what extent and in what detail the commander of the individual theater should be so advised depends on the circumstances of the particular situation.

23. Was it not important that if our Government had a policy that if England or the Netherlands were attacked that we would consider it as an unfriendly act and an attack upon us, that our military authorities be fully advised as to that?

See answer to questions 3 and 22.

[14483] 24. Was it not important that if Japan was to make an attack upon the British and/or the Dutch and our policy was that we were to treat that as an attack or unfriendly act upon us that the commanding officer at Hawaii be fully informed as to this in order that he might guard against an attack upon our fleet and possessions which were on the flank of the Japanese?

See answer to questions 3 and 22. The commanding officers of the individual Pacific theaters were advised on November 27 that hostile action was possible "at any moment."

25. On page 17 of your statement, you speak of the conversation with Mr. Hull and state that he had washed his hands of it and that it was in the hands of the Army and the Navy, and that you had called the President who gave you a different view, do I understand that the President did not agree with Mr. Hull?

I think my statement and my notes of November 27 adequately cover the answer to this question.

26. Will you give us the entire conversation you had with the President in relation to this?

I have nothing to add to what I have already said in my statement.

27. Did you discuss with the President on or about November 27, 1941, the sending of a message to General MacArthur?

[14484] I did.

28. Will you give us this conversation?

I have nothing to add to what I have already said in my statement, page 19, and to what is contained in my notes of Thursday, November 27, 1941.

29. At that time, or on the 27th, did you discuss with the President the sending of a message to General Short?

I do not recollect. The sequence shows that such a message was sent to Short as well as the two other Pacific outposts; viz, Panama and the Pacific coast including Alaska.

30. Will you give us the conversation with the President about sending General Short a message?

See answer to question 29.

31. When did it first come to your attention that the Japanese were treating our note of November 26, 1941, as an ultimatum?

I do not recollect. I do not know that it ever came to my knowledge until after December 7.

32. Was it not important that we understand the way the Japanese were treating it—as to what their acts would be rather than what our intentions were?

I have nothing to say as to this. See answer to previous question.

33. On pages 24 and 25 of your mimeographed statement you make the statement that the President had made a momentous [14485] decision that day; that is, to send what you called a final alert. I wish you would explain why you refer to this as a momentous decision.

The word "momentous" is perhaps not strictly accurate. It is a fair sample of the rough and hasty character of my daily notes as described in my original statement to your committee. The thought I intended to convey was that the President had himself directed that a final warning should be sent out and that as this decision had emanated from the Commander in Chief it was very important that it should be done.

34. Why was it a momentous decision to advise our armed forces to be on the alert for an attack by the Japs?

See answer to question 33.

35. Did you consider this a declaration of war with Japan and for this reason it was a momentous decision?

I did not consider this a declaration of war with Japan.

36. State what was said between you and the President on this occasion so we may be advised as to why this was a momentous decision.

I have already answered this in my statement of March 1946, at page 26.

37. On page 26 of your mimeographed statement you say that our Government had decided not to attack without a further warning, and that the President suggested a special [14486] telegram from himself to the Emperor of Japan. Was it decided as a policy of our Government that we would attack after sending of that message if the Japanese continued their aggression further to the south?

See answer to question 3.

38. On the same page you state that a special message would be delivered to Congress. Will you state if you ever knew why that message was not delivered to Congress?

It was not delivered to Congress because the Japanese struck first.

39. Why was Congress allowed to adjourn from December 4 to December 8 at a time when our Government knew of the movement of the Japanese to the south?

I have no recollection as to this.

40. On page 28 of your statement you use the following language:

On the other hand, we also decided that we could not attack without a further warning to Japan, and we discussed what form that warning should take. The President suggested a special telegram from himself to the Emperor of Japan. After some discussion it was decided that he would send such a letter to the Emperor, which would not be made public, and that at the same time he would deliver a special message to Congress reporting on the danger and reporting what we would have to do if the danger happened.

Will you please explain as to whether this proposal [14487] involved coming to Congress in advance or whether the proposal was to strike Japan first then report to Congress what had been done?

The proposal was to go to Congress in advance, and through the address to Congress to give the Japanese a final warning.

41. Was it the intention of our Government, through the President, to notify Congress that certain things had happened which caused us to strike Japan, and that the report to Congress was to obtain Congress' ratification and approval?

No. See answer to Question 40.

42. Will you state why no action was actually taken upon this proposal?

See answer to Question 40.

The fact that information coming in around the first of December indicated that the Japanese expedition was landing in Indochina in the neighborhood of Saigon rather than going on into the Peninsula and up into the Gulf of Siam may have prompted the President to think that perhaps the Japanese were not going to invade Thailand at once or attack the Malay Peninsula and may have delayed his address to Congress.

43. On pages 29 and 30 of your message to the committee you go from Tuesday, the 2d of December to Sunday, the 7th, why is there this gap when we consider the crisis that was then pending?

[14488] The gap in my statement occurs primarily because of the fact that my notes of those days do not contain memoranda relevant to this inquiry. I remember that we were very busy on Wednesday, December 3. I participated in a large staff conference in which we discussed at length maneuvers that had recently been held and the lessons to be learned from them. I left in the late afternoon to go to New York to keep a dentist appointment on Thursday morning, December 4. I returned to Washington on Thursday afternoon. When I arrived there I was greeted by the news of the publication by the Chicago Tribune on December 4 of our most secret war plans, which had caused great concern to the members of my staff. On Friday, December 5, my time was largely occupied in discussion of this matter and in determining what action should be taken. On Saturday, December 6, I was in frequent conference with General Marshall, and also with General Miles of G-2 and General Gerow of the War Plans Division, which concerned chiefly the supplies which were on the way to the Philippines and the additional big bombers which we were trying to fly over there.

44. Will you state what took place during these 5 days of the crisis with Japan?

See answer to previous question. .

45. Did you leave Washington on December 5 and go to New York?

No; I was in Washington all that day and until long after December 7.

[14489] 46. If so, had you fully advised General Marshall of the situation, or had you advised your under secretary, so that they could proceed in an emergency?

See answer to previous question.

47. On page 30 of your mimeographed statement you use the words "and we were all wondering where the blow would strike," will you explain to the committee who you include in "we"?

By "we" I referred to Mr. Hull, Mr. Knox, and myself.

48. On page 35 of your mimeographed statement, will you state as to whether or not you made inquiry from any military personnel as to what was meant by an alert against sabotage, or being alerted to prevent sabotage?

I made no such inquiry.

49. Were you at any time acquainted with various alerts of the Army?

I was not acquainted with the various alerts, the details of the strategic and tactical plans for the defense of the various theaters, nor was it my duty to be familiar with them.

50. If not, was it not your responsibility, you having sent the message of November 27, under General Marshall's name, to acquaint yourself with the meaning of the reply?

There is nothing to add to what I have already fully covered in my original statement to your committee. See pages [14490] 35 and 36.

51. Did the Marshall message of the 27th of November not call for General Short to reply to the measures taken?

It did.

52. On page 47 you use the language "I pointed out to the President that he had already taken the first step toward an ultimatum," are you there referring to the message of August 17, 1941, delivered to the Japanese Sunday morning, August 17, 1941, and was not that message an ultimatum if the United States desired to use it as such?

I believe I am referring to the message of August 17, 1941. I have not before me the text of that message, nor have I any recollection of having ever seen that text. I had heard such a warning discussed, but I do not even recollect with whom such discussion or discussions took place. They were nearly 5 years ago.

53. Is it not true that that message having been delivered that the Japanese had violated it in their movements south?

See answer to previous question.

54. Is it not true that the Japanese had violated the terms of the President's message of August 17, 1941, on Saturday, December 6, 1941, Washington time?

See answers to the previous two questions.

55. On page 56 of your memorandum to the committee, under date of November 28, you state that the final decision at that [14491] time was to send a speech to Congress and that the President asked Mr. Hull, Secretary Knox, and you to try to draft such papers. Did you aid him in the drafting of these papers, and, if so, will you tell us where we might get copies, or can you furnish us with copies?

I worked on the drafting of some paragraphs, but I have no copies in my possession, nor do I know whether any such copies still exist. Such drafts as I made were not used.

56. With the situation gradually growing worse from November 28 to and including the 6th, what happened that the message was not given to Congress and the message to the Emperor of Japan was not sent until after we had received the 13 parts of the 14-part message indicating a rejection by the Japanese of our proposals of the 26th of November?

See answer to questions 38 and 42.

57. Referring to page 60 of your memorandum, you state the British were very much excited about it—will you state as to whether or not you had any contacts with the British on the 6th or 7th of December 1941?

I do not recollect that I personally had contacts with the British on either the 6th or the 7th of December 1941.

58. If so, state what information you received, or what information you gave to the British.

See answer to question 57.

59. On page 67 of your memorandum, being part 5 of Secretary [14492] Knox's suggestion, I call your attention to the statement "we should therefore be ready jointly to act together and if such understanding has not already been reached, it should be reached immediately." Do you know whether or not any understanding had been reached?

I know of no such understanding. The fact that Mr. Knox in his paper proposed the making of such an understanding confirms me in the belief that none existed.

60. State whether such an understanding was attempted and, if so, what was done toward arriving at such an understanding.

See answer to question 59.

61. Was such an understanding ever reached and, if so, when?

To answer such a question would require an examination of the minutes of the Combined Chiefs of Staff throughout the war. It was not my duty to follow such minutes and I have with me no other basis for refreshing my recollection. The long and harmonious co-operation throughout the war by our staff and the British staff would indicate that such an understanding was reached soon after we entered the war.

[14493] STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Henry L. Stimson, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I have prepared the foregoing answers to interrogatories. The same are true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief.

(Signed) HENRY L. STIMSON.

Sworn to before me this 23d day of April 1946.

[SEAL]

(Signed) Thomas de Rosa,
THOMAS DE ROSA,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

Office address: 32 Liberty St., N. Y. C. Residing in Bronx County. Bronx Co. Clks. No. 3, Reg. No. A183D7. N. Y. Co. Clks. No. 9, Reg. No. 439D7. Commission expires March 30, 1947

[14494] Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire whether or not all we are going to do this morning is to put these things in the record? If so, there will be no necessity of my staying, and I have another committee meeting.

The CHAIRMAN. That is my understanding.

Senator FERGUSON. I have another hearing.

I do want the record to show how I feel, that the record should not be closed until we have had time to fill in the gaps, so as to make a complete record.

The CHAIRMAN. All right. Your statements on that subject will be a part of the record.

Go ahead, Mr. Lane.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Chairman, we have a draft of a proposed message to Congress as prepared in the State Department, which contains suggestions made in a memorandum by Secretary Stimson and Secretary Knox, as shown in Exhibit No. 161.

We ask that this draft be marked "Exhibit No. 161-A" and spread in the exhibits of the committee record.

The CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 161-A.")

Mr. LANE. The log of the watch officer, Officer of Chief of Naval Operations, on the night of December 6, 1941, as shown in Exhibit No. 162, contains references by serial numbers to certain naval communications. Copies of these [14495] messages have been obtained from the Navy Department and we ask that they be received and marked "Exhibit No. 162-A."

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 162-A.")

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, if I may interrupt again, because of my inability to be two places at once, I will ask to be excused.

The CHAIRMAN. Do you intimate that you prefer the other place to this one? (Laughter.)

Senator FERGUSON. No, Mr. Chairman. I have done all I can do on this committee but I still have a great interest in it. It is only because the hearing is for the purpose of putting in records that I ask to be excused.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, I did write a letter on May 20, after our last meeting, in relation to certain facts that I thought we should get from the official records in the War Department. I wrote the letter to Mr. Richardson on May 20. He has the letter now and if we might consider that letter at the present time I would appreciate it.

(The text of the letter referred to by Senator Ferguson follows:)

UNITED STATES SENATE,

May 20, 1946.

Mr. SETH W. RICHARDSON,

General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, Senate Office Building.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: I have gone over the book The Case Against the Admirals, and it appears to me that we should have, for the record, the report on the bombing of the Utah in the fall of 1937. We should also have the program which was prepared by General Andrews and Colonel Knerr. The book states they prepared a program to submit to the War Department calling for 108 B-17's for enlarging the Pacific Fleet so it would operate in the Pacific and also provided for training of men to cost $21,000,000.

We should also have a copy of the budget of the Air Corps providing for this. We should also have the evidence showing why the War Department refused to submit the $21,000,000 item to Congress.

I believe we should also secure copies of the letters from Colonel Knerr to the Senate on the B-17 program.

On page 64 of the book is this quotation:

"The War Department cannot approve the program for developing the the B-17's. Instead of the B-17 you are ordered to build a light, responsive, less-expensive type of bombardment plane with a range not to exceed 300 miles."

We should put this evidence from the War Department into the records.

Sincerely,

(S) HOMER FERGUSON.

The CHAIRMAN. What is it you want Mr. Richardson to produce?

Mr. RICHARDSON. You will recall, Mr. Chairman, at our last meeting a question arose with reference to the possible [14496] interrogation of General Knerr with reference to matters alleged to have taken place subsequent to 1937 in connection with the preparation of long distance bombers known as B-17's. This letter is the communication we received the 21st, I think, the day following the day it was written, requesting that this information be secured and put in the record.

The facts that are involved in the question are:

(1) A request for the report on the bombing of the Utah.

(2) The program referred to which was prepared by General Andrews and General Knerr.

(3) Copy of the Budget which asked for 21 million dollars for training.

(4) The evidence why the War Department refused to submit the item covering these long distance bombers to Congress.

(5) The Knerr letters to the Senate recommending the B-17 program and

(6) The War Department statement disapproving the B-17 program.

I am inclined to think that five of these six requests are documentary and probably could be furnished by a request appropriately submitted to the War Department. The fourth one, evidence of why the War Department refused to submit the item to Congress, would be directly controversial, of course, and would require the calling of witnesses.

[14497] Senator FERGUSON. I didn't mean to call witnesses on that; if there was anything in the files.

Mr. MURPHY. Wasn't the Utah incident in 1938?

Senator FERGUSON. 1937.

Mr. RICHARDSON. 1937 is the recital here.

Mr. MURPHY. Where was it bombed in 1937, in Pearl Harbor?

Senator FERGUSON. It was a test bombing on this whole B-17 idea.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The point of this request is, as stated before, the question of how far the committee wants to go into the question of why the military services were short of B-17 bombers, and it would be expected that this evidence, if it was developed and put in the record, would disclose that, who was responsible for opposing the building of those bombers, and thereby would have the responsibility for failure to have them in our air force during 1941 when the situation with Japan grew more tense.

That is the question involved in this picture.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, I think that, in all fairness, if that were to go into the record that it would be necessary to go into a study of the defense strategy of the United States from 1937 on. We have a statement from General Marshall as to how much we actually had in the way of large bombers in the Service at December 7, 1941.

This letter purports to be based upon a book which was [14498] written by William Bradford Huie. Mr. Huie makes certain statements in this book that are open to challenge. I noticed a number of them that I think could be very easily refuted.

But at any rate, questions arise out of a reading of this particular book, which is one placed on the market in 1946.

He says, at page 162:

I suppose an objective discussion of the Marines is about as difficult to achieve as is an objective discussion of religion or Roosevelt.

That is the kind of a book it is.

The CHAIRMAN. What is the name of it?

Mr. MURPHY. The Case Against the Admirals.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee discussed this book at its last meeting in executive session in connection with the suggestion that certain people mentioned in the book be called as witnesses which, the committee felt, I think, in view of its action, would involve the committee going into a controversy that was raging in 1937 as to whether these B-17's should be ordered and an appropriation made for them.

The action of the committee in ordering the record and the hearings closed today seems to preclude the calling of these witnesses and, obviously, if the theory in this book is to be exploited, or explored, everybody mentioned in the book would have to be called here as a witness, or at least [14499] a certain number of them. Those against whom the book is written, being The Case Against the Admirals, would certainly have a right to be heard in defense of their own theory, and it is my feeling, and I think it was the feeling of the committee, by their action, that that not be gone into.

I don't think the committee can take any action based upon what is in that book.

I stated at the time that the writer of the book was not under oath, as was everybody else who testified here, and if any statements or any things mentioned in it, are to be brought in as evidence, certainly those making the statements would have to be sworn, like everybody else, and that would make impossible, and be utterly inconsistent with the order of the committee that the record should be closed today. That is what I am going by.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, it wasn't my desire to make this book a part of the record. I never even suggested that it be made a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. No, no; I appreciate that.

Senator FERGUSON. Mr. Chairman, I did read the book and I found some facts in it, which I checked with officials in the War Department, and I found one particular fact, that the War Department could not approve the program for developing the B-17's, and instead of B-17's, were ordered to build a light, responsive, less expensive type of bombardment plane, [14500] with a range not to exceed 300 miles.

Now, it is my contention that on this record as it now stands that when our fleet was moved to Pearl Harbor, someone, somewhere, should have developed a defense for that fleet. If it had been properly developed and if it had been properly taken care of, then Pearl Harbor could not have happened. I take that as being one of the things that we were to look into.

Now, I did find in this book certain information which I thought should be brought to the attention of the committee to fill in certain gaps. We had a lot of testimony, it is no new subject, about taking the fleet to Pearl Harbor, and whether or not it was defended at Pearl Harbor. There was a lot in the record about who was to fly bombers out—whether they were to be flown out. The record shows that the reconnaissance was to be had. There is some doubt in the record as to who was to carry on that reconnaissance. Was it the fault of the Navy, was it the fault of the Army, or who in the Navy or who in the Army, or who somewhere else.

I merely want to get information for the record officially. I am not taking Huie's language. I don't want to put his language in. I want official files in the record so that the committee when it gets up its report may give to the American people all of the facts.

The CHAIRMAN. What is it you are asking to be done now?

Senator FERGUSON. I am asking that the War Department [14501] furnish these particular things which Mr. Richardson read. I understand that the committee has ruled against me, that they are closing the record, but I did write this before the hearing came on, so that we could get these official records and put them in the record. That is all.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, as Mr. Masten just suggested to me, it would be possible, if the committee approves, to get whatever official records are involved in these inquiries presented to us, put them in shape, and that could be introduced in the record before the record was finally closed, without the necessity of additional testimony, or taking any particular time, except that at some time the committee would have to go in session, and do what they are doing this morning with reference to the exhibits. That could be done and it would only involve official records, apparently, from this request.

Mr. MASTEN. Mr. Chairman, couldn't you close the record today with permission to insert those at a later date?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Whatever the chairman thinks advisable.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee ordered the record closed today. I have to be governed by that action. If the record can be closed as of today I personally have no objection to these official documents being put in, as a part of today's record; but if they are to be brought in before another session of the committee and then be the basis for further [14502] requests, that is something else. We couldn't close the record on that basis.

The definite action of the committee last Thursday or Wednesday, whenever it was that we met, was that today would close the record and it would come to an end.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I would like to ask the chairman whether he and the members of the committee would think it would be proper to close the record today as including these documents with the right to physically present the documents and put them in the record at some future date?

Senator FERGUSON. That would solve the problem.

The CHAIRMAN. Not some future date; that they be put in the record as of today.

Senator FERGUSON. That is right.

The CHAIRMAN. Because if we ever get to the point where we can meet to consider a report we have got to have the record completed. And we have got to ask for another extension of time, up to July 1, I am not going to ask it beyond that, to make this report.

But that would not, I suppose, violate the order of the committee. Any objection to it?¹

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire whether or not counsel is going to offer in evidence the letters of Colonel Stimson and the letters of Mr. Roosevelt in regard to the bomber program and the planes at Hawaii?

[14503] The CHAIRMAN. I don't know.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no anticipation of offering them.

Mr. MURPHY. I ask that they be introduced, Mr. Chairman. We have had them for 6 months.

Mr. MASTEN. Senator Ferguson has requested that all the papers in the President's file that have not heretofore been put in the record, be included.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection that will be ordered.

Senator FERGUSON. The letters would be part of that.²

The CHAIRMAN. Go ahead.

Mr. LANE. Exhibit No. 21 contains two dispatches dated December 6, 1941, from Ambassador Winant, London, to the State Department. The dispatch dated at 3:05 p. m. that day refers to State Department Dispatch No. 5682, dated December 5, 1941, to the American Embassy, London. Copy of dispatch No. 5682 has been obtained from the State Department and we ask that it be received and marked "Exhibit No. 166."

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 166.")

Mr. LANE. The State Department file copy of the document handed by the Secretary of State to the Japanese Ambassador on November 26, 1941; statement to the press on that date, by the State Department, relating to delivery of the [14504] document; the State Department press release No. 585, dated December 7, 1941, concerning delivery and text of the document; and a memorandum dated December 2, 1941, concerning the President's remarks as his press conference on that date, relating to delivery of the document, have been compiled, and we ask they be marked and received as Exhibit No. 167.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 167.")

Mr. LANE. A compilation of documents from State Department files which are dated in November and December 1941, concerning a proposed modus vivendi, which documents supplement those introduced as Exhibit No. 18, has been prepared. We ask that these documents be received and marked "Exhibit No. 168."

¹ The information requested was subsequently admitted to the record as "Exhibit No. 183."

² See "Exhibit No. 179," subsequently introduced.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 168.")

Mr. LANE. A compilation of documents relating to conversations between State Department officials and representatives of the Thailand Government, between August 6 and December 8, 1941, has been prepared, and we ask that they be received and marked "Exhibit No. 169."

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 169.")

[14505] Mr. LANE. Exhibit No. 140 contains certain documents introduced in connection with testimony relating to the retirement of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short. At the request of the committee at page 8594 of the transcript, a comprehensive review of the War Department file has been made and a compilation of documents concerning the retirement of General Short, and related matters, has been made, and we ask that this material be received and marked "Exhibit No. 170."

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 170.")

Mr. LANE. Pursuant to committee request at page 8649 of the transcript, the Navy Department has furnished a compilation of documents from departmental records concerning the retirement of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, and related matters. We ask that this compilation be received and marked "Exhibit No. 171."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 171.")

Mr. LANE. At page 12991 of the transcript, reference was made to material handled under lend-lease to foreign countries. Additional compilations have been made by the War and Navy Departments on request of counsel, concerning planes and guns produced and their distribution from February 1 to [14506] November 30, 1941. We ask that this compilation be received and marked "Exhibit No. 172."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 172.")

Mr. LANE. The War Department has furnished a translation of the memoirs of Prince Konoye, former Prime Minister of Japan. These documents are reported to have been turned over to a representative of the United States Army in Japan by Prince Konoye, subsequent to the Japanese surrender. We ask that this translation be received and marked "Exhibit No. 173".

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 173.")

Mr. LANE. From numerous documents submitted by the State Department and examined by some members of the committee, a number of miscellaneous documents were requested for inclusion in the record. A compilation of these documents has been made, they are somewhat voluminous, and we ask that the compilation be received and marked "Exhibit No. 174".

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 174.")

Mr. LANE. The Secretary of Navy by memorandum dated December 5, 1941, and the Secretary of War by letter dated [14507]

December 6, 1941, submitted estimates concerning Japanese forces in Indochina and adjacent areas, to the Secretary of State, for delivery to the President. We ask that this compilation be received and marked "Exhibit No. 175."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 175.")

Mr. LANE. At pages 13953 and 13956 of the transcript request was made for the compilation of data reported to have been requested of the Navy Department by the Secretary of War to be delivered to the Secretary of War on the morning of December 7, 1941. This data reportedly concerned the location of United States naval forces in the Atlantic, Pacific and the Far East. The War Department Liaison Office has obtained a copy of such a compilation dated as of December 7, 1941, which is apparently the document in question.

We ask that this document be received and marked "Exhibit No. 176."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 176.")

Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson has requested that documents obtained from the State Department, dated in 1939, concerning a proposal made by former Japanese Prime Minister Baron Hiranuma for United States-Japanese understanding, be made a [14508] part of the record. This compilation has been made and we ask that it be received and marked "Exhibit No. 177."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 177.")

Mr. LANE. A compilation of documents from Ambassador Grew to the State Department and the President, and attached memoranda has been made, and we ask that it be received and marked "Exhibit No. 178."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. It will be so received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit 178.")

Mr. LANE. A selection of documents from the files of the late President Roosevelt, which were forwarded to the committee by Miss Grace Tully last November, in response to committee request for all material in the late President's files relating to Japan and the Far East, in 1941, has been obtained.

At the request of Senator Ferguson, we ask that these documents be received and marked "Exhibit No. 179." It should be noted that in addition to these documents there are some 500 pages of other documents from the President's files already in the record. With the introduction of this material, everything furnished by Miss Tully will be in the committee record. We ask that this material be marked "Exhibit No. 179."

[14509] The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The documents were marked "Exhibit No. 179.")

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the record show that the committee is aware of the fact that about three-fifths of this material has nothing to do with Pearl Harbor but is only being introduced because it was a part of the sum total of material furnished by Miss Tully. It has to do with elections in the Philippines, about differences with the Commissioner and Mr. Quezon, and about some matters in connection with General MacArthur, and about who is going to be named Governor in Hawaii, none of which data has any pertinence to this inquiry, and the only reason I do not object is that they are part of the files furnished by the White House.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Counsel may proceed.

Mr. LANE. The Army and the Navy have presented to the committee organization charts of the Army and Navy at Washington and Hawaii. They are large charts, and we ask that they be received and marked "Exhibit No. 180."

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

(The charts were marked "Exhibit No. 180.")

Mr. LANE. With reference to Exhibits Nos. 117 and 117-A, which have been introduced, we wish that a letter dated February 4, 1941, from the Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet, [14510] to various officers under his command, be spread upon the record at this point.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Be so ordered.

(The letter referred to follows:)

[14511] A4-1/VZ
A4-3/VZ/(0195)

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Feb. 4, 1941.

Confidential

From: Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet.

To: Commander Battle Force.

Commander Scouting Force.

Commandant Fourteenth Naval District.

Commander Aircraft Battle Force.

Commander Patrol Wing TWO

Subject: Aircraft in Hawaiian Area, maximum readiness of.

1. Many matters of Fleet material readiness are susceptible of improvement. I heartily endorse all effort, past and future, to obtain approval of and accomplish expeditious action on these things. Meanwhile, the Fleet must be prepared at any given time to employ, with maximum effectiveness, all components as they actually exist.

2. There is a definite line of demarkation between this objective and longer range planning. The latter has its proper sphere and must be continued as an essential basis for determining and stressing improved readiness requirements. This planning will naturally include the more effective schemes of employment that improved readiness, when attained, will permit.

3. Current readiness plans, however, cannot be based on any recommendation for, or expectation of, improved conditions [14512] or facilities. Such plans must be based only on hard fact. They must be so developed as to provide for immediate action, based on facilities and materials that are now available.

4. A subject emphatically calling for attention in line with the foregoing is maximum readiness in the Hawaiian area, particularly for Pearl Harbor defense, of all all available aviation components. As is well known, much remains to be done for adequate future effectiveness in this respect. Much, however, can now be done with means now available, to make arrangements for local employment of aviation more effective than they now are.

5. I propose, as a first step in direct action on this subject, to call a conference at an early date with the addressees of this letter. I desire that appropriate preliminary studies be initiated at once; discussion may be had with Army authorities subject to the understanding that preliminary agreements must be confirmed by the senior officers of the respective services in this area. As a guide in such studies, intended in no way to exclude consideration of any other proposals that may occur to those concerned, a brief outline is appended. I consider these features to be the most obvious steps toward making the best use of everything that is now available for the purpose:

5472 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(a) Joint Air Exercises. Desirability of intensified attention to this subject. Frequency and [14513] scope. Degree of coordination. Improvement along practical lines.

(b) Communications. Fully satisfactory communications between all Army and Navy air activities, both in the air and on the ground. Direct and instantaneous communications, in particular, between all Army and Navy air fields. Continuation of and renewed stress upon joint communication exercises.

(c) Air Command. Determination of responsibility and degree under various conditions. Arrangements between the two services for such direct exercise of air control as may be necessary.

(d) Landing Fields, Mutual Use. "Scattering" plans, including dispersion of patrol planes. Familiarization of Navy and Army aircraft personnel with one another's landing fields and facilities, including actual practice in mutual use and servicing.

(e) Aircraft Recognition and Familiarization. Recognition signals between air and ground. Familiarization of all personnel—air, ground and ship—with all local Navy and Army types.

(f) Alert Watches. Determination of suitable alert watch conditions. Requirements for all naval aircraft types. Size and composition of watches. Watches with and without ship-based planes present. Conservation of [14514] personnel and material.

(g) Armament and Re-armament. Plans for adequate accomplishment with means now available. Ready storage. Speed. Replenishment.

(h) Alarm and Detection. Effective and instantaneous air alarm arrangements. Detection by RADAR (and otherwise) and tracking of enemy planes. Possible restriction of own planes to specific operating areas for this purpose. Similarly, control of air traffic approaches.

H. E. KIMMEL.

P. C. CROSLY, Flag Secretary.

Mr. LANE. We have four documents from the files of the State Department which we desire to add to the record. They consist of: A memorandum of conversation dated December 5, 1941 between Secretary of State and the British Ambassador concerning cooperation with the Dutch East Indies against the Japanese;

A dispatch dated December 8, 1941 from Ambassador Grew to the State Department;

A dispatch dated December 6, 1941 from the State Department to the American Ambassador to Chungking; and

A dispatch dated December 7, 1941 from the State Department to Ambassador Grew.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. So received.

[14515] (The matter referred to follows:)

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Memorandum of Conversation

Date: DECEMBER 5, 1941

Subject: Cooperation with Dutch East Indies against Japan.

Participants: Secretary of State Hull and the British Ambassador, Lord Halifax.
Copies to:

The British Ambassador called at my apartment by his request.

He said he had a message from Eden, head of the British Foreign Office, setting forth the British view that the time has now come for immediate cooperation with the Dutch East Indies by mutual understanding. This of course relates to the matter of defense against Japan.

I expressed my appreciation.

C. H.

S CH: MA

[Copy]

MA

Tokyo

Dated December 8, 1941

Rec'd. 6:58 a. m., 10th

This telegram must be closely paraphrased before [14516] being communicated to anyone. (br)

SECRETARY OF STATE,

Washington.

Triple priority.

1906, December 8, 1 a. m.

Confidential.

Department's 818, December 6, 9 p. m., was received and decoded late this evening and I was able to see the Foreign Minister immediately thereafter at 12:15 a. m., when I requested an audience with the Emperor at the earliest possible moment in order to communicate the President's message directly. The Minister said that he would present my request to the throne and would communicate with me thereafter. I read to him and left with him a copy of the message.

GREW.

HTM

[Telegram sent]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

Washington, December 6, 1941. 9 p. m.

AM. EMBASSY,

Chungking (China).

[14517] 286

Triple priority.

Confidential.

Please communicate, in person if feasible, at the earliest possible moment to Chiang Kai-shek for his confidential information a copy of a message which the President is sending to the Emperor of Japan, reading as follows:

QUOTE (Telegraph Section: Insert here the text of the attached message from the President to the Emperor of Japan beginning with the words SUBQUOTE Almost a century ago END SUBQUOTE to the end of page five including the President's name) UNQUOTE.

In communicating copy of this message to Chiang Kai-shek, please state orally as from the President that the quoted message has already been sent by the President to the Emperor; that this message, as the situation now stands, would seem to represent very nearly the last diplomatic move that this Government can make toward causing Japan to desist from its present course; that if the slender chance of acceptance by Japan should materialize, a very effective measure would have been taken toward safeguarding the Burma Road; and that it is very much hoped that Chiang Kai-shek will not make or allow to be spread in Chinese Government circles adverse comment.

/s/ Hull.
SKH

FE:MMH:REK FE PA/H

[Telegram sent]

GRAY

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

Washington, December 7, 1941, Midnite.

AM. EMBASSY,

Tokyo (Japan).

Triple priority. 823

The Department has been informed by the War Department that at 8:00 a. m. today (Honolulu time) fifty or more Japanese dive-bombing planes, presumably from an aircraft carrier, dropped bombs in and around Honolulu. According to unconfirmed radio reports, the Japanese Government has declared war against the United States and Great Britain.

5474 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

At 1:00 p. m. on December 7 the Japanese Ambassador asked for an appointment with the Secretary of State. The Ambassador and Mr. Kurusu were received at 2:20 p. m. The Ambassador opened the conversation by saying that he was sorry that he had been delayed as his instructions were to deliver the paper which he then handed the Secretary at 1:00 p. m., but that owing to inability to decode the message he had been delayed. After reading two or three pages of the paper the Secretary asked the Ambassador whether it was presented under instructions of the Japanese Government. The Ambassador replied in the affirmative. The Secretary thereupon read the remainder of the paper after [14519] which he made to the Ambassador a brief statement emphatically critical of the contents of the document.

The Japanese representatives then took their leave without comment.

/s/ Hull.
SKH

FE:MWS/RLS:HES FE

Mr. LANE. In the testimony of Captain Zacharias at page 8734, a question arose as to certain purported orders to Task Force 8 under Admiral Halsey. The Navy has responded to our request by a memorandum dated May 3, 1946, and we ask that the Navy reply be spread upon the record, together with the request.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14520] 1083A; R #145

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, 3 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In compliance with the request of Senator Ferguson, referred to and forwarded in your memorandum of 31 January 1946, that there be obtained a copy of the orders purporting to delay the return to Pearl Harbor in December 1941 of Task Force Eight under Admiral Halsey, as mentioned in the testimony of Captain Zacharias (Record of Proceedings Page 8734), careful and thorough searches for the period 28 November to 7 December 1941 have been made of the files of the Navy Department and of the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet. Task Force Eight was required by order to be off Wake on 3 December 1941, but there were no orders to it to reduce speed nor any other directive to it to delay its return to Pearl Harbor.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
John Ford Baecher,
Commander, USNR.

JANUARY 31, 1946.

Memorandum to Admiral Colclough

In the course of his testimony at page 8734 of the Committee transcript, Captain Zacharias refers to the fact that [14521] Halsey's Task Force was originally scheduled to arrive back in Pearl Harbor on the fifth of December, 1941, but was delayed by fueling and weather and "now I know because of certain orders which did not speed us up."

At the request of Senator Ferguson, it would be very much appreciated if you would secure the orders to which Captain Zacharias refers to above.

S. W. RICHARDSON, Counsel.

SWR:MBB

Mr. LANE. In response to a request of counsel of the Navy Department concerning a memorandum prepared regarding the dissemination of Magic material and the submission of the raw material to the President, the Navy Department under memorandum dated May 23, 1946, has replied to counsel's request and we ask that the reply be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.
(The matter referred to follows:)

[14522] 1070/JFB:ms; R. #185

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, 23 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of the first and second paragraph of your memorandum of 17 May 1946, a search has been made of the pertinent official files of the Navy without success to find the memorandum dated 12 November 1941, prepared by Captain A. D. Kramer, U. S. N., entitled "Dissemination to White House," which you state was referred to by Captain L. S. Safford in his testimony or digest in the so-called Clarke Investigation conducted by the Army of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. A copy of the paper obtained from Captain Safford is forwarded herewith, though because of the failure to find the original, it has not been possible to check its accuracy.

The memorandum in question was a rough handwritten paper by Captain Kramer for his possible future reference and not an official document of the Navy of or concerning the events or conclusions referred to therein.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
John Ford Baecher,
Commander, USNR.

[14523] Confidential

DISSEMINATION TO WHITE HOUSE

7 Nov. '41 Gen. Sherman Miles (G2) at 1600 called Capt. Wilkinson (DNI). I was called in on the subject question. In reply to Miles' inquiry I explained as follows:

G-2	ONI
JAN	FEB
MAR	APR
MAY	JUNE
JULY	AUG
SEPT	OCT
NOV

A. Through spring of '41 (G-2) (Bratton) and ONI had followed the signed agreement of Jan. '41.

B. A combination of the following factors led to G-2 not sending anything to the White House after May '41:

1. Loss of Memo #9 by State in March.
2. German report to Japs of leakage in April and the resulting clampdown on security.

3. G-2 lack of confidence in Gen. Watson's ideas of security, particularly due to the absolute necessity thereof after 1 and 2 above, and because of the fact that earlier in the spring one Memo to the White House was found by Col. Bratton in Gen. Watson's wastebasket.

4. The feeling of G-2 that almost with- [14524] out exception the subject of the Memos and traffic was State business anyway, and the matters should therefore be properly taken up with the White House by State, rather than being sent directly.

C. During June, when the new Naval Aide to the President (Beardall) came, he had taken the O. N. I. memos over as per agreement. In July I continued to show things to him in original form to keep him informed and also because he specifically requested this, since the President at times was asking him about points appearing in this material.

D. Toward the end of September (G-2 having sent nothing to the White House) Beardall stated the President wanted to see the material I was showing him (Beardall). I informed DNI, explaining that G-2 permission must be obtained in accordance with the agreement. With DNI's permission I contacted Col. Bratton and got his O. K.

5476 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

E. During October (ONI dissemination duty), only the "memos" went.

F. Several times between 1 Nov. and 7 Nov. (today) Capt. Beardall was shown original material. On Friday noon, 7 Nov., he asked to have a number of them to take. I reminded him that November was Army's month for dissemination. He acknowledged this and stated he had so informed Mr. Roosevelt, but Roosevelt had directed him to bring it anyway. I told him I would get DNI and G-2 permission.

General Miles then said G-2 was beginning again to disseminate to the White House. I indicated that my concern was to comply with the agreement, and particularly to avoid duplicating via the Naval Aide anything which G-2 might send. This could be done by keeping in daily touch with Col. Bratton on what he was sending to the White House. In fact, the Naval Aides could be entirely eliminated during G-2's months and adhere strictly to the agreement, by having ONI request G-2 to send anything Capt. Beardall felt should go. Gen. Miles agreed and stated that he [14526] would confer with Gen. Watson on the matter.

7 Nov. 1630 I saw Capt. Beardall, to show him today's material, and explain what had developed in the above talk. He elucidated further by saying that when he had informed the President, in reply to a request for material, that it was Army's month for dissemination, the President said he understood that, and was in fact either seeing or being told about the material through Hull. However, he desired to see the material via Beardall anyway. Beardall expressed the opinion to me that President grasps things more rapidly visually than orally, and therefore, wanted to see the material in addition to getting it from Hull.

7 Nov. 1700 I informed Capt. Wilkinson of the above. He indicated he was going to pass it on to Miles.

10 Nov. 1230 I saw Beardall with today's material. He informed me that a conference between him, Miles, Watson (and another?) had agreed to Beardall alone handling [14527] dissemination to the White House.

10 Nov. 1630 Saw DNI with today's material. He had already been informed of the above and directed that I comply therewith.

12 Nov. 1615 Started routine of giving Beardall the day's material for transmission to the President, in compliance with the above outlined modification to the signed agreement of Jan. '41 between G-2 and ONI.

A. D. KRAMER.

12 Nov. 1941.

Mr. LANE. By memorandum dated May 23, 1946, the Navy Department has furnished a reply to the inquiry appearing at pages 271-273 of the transcript and at page 6144 of the transcript regarding orders issued to Lt. Clarence E. Dickinson as noted in the October 10, 1942, issue of the Saturday Evening Post. We ask that that reply be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
Washington, 23 May 1946.

[14528] 1070/JFB:ms; R. #102

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Gearhart (Record of Proceedings, pages 271-273, and 6144), referred to in item 2 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, in respect of statements made by Lieutenant Clarence E. Dickinson in the 16 October 1942 issue of The Saturday Evening Post, concerning orders under which he flew an airplane from the U. S. S. Enterprise while it was engaged in the mission of Task Force 8 from Pearl Harbor to Wake Island and return, 28 November-7 December 1941, it has been ascertained that on 28 November 1941, the date the Task Force departed Pearl Harbor, then Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., Commander, Task Force 8, sent to his command the following signal:

"Current operations involve necessity readiness for instant action."

This signal was received by the U. S. S. Enterprise, which was the flagship of Task Force 8. It would be usual Navy practice, and may be assumed, that the substance of the signal [14529] was communicated to all of the pilots who flew planes from the Enterprise during the mission.

[s] O. S. COLCLOUGH
Rear Admiral, U. S. N.

Mr. LANE. Under date of May 22, 1946, the Navy Department has furnished a reply in response to the request of Senator Ferguson at pages 12792 and 12793 of the transcript concerning the so-called History written in 1942 of the activity of the Communications Unit of the Navy, which was testified about by Admiral Hart in connection with conversations between Captain Safford and himself.

We ask that this reply be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14530]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 22 May 1946.

1070/JFB:ms

R. #179

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Pages 12792-12793, 12862 and 12875), referred to in Item 18 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, there is enclosed a copy of all of the references to and of all messages quoted concerning the Winds Code in the compilation or so-called "history" written in 1942 of the activity of the Communications Unit, which Admiral Hart testified was seen by him in connection with the incidents involving or conversation between Captain Safford and himself in respect of the Winds Code or any execute thereof.

The references in the commentary or explanatory paragraphs in the enclosure to Japanese messages are to only those intercepts which are also quoted therein, viz: JD-1: 6875, JD-1: 6850, JD-1: 6985 and JD-1: 7148.

The statement in the last commentary or explanatory paragraph, which is that preceding the quotation of JD-1: 7148, that there were "other reference to the United States in [14,531] texts not available now," is an obvious confusion of the Winds Code and the Hidden Word Code. It was made in connection with the "Hidden Word" Japanese message of 7 December 1941 (Tokyo Circular No. 2494) JD-1: 7148, in the first translation of which there was omitted the reference to the United States conveyed by the Japanese code word "Minami." A thorough search of the files of the cognizant activity of the Navy has failed to reveal any other message received prior to the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor containing any reference to the United States in the Winds Code or the Hidden Word Code.

All of the messages referred to and quoted in the enclosure appear in Exhibit 1 of the Congressional Investigation, at pages as follows:

Tokyo Circular #2353 (JD-1: 6875) Page 154.
Tokyo Circular #2354 (JD-1: 6850) Page 155.
Tokyo Circular #2409 (JD-1: 6985) Pages 186-188.
Tokyo Circular #2494 (JD-1: 7148) Page 251.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
John Ford Baecher,
Commander, USNR.

Encl (1).

[14,532]

* * * * *

5478 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

* * * "Instructions for secret broadcast signals to indicate critical relations with the United States, Russia, and Britain, were sent out from Tokyo."

* * * "A plain Japanese weather broadcast on December 7 indicated that Japanese relations with England and the United States would be broken off."

* * * "Secret codes for emergency messages in the regular short wave broadcasts from Tokyo were now issued by the Japanese. All of them dealt with the rupture of relations between Japan and other countries."

From: Tokyo Circular #2353, Nov. 19, 1941.
To: Washington, J19.

Regarding the broadcast of a special message in an emergency.

In the case of emergency (danger of cutting off our diplomatic relations), and the cutting off of international communications, the following warning will be added in the middle of the daily Japanese language short wave news broadcast.

(1) In case of a Japan-U. S. relations in danger—HIGASHI NO KAZEAME (East wind rain).

(2) Japan-U. S. S. R. relations: KITANOKAZE KUMORI— [14533] (North wind cloudy.)

(3) Japan-British relations: HISHI NO KAZE HARE—(West wind clear.)

This signal will be given in the middle and at the end as a weather forecast and last sentence will be repeated twice. When this is heard please destroy all code papers, etc. This is as yet to be a completely secret arrangement.

JD-1: 6875 Navy Translation
11-28-41

From: Tokyo Circular #2354, Nov. 19, 1941.
To: Washington, J19.

When our diplomatic relations are becoming dangerous, we will add the following at the beginning and end of our general intelligence broadcasts:

(1) If it is Japan-U. S. relations, "HIGASHI."

(2) Japan-Russia relations, "KITA."

(3) Japan-British relations (including Thai, Malaya, and NEI)—"NISHI."

The above will be repeated five times and included at beginning and end.

JD-1: 6850 Navy Translation
11-28-41

* * * "An interesting dispatch, which contained much valuable [14534] information for the decryption purposes of U. S. Navy Radio Intelligence was the subsequent one. Note the tone of finality in all the special messages."

From: Tokyo Circular #2409, Nov. 27, 1941.

To: Washington, J19 (in 4 parts—complete).

(Rio de Janeiro to Santiago as Circular #324).

(Washington sent to Ottawa, Mexico City, Bogota, Caracas, Havana, Panama, New York, and New Orleans as unnumbered message.)

(Part I)

Handle as Chief of Office Routing.

With international relations becoming more strained, the following Ingo Denpo (hidden words, or misleading language telegrams) is placed in effect. Please study this carefully.

Make up a table with the left column containing the code words and the right the corresponding plain (decoded) text. Please see that there is no mistake in transcribing this.

Example. A message meaning:

"Japan and USSR military have clashed", will read "HIJIKATA and KUBOTA, Clerks, have been both ordered to your embassy on 15th (begin spell) STOP (end spell.)"

[14535] In order to distinguish these cables from others, the English word STOP will be added at the end as an indicator. (The Japanese word "OWARI" (end) will not be used.)

(Part 2)

Code word and meaning:

ARIMURA: Code communications prohibited.

ASAI: Communications will be by radio broadcasts.

ASAKURA: Will communicate by radio broadcast. You are directed to listen carefully.

ASIKAGA: Reception of overseas broadcast impossible due to interference.

ASUMA: Pressure on Japan increasing continually.

EDOGUTY: Prepare for evacuation.

HANABUSA: Preparations for evacuation have been completed.

HANAZONO (?): Prepare to entrust Embassy property to suitable foreign envoy (or Consul) there.

HATAKEYAMA: Relations between Japan and ----- have been severed.

[14536] HATTORI: Relations between Japan and ----- are not in accordance with expectations.

(Part 3)

HIZIKATA: Japan's and -----'s military forces have clashed.

HOZINO: Japan and ----- are entering a full fledged general war.

IBARAGI: Communicate to us probable date of breaking off of relations between Japan and the country to which you are accredited.

INAGAKI: Have you ----- the ----- matter?

ISHIKAWA: I have ----- the ----- matter.

KASHIWAGI: We are commencing military action? against -----.

KOBAYAKAWA: Stop issuing all entrance and transient visas to Japan, to persons of ----- nationality.

KODAMA: Japan.

KOMIYAMA: China.

KOYANAGI: England.

KUBOTA: U. S. S. R.

KURIBARA: France?

KUSONOKI: Germany.

[14537] MATUTANI: Italy.

MIWATA: Canada.

MINAMI: U. S. A.

MIYAZAKI: Mexico.

MOROKOSI: Brazil.

MOTIZUKI: Panama.

NAGAMINE: Argentina.

MAKAZATO: Thailand.

NANGO: French Indochina.

NEGI (?): Netherlands East Indies.

OGAWA: Burma.

OKAMOTO: Malaya.

OKUMURA: Australia.

ONIZOKA: Union of South Africa (?).

ONODERA: Enemy country.

OTANI: ? (Possibly: friendly or allied country?).

ONISI: Year.

SIMANAKA: Day (?).

SAKAKIBARA: (Tsuki) Month.

SIGENO I: (Ke) Paragraph.

SANZYO: (Toki) time.

ITIRO: 1.

NISAKU: 2.

SANTARO: 3.

YORI: 4

[14538] Goro: 5.

Masaroku: 6.

Simetaro: 7.

Yasokiti: 8.

Hisamatu: 9.

Atumi: 0.

5480 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

* * * "The first one (Dispatch on 7 December) was in plain Japanese, but used the weather code, which signified the breaking off of diplomatic relations. Though this refers to England, other references were made to the United States in texts not available now.

From: Tokyo Circular #2494, Dec. 7, 1941.

To: (Circular telegram.)

(Plain Japanese language using code names.)

Relations between Japan and England are not in accordance with expectation.

JD-1: 7148 Navy Translation

12-7-41"

[14539] Mr. LANE. By memorandum dated May 16, 1946, the Navy Department in compliance with the request of Congressman Cooper at page 10738 of the Record of Proceedings has furnished a smooth copy of a study made by Captain Kramer of certain translations of Japanese intercepts.

We ask that this be spread on the record at this point.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14540]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 16 May 1946.

1083A(HLB)

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In compliance with the request of Vice Chairman Cooper at page 10738 of the Record of Proceedings, referred to in item 14 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, Captain Kramer has prepared, and there is forwarded herewith, a smooth copy of the study made by him of the times of delivery to the White House of certain translations of Japanese intercepts.

/s/ John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14641]

JD #	Origin	Date	Tran.	Page in Ex. 1 or Transcript	Subject & Army Number	Delivered by Navy
7137	B-T #1421	12/ 5	12/6 N	11215	Gave Germans dope on U. S. negotiation. Think we should tell them re Konoye note.	First message of block delivered about noon 6 December.
7138	B-T #1408	12/ 3	12/6 N	11217	(Re 7132) Re-Rostov and Rommel.	} Eve 6 December.
39	W-T #1261	12/ 5	12/6 N	235	Hull-Kurusu-Nom talk on 5th.
40	T-W #896	12/ 5	12/6 N	234	(Re 7051) Have Terasaki etc. leave in next few days. My footnote re Terasaki.
41	W-T #1262	12/ 5	12/6 N	11225	(Re 7140) Want to keep Terasaki for present.
42	T-W #897	12/ 6	12/6 A	237	Re code machines, keep one I meant (25835)
43	T-W #902 (Parts 1-13)	12/ 6	12/6 N	239	Jap Note parts 1-13 (25843)
43	T-W #902 (Part 14)	12/ 7	12/7 N	245	Jap Note part 14 (25843)	0815-1000 7 December.
44	T-W #904	12/ 6	12/6 A	245	Re Typist (25844)	} 1030-1100 7 December.
45	T-W #907	12/ 7	12/7 A	248	1 P. M. msg (25850)
46	T-W #908	12/ 7	12/7 A	248	Thanks to 2 Ambassadors (25853)
47	T-W #910	12/ 7	12/7 A	249	Destroy all codes and papers (25854)
7148	T-Circ #2494	12/ 7	12/7 N	251	Rel. Bet. Jap & Eng. (Hidden Word Code)
49	T-W #901	12/ 6	12/6 A	238	Pilot Msg (25838)	} PM 7 December.
50	T-W #905	12/ 6	12/7 A	10745	AP-UP reports re FDR msg to Emperor (25857)
51	T-W #909	12/ 7	12/7 A	248	Thanks to Emb staff (25858)
7152	Rio-T #460	11/15	12/7 N	-----	Re planes to Africa

No footnote in original.

5482 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14542] Mr. LANE. The request of Senator Ferguson at page 13966 and Congressman Keefe at page 13996 concerning data appearing on the log dated December 6, 1941, kept by the Navy Department operations watch officer, now Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover, USN, has been replied to by the Navy Department, and we ask that the information contained therein be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Be so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14543] 1083 A
R. #168

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington 26 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

In response to the requests of Senator Ferguson and Congressman Keefe (Record of Proceedings), Pages 13966 and 13996, respectively) inquiry was made of Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover, U. S. Navy, by dispatch #152019 of April 1946 to ascertain his recollection in respect of the item (read into the Record of Proceedings at Pages 13946-13947) written by him in the log of the Operations Watch Officer on the night of 6 December 1941 at 2000, and his reply by dispatch #160636 of April 1946 has been received. Photographic copies of each of these dispatches are forwarded herewith.

Rear Admiral Glover is not the holder of any records in respect of the incident noted in the log. It will be noted that while he remembers contacting Admiral H. R. Stark at the latter's home between 000 and 0200 concerning the southern movement of the Japanese convoy that ultimately landed near Kota Baru yet he states he is unable to recall the 2000 of 6 December 1941 incident noted in the log, but that he suggests a possible additional source of information in the form of a "log kept by the Ship Movement Division." [14544] A search has been instituted to identify and locate any such "log," and also to obtain the other information in respect of the incident noted in the log which would be responsive to the further requests of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Pages 13953 and 13956), referred to in Items #2 and #3 of your memorandum of 19 April 1946. As of the present time these searches have not been successful but they are not yet completed. You will be advised by subsequent memorandum of such event and of the ultimate results.

JOHN FORD BAECHE,
Commander, USNR.

NAVAL COMMUNICATION

From: SECNAV (JAG)
To: COMAIRPAC
Date: 15 APR 1946
152019
Restricted

For Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover USN X in congressional investigation of Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor question has arisen as to whereabouts of Admiral H. R. Stark on night 6 December 1941 and Admiral Stark cannot recollect that detail X Log of OPNAV duty officer for 6 dash 7 December 1941 indicates you stood watch from 1900 to 0200 X This log contains over your signature the following entry quote at 2000 [14545] Major F. L. Harrison comma aide to the Secretary of War comma telephoned that the Secretary of War desired the following information by 0900 Sunday 7 December colon compilation of men of war in Far East comma British comma American comma Japanese comma Dutch comma Russian comma also compilation of American men-of-war in Pacific fleet comma with locations comma and a list of American men-of-war in the Atlantic without locations X Admirals Ingersoll comma Stark and the Secretary of the Navy were consulted and the Secretary directed that the information be compiled and delivered to him prior to 1000 Sunday 7 December unquote X This entry does not recall to Admiral Stark any recollection as to his whereabouts X He accepts the item but think it may possibly be inaccurate because he cannot see why it would have been necessary to have consulted all three paren Ingersoll himself and Knox paren in the matter referred to X

Advise by dispatch as soon as possible whether you recollect consulting Admiral Stark as indicated comma as well as the manner in which and the approximate time you contacted him and where he was located when reached by you X

From: COMAIRPAO 160636
To: SEC
P (JAG) WASHN D C
Restricted X

[14546] I regret that I am unable to recall the incident referred to in your 152019 X Information of the nature requested by the Secretary of War was normally compiled by the so-called quote War Room unquote which was then a new section of the Ship Movements Division of OPNAV X This section was headed by Captain Frank Leighton now deceased X Events of importance originating from the War Room were entered in the log kept by the Ship Movement Division X It is possible that Capt Leighton was the consultant X I do remember very definitely having telephoned Admiral Stark during the night concerning the movements of a Japanese convoy which was west of the Philippines headed south X This was the convoy that made the initial landing on the Malay Peninsula near Kota Bharu X I am certain that this call was made after midnight as it was toward the end of the watch and that Admiral Stark was then at his home X From Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover X

1083 A
R. # 173

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 7 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

In response to the requests of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Pages 13,953 and 13,956) referred to [14547] in Items #2 and #3 of your memorandum of 11 April 1946, a thorough search, as heretofore indicated in the memorandum to you from the undersigned dated 26 April 1946 (1083A R #168), has been made of the pertinent files of the Navy Department to locate the data or document in respect of the compilation of ship locations requested by the Secretary of War on 6 December 1941 as noted in the ~~2000~~ entry in the log of the watch officer of Naval Operations and for the records used to give that information to the Secretary of War. The search has now been completed but with negative results.

There was found, however, a copy of a statement of locations of U. S. Naval forces and foreign naval forces as of 7 December 1941, which on comparison is found to be in part the same as or a copy of and in other parts to contain information substantially identical with that stated in the similar document found in the files of the War Department on the outside sheet of which there appears the notation "Secnav (2) 1000."¹ A study of the two documents indicates that the one found in the files of the Army is most probably a copy of that which was prepared in pursuance of the request noted in the watch officer's log, and which probably was delivered in duplicate to Secretary of the Navy Knox and by him a copy to Secretary Stimson at their conference at 1000 on 7 December 1941, while that now found in the files of the Navy was either a subsequently typed document of the same date or more probably [14548] the rough draft on which was based the final draft of the document delivered to the Secretary of the Navy. A copy of the document which has been found in the files of the Navy is forwarded herewith.

Information of the nature reflected in ship location summaries such as those referred to above is based on dispatches and other internal Navy intelligence as to the locations and movements of United States ships, and on Intelligence Reports and Estimates such as are in the Record of the Congressional Investigation as to foreign ships.

(Sgd) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHEER,
Commander, USNR.

¹ See exhibit No. 176 for document from War Department files.

5484 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Mr. LANE. Congressman Murphy, at page 7496 of the transcript, requested copies of any report that, after a trial, a plan for readiness of aircraft at Hawaii was abandoned due to wear on planes and crews. Under date of May 8, 1946, the Navy Department has replied to this request and we request that the reply be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14549] 1070/JFB:ms R. #182

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 8 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In compliance with the request of Congressman Murphy (Record of Proceedings, Page 7496), referred to in Item #7 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, a thorough search has been made of the pertinent files of the Navy Department for a report submitted by the Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet, to the effect that because of the wear and tear on airplane crews and planes there was abandoned after a few days trial at some indefinite time prior to 7 December 1941, a plan whereby all Army and Navy planes, including pursuit planes but excepting search planes, should be warmed up, manned, and ready to take off before sunrise to ~~0800~~, and for one hour before and after sunset. No such report could be found.

(Sgd.) John Ford Beacher,
JOHN FORD BEACHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14550] Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson at page 13527-13529 of the record requested copies of any message sent by Capt. John Creighton, Naval Observer at Singapore, to Admiral T. C. Hart, Commander in Chief, Asiatic Fleet, on 4, 5, or 6 December 1941, concerning the sighting of a Japanese convoy south of Siam.

Under date of May 10, 1946, the Navy Department has replied to this request and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14551] 1070/JFB:ms R. #180

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 10 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In compliance with the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Pages 13527-13529), referred to in Item #20 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, a thorough search has been made of the files of the cognizant activity of the Navy Department for the message which Captain John Creighton testified was sent by him on 4, 5, or 6 December 1941 from Singapore to Admiral T. C. Hart in respect of information received from the pilot of a British reconnaissance plane that a Japanese convoy had been sighted south of the south point of Siam, headed west, and that Japanese fighter planes had taken off from a Japanese carrier in the escort to prevent the British plane from approaching the convoy. No message containing such information could be found in the files of the Navy Department.

(Sgd.) John Ford Beacher,
JOHN FORD BEACHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14552] Mr. LANE. A request of Senator Lucas, at page 152 of the transcript, concerns long distance reconnaissance from Pearl Harbor prior to December 7, 1941. The Navy Department, under date of May 2, 1946, has replied to that request, and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Be so ordered.
(The matter referred to follows:)

[14553] 1083A, R #101, R #122.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington 2 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson

In response to the request of Senator Lucas (Record of Proceedings, Page 152), the regular air search including the dawn patrol of the fleet operating areas from Oahu was first prescribed on 15 February 1941, by Paragraph 3 (B) (1) of Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter No. 2CL-41 of that date, and was put into effect on 25 February 1941, by Paragraph 2 of Pacific Fleet Confidential Memorandum No. 1CM-41, of that date.

There are enclosed photographic copies of (1) Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter No. 2CL-41, dated 15 February 1941, and (2) Pacific Fleet Confidential Memorandum No. 1CM-41, dated 25 February 1941.

(s) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14554] Cinepac File No. A211/FF1/A4-3/QL/(0271).

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET,
U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, FLAGSHIP,
PEARL HARBOR, T. H., February 15, 1941.

Confidential

Destroyed Cy #5

Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter No. 2CL-41

From: Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet.

To: Fleet.

Subject: Security of Fleet at Base and in Operating Areas.

Reference: (a) U. S. Fleet Conf. Letter No. 8CL-40.

(b) U. S. Fleet Letter No. 3L-40 (Revised).

(c) U. S. Fleet Letter No. 9L-40.

(d) U. S. Fleet Letter No. 19L-40.

(e) Section 3, Chapter II, U. S. F. 10.

(f) Section 4, Chapter IV, U. S. F. 10.

1. Reference (a) is hereby cancelled and superseded by this letter.

2. The security of the Fleet operating and based in the Hawaiian Area may reasonably be based on two assumptions:

(A) That no responsible foreign power will provoke war, under present existing conditions, by attack on the Fleet or Base, but that irresponsible and misguided nationals of such powers may attempt:

(1) sabotage from small craft on ships based in Pearl Harbor.

[14555] (2) to block the Entrance Channel to Pearl Harbor by sinking an obstruction in the Channel.

(3) lay magnetic or other mines in the approaches to Pearl Harbor.

(B) That a declaration of war might be preceded by;

(1) a surprise attack on ships in Pearl Harbor.

(2) a surprise submarine attack on ships in operating area.

(3) a combination of these two.

3. The following security measures are prescribed herewith, effective in part or in their entirety as directed by the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, or the Senior Officer Present Afloat in the Hawaiian Area:

(A) Maintain continuous patrols:

(1) Channel Entrance plus a ready duty destroyer moored near coal dock.

(2) Boom.

(3) Harbor.

(B) Intermittent patrols:

(1) Patrol Wing TWO shall search assigned operating areas and vicinity prior to entry therein by operating forces and in early morning on subsequent days.

(2) An off-shore destroyer patrol of three destroyers beginning twelve hours prior to the sortie and/or entry of heavy ships to search that part of the circle of a [14556] radius of ten miles from the entrance buoys not patrolled by the Channel Entrance Patrol. This patrol shall be furnished by Commander Destroyers, Battle Force, on request of Task Force Commander.

(3) An air patrol shall be established at least two hours prior to the sortie of the first heavy ship to search that part of the circle of a radius of thirty miles from the entrance channel buoys which is South of latitude 21°-20' N. This air patrol shall be furnished: for sortie, from ship or carrier-based aircraft by the Senior Office Present Afloat of unit remaining in the Harbor on the request of the Sortie Task Force Commander; for entry, by the Task Force Commander entering; when a sortie and entry occur in succession, by the Task Force Commander entering.

(4) Daily sweep. Sweep for magnetic and anchored mines.

(C) Operating areas:

(1) The Naval Operating Areas in Hawaiian Waters (U. S. C. & G. S. Chart No. 4102) are considered submarine waters. Observe requirements of reference (e).

(2) When ships operate at sea from Pearl Harbor they shall be organized as a Task Force to which will be assigned destroyers and patrol aircraft as necessary for screening. Each task force shall be organized offensively and defensively. These organizations shall be promulgated prior to leaving port [14557] and shall provide for the following:

(a) A destroyer attack unit to locate and attack hostile submarines.

(b) Anti-submarine screens for heavy ships in accordance with the number of destroyers available in the priority:

Priority 1—BBs.

Priority 2—CVs.

Priority 3—CAs.

Priority 4—CLs.

(c) A striking unit of cruisers, carrier 'if operating) and destroyers, to co-operate with Patrol Wing TWO and Army Air Units in destroying hostile carrier group.

(d) A concentration of operating submarines preparatory to disposition as circumstances require.

(D) Sortie and Entrance:

(1) Comply with instructions in U.S.F. 10.

(2) Patrols outlined in (B) (2) and (B) (3) above, shall be established and commanded by the Sortie Commander except when forces are entering only, in which case they shall be established and commanded by the officer commanding the Task Force entering. When forces sortie and enter consecutively the command of the patrols will be turned over to the entry Task Force Commander on completion of the sortie by the Sortie Task Force Commander. These patrols shall continue until released [14558] by the Task Force Commander of the sortie in case of sortie only, or by the Task Force Commander entering in case of entry or successive sortie and entry.

(3) Degaussing coils, if calibrated, shall be energized in water of less than sixty fathoms. Unless the Entrance Channel has been swept for magnetic mines, Commander Base Force shall furnish a tug, minesweeper, or small ship without protection to precede the first heavy ship in which the degaussing gear is inoperative. Water of less than sixty fathoms shall be avoided if operations permit.

(E) Conditions of ships at sea:

(1) Ships, except submarines, shall not anchor in unprotected anchorages. Pearl Harbor is a protected anchorage. Hilo and Kahului may be considered as such if boat patrols are maintained at the entrance and ships are so moored as not to be subject to torpedo fire from outside the harbor.

(2) Task Force, or Task Group Commanders, if directed by the former, shall maintain inner air patrol for disposition or formations, when in assigned operating areas.

(3) Maintain inner anti-submarine screens insofar as practicable with assigned destroyers. Carriers operating alone utilize plane guards for screening when they are not employed in plane guarding.

(4) Maintain condition of readiness THREE on torpedo defense batteries and equivalent condition of readiness [14559] in destroyers. Supply ready ammunition and keep depth charges ready for use. Aircraft will not be armed unless especially directed.

(5) Maintain material condition XRAY, or equivalent, in all ships.

(6) Steam darkened at night in defensive disposition either as a Task Force or by Task Groups as practicable.

(7) Restrict use of radio to minimum required for carrying out operations.

(8) Maintain horizon and surface battle lookouts.

(9) Submarine shall not operate submerged in the vicinity of surface ships except in accordance with prearranged plans for tactical exercises, for gunnery exercises, or for services to other types.

(10) Submarine operations, except (9) above, shall be confined ordinarily to Areas C-5, C-7, U-1, M-20, M-21 and M-24. Under special circumstances submarines squadrons may request additional areas from the officer responsible for assigning operating areas, who shall assign areas clear of the general area allocated to surface ships and shall notify all Fleet units in the Hawaiian Area. While submarines are operating submerged in C-5 and C-7 they will maintain a guard ship on the surface to warn approaching surface ships.

(11) Except as specifically directed for exercise purposes all operations of submarines other than those covered [14560] in sub-paragraphs (9) and (10) above, shall be on the surface.

(12) Submarines may anchor in the following places: in Pearl Harbor, off Lahaina, inside or outside Kahului, off Kauai, and at Hilo. No boat patrols need be maintained.

(13) Commanders of surface task forces, when they have been designated, shall be furnished with detailed submarine schedules and all changes thereto. Commanders of surface task forces shall ensure that all air patrols are properly notified thereof.

(F) Condition of ships in port:

(1) Ships in port in the Hawaiian Area shall carry out applicable measures, outlined in references (b), (c) and (d).

(G) Defense against air attack:

(1) The principal Army anti-aircraft gun defense of Pearl Harbor consists of several three-inch mobile batteries which are to be located on the circumference of a circle of an approximate radius of five thousand yards with center in the middle of Ford Island. The Army, assisted by such units of the Marine Defense Battalions as may be available, will man these stations. Machine guns are located both inside and outside the circle of three-inch gun positions.

(2) In the event of a hostile air attack, any part of the Fleet in Pearl Harbor plus all Fleet aviation shore-based on Oahu, will augment the local air defense.

[14561] (3) As a basis for the distribution of ships within the harbor for anti-aircraft fire, berths in the harbor are assigned to air defense sectors as follows:

Sector I—Berths F2-F8, K2, C1 to C5. (Sector defined by approximate bearings 045° to 190° true from assigned berths).

Sector II—Berths F1, F9, B1-3, Dry Docks, DG Calibrating Buoys, T1-4, WL-2-3, D2-7, X22, X23. (Sector defined by approximate bearings 190° to 270° true from assigned berths).

Sector III—Berths D1, D9, F10-13, X2, X15, X18. (Sector defined by approximate bearings 270° to 000° true from assigned berths).

Sector IV—Berths X3, X4, X5, X6 to X14, X17, C6. (Sector defined by approximate bearings 000° to 045° true from assigned berths).

Hostile planes attacking in a sector shall be considered as the primary targets for ships moored at that sector's berths. But ships at other sector berths may be used to augment fire outside their sector at the discretion of the Sector Commander.

(4) The Senior Officer Embarked in Pearl Harbor (exclusive of Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet) shall ensure that ships are disposed at berths so that they may develop the maximum anti-aircraft gunfire in each sector commensurate with the total number of ships of all types in port. [14562] He is authorized to depart from the normal berthing plan for this purpose. Battleships, carriers, and cruisers shall normally be moored singly insofar as available berths permit.

(5) The Senior Officer Present in sector prescribed in sub-paragraph (G) (3) above, is the Sector Commander, and will be responsible for the fire in his own sector.

(6) The Commandant Fourteenth Naval District is the Naval Base Defense Officer (N.B.D.O.). As such he will—

(a) Exercise with the Army joint supervisory control over the defense against air attack.

(b) Arrange with the Army to have their anti-aircraft guns emplaced.

5488 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(c) Exercise supervisory control over naval shore-based aircraft arranging through Commander Patrol Wing TWO for co-ordination of the joint air effort between the Army and Navy.

(d) Co-ordinate Fleet anti-aircraft fire with the base defense by—

(1) Advising the Senior Officer Embarked in Pearl Harbor (exclusive of the Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet) what condition of readiness to maintain.

(2) Holding necessary drills.

(3) Giving alarms for: attack, blackout signal, all clear signal.

(4) Informing the Task Force Commander [14563] at sea of the attack and the type of attacking aircraft.

(5) Arranging communication plan.

(6) Notify all naval agencies of the air alarm signal prescribed.

(7) The following naval base defense conditions of readiness are prescribed:

Condition I—General Quarters in all ships. Condition of aircraft as prescribed by Naval Base Defense Officer.

Condition II—One-half of anti-aircraft battery of all ships in each sector manned and ready. Condition of aircraft as prescribed by Naval Base Defense Officer.

Condition III—Anti-aircraft battery (guns which bear in assigned sector) of at least one ship in each sector manned and ready. (Minimum of four guns required for each sector). Condition of aircraft as prescribed by Naval Base Defense Officer.

(8) Searchlights of ships will not be used in event of a night attack.

(9) In event of an air attack, the following procedure will be followed by the task forces:

(a) Senior Officer Embarked in Pearl Harbor.

(1) Direct destroyers to depart as soon as possible and report to operating task force commander.

[14564] (2) Prepare carrier with one division of plane guards for earliest practicable sortie.

(3) Prepare heavy ships and submarines for sortie.

(4) Keep Commander-in-Chief, Naval Base Defense Officer and Task Force Commander operating at sea advised.

(b) Task Force Commander operating at sea.

(1) Despatch striking unit.

(2) Make appropriate defensive disposition of heavy ships and remaining surface forces at sea.

(3) Despatch destroyer attack unit if circumstances require.

(4) Direct commander of operating submarines of action desired of him.

(5) Keep Commander-in-Chief, Naval Base Defense Officer and Senior Officer Embarked in Pearl Harbor informed and advised of any attacks, or hostile planes sighted in the operating area.

(c) Naval Base Defense Officer.

(1) Give the alarm indicating attack is in progress or imminent. If not already blacked out, each unit will execute blackout when the alarm is given.

(2) Inform the Task Force Commander at sea of the attack and the type of attacking aircraft.

(3) Launch air search for enemy ships.

[14565] (4) Arm and prepare all bombing units available.

(H) Action to be taken if submarine attacks in operating area:

(1) In the event of a submarine attack in the operating area, the following general procedure will be followed;

(a) Ship Attacked. Proceed in accordance with Article 509, F. T. P. 188. Originate a plain language despatch, urgent precedence, containing essential details and addressed to all ships present in Hawaiian Waters. To insure rapid delivery this despatch should be transmitted by the attacked ship to the Task Force Commander, to all ships present in Pearl Harbor on the harbor circuit in effect, and to Radio Honolulu (NPM) on 355 kcs. for Commandant Fourteenth Naval District, and relay on schedule. If the ship attacked is damaged, it will clear the immediate submarine danger area at best remaining speed, then proceed toward Pearl Harbor using zigzag appropriate for speed in use.

Ships other than one attacked.

(b) Battleships. Zigzag at maximum speed. Launch aircraft armed for inner air patrol. Do not approach scene of attack closer than 50 miles during remainder of daylight period. Give own screening unit information to enable them to join quickly.

(c) Carriers. Same as for battleships, [14566] except all aircraft will be placed in Condition ONE, armed. Aircraft for initial inner patrol may be launched unarmed. (At least one squadron with depth charges when they become available). Launch planes other than those for inner air patrol as ordered by Task Force Commander or as circumstances warrant.

(d) Cruisers. Same as for battleships, except that one-half available aircraft (armed) will be used for own inner air patrol. The second half will be sent to scene of attack, armed, to attack enemy submarine and to provide patrol for damaged ship if damaged ship has been unable to provide its own inner air patrol.

(e) Destroyers. Attack unit proceed at maximum speed to scene of attack. Take determined offensive action. Screening units join heavy ship units to which assigned. Destroyers in Pearl Harbor make immediate preparations for departure. Sortie on orders of Senior Officer Present Afloat. Report to Task Force Commander when clear of Channel.

(f) Submarines. Surface if submerged. Remain in own assigned areas, zig-zagging at best speed until directed otherwise.

(g) Minecraft. Augment screening units as directed by Task Force Commander.

(h) Base Force. If ship attacked is damaged, tugs in operating areas slip tows and join her at best speed, prepared to tow. Report in code positions of rafts [14567] abandoned. Tugs in Pearl Harbor prepare for departure. Sortie on order of Senior Officer Present Afloat. High speed towing vessels proceed at discretion, keeping 50 miles from scene of attack.

(i) Patrol Wing Two. Assume readiness for offensive action. Carry out search as directed by Task Force Commander. Prepare to establish station patrol 220 mile radius from scene of attack at one hour before daylight of next succeeding daylight period.

(j) Shore-based Fleet Aircraft. Prepare to relieve planes in the air over the attack area, unless Pearl Harbor is also attacked, in which case the instruction issued by Naval Base Defense Officer have priority.

(k) Naval District. Clear Pearl Harbor Channel at once for either sortie or entry. Prepare to receive damaged ship(s) for repair.

(l) S. O. P. A., Pearl Harbor. Prepare destroyers in Pearl Harbor for sortie and direct the departure of units as requested by the Task Force Commander of units at sea. Control of departing units will pass to the Task Force Commander at sea as units clear the Pearl Harbor entrance buoys.

(m) Task Force Commander at sea. Coordinate offensive and defensive measures. When immediate defensive measures have been accomplished, prescribe rendezvous and issue necessary instructions for concentrating and forming the [14568] Task Force.

(2) It must be remembered that a single attack may or may not indicate the presence of more submarines awaiting to attack.

(3) It must be remembered too that a single submarine attack may indicate the presence of a considerable surface force probably composed of fast ships accompanied by a carrier. The Task Force Commander must therefore assemble his Task Groups as quickly as the situation and daylight conditions warrant in order to be prepared to pursue or meet enemy ships that may be located by air search or other means.

H. E. KIMMEL.

Distribution: (List II, Case 1): O; X; AA1; AAA1; EN1; EN3; NA12; ND11AC; ND11-12-13-14.

P. C. CROSBY,

Flag Secretary.

5490 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14569] CinC File No.
A2-11/FF1/
A4-3/QL/0312

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET,
U. S. S. PENNSYLVANIA, FLAGSHIP,
Pearl Harbor, T. H., 25 February 1941.

CONFIDENTIAL.

Pacific Fleet Confidential Memorandum No. 1CM-41

From: Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Fleet.

To: Fleet.

Subject: Security of Fleet at Base and in Operating Areas—Measures to be effective.

Reference: (a) Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter No. 2CL-41.

1. The Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, directs that the following security measures of reference (a) be effective as of the date of this letter.

2. Paragraph numbers herein correspond with those in reference (a).

(A) (1).

Channel Entrance and ready duty destroyer—administered by Commandant Fourteenth Naval District with services furnished by Commander Destroyers, Battle Force.

(A) (2).

Boom—administered by Commandant Fourteenth Naval District with services furnished by Commander Battle Force from all ships present.

(A) (3).

[14570] Harbor—administered by Commander Base Force with services furnished by Commander Battle Force, from all ships present.

(B) (1) (2) (3).

(B) (4).

Administered by Commandant Fourteenth Naval District with own services. Commander Base Force will augment if so requested by Commandant Fourteenth Naval District.

(C) (1).

(C) (2) (a) (b) (c) (d).

Assignments only shall be made. The Task Force Commander will hold one drill during each operating period, if employment permits, in the establishment of units prescribed.

(D) (1) (2) (3).

(E) (1) (5) (6) (7) (8) (9) (10) (11) (12) (13).

(F).

The provisions of reference (b).

(G).

Entire article, except subparagraph 6 (b), which will be as arranged by Naval Base Defense Officer with Commanding General Hawaiian Department.

(H).

Entire article.

3. Force Commanders and Commandant Fourteenth Naval District will issue the necessary orders to make these [14571] measures effective.

H. E. KIMMEL.

DISTRIBUTION: (List II, Case 1).

O; X; AAA1; EN1; EN3; NA12; ND11AC; ND11-12-13-14.

(s) P. C. Crosley,
P. C. CROSLY,
Flag Secretary.

Mr. LANE. On the last page of Exhibit No. 160, reference is made to a statement by the late President Roosevelt concerning a report from a Captain Smith. The Navy Department was asked to identify this Captain Smith, upon request of Senator Ferguson, and under date of May 9, 1946, the Navy Department has advised that this officer was then Lt. Comdr. (now Commander) C. D. Smith, U. S. N. R., Commanding Officer, U. S. S. Wake, and we ask that the full reply of the Navy Department be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14572] 1070/JFB:ms
R#174

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 9 May 1946.

(Memorandum)

To Mr. SETH W. RICHARDSON.

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson of 16 April 1946, forwarded by your memorandum of 19 April 1946, the Captain Smith referred to on the last page of the 13 December 1941 memorandum of the remarks made by the President on 7 December 1941, on the occasion of the meeting of the Cabinet was then Lieutenant Commander (now Commander) C. D. Smith, U. S. N. R., Commanding Officer, U. S. S. Wake (River Gunboat). The U. S. S. Wake was captured by the Japanese at Shanghai, China, and Captain Smith was taken prisoner. He escaped from a Japanese prison camp in China and returned to naval jurisdiction in November 1944.

The phone call from the Japanese received by Captain Smith, which President Roosevelt mentioned, was reported to the State Department in a message filed by Consul General Stanton with Radio Shanghai at 2210 (10:10 p. m.) 7 December 1941 (Greenwich Civil Time), which was 1710 (5:10 p. m.), 7 December 1941, Washington local time and 6:10 a. m., 8 December 1941, Shanghai local time. The message was received in Washington at 1913 (7:13 p. m.) 7 December 1941, Washington local time. A photostatic copy of the message is enclosed herewith.

[14573] The following is a chronological summarization of the events surrounding the phone call and receipt of knowledge of it in Washington.

[14574] Local time and date

Event	In Greenwich	In Washington	In Hawaii	In Shanghai
Attack on Pearl Harbor started.....	071820 6:20 p. m. 7th	071320 1:20 p. m. 7th	070750 7:50 a. m. 7th	080220 2:20 a. m. 8th
Elapsed time between attack and phone call: 1 hour, 55 minutes
Call received by Captain Smith.....	072015 8:15 p. m. 7th	071515 3:15 p. m. 7th	070945 9:45 a. m. 7th	080415 4:15 a. m. 8th
Elapsed time between call and filing message: 1 hour, 55 minutes
Message filed in Shanghai.....	072210 10:10 p. m. 7th	071710 8:10 p. m. 7th	071140 11:40 a. m. 7th	080610 6:10 a. m. 8th
Elapsed time between filing message and receipt in Washington: 2 hours, 3 minutes
Message received in Washington.....	080013 12:13 a. m. 8th	071913 7:13 p. m. 7th	071343 1:43 p. m. 7th	080813 8:13 a. m. 8th
Elapsed time between receipt in Washington and mention by President: 2 hours, 17 minutes
Phone call mentioned by President.....	080230 2:30 a. m. 8th	072130 9:30 p. m. 7th	071600 4:00 p. m. 7th	081030 10:30 a. m. 8th

(S.) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, U. S. N. R.

5492 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14575] NPB 1535 RDO SHANGHAI CK XX GOVT STATE PRIORITY SEVENTH 2210

Govt State SecState Washn Info AmEmbassies Chungking Peiping Nanking Amconsuls Hankow Hongkong Swatow Amoy Canton Chefoo Tsingtao Captain C D Smith Commanding U.S.S. Wake received telephone call at four fifteen this morning period A Japanese naval officer stated quote A state of war exists between my country and yours and I am taking control of Wake unquote period All communications with Wake cut off and no further information is available regarding her period HMS Peterel small British gunboat blew up at about the same time period Japanese in control of waterfront but have not taken over settlement or French concession city quiet para all confidential codes and papers destroyed including those aboard Wake except ditof

STANTON.

[14576] Mr. LANE. The request of Senator Ferguson at page 11220 of the transcript, concerns time of interception and translation of a message from Berlin to Tokyo, serial 1405, mentioned in a series of dispatches by Captain Kramer in his testimony before the committee. The War Department under date of May 1, 1946, and the Navy Department under date of April 15, 1946, have replied to this request, and we ask that their replies be spread upon the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14577]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, 1 May 1946.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. RICHARDSON:

With reference to the question raised by Senator Ferguson on page 11220 of the transcript as to whether Message No. 1405 from Berlin to Tokyo was received prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor, a search of the files of the Signal Intelligence Service discloses that the message was dated 2 December 1941, was received by the Signal Intelligence Service on 5 December 1941, but was not decoded and translated until 10 December 1941.

(S) Robert M. Diggs,
ROBERT M. DIGGS,
Capt., AUS.

1083A(JFB)
R#148

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 15 April 1946.

(MEMORANDUM)

To MR. SETH W. RICHARDSON.

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings p. 11220), referred to in item 16 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, it has been ascertained that the Berlin to Tokyo message # 1405 was intercepted and translated by [14578] the Army, and therefore the files of the Navy do not indicate whether it was received before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on 7 December 1941.

(S) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR

Mr. LANE. At page 9671 of the transcript Congressman Murphy requested monthly reports from the Interceptor Station at Winter Harbor, Maine, and Cheltenham, Md., for November and December 1941. Under date of May 3, 1946, the Navy Department replied to this request and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14579] 1083A
R #183

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 3 May 1946.

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Murphy (Record of Proceedings Page 9671), referred to in Item #13 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, the November and December 1941 Monthly Reports of the Navy Intercept Stations at Winter Harbor, Maine and at Cheltenham, Maryland were taken on several occasions by the undersigned to the regular daily hearings of the Joint Congressional Committee.

At one such time it was explained to Congressman Murphy that in addition to the material referred to in the testimony of Captain Safford (Record of Proceedings Page 9672) those reports contained considerable technical and operational data which were pertinent to the Pearl Harbor inquiry and which the Navy desired not to be disclosed for important reasons of security. On receiving that information Congressman Murphy quickly acceded to the request of the Navy and stated that he was desirous of cooperating to the fullest extent to preserve the security of the data referred to and that he would be satisfied to obtain for the Record a statement that the Monthly Reports were physically present in the Navy Department and available to authorized persons at that [14580] time and had been since 1941. The desired statements in the affirmative were made by the undersigned in behalf of the Navy Department in answer to questions put by Congressman Murphy on 16 February 1946 (Record of Proceedings Pages 12,640-12,641), and, to the extent it may be deemed necessary, those statements are confirmed.

In view of the above it is believed the request of Congressman Murphy has been complied with to his satisfaction. If this assumption is not true please advise and any further desired information will be supplied.

(S) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHEER,
Commander, USNR.

Mr. LANE. Requests of Senator Ferguson and Congressman Murphy, appear at page 13856 of the transcript, for copies of correspondence between Admiral Kimmel and President Truman concerning the examination of certain Navy Department files. Under date of April 26, 1946, the Navy has furnished the information requested and we ask that the material be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14581]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 26 April 1946.

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. In response to the requests of Senator Ferguson and Congressman Murphy (Record of Proceedings, Pages 13,856 and 13,857), referred to in Item #1 of your memorandum of 19 April 1946 for copies of the exchange of correspondence between Rear Admiral H. E. Kimmel, U. S. Navy (Retired) and President Truman there are enclosed copies of the following:

- (1) Letter from Rear Admiral Kimmel to the President dated 13 November 1945.
- (2) Memorandum from the President to the Secretary of the Navy dated 29 November 1945.
- (3) Letter from the President to Rear Admiral Kimmel dated 29 November 1945.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHEER,
Commander, USNR.

5494 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14582]

ROOM 1N90 NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Washington 25, D. C., 13 November 1945.

MY DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: I have been informed that there are in the files of the Director of Naval Communications of the Navy Department copies of despatches forwarded by the White House to London and other cities, in 1941.

I submitted a request to the Chief of Naval Operations under date of 8 November 1945 that I be given access to these files for examination, with the view to selecting individual despatches in those files that relate to Pearl Harbor and to the events leading thereto, and this for the purpose of obtaining photostat copies thereof for use in the hearings of the Joint Congressional Investigating Committee.

I have been orally informed today that this request to you is necessary for your approval before I may be given access to these files. I am, therefore, submitting this request to you through the Secretary of the Navy.

Very respectfully,

HUSBAND E. KIMMEL,
Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy (Ret.).

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

[14583]

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, 29 November 1945.

MEMORANDUM FOR
THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY:

Replying to your memorandum dated 23 November 1945, forwarding a request from Rear Admiral Kimmel for access to confidential files of the Navy Department for use in hearings of the Joint Congressional Investigating Committee, access to files that are material to the investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack is made available to the Congressional Committee by my memorandum of October 23, 1945, to the Secretaries of State, War, and Navy, and to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

I have found it necessary to lay down a policy that confidential files of the Department may not be available for examination by individuals.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter which I have sent to Admiral Kimmel.

(S) HARRY TRUMAN.

[14584]

29 NOVEMBER 1945.

DEAR ADMIRAL KIMMEL: Replying to your letter dated 13 November 1945, requesting access to certain confidential files of the Navy Department for your use in hearings of the Joint Congressional Investigating Committee, you are informed that access to files in the Navy Department that are material to the investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack is permitted to the Congressional Committee by my memorandum of 23 October 1945 to the Secretaries of State, War, and Navy.

I have found it necessary to lay down the policy that confidential files in the Navy Department may not be made available for examination by individuals.

I am sure that if you made application to the Congressional Committee, it would obtain for you the information which you are seeking.

Very sincerely

(S) HARRY S. TRUMAN.

Rear Admiral H. E. KIMMEL, USN (Ret.)
Room 1N90 Navy Department,
Washington 25, D. C.

[14585] Mr. LANE. On request of Senator Brewster, page 8208, for any report made by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy on the report of the Roberts Commission, the Navy Department has replied under date of April 26, 1946, to this request and we ask that the reply of the Navy Department be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14586] 1083A
R#109

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 26 April 1946.

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

Response to the request of Senator Brewster (Record of Proceedings, Pages 8208-8211), referred to in Item #10 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, was made by prior memorandum to Counsel for the Committee dated 21 January 1946 (File 1083A R#109), which advised that no record had been found in the Navy Department of any report made by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy on the report of the Roberts Commission. Further search has not disclosed any such Report.

However, there was prepared by an officer on the working level in the office of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy a rough draft from which were typed smooth copies constituting what that officer conceived as a statement of possible charges and specifications in respect of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, U. S. Navy (Retired), but as to which no record has been found indicating it was ever approved or passed on by either the Judge Advocate General of the Navy or the Secretary of the Navy and which, therefore, never became a part of the official records nor a document of the Navy. In the event this paper may be considered at all responsive to the [14587] request of Senator Brewster, or in case either you or the Committee may have any interest in it, a carbon copy is forwarded herewith.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

NAV JAG-63-B
OO-Kimmel, Husband E./A17-20

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C.

To: Judge Advocate, General Court-Martial.

Subject: Charges and specifications in case of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, U. S. Navy, Retired.

1. The above-named officer will be tried before the general court-martial of which you are judge advocate, upon the following charges and specifications. You will notify the president of the court accordingly, inform the accused of the date set for his trial, and summon all witnesses, both for the prosecution and the defense.

CHARGE I. CULPABLE INEFFICIENCY IN THE PERFORMANCE OF DUTY

SPECIFICATION

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, U. S. [14588] Navy, and it being the duty of the said Kimmel while so serving as the said commander in chief to take all practicable steps to keep the ships of his command ready for battle, did, in Hawaiian waters, from about 1 February 1941 to 7 December 1941, while so serving as aforesaid, fail to issue and see effected such timely orders as were necessary to keep the ships of his, the said Kimmel's, command ready for battle, as it was his duty to do, by reason of which inefficiency an attack by Japanese forces on 7 December 1941 resulted in a number of the said ships being damaged and destroyed.

CHARGE II. NEGLIGENCE IN OBEYING ORDERS

SPECIFICATION

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, U. S. Navy, having, in Hawaiian waters, on or about 27 November 1941, been lawfully ordered by the Chief of Naval Operations to execute a defensive deployment of forces under his command in preparation for carrying out war tasks, did, during the period from about 27 November 1941 to about 7 December 1941, at the place aforesaid, neglect and fail to make appropriate, adequate, and timely defensive deployment of naval forces under his command preparatory for carrying out war tasks [14589] as required by the imminence of hostilities and in obedience to the aforesaid orders, and as a result of which neglect and failure as aforesaid an attack by Japanese forces on 7 December 1941 resulted in Navy installations and ships of the U. S. Pacific Fleet being damaged and destroyed.

CHARGE III. NEGLECT OF DUTY

SPECIFICATION 1

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, U. S. Navy, and it being the duty of the said Kimmel, while so serving as said commander in chief, to protect the territory within the Hawaiian naval coastal frontier against hostile expeditions, and he, the said Kimmel, well knowing of the possibility of an attack by Japan on the United States, did, in Hawaiian waters, during the period from about 16 October 1941 to about 7 December 1941, neglect and fail to protect the territory within the Hawaiian naval coastal frontier against hostile expeditions, as it was his duty to do, by neglecting and failing to provide and cause to be provided a proper and sufficient distant reconnaissance although means were available for such reconnaissance, as a result of which neglect and failure as aforesaid an attack by Japanese forces on 7 December 1941 resulted in Navy installations and ships of the U. S. Pacific Fleet being damaged and destroyed. [14590]

SPECIFICATION 2

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, U. S. Navy, and while so serving, being jointly responsible with the Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, for the defense of the Hawaiian coastal frontier and well knowing of the possibility of a surprise attack by Japan on the United States, did, in Hawaiian waters, during the period from about 27 November 1941 to about 7 December 1941, neglect and fail to consult, confer and cooperate with the aforesaid commanding general with respect to measures to be taken under the then existing plans for joint defense of the Hawaiian coastal frontier and the adaptation of the said plans in whole or in part as required by the imminence of hostilities, as it was the duty of the said Kimmel to do, and as a result of which neglect and failure as aforesaid an attack by Japanese forces on 7 December 1941 resulted in Navy installations and ships of the U. S. Pacific Fleet being damaged and destroyed.

SPECIFICATION 3

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, United States Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in [14591] Chief, United States Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, United States Navy, and while so serving, being jointly responsible with the Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, for the defense of the Hawaiian coastal frontier, having been informed by the Chief of Naval Operations by despatch on or about 24 November 1941 that a surprise aggressive movement in any direction by the Japanese, including an attack on the Philippines or Guam, was a possibility, and on or about 27 November 1941, that negotiations with Japan had ended and Japan was expected to make an aggressive move within a few days, and on or about 29 November 1941 that Japanese action was unpredictable and hostilities on their part were momentarily possible, did in Hawaiian neglect and fail to consult and confer with the said commanding general with respect to the meaning and intent of the warnings issued by the said despatches and the appropriate measures of defense required by the indicated imminence of hostilities, as it was the duty of the said Kimmel to do, and as a result of which neglect and failure as aforesaid an attack by Japanese forces of 7 December 1941, resulted in Navy installations and ships of the U. S. Pacific Fleet being damaged and destroyed.

SPECIFICATION 4

In that Husband E. Kimmel, rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired, while serving on active duty as the Commander in [14592] Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet, with the rank of admiral, U. S. Navy, and while so serving, being jointly responsible with the Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, for the defense of the Hawaiian coastal frontier, having on or about 27 November 1941 been informed by the Chief of Naval Operations by despatch that negotiations with Japan had ended and that Japan was expected to make an aggressive move within a few days and that said despatch was to be considered a war warning, did, in Hawaiian waters, between said date and 7 December 1941 neglect and fail to put into effect within his command a state of alert and of readiness such as was required to meet the emergency envisaged in the said despatch, as it was the duty of the said Kimmel to do, in that a distant reconnaissance was not inaugurated and maintained and shore batteries of the Navy and antiaircraft artillery on board vessels of the fleet were not manned and supplied with ammunition, and as a result of which neglect and failure as aforesaid an attack by Japanese forces on 7 December 1941 resulted in Navy installations and ships of the U. S. Pacific Fleet being damaged and destroyed.

[14593] Mr. LANE. In response to the request of Congressman Keefe, page 11033 of the record, the Navy Department has replied, concerning the location of certain cards in respect to the winds code, and we ask that the Navy Department reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14594]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 23 April 1946.

1083A (HLB)

R#165

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Keefe (Record of Proceedings, page 11033), referred to in item 15 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, a thorough search of the pertinent files of the cognizant activity of the Navy Department has been made to find the cards in respect of the winds code which were prepared at the direction of Read Admiral Noyes, and no information or material of the type described has been found.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14594-A] Mr. LANE. In respect to the request of Senator Ferguson for information as to the number of airplanes sent to Hawaii and the Philippines during the period February 1, 1941, to December 7, 1941, in the transcript at page 12997, by reply dated April 22, 1946, the Navy Department has furnished this information and it has been included in Exhibit No. 172 of the committee.

Mr. MURPHY. In connection with that I would like for the record to show that there are letters in the President's file that are pertinent to that very question, letters from Secretary Stimson to the President and from the President to the Secretary, in regard to the planes to be sent to Hawaii.

The CHAIRMAN. Go ahead.

Mr. LANE. In response to Senator Ferguson's request at page 13995, for the various messages noted in the operations watch officer log, the Navy Department, under date of April 22, supplied this material, and it has been made Exhibit 162-A.

At page 14064 of the transcript, a memorandum from the Navy Department concerning the notes and drafts of Admiral Inglis' statement before this committee was spread on the record. A correction of the Navy Department memorandum has been received under date of April 18, 1946. We ask that the correction be spread on the record.

5498 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14595] 1083A(JFB)

R101

123

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 18 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In respect of the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, pages 200-201) concerning the drafts and notes assembled in connection with the preparation of the statement of Admiral Inglis, my previous memorandum (dated 25 January 1946, R #101, 123) (Record of Proceedings, page 14085) erroneously advised as to the date when the final draft was completed and the work material destroyed. The date of the occurrence of those events was 14 November 1945 and not 24 November 1945.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHE,
Commander, USNR.

Mr. LANE. We request that a memorandum from the War Department liaison officer dated December 13, 1945 to committee counsel concerning production and distribution of B-17 bombers as of September 1, 1941 be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., December 13, 1945.

Memorandum for Mr. Mitchell.

With reference to your letter of December 10, 1945, forwarding a copy of Senator Brewster's request dated December 5, 1945:

1. As of September 1, 1941, 133 B-17's had been produced.
2. Of the 133 B-17's produced as of September 1, 1941, 113 had been delivered to the Army Air Forces and 20 to Great Britain.
3. On September 1, 1941, the United States possessed 109 B-17's, disposed as follows:

Hawaii.....	21
Panama.....	7
Continental United States.....	81

(S) HARMON DUNCOMBE,
Lieutenant Colonel, General Staff Corps.

Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson requested whether or not the OpNav dispatch 061743, December 1941, to Admiral Kimmel, was a priority message. The Navy Department has replied to this request and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14596]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 16 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of proceedings, page 7812) referred to in Item 8 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, Dispatch 601743 of December 1941 from OpNav to CinCPac for action to CinCAF for information, was sent with deferred precedence.

This message, as indicated in part in my memorandum (1083A (HLB) R#105 dated 29 January 1946) to you, was transmitted from Washington to radio Honolulu on 6 December 1941 at 2254 Greenwich Time, which was 1754 Washington Local Time and 1224 Hawaiian Time (10:54 p. m. Greenwich Time, 5:54 p. m. Washington Local Time and 12:24 p. m. Hawaiian Time) all of 6 December. Since this message was transmitted by radio, it was received in Honolulu at the moment of transmission. No record has yet been found at Pearl Harbor indicating the exact time of delivery of the message to Admiral Kimmel.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER
Commander, USNR.

[14597] Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson's request, at page 207 of the transcript, for records relating to the phrase "provide necessary escort" in the dispatch marked "Exhibit No. 3" of this committee, has been answered by a reply of the Navy Department dated the 17th of April 1946. We ask that this reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14598] R #124
(JFB-efb)
(1070)

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 17 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Page 207), referred to in item 1 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, the direction in dispatch 252203 of November 1941 from OpNav to Com12 for action and to CincPac, CinCaf, Com14 and Com16 for information (Cong. Inv. Exhibit 3), reading 'CinCPac and CinCaf provide necessary escort', which follows the instruction for the routing of all trans-Pacific shipping through the Torrest Straits, is usual Navy phraseology whereby it was indicated to the Fleet Commanders that they should detail as a protective escort such ships as in their discretion they considered necessary to accomplish the purpose of guarding the trans-Pacific shipping in question from any unfriendly action or aggressive attack.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14599] Mr. LANE. In reference to page 14127 and page 14129 of the transcript, information was recorded as received from the Navy Department concerning the time of Japanese attacks in various Pacific locations at the outbreak of war. This additional information has been received from the Navy Department and we ask that it be added to the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14600] 1083A (HLB)
R #112

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 17 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

Subject: Time Table of Japanese Attacks—source of material.

Reference is made to my memorandum file 1083A R#112 dated 4 April 1946 (Record of Proceedings, pages 14127-14129), in which the times of the Japanese attacks at Clark Field, P. I., and Nichols Field, Manila (Record of Proceedings, page 14129) were reported to be 9:27 am (December 8th, local time) and 3:00 am (December 9th, local time).

5500 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Further and later information received from the War Department now places the times of the attacks at these places as follows:

Place	Local time	Greenwich time	Washington time
Clark Field, P. I....	Between 12:17 and 12:20 p. m. December 8th.	Between 4:17 and 4:20 a. m. December 8th.	Between 11:17 and 11:20 p. m. December 7th.
Nichols Field, Manila.	3:15 a. m., December 9th...	7:15 p. m., December 8th...	2:15 p. m., December 8th.

/s/ John Ford Baecher
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14601] Mr. LANE. Congressman Murphy requested at page 12635 of the transcript and the Navy has supplied four intercepted dispatches, mentioned in the statement before the committee of Capt. L. F. Stafford. Opanav dispatch No. 282301, also requested at that time, has been included as a part of Exhibit No. 142 of this committee. We ask that the four intercepted dispatches be included in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14602]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington 15 April 1946.

1083A (JFB)

R #172

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Murphy (Record of Proceedings, page 12635), referred to in Item 17 in your memorandum of 29 March 1946, there are enclosed herewith copies of the following documents:

- (a) No. 843, Tokyo to Washington, 27 November 1941.
- (b) Serial 1197, Washington to Tokyo, 27 November 1941, (JD-1 No. 6908).
- (c) Serial 482, Rio to Tokyo, 30 November 1941, (JD-1 No. 6982).
- (d) Serial 768, Rome to Tokyo, 29 November 1941, (JD- No. 6981).

/s/ John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

Encls. (4)

[14603] From: Tokyo.

To: Washington.

27 November 1941

(Purple)

#843

Broadcast schedule as follows:

6	p. m.	To Pacific Coast.....	JVJ	12275.
6:30	p. m.	To Western Hemisphere.....	{ JUO	9430 and
			{ JVJ	12275.
7:00	p. m.	To the Coast.....	JVJ	12275.
8:00	p. m.	To the Coast.....	JHL	5160.
9:00	p. m.	To the Coast.....	JHL	5160.
10:00	p. m.	To the Coast.....	JHP	11980.
10:30	p. m.	To Europe.....	JHL	5160.

JD-1: 6899 Secret (H) Navy Trans. 11-28-41 (S-TT) Encl (A)

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

27 November 1941.

(Purple) #1197.

Re your #798* and #843.

Due to reception of JUO and JVJ (general intelligence [14604] information—Morse code—broadcast) being weak, we desire that you change these to JAV (27,327.5 kilocycles) and JUP (13,065 kilocycles), the change to be made immediately.

Reception is also very weak on JHL (Domei news broadcast) so arrange to use above wave length for this, too.

Due to static, the JAP (European broadcast) cannot be heard at all.

*JD-1: 6658—Instructions concerning talks on withdrawing troops from Southern Indochina.

*JD-1: 6899—Tokyo broadcast schedule.

JD-1: Secret Navy Trans. 11-29-41 (X) Encl (B)

From: Rio (Ishii).

To: Tokyo.

November 30, 1941.

Purple. #482.

I am making a general test of the reception of dispatches, and find that at present we cannot receive the 10:30 P. M. (Japanese time) transmission at all. At present the only one we can hear is the 6:30 P. M. (Japanese time) transmission from JVJ to the United States, so please bear this in mind. Argentina [14065] reports the same.

As I would like to find out whether conditions are favorable here for reception between 4:00 and 6:00 A. M. (Japanese time), it seems best to send to South America at that time over a wavelength of from 10 to 15 megacycles.

25571 Army 6982 Secret Trans. 12-2-41 (7) Encl (D)

From: Rome.

To: Tokyo.

29 November 1941.

(Purple) # 768.

Re my #762*.

In regard to the Japanese language radio broadcasts to Europe recently, JLT cannot be heard at all and while JVW can be heard fairly well still there is interference from other wave lengths during the news broadcasts and static, etc. Added to this is the fact that the announcer apparently speaks in a low tone, very rapidly and swallows the ends of his words, and the occasions when we do not get good reception are numerous. There is great danger that we may miss some important announcement such as was referred to in your telegram. Please take up the following points that I am going to mention and [14606] please arrange to do something about it, temporarily at least.

1. Select an announcer who can speak slightly louder than the present one and who can enunciate clearly, one who does not intone and who can pronounce even the last syllables of his words correctly and clearly.

2. In selecting the news please continue to place the most important news first followed by items of lesser importance. However, as some time is usually consumed in adjusting the machine, sometimes the important news is missed so please repeat this again at the end of the broadcast even if this requires cutting down on the entertainment features.

3. Before the Japanese news broadcast please be sure to always play several minutes of Japanese patriotic music by way of introduction.

Relayed to Berlin.

*Not available.

JD-1 Secret (H) Navy Trans. 12-2-41 (G-TT) Encl (C)

Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson requested at page 6374 a memorandum attached to a letter dated 4 April 1941 from Admiral Stark to Admiral Kimmel. The Navy Department replied under date of May 1, 1946, and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

5502 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14607] 1083A R#131

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
WASHINGTON, 1 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. In compliance with the request of Senator Ferguson (Record of Proceedings, Page 6374), referred to in Item # 6 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, a careful search has been made of the files of the Navy Department for the memorandum mentioned in the letter dated 4 April 1941 from Admiral Stark to Admiral Kimmel. Neither the memorandum nor a copy can be found.

(S) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHEER,
Commander, USNR.

Mr. LANE. Congressman Gearhart requested, at page 299 of the transcript, orders transferring ships from the Pacific to the Atlantic and vice versa from May to December 1941.

Under date of May 1, 1946 the Navy Department replied and we ask that their reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14608] 1083A R#47B

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
WASHINGTON, 1 May 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. In response to the request of Congressman Gearhart, (Record of Proceedings, Page 299), referred to in Item #3 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, for copies of orders transferring ships from the Pacific to the Atlantic and vice versa from May to December 1941, reference is made to the following documents:

(a) CNO Secret letter, Serial 06538, dated 7 April 1941 which lists battleship Division THREE; either the Lexington or the Enterprise; Cruiser Division EIGHT; Destroyer Squadron EIGHT (DesDiv 3 and 15), and Destroyer Squadron NINE (DesDiv 17 and 18) as the units which are to be transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic "because of the existing and prospective strategic situation in the Atlantic Ocean."

(b) CNO Serial 152153 dated 15 April 1941 (Narrative Statement, Page 156; Hewitt Exhibit 70, Document [14609] 122) which modified item (a). This dispatch orders that transfers indicated in item (a) are to be held in abeyance until the international situation clears; that the Enterprise or the Yorktown are to be substituted for the transfer of the Enterprise or the Lexington; that when the carrier is ready she is to proceed accompanied by the McDougal and DesDiv 18.

(c) CinCPac Serial 162346 dated 16 April 1941 (Narrative Statement, Page 167; Hewitt Exhibit 70, Document 123) which reports the Yorktown and the destroyers specified in item (b) ready to depart approximately 21 April.

(d) CNO Serial 132019 dated 13 May 1941 (Narrative Statement, Page 167; Hewitt Exhibit 70, Document 125) which modifies item (a) and orders that three groups, each consisting of one battleship, one light cruiser and three destroyers from the units specified in item (a), be organized, as well as a fourth group consisting of one light cruiser and DesDiv 3. This dispatch specifies the intervals between departures for these groups.

(e) OPNav Serial 242155 dated 24 May 1941 (Narrative Statement, Page 168; Hewitt Exhibit 70, Document 127) which orders two destroyers of the Cimarón [14610] class to the Atlantic Fleet.

(f) CNO Confidential letter Serial 023638 of 22 May 1941 (forwarded with memorandum of the undersigned R#47B dated 8 February 1946) which outlines the reorganization of DesRon's 2, 8, 9, 11 and 13 by individual ship name. All of the ships named in this letter with the exception of the Livermore, Eberle, Kearney, Erickson, Guin, Meredith, and Grayson were at the time of the writing of the letter in the Pacific.

(g) CNO Confidential letter Serial 021988 dated 16 May 1941 (forwarded with memorandum of the undersigned R#47B dated 8 February 1946) reporting the intention to transfer the USS Bridge and the USS Antares to the Pacific Fleet.

2. With the exception of CNO Secret letter Serial 06538 dated 7 April 1941 (item (a) above) all of the above references have previously been forwarded to the Committee, and, therefore, a copy of only that letter is forwarded herewith.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

[14611] Op-38-MG 4/5

APR. 7, 1941.

Serial 06538

SECRET.

From: Chief of Naval Operations.

To: Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Pacific Fleet.

Subject: Transfer of Units from the Pacific Fleet to the Atlantic Fleet.

Reference: (a) CinCus Secret letter A16/0140 of 28 January 1941.

1. Two battleships of the Atlantic Fleet are now under Navy Yard overhaul, one a routine overhaul and the other of an emergency character. Both these battleships will be absent from the Fleet until about the middle of May; thereafter, a certain period of time will be required for training before they would be ready to undertake their assigned duties if the United States were then in the war. The Ranger is scheduled for Navy Yard overhaul from July 1st to September 1st for essential alteration of arresting gear and for routine work. The Chief of Naval Operations considers that this overhaul cannot be indefinitely postponed.

2. Because of the preceding circumstances and the existing and prospective strategic situation in the Atlantic Ocean, it has now become apparent that the Atlantic Fleet must have a greater initial strength in order to perform effectively the tasks that will be assigned it in war. It has therefore been decided to transfer certain units from the Pacific Fleet to the Atlantic Fleet.

3. The following is a list of the units which will be ordered to the Atlantic:
Battleship Division 3.

Either the U. S. S. Lexington or the U. S. S. Enterprise, as may be later directed by the Chief of Naval Operations.

[14612] Cruiser Division 8.

Destroyer Squadrons 8 (Desdivs 3 and 15) and 9 (Desdivs 17 and 18) as now constituted.

Vessels under overhaul are to be dispatched as soon as ready.

4. The movement of these units to the Atlantic must be accomplished with the utmost possible secrecy. In order to promote secrecy, it has been decided not to transfer all vessels at once but to make the transfer in several groups, with about two weeks elapsing between departures of groups. The Chief of Naval Operations will instruct you by secret dispatch as to the final dates for departure of each group from the Hawaiian area.

5. The groups and tentative dates of departure will be as follows:

Group 1. Tentative date of departure from Hawaii April 15, 1941.

1 battleship of Battleship Division 3.

2 cruisers of Cruiser Division 8.

All available 1850 ton vessels of Destroyer Squadron 9.

Group 2. Tentative date of departure from Hawaii May 1, 1941.

1 battleship of Battleship Division 3.

2 cruisers of Cruiser Division 8.

Destroyer Division 17.

Group 3. Tentative date of departure from Hawaii May 15, 1941.

1 battleship of Battleship Division 3.

Lexington or Enterprise, as may later be directed.

Flagship of Destroyer Squadron 8 and Destroyer Division 15.

[14613] 6. After passage of the Canal, all groups will proceed to Hampton Roads, unless otherwise directed.

7. You will direct that all vessels of the Atlantic detachments maintain radio silence, except in emergency, from the time of departure from Hawaii until arrival in Hampton Roads. During transit of the Canal, the commander of each group will report by dispatch, through the shore communication organization, to the Commander-in-Chief, Atlantic Fleet, for duty.

5504 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

8. With regard to item (19) of paragraph one of reference (a), in which you recommend that Destroyer Division 12 remain with the Pacific Fleet instead of being assigned to the Southeast Pacific Force, you are informed that in a forthcoming revision of WPL-44, Table USF-2 will be changed to require one destroyer division, of the long range type, having five guns and two torpedo tubes. After the transfers directed by this letter, two such divisions will remain in the Pacific Fleet, viz., Destroyer Divisions 1 and 2.

9. Acknowledge receipt by dispatch, referring to the serial number of this letter.

(S) H. R. STARK.

Copy to:

CinClant 147/89.

[14614] Mr. LANE. Congressman Murphy requested at page 9525 of the transcript, information concerning identity of a ship located to the north of Hawaii on a chart dated 6 December 1941, which chart is a part of Exhibit No. 109. Under date of April 30, 1946, the Navy Department has replied to this request identifying the ship.

We ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14615] R#144

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 30 April 1946.

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Murphy (Record of Proceedings, Page 9525), referred to in Item #12 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, the ship indicated on the chart labeled "Secret, 5 Dec. '41" (one of the documents of Exhibit 109 of the Congressional Investigation) as located northward of the island of Oahu at 27° North Latitude and 153° West Longitude is the Royal Canadian naval vessel Prince Robert (XCL-38).

The chart in question, and the others of similar nature that are parts of Exhibit 109 of the Congressional Investigation, are copies of photographs of a wall chart which was maintained in the Navy Department for the purpose of plotting the approximate locations of naval vessels of the United States and of friendly foreign powers. The position of the Prince Robert stated above as shown on the chart is only approximate, and it has been ascertained that at noon G.C.T. 5 December 1941 this ship was located at the position 25° 30 minutes North Latitude and 152° 30 minutes West [14616] Longitude. There is attached hereto a further chart on which are indicated the two locations which have been mentioned, that is (1) 27° North Latitude—153° West Longitude, and (2) 25° 30 minutes North Latitude—152° 30 minutes West Longitude.

The Prince Robert departed from Pearl Harbor at 2030 Greenwich Civil Time on 4 December 1941 for Esquimalt, Vancouver, B. C., where it arrived 11 December 1941.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

Mr. LANE. Congressman Gearhart requested, pages 780-782 of the transcript, a list showing ships transferred from the Pacific to Atlantic or vice versa between May 1, 1940, and February 1, 1941. The Navy Department replied to this request under date of April 29, 1946, and we ask that the reply be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14617] 1083A
#47A

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 29 April 1946.

MEMORANDUM

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to the request of Congressman Gearhart (Record of Proceedings, Pages 780-782), referred to in Item #5 of your memorandum of 29 March 1946, there are forwarded herewith two tables showing (1) Ship transfers from the Pacific to the Atlantic Fleets and from the Atlantic to the Pacific Fleets between 1 May 1940 and 7 December 1941, and (2) Ships, new or re-commissioned, that were sent (otherwise than by transfers from Fleet to Fleet) to the Pacific to augment the forces of the Pacific Fleet between 8 October 1940 and 7 December 1941.

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

Enclosure: (a) Twelve (12) copies of tables (1) and (2).

[14618] TABLE 1.—Transfers of ships from the Pacific and Asiatic fleets to the Atlantic fleet and vice versa

	From 1 May 1941 to 1 Feb. 1941		From 1 Feb. 1941 to 7 Dec. 1941
	Pacific to Atlantic	Atlantic to Pacific	Pacific to Atlantic	Atlantic to Pacific
Battle-ships.	None.....	None.....	BatDiv THREE: Idaho, Mississippi, New Mexico, Yorktown	None.
Aircraft carriers.	None.....	None.....		None.
Cruisers.	Louisville, Chester, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Omaha, Memphis. NOTE.—Also the Augusta from Asiatic to Atlantic.	Louisville, Chester, Trenton.	1. CruDiv EIGHT: Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Savannah, Nashville.	None.
Destroyers.	Sampson, Moffett, Anderson, Hammann, Hughes, Sims, Mustin, Russell, Mayrant, Rhind, Trippe.	Crane, Crosby, Kilty, Kenison, Anderson, Hammann, Hughes, Sims, Mustin, Russell, O'Brien, Walke, Buck.	DesRon EIGHT: Anderson, Mustin, Hammann, Rowan, Lang, Stack, Sterett, Wilson. DesRon NINE: McDougall, Morris, Roe, Wainwright, Buck, Davis, Jouett, Warrington, Somers.	None.
[14619] Submarines.	None.....	None.....		None.
Auxiliary vessels.	None.....	None.....	Cimmaron, Sangamon, Santee, Relief, Wm. P. Biddle, Fuller, Heywood, Little, Manley, Stringham, McKean, Brant, Partridge, Algoma, Kalnia.	None.

NOTE.—All transfers were between the Pacific Fleet and the Atlantic Fleet except as expressly noted

5506 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14620] TABLE 2.—Augmentations in ship strength of Pacific fleet other than by transfers from other fleets during the period 8 October 1940–7 December 1941

	New ships sent to the Pacific Fleet	Older ships sent to the Pacific Fleet
Battleships.....	None.....	None.
Aircraft carriers.....	None.....	None.
Cruisers.....	Helena	St. Louis .
Destroyers ¹	None.....	Allen, Chew, MacFarland, Schley.
Submarines.....	Car, Cudgion, Tambor, Tautog, Thresher, Triton, Trout, Tuna.	None.
Auxiliary vessels.....	Aldebaran, Casco, Curtiss, Fulton, Harris, Kuala, Pallas, Procyon, Sabine, Solace, Tangier, Zeilen.	Arceel, Ballard, Breeze, Gillis, Hulbert, Regulus, Sacramento, Seminole, Thornton.

¹ All classified as ODD (old destroyer, recommissioned) on Dec. 7, 1941.

[14621] Mr. LANE. Senator Ferguson requested, page 14069 of the transcript, all duty officer logs kept for the Office of the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff between 1 November and 7 December 1941.

The reply of the War Department has been received to this request, and we ask that the reply, dated April 23, 1946, be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14622]

WAR DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Room 4D761, The Pentagon, 23 April 1946

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

At page 14,069 of the transcript, Senator Ferguson asked for all duty officer logs kept for the offices of the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff between 1 November and 7 December 1941. Inclosed herewith is a letter from Major General John R. Deane, who was an Assistant Secretary of the General Staff during the period mentioned, describing the duty officer system of the office of the Secretary of the General Staff in the months preceding Pearl Harbor and stating that no logs were maintained by the duty officers of that office. The foregoing duty officer arrangement served both the office of the Chief of Staff and the office of the Secretary of War.

(S) CARL R. NELSON,
Captain, AUS

[Incl.]

[14623]

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY AIR FORCES
Washington, 19 April 1946.

CAPT. CARL R. NELSON

Rm 4D761 The Pentagon, Washington 25, D. C.

DEAR CAPTAIN NELSON: In reply to your telephone request this date the following represents to the best of my recollection, knowledge and belief the system that was employed concerning duty officers in the Office of the Chief of Staff just prior to Pearl Harbor.

There were 6 or 8 officers designated as Assistant Secretaries of the General Staff, all of whom were on a roster as night and weekend duty officers. When acting as duty officers they were required to remain within reach of a designated telephone so that they might be called by the Adjutant General's Office in case anything unusual occurred outside of the regular hours.

I was Assistant Secretary of the General Staff during the few months preceding Pearl Harbor and was one of the officers on the roster referred to above. I do not recall ever having been called by the Adjutant General's Office because some unusual situation had arisen. There was no log kept of the activities of the duty officers. If anything arose that called for immediate action [14624] such action would be taken at once; otherwise the circumstances would be reported to the Secretary of the General Staff upon his arrival at the office on the following day.

(S) JOHN R. DEANE,
Major General, USA.

Mr. LANE. In response to the request for information concerning Japanese estimates of the United States air strength in the Hawaiian area prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor, the War Department by memorandum dated May 21, 1946, has furnished information obtained from the Chairman, United States Strategic Bombing Survey, and we ask that this information be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14625]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Room 4D761, The Pentagon, 21 May 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

In response to your request for information concerning Japanese estimates of United States air strength in the Hawaiian area prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor, there is inclosed herewith a memorandum dated 21 May from the Office of the Chairman, United States Strategic Bombing Survey.

(S) ROBERT M. DIGGS,
Captain, AUS.

[14625]

UNITED STATES STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY,
OFFICE OF THE CHAIRMAN,
21 May 1946.

CAPTAIN ROBERT M. DIGGS, A. U. S.,
Room 4D 757, Pentagon Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR CAPTAIN DIGGS: In reply to your question concerning Japanese estimates of United States air strength in the Hawaiian area prior to the Pearl Harbor attack, the Survey can offer the following.

Last November in Tokyo Admiral Yonai, the last Japanese Navy Minister, gave the Survey a document, the translated title of which is "Estimation of Japanese Strength at the Outbreak of the Greater East Asia War (December 1941)." This paper which was used by the Japanese Cabinet for planning purposes during the late fall of 1941 has the following estimated disposition of United States air strength in the Pacific:

	Hawaii area	Wake-Midway	Philippines area	Aleutian area	Available for transfer to Far East
Fighter planes.....	About 200...	Wake, about 12.	About 10....		About 1,000.
[14,627]
Large planes (4 engines).....	About 40....		About 40....		About 60.
Medium planes (2 engines).....	About 100....				About 200.
Small attack planes.....	About 150....
Reconnaissance and patrol planes.....	About 35....		About 20....
Reconnaissance seaplanes.....			About 10....
Flying boats.....	About 110....	Wake, about 6; Midway, about 9.	About 35....	About 12....	About 250.

Yours very truly,

(S) WALTER WILDS,
Commander U. S. N. R.

Mr. LANE. We have received answers to inquiry at page 13760 of the transcript for further information regarding the proposed British warning to Japan sent to President Roosevelt on December 6, 1941, which involved the reply of the Australian Government.

We ask that this material now be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

5508 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14628]

APRIL 9, 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Marks:

With reference to your undated letter advising that clearance has been obtained from the British Government for documents numbered 6 and 8 referred to in Mr. Masten's memorandum of February 23, 1946, the Joint Committee desires the following further information regarding document No. 8 (which is the memorandum dated December 7, 1941, apparently from Prime Minister Churchill to President Roosevelt, enclosing a draft of a proposed declaration by the British Government to the Japanese Government):

1. The basis for the assertions made in the message from the Australian Minister at Washington, mentioned in the telegram from the then Australian Minister for External Affairs enclosed with your letter, regarding the procedure to be followed by the President. It is requested that, if necessary, appropriate inquiry be made of the then Australian Minister at Washington as to the basis for these assertions.
2. All information in the State Department files concerning (a) the above-mentioned document No. 8, and (b) the above mentioned telegram from the Australian Minister for External Affairs.
3. The date and hour of dispatch of (a) the above- [14629] mentioned telegram from the Australian Minister for External Affairs, and (b) the above-mentioned message from the then Australian Minister at Washington.

These matters were discussed at the Committee's hearing this morning, and a prompt reply will be greatly appreciated.

(s) S. W. RICHARDSON,
General Counsel.

APRIL 17, 1946.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: I refer to your memorandum to Mr. Marks dated April 9, requesting information concerning a British memorandum of December 7, 1941 to President Roosevelt and an Australian telegram regarding that memorandum, a paraphrase of which the Department recently furnished to you.

In regard to point 2 of your memorandum, the files of the State Department have again been searched, but no material has been found relevant to these papers.

In regard to points 1 and 3, your request has been communicated to the Australian Government. While, under ordinary circumstances, the Department of State does not feel it should request other governments for documents in their files, an exception has been made in this case because [14630] of the fact that the Australian telegram in question was placed in the record at the request of the Australian Government.

Sincerely yours,

JOSEPH W. BALLANTINE,
Special Assistant to the Secretary.

The Honorable SETH W. RICHARDSON,
*General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack,
Congress of the United States.*

SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
Washington, May 23, 1946.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: In further reference to your letter of April 9, there are enclosed two copies of a letter received from Mr. L. R. McIntyre of the Australian Legation which contains information requested by you.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Joseph W. Ballantine (per ONC)
JOSEPH W. BALLANTINE

Enclosure

Mr. SETH W. RICHARDSON,
*General Counsel, [14631] Joint Committee for the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack,
Congress of the United States.*

[Copy]

AUSTRALIAN LEGATION,
Washington 8, D. C., 22nd May, 1946.

DEAR MR. RICHARDS: I refer to Mr. Acheson's letter of April 16th, 1946, to Mr. Oldham, transmitting a request from the Joint Committee for the Investigation of the Pearl Harbour Attack for further information regarding the telegram from the Australian Minister for External Affairs to the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs of the United Kingdom which has been inserted in the record of the Joint Committee's hearings.

The telegram contains the substance of a message which the Minister for External Affairs had received from the Australian Minister at Washington. This message was despatched from Washington at 9:30 P. M. on December 6th, 1941. The information contained therein regarding the procedure to be followed by the President had come orally from the President late in the afternoon of December 6th.

There is no record of the exact time of despatch from Canberra of the telegram to the Secretary of State for [14632] Dominion Affairs beyond the fact that it was despatched in the evening of December 7th, Canberra time.

Yours sincerely,

/s/ L. R. McINTYRE.

Mr. ARTHUR L. RICHARDS,
Room 377, State Building,
United States Department of State, Washington, D. C.

APRIL 10, 1946.

DEAR MISS TULLY: There are enclosed with this letter mimeographed copies of two documents which you furnished the Committee from the files of the late President Roosevelt. The first document is dated December 7, 1941 and appears to be a memorandum from Prime Minister Churchill to the President, and the second document is the draft declaration attached to the first. There is also enclosed a mimeographed copy of a paraphrase of a telegram from the Australian Minister for External Affairs to the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs in the United Kingdom. Permission to use the first two documents was granted the Committee by the British Government only upon the condition that the third document be released at the same time.

At the public hearing last Tuesday, the Committee asked that a further check of the records and files of President [14633] Roosevelt be made to ascertain whether any further information or documents are available concerning the enclosures. You will note the description of the "President's subsequent procedure" in the third document and the assertion that "he will issue his warning" on Tuesday afternoon or evening. The Committee desires to know whether the records and files of President Roosevelt contain any memoranda relating in any way to the three documents mentioned above, and to the basis for the assertion made by the then Australian Minister at Washington in the third document regarding the intentions of President Roosevelt. In particular, the Committee would like to know whether President Roosevelt's records and files contain any memoranda of conversations between the President and the then Australian Minister at Washington, Mr. Casey, or copies of memoranda or messages from the President to Mr. Casey which might have served as the basis for the Australian Minister's assertions.

We will greatly appreciate your usual prompt attention to the Committee's request.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ S. W. RICHARDSON,
General Counsel.

Miss GRACE TULLY,
3000 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C.

5510 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[14634]

3000 CONNECTICUT AVENUE,
Washington, D. C., April 17, 1946.

Hon. S. W. RICHARDSON,
General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, Congress of the United States, 201 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: I am sorry for the delay in answering your letter of April tenth, but I have just returned to Washington from New York.

I have made a further search of the files but I am unable to find any additional documents or memoranda regarding the enclosures.

My feeling about the message from the Australian Minister at Washington, Mr. Casey, is that he and the late President discussed the subject but, of course, no record was ever made of such conversations.

I regret that I cannot be more helpful.

Very sincerely yours,

(S) Grace G. Tully
GRACE G. TULLY.

[14635] Mr. LANE. At page 34 of the committee transcript Senator Brewster requested that the final draft of a memorandum from the committee for the President, which the committee proposed the President send to the various executive departments and agencies, be spread on the record. It was ordered by the committee Chairman. We request that a copy of the letter dated November 2, 1945, from the committee Chairman to Hon. Matthew J. Connelly, Secretary to the President, which letter quoted the committee's proposed memorandum, be spread on the record, together with a copy of the reply dated November 7, 1945, from Mr. Connelly to the committee Chairman, which enclosed a copy of the memorandum the President sent to the executive departments and agencies that day. This latter memorandum appears in the full in the committee transcript at page 30. However, the letter of transmittal does not appear at that point. We ask that this material be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14636]

[Copy]

NOVEMBER 2, 1945.

Honorable MATTHEW J. CONNELLY,
SECRETARY TO THE PRESIDENT,
The White House, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. CONNELLY: The Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack respectfully asks that the President approve the following memorandum:

Memorandum for: The Chief Executives of all executive departments, agencies, commissions and bureaus, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In order to assist the Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack in its desire to make a full and complete investigation of the facts relating to the events leading up to or following the attack, and to supplement previous directives and arrangements for full disclosure to and co-operation with the Joint Committee, and to add to the protections given in that provision in Section 3 of the Concurrent Resolution creating the Joint Committee, which reads as follows:

SEC. 3. The testimony of any person in the armed services, and the fact that such person testified before the joint committee herein provided for, shall not be [14637] used against him in any court proceeding or held against him in examining his military status for credits in the service to which he belongs.

You are directed to authorize every person in your respective departments or agencies whether in the armed services or in a civilian status, and whether or not called to testify before the Joint Committee, if interrogated by the Committee or any of its members or counsel, to volunteer any information of which they may have knowledge bearing on the subject of the Committee's investigation, and whether or not so interrogated, to come forward voluntarily and disclose to the Committee, or to any of its members or its counsel, any information such persons may have on the subject of the inquiry which they may have any reason to think may not already have been disclosed to the Committee.

Respectfully,

CHAIRMAN.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington, November 7, 1945.

MY DEAR SENATOR BARKLEY: This is to acknowledge your letter of November second, written on behalf of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack.

I am enclosing a copy of the memorandum the President [14638] is today sending to the Chief Executives of all Executive Departments, Agencies, Commissions and Bureaus, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) MATTHEW J. CONNELLY,
MATTHEW J. CONNELLY,
Secretary of the President.

HONORABLE ALBEN W. BARKLEY,
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

[Enclosure.]

Mr. LANE. The committee has received, under date of April 23, 1946, certain corrections requested by Captain Zacharias to be made in the transcript of his testimony. We ask that his request be made a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14639]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 23 April 1946.

1083A (HLB)
MEMORANDUM.

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. Captain Zacharias has reviewed the transcript of his testimony before the Committee and has requested that the following typographical errors be corrected:

Page 8717, line 13, change "Jacinto" to "Isidro".

Page 8718, line 15, change "come" to "came".

Page 8720, line 5, delete "then".

Page 8723, line 19, delete "for".

Page 8724, lines 12 and 13, at end of line 12 change period to comma, and at beginning of line 13 change capital "T" to small "t".

Page 8738, line 2, change "made" to "make".

Page 8743, line 23, change "nand" to "and".

Page 8755, line 3, change this line to read: "Why, here I am a Reserve Intelligence Officer in G-2 and".

Page 8755, line 6, delete "I said,"

Page 8760, line 6, change "that in" to "that in".

Page 8763, line 24, delete "Vice".

Page 8763, line 25, change "of" to "on".

[14640] Page 8995, line 19, insert "not" between "by" and "having".

Page 8986, line 23, change "sai" to "said".

Page 8998, line 3, change "1924" to "1926".

Page 9007, line 22, change "from" to "into".

Page 9014, line 4, change "defer." to "refer to."

Page 9014, line 7, change "If you knew" to "In view of".

Page 9023, line 2, change "it" to "these".

Page 9024, line 4, change "Tmayer" to "T. Mayer".

Page 9024, line 21, before "Juno" insert "It says".

Page 9039, line 12, change "ability" to "a billet".

(S) JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

5512 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Mr. LANE. Under date of April 25, 1946, we have received a list of corrections suggested in the testimony of Admiral H. R. Stark, by the admiral. We ask that his request be made a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14641]

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 25 April 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

1. There is forwarded herewith as enclosure (A) a memorandum from Admiral H. R. Stark requesting that certain typographical and grammatical errors be corrected in the transcript of his testimony before the Joint Committee. These items are listed by page and line number.

(S) John Ford Baecher,
JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

Enclosure: (A) Memo from Admiral H. R. Stark to Commander J. F. Baecher dtd 19 Apr 46.

19 APRIL 1946.

Memorandum

To: Commander John Ford Baecher.

1. Referring to the recent hearings, I have read them over and I see no corrections for us in Volume 68. However, on Page 13712 in the question by Mr. Richardson in the paragraph at the top of the page next to the last line, the word "Price" should be "Prince".

[14642] 2. In Volume 69, page 13897 in the paragraph near the bottom of the page starting "I remember her remark", change "her" to "the" so that it would read "I remember the remark".

3. On page 13927, paragraph 1 at top of page, "May" should be "December". If I said "May" it certainly was a mistake. I had meant and thought I had said "I think it was December," etc.

4. Page 13948, line 19-20, insert "based" at the end of line 9 so that the answer would read "they were based in".

(a) Page 13912, line 2, change the last two words "any explanation" to "an exclamation".

5. Going back to my former testimony, I note the following and which Dave may have corrected but I think it might be well to check up:

Volume 35:

(a) Page 6395, line 6 after the word "out" insert "except through" and eliminate the word "of". It would then read "they couldn't get out except through Intelligence".

(b) Page 6397, line 13 insert "the" between the words "when" and "King". It would then read "when the King went back", etc.

(c) Page 6433, line 13 insert the word "not" between the words "did and "have.". It would then read "so we did [14643] not have." This is obviously a clerical error.

(d) Page 6463, line 6 change "200" to "0200".

(e) Page 6502, line 20 change the word "transport" to "task force."

(f) Page 6505, line 11 change the word "report" to "support."

(g) Page 6524, line 20 change the word "we" to the word "he."

H. R. Stark,
Admiral, U. S. Navy.
(S) H. R. STARK,

Enclosure (A)

Mr. LANE. Under date of May 20, 1946, we received a request from Admiral Beardall of certain corrections he would like to have made in his testimony. We ask that his request be made a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It is so ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14644] 1070/HLB:ms

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, 20 May, 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

Admiral Beardall has checked the transcript of his testimony before the Joint Committee and requests that the typographical errors listed on the enclosure be corrected in the transcript.

/S/ JOHN FORD BAECHE,
Commander, USNR.

Italics indicates error or omission.

Volume 69, of 11 April 1946

Page	Line	Change
14014	24	Should read: "Harbor attack when I joined him."
14020	2	Should read: "No, not necessarily so. At that".
14025	12	Change "American" to "Japanese".
14025	13	Omit "of Japan".
14036	1	Should read: "When do you think it will happen?".
[14645]
14038	6	Should read: " the conclusion that it was immediately."
14039	15	Read "No, he never discussed it with".
14054	4	Should read: "or some sort of a mail center , or something."

Mr. LANE. We have received suggested corrections from Henry C. Clausen to be made in his testimony before the committee, and we ask that his request be spread on the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

MAY 23, 1946.

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

GENTLEMEN: Since my appearance on February 12, 13, and 14, 1946, as a witness before your committee, I have reviewed a transcript of my testimony.

Please make the following corrections:

Page	Line	Corrections
11475	15	Change "1944" to "1942".
11486	7	Change "Conserto" to "Caserta".
11486	14	Change "Biddlesmith" to "Beddle Smith".
11491	12	Change "Naureln" to "Nauheim".
11492	14	Change "had given to G-2" to "had been given by G-2".
11493	15	Change "Jansen" to "Clausen".
11493	17	Change "November" to "December".
11495	11	Change "Colonel" to "Harvey".
11496	8	Change "it" to "a slanted investigation".
11503	16	Change "that I assume as you assume" to "what I assume you assume".
11504	15	Change "given" to "begin".
11507	11	Change "Colonel" to "Lieutenant".
11531	3	Change "From my understanding" to "For my definition of understanding".
11545	18	Change "November" to "December".
11659	14	Change "a manual" to "Emanuel".
11943	7	Change "Mr. Gearhart" to "Colonel Clausen".

Please inform me of the action taken.

Respectfully yours,

(S) HENRY C. CLAUSEN.

[14646] Mr. LANE. Mr. Chairman, interrogatories were sent by the committee upon the request of Senator Ferguson, to Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, U. S. N., in Germany, and to Brig. Gen. Francis

G. Brink, U. S. A., in Shanghai, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not they have information concerning matters under review by the committee. Inquiry was made by the Navy Department of Rear Admiral Cato D. Glover, U. S. N., Honolulu, and his reply was furnished to committee counsel, as were the replies to interrogations by Admiral Glassford and General Brink. Brig. Gen. E. L. Harrison was interviewed by counsel for a similar reason. The results of all of these inquiries were presented in writing to each member of the committee. It is the view of counsel that none of these officers has information material to this inquiry, and unless the committee desires otherwise, counsel does not contemplate them as witnesses.

Mr. MURPHY. Are you offering, however, the interrogatories?

The CHAIRMAN. You want that statement made a part of the record?

Mr. LANE. Yes, sir.

Mr. MURPHY. I think, in view of the fact that there are statements made in the record which would intimate that those gentlemen have vital information, and in view of the fact that the interrogatories do not so indicate, I think that those interrogatories ought to be made a part of the record.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

[14647] Mr. LANE. Mr. Chairman, we would like to have permission to furnish those to the reporter because we don't have them with us.

The CHAIRMAN. You will do it today?

Mr. LANE. Yes, sir

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14648] INTERROGATORIES AND REPLIES OF BRIGADIER GENERAL FRANCIS G. BRINK

Request is made by Joint Committee investigating Pearl Harbor attack that Brig. Gen. Francis G. Brink answer the following questions:

1. Did you know Brooke Popham, British Air Marshal, head of the Royal Air Force in Malaya?

Answer: Yes.

2. Did you ever talk to him concerning what our policy would be should the Japanese attack the British or Dutch?

Answer: No.

3. A. At 3:26 p. m. on 6 December 1941, Singapore time, Capt. John Creighton sent the following message in code to Admiral Hart at Manila:

On Saturday Brooke Popham received from War Department London:

American armed support has now been assured us in following cases:

a. We have to execute our plans to prevent landing Isthmus of Kra by Japs or counteract Jap invasion elsewhere in Siam.

b. Attack is made on Dutch Indies and we proceed to their defense.

c. Japs attack US the British. Accordingly, put plan in action without reference to London if you have good information that Jap expedition is advancing apparently with [14649] intention of landing in Kra, or if any part of Thailand is violated by the Japs.

Should NEI be attacked, put the plans agreed upon between Dutch and British into operation.

B. Were the contents of this message discussed by you with Brooke Popham?

Answer: No.

C. Was any or all of the information contained in the message conveyed by you to Captain Creighton?

Answer: No.

D. Were the contents of the above message known to you before it was sent?

Answer: No.

E. If not, when did you first learn of the contents?

Answer: In above cable received 15 April.

F. To your knowledge were the contents of that message given to you or anyone by Brooke Popham before it was dispatched?

Answer: No.

4. At what time did you first have knowledge that the Japs would attack the Kra Peninsula?

Answer: Unable to say accurately from memory without consulting my reports between 3 and 8 December 1941 to the War Department. Two convoys were reported off Cochin China, traveling south, [14650] at least one day before the Kra Peninsula landing; they turned west, then in darkness turned south. The RAF observed the convoys and attacked them at the time the landings in Malaya and South Thailand were made. Possible landings on Kra and North Malaya were a definite Japanese capability on the previous day when the convoys were reported in the Gulf of Siam. To the best of my recollection the time of the actual landing was on or about the 8th of December.

5. When did you first learn that they were going to attack any territory of the British?

Answer: Answer to question 4 applies. I learned of landings at Kota Bahru in Malaya at 0100, 8 December, Singapore time.

6a. Was anyone connected with the armed services of the American Government advised by you of an expected attack?

Answer: Yes. I furnished the data given in reply to question 4.

b. If so, who was so advised and when?

Answer: I notified the War Department and the Philippine Department of the Japanese movements toward the Kra Peninsula noted [14651] in the answer to question 4. The precise time would have to be obtained by reference to the War Department message file.

7. What did you know from the British or the United States about our policy should the Japanese attack the British and/or the Dutch?

Answer: Concerning the United States policy covering this matter, I have no knowledge.

5516 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

8. Do you know of any policy that the United States had as to our action in case the Japanese attacked the British and/or the Dutch but not the Americans?

Answer: Same answer as in No. 7.

APRIL 25, 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

Reference is made to the reply of Brigadier General Francis G. Brink to cabled questions from the Joint Committee concerning his knowledge of the general situation in the Far East just prior to December 7, 1941.

In reply to Question No. 4 and Questions 6A and 6B, it is noted that General Brink refers to a dispatch he sent to the War Department concerning Japanese movements toward the Kra Peninsula.

It is noted that at page 5507 of the Joint Committee transcript there appears a paraphrase of a message sent by General Brink from Singapore on December 5, 1941, reporting [14652-4] this incident, and the War Department liaison office has advised that this message is the only report received by the War Department between December 3 and December 8, 1941, from General Brink.

A copy of the paraphrased message sent by Brink, as it appears in the transcript, is attached.

In answer to Question No. 5, Gen. Brink says he learned of the landings at Kota Bharu at 0100, 8 December, Singapore time. That is equivalent to 7:30 AM December 7, Honolulu time, and 1:00 PM December 7, Washington time.

(S) LOGAN J. LANE,
Counsel.

PARAPHRASE OF A SECRET MESSAGE RECEIVED AT WAR DEPARTMENT AT 4:20 P. M.
DECEMBER 6, 1941

From Singapore: Filed 5:18 P. M., December 5, 1941
Received in I. B.: 1:35 A. M., December 7, 1941 No. 96

Brink advises that at one o'clock in the afternoon, following a course due west, were seen a battleship, five cruisers, seven destroyers and twenty-five merchant ships; these were seen at 106°8' E., 8° N.; this was the first report.

The second report was that ten merchant ships, two cruisers and ten destroyers were seen following the same course at 106°20' E., 7°35' N.

Both of the above reports came from patrols of the Royal Air Force.

[14655]

THE SECRETARY OF THE NAVY,
Washington 6, 1946.

The Hon. ALBEN W. BARKLEY,
Chairman, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, U. S. Senate.

DEAR SENATOR BARKLEY: Reference is made to your letter dated 3 April 1946, which forwarded interrogatories to be submitted to Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, U. S. Navy, which was acknowledged by letter dated 10 April 1946 from the Acting Secretary of the Navy.

The written replies of Vice Admiral Glassford to the interrogatories have now been received, and I am enclosing for you the original signed by him.

Sincerely,

(S) JAMES FORRESTAL

[14656]

UNITED STATES FLEET,
UNITED STATES NAVAL FORCES, GERMANY,
% Fleet Post Office, New York, N. Y., 20 April 1946.

ENCLOSURE (A) TO LETTER OF VICE ADM. WILLIAM GLASSFORD,
U. S. NAVY

WRITTEN REPLIES TO QUESTIONNAIRE OF SENATOR BARKLEY¹

Question 1. Admiral Glassford, were you commanding U. S. Naval Forces in Chinese waters in October 1941 and was your superior officer Admiral Thomas A. Hart who had headquarters at Manila?

¹ Questions by Senator Ferguson for submission by Senator Barkley as Chairman of the Committee.

Answer: Yes.

Question 2. Did your flag lieutenant, at that time Lieutenant Chenault on the U. S. Gunboat Luzon, advise you that Karl H. von Wiegand had important information and that you were to call him in regard to it?

Answer: I have no recollection. However, I saw Mr. von Wiegand often by prearrangement.

Question 3. Did you on or about the 17th of October 1941 go to the office of Karl H. von Wiegand in Shanghai and did he tell you the following:

I have information through what hitherto have been reliable channels, that the general staffs of the Imperial Japanese Army and Navy, together with the Japanese Government, have set December 6, 1941, as the "deadline" for the negotiations in Washington. If no settlement has been reached by that date, between the Japanese and [14657] American Governments, war may start any hour after midnight December 6.

Answer: I saw Mr. von Wiegand frequently over a period of time. I cannot therefore state whether or not I saw him on or about the 17th of October 1941; but neither the statement quoted nor its substance was communicated to me by Mr. von Wiegand at any time.

Question 3 (continued). If you do not answer that question in the affirmative, did he give you the substance of what was stated in the previous question? Or what do you now say that you recall that he stated to you in regard to the above conversation?

Answer: At no time did I have a conversation with Mr. von Wiegand in which such information or its substance was given to me.

Question 4. Did Karl H. von Wiegand tell you that he could not reveal to you the source of his information since a leak might involve the lives of several persons, but that he had reasons to believe that it came from a very high source in Tokyo?

Answer: See my reply to question 3.

Question 4 (continued). Did you not know at the time that Karl H. von Wiegand was careful in making statement to you?

Answer: That was always my impression.

Question 5. Is it not true that Karl H. von Wiegand had given you other information and that you had remarked that it had proven better and more correct than information from Naval [14658] Intelligence in Shanghai?

Answer: Over a period of time Mr. von Wiegand gave me much valuable information. I do not recall making the particular remark mentioned.

Question 6. Did you, Admiral, state on or about October 17, 1941, that you would immediately make a report on the information that he had given to you about: "If no settlement has been reached by that date between the Japanese and the American Governments, war may start any hour after midnight, December 6, 1941 (")", or any conversation similar or containing that statement?

Answer: No; since I did not receive the information.

5518 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Question 7. To whom did you report the conversation you had with Karl H. von Wiegand on or about the 17th of October 1941?

Answer: To no one, since I had no conversation with Mr. von Wiegand of the nature referred to in questions 3, 6, and 8.

Question 8. To whom did you communicate the information that you received from Karl H. von Wiegand relative to:

I have information through what hitherto have been reliable channels that the general staffs of the Imperial Japanese Army and Navy together with the Japanese Government have set December 6, 1941, as the deadline for the negotiations in Washington. If no settlement has been reached by that date, between the Japanese and [14659] American Governments, war may start any hour after midnight December 6.

Answer: No one, since I did not receive such information.

Question 8 (continued). Did you report this conversation or the substance of it or any part of it to Admiral Hart in Manila?

Answer: No; since the conversation did not take place.

Question 9. Did you send a report of this information (quotation in question 8) or the substance of it or any part of it to any official in Washington?

Answer: No; since I did not receive such information.

Question 10. If your answer to the previous question is "yes," to whom did you report in Washington and give us the substance of that report.

Answer: My answer to the previous question is "no."

Question 11. Did you ever advise anyone the substance of the quotation contained in question 8 or any part of it?

Answer: No; since I did not receive such information.

Question 12. On or about December 7, 1941, Philippine time, did you dine with Karl H. von Wiegand and another or others at which time you discussed information that he had given you about December 6 and that it might not come true and that you had made the cryptic remark: "We may take the initiative"?

Answer: I did dine with Mr. von Wiegand, To the best of my knowledge I did not make the remark attributed to me.

[14660] Question 12 (continued). Admiral, will you please explain in detail what was meant by the remark, "We may take the initiative," and where did you obtain that information?

Answer: I cannot explain a remark which, to the best of my knowledge, I did not make.

Question 13. Do you recall a telephone conversation on Monday morning Philippine time, with Karl H. von Wiegand and that you stated to him: "The war is on. Your information was correct."? Also that you related to him the news of the attack on Pearl Harbor and that you were waiting to see Admiral Hart and would be off to your flagship by seaplane?

Answer: I did telephone to Mr. von Wiegand. I did tell him that Pearl Harbor had been attacked by the Japanese. However I could not have referred to information which I had not received.

(S) William Glassford,
WILLIAM GLASSFORD.

[14661]

NAVAL COMMUNICATION SYSTEM

Drafted by COMDR JOHN FORD BAECHER, Room No. 1070, Ext Nr. 2920.

Date, 15 APR 1946.

From: SECNAV(JAG) 152019

PRECEDENCE

To: COMAIRPAC (date/time group)
(GCT)

x Routine
x RESTRICTED x

Text: RESTRICTED

For Rear Admiral Cato D Glover USN X In congressional investigation of Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Question has arisen as to whereabouts of Admiral H R Stark on night of 6 December 1941 and Admiral Stark cannot recollect that detail X Log of OPNAV duty officer for 6 dash 7 December 1941 indicates you stood watch from 1900 to 0200 X This log contains over your signature the following entry quote At 2000 Major F L Harrison comma Aide to the Secretary of War comma telephoned that the Secretary of War desired the following information by 0900 Sunday 7 December colon compilation of men of war in Far East comma British comma American comma Japanese comma Dutch comma Russian comma also compilation [14662] of American men of war in Pacific Fleet comma with locations comma and a list of American men of war in the Atlantic without locations X Admirals Ingersoll comma Stark and the Secretary of the Navy were consulted and the Secretary directed that the information be compiled and delivered to him prior to 1000 Sunday 7 December unquote X This entry does not recall to Admiral Stark any recollection as to his whereabouts X He accepts the item but things it may possibly be inaccurate because he cannot see why it would have been necessary to have consulted all three paren Ingersoll himself and Knox paren in the matter referred to X Advise by dispatch as soon as possible whether you recollect consulting Admiral Stark as indicated comma as well as the manner in which the approximate time you contacted him and where he was located when reached by you X

FN COMAIRPAC 160636

To SEC

P (JAG) WASHN DO

RESTRICTED X

I regret that I am unable to recall the incident referred to in your 152019 X Information of the nature requested by the Secretary of War was normally compiled by the so called quote [14663] war room unquote which was then a new section of the Ship Movements Division of OPNAV X This section was headed by Captain Frank Leighton now deceased X Events of importance originating from the war room were entered in the log kept by the Ship Movement Division X It is possible that Capt Leighton was the consultant X I do remember very definitely having telephoned Admiral Stark during the night concerning the movements of a Japanese convoy which was west of the Philippines headed south X This was the convoy that made the initial landing on the Malay Peninsula near Kota Bharu X I am certain that this call was made after midnight as it was toward the end of the watch and that Admiral Stark was then at his home X From Rear Admiral Cato D Glover X 0717/16 Apr. CH 160636Z 152019

[14664] Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I make one other request?

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Murphy

Mr. MURPHY. During the course of the hearings, on countless occasions each member of the committee referred to the United States News, to quote from the different reports. In view of the great use that was made of that volume I ask that it be made an exhibit.

The CHAIRMAN. United States News?

Mr. MURPHY. United States News.¹

¹ The United States News, extra number, September 1, 1945.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes.

Mr. MURPHY. It was referred to time and time again. We ought to have the source in the record.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. You want it made a part of the record?

Mr. MURPHY. I would like to have it made an exhibit, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. LANE. I ask that it be given Exhibit No. 181, Mr. Chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 181.")

The CHAIRMAN. Proceed, Counsel.

Mr. LANE. By letter dated May 6, 1946, Senator Ferguson asked that Gen. Hugh Knerr be called as a witness before the committee. This request was reported to the committee on May 14, 1946. We have not been advised by the committee [14665] that General Knerr should be presented as a witness. We would like to have that statement appear in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. It will be noted in the record.

Senator BREWSTER. Was there any action by the committee?

The CHAIRMAN. We had that up last week. The matter was discussed and the committee in effect denied the request by ordering the hearings and the record closed today. There was no understanding, as I recall, of the committee that he would be called as a witness. It would involve the calling of other witnesses.

Mr. LANE. By letter dated November 15, 1945, Senator Ferguson requested copies of all intercepted messages between January 1 and July 1, 1941. Messages printed in Exhibit No. 1 were selected from those sent during the period July 2, 1941, to December 8, 1941. Present counsel have not pursued this request and, therefore, has not available such intercepts.

Senator BREWSTER. What is the reason you didn't pursue it?

Mr. RICHARDSON. As a matter of fact, Senator, it was a request which was made of Mr. Mitchell early in the hearings and he turned it over to Mr. Hannaford and it came to light when we started preparing to close this record, and we just paid no further attention to it.

Senator BREWSTER. I think we did get some of the messages during that period, which had a very illuminating bearing on this matter of the knowledge of the Japanese, as [14666] to their knowledge of the intercepted communications, warning the Japanese Embassy to look out because they thought we were breaking the code.

You recall those episodes. Those communications were not furnished to us earlier, which, we thought, was unfortunate. It wasn't until we went into their earlier period. How those were selected and what was the basis of this earlier period, January to June, I don't know.

Mr. RICHARDSON. We are subject, of course, to whatever the committee wants to do. It came up from the bottom of the basket.

Senator BREWSTER. Do you know what the volume is?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I don't know.

Senator BREWSTER. Unless they are very extensive I think it would be a good idea to have them in. We had these few in May and June, as I recall it, which showed these communications between Tokyo, Berlin, and Washington, and they revealed very valuable information.

Now, how many intercepts there were during the 6 months' period I don't know. Unless they are very extensive I think it would be a good idea to have them.

Mr. MASTEN. Mr. Chairman, it is my impression that the volume is enormous.

The CHAIRMAN. I thought the intercepts which we had secured, and made Exhibit 2, I believe it was, contained all [14667] the pertinent intercepts.

Senator BREWSTER. No one has ever looked at these.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Have you any idea, Mr. Masten, as to how extensive the intercepts are that would be responsive to this request?

Mr. MASTEN. The only information I have on that, Mr. Richardson, is that Mr. Hannaford spent about 3 weeks over there, but what he went through I don't know. I believe there is a memorandum in the file which discusses what he did in examining the intercepts. I, myself, know actually nothing other than that about it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. It would be possible, still closing your record to-day, to include all of these intercepts by reference. It would be physically possible to ask to have the intercepts put into a document and introduced in the record if you feel it is necessary, Mr. Chairman.

Senator BREWSTER. I think it is.

The CHAIRMAN. Just to grab up all the intercepts between January and July might mean producing a lot of highly immaterial stuff.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The request covers that, just that, all of the intercepts in that 6 months' period.

The CHAIRMAN. This printing bill is going to be something enormous as it is, as everybody knows. I do not use that as an argument against putting anything of value into the record, [14668] but if they are very voluminous it is obvious that they might contain a lot of items that have nothing to do with the inquiry.

Senator BREWSTER. Would it be possible to have counsel find out about that and get a decision this afternoon?

The CHAIRMAN. If the committee is willing to say that as of today counsel shall examine these intercepts and include in the record what counsel regards as pertinent, I would have no objection to that.

Senator BREWSTER. Could we leave it this way, that if it is found they are not extensive, that they may go in. That would be easier—to put them in.

The CHAIRMAN. That is a rather vague way of doing it.

Mr. MASTEN. Mr. Chairman, as I just said to Mr. Richardson, Mr. Hannaford spent, I believe, 3 weeks over there, and the material that was included in Exhibit No. 1 was what he regarded as relevant to the inquiry. Now, whether or not he went behind July 1, my impression is that he did, although I do not actually know, as I never discussed it with him.

Senator BREWSTER. Is there a memorandum?

Mr. MASTEN. There is a memorandum in the files describing the procedure followed. I think the thing to do is to put the memorandum in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Why not put the memorandum in the record. Would that be agreeable?

[14669] Senator BREWSTER. Subject to further check as to whether he went into this period before July 1. In the first instance he did not because that was what occasioned our later desire when we got word that there were these earlier communications in May and June.

The CHAIRMAN. After all the time we have spent on the intercepts, it seems a little haphazard to come in on the last day and ask to go back over another period, although I have no objection if it is pertinent.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Masten tells me that it will be an enormous task and will take a month. I don't know what the source of that information is. I know nothing about this. The request came up and rather than do anything about it I thought I would present it, as we did.

The CHAIRMAN. We examined everybody who appeared for days and days and days. I don't intimate that anybody was guilty of laches in not bringing up these prior ones, but it is unfortunate that on the last day we are requested to go back over those intercepts for 6 months.

Mr. MASTEN. There is this memorandum in the file, Mr. Chairman, showing the basis on which the selection was made. I haven't looked at it recently. I think that would be the thing to put in.

The CHAIRMAN. I suggest that the memorandum be printed as a part of the hearing today. Can you get it for the record?

[14670] Mr. MASTEN. Yes.

The CHAIRMAN. I will withdraw the other suggestion.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14671]

DECEMBER 21, 1945.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE FILES RE EXHIBITS 1 AND 2

Exhibits 1 and 2, containing intercepted Japanese messages, were prepared by counsel from War Department records. Counsel examined the War Department's file of Japanese intercepted messages from July 1 to December 31, 1941. No examination was made of the Navy Department file of intercepts because counsel was assured by both the Army and the Navy that the Navy's file is a duplicate of the Army's. With respect to intercepts prior to July 1, 1941, the War Department's files have not been examined completely, although earlier messages on particular subjects have been examined after they had been dug out by the War Department pursuant to request of counsel.

Exhibit 1 is intended to include the most complete picture of the Japanese-United States negotiations from the Jap point of view that could be prepared without producing an exhibit that was too bulky. In preparing the exhibit, the following types of messages were eliminated:

1. Messages relating purely to administrative matters, such as salaries of embassy clerks, etc.

2. Messages transmitting the text of United States or Japanese notes which are printed in full in the State Department document entitled "Foreign Relations of the United States-Japan, 1931-1941."

[14672] 3. Certain messages relating to the negotiations which were exchanged during the months of July, August, and September. In these early months selections were made to highlight the course of the negotiations, but as the negotiations approached the critical stage—i. e., in the months of October, November and December—practically all messages were included.

4. Messages from the Japanese Ambassador in Washington dealing with political activities in the United States.

Exhibit 2 includes all intercepts that could be found which were transmitted after August 1, 1941, and which dealt with ship movements, etc., except that messages of particular interest transmitted prior to that date are included in Section 7 and that all messages relating to Hawaii that were decoded in 1941 are included in Section 1.

In both of the exhibits all reference to the type of code—i. e., purple—were eliminated because at the time the exhibits were prepared it was contemplated these matters would not be referred to in the hearings. These were the only deletions from the War Department copies of the messages except that three paragraphs giving detailed instructions for the destruction of code machines were deleted from circular No. 2330 which appears on page 137 of Exhibit 1.

[14673] Senator Ferguson's letter of November 15th, a copy of which is attached, asked for all intercepted Japanese messages between January 1 and July 1, 1941. Intercepted Japanese messages between those dates relating to Japanese espionage activities have been included in Exhibit 2 and those showing that the Japanese suspected we were breaking their codes, have been inserted in the record. Due to the press of other work, no steps have been taken as yet to answer the request completely.

NOVEMBER 15, 1945.

HONORABLE WILLIAM D. MITCHELL,
Room 201, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. MITCHELL: I have received the printed copies of the intercepted messages sent by the Japanese Government between July 1 and December 8, 1941.

I would greatly appreciate it if you would send me another copy of this material, as well as a copy of all such intercepted messages between January 1 and July 1, 1941.

With all good wishes, I am
Sincerely yours,

(Sgd.) HOMER FERGUSON.

[14674] Mr. LANE. With reference to a letter dated November 3, 1945, from Senator Brewster requesting that all State Department reports and inquiries between Washington and London on the Tyler Kent affair be produced, by memorandum dated November 8, 1945, the then general counsel, Mr. Mitchell, advised Senator Brewster that the request had been forwarded to the State Department.

On November 20, 1945, by letter, Under Secretary Dean Acheson stated:

Mr. Tyler G. Kent, formerly a clerk in the Foreign Service employed as a code clerk in the American Embassy in London, was arrested in London in May 1940 and convicted by a British Court in October 1940 for violation of the British Official Secrets Act. He was convicted of obtaining and communicating documents which might be useful to the enemy for a purpose prejudicial to the interests and the safety of Great Britain and of stealing one of those documents.

The letter concluded:

This Department does not understand how the facts concerning the arrest and conviction of Kent, or correspondence between the Department and the American Embassy in London in regard to the matter, could be considered material to the committee's investigation within the meaning of the President's order of October 23, 1945. Therefore, the Department is unable to comply with the request of Senator Brewster.

In subsequent conversations, according to [14675] the files of counsel's office, between Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Marks, assistant to Mr. Acheson, it was understood that counsel might examine documents in the Tyler Kent file for relevancy after the committee specified what aspect of the case was considered pertinent.

The file has not been examined as the committee has not advised counsel what aspect of the case was considered pertinent.

Senator BREWSTER. This is the first I ever heard of that. I never heard of the Acheson letter and I never heard of this point that they wanted to know what was pertinent. We repeatedly discussed it in the committee and stated the pertinency when the matter came up.

The CHAIRMAN. I had a letter from Mr. Tyler Kent stating that he had no information that he regarded as of value to the committee in regard to Pearl Harbor. If I can find that letter I think it might be well to put it in the record.

(The letter referred to follows:)

[14676]

DECEMBER 17, 1945.

HON. ALBEN W. BARKLEY,
Chairman, Pearl Harbor Committee,
Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

SIR: Various recent newspaper references, and within the last few days some expressions attributed to Members of Congress, seem to imply that I am expected to testify before the Pearl Harbor Committee of which you are the chairman.

To clarify my position, may I respectfully state that since my arrival in America from England on December 3 last, I have remained ready at all times to present any information that I have to your committee or to any other official body.

I can think of nothing within my own knowledge that would throw light on events directly connected with our country's disaster at Pearl Harbor. But I shall gladly submit upon request, for whatever significance you may attach to them, any of the facts with which I happened to become familiar in Europe, and because of which, to prevent my imparting them to the American Congress in 1940, I was secretly, and I think very unjustly and illegally, tried and imprisoned in England.

Respectfully,

(S) TYLER KENT,
2112 Wyoming Avenue, N. W.
Washington 8, D. C.

[14677-78] Senator BREWSTER. I have never asked for Tyler Kent. I am not interested in Tyler Kent. I am interested in matters of our State Department which, in my judgment, may have a relevancy. And I am still disturbed and concerned at the handling of this matter.

The CHAIRMAN. Did you ask that this communication be made a part of the record?

Mr. LANE. I didn't ask, but we have it.

The CHAIRMAN. Let it go in as part of the hearings today.

(The document referred to follows:)

[14679]

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION
OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
November 3, 1945.

HON. WILLIAM D. MITCHELL,
Room 201, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. MITCHELL: Would you kindly secure for me copies of all State Department reports and inquiries between Washington and London on the Tyler Kent affair?

Thanking you for this courtesy, I am

Sincerely yours,

(S) OWEN BREWSTER
Owen Brewster, U. S. N.

[OB:rg]

NOVEMBER 8, 1945.

Memo to Senator Brewster:

Your request of November 3 for logs of ships has been [14680] presented to the Navy Department.

Respecting your request of November 3 as to summaries of "off the record" testimony before the Army board, we instituted inquiry about that some time ago, with the hope that someone made some notes about it, but so far we have not found that anyone did so.

As to the Admiral Hewitt testimony, our only copy was loaned to Senator Ferguson and has not been returned.

Your request for State Department reports and inquiries between Washington and London on the Tyler Kent affair has been presented to the State Department.

WILLIAM D. MITCHELL

NOVEMBER 20, 1945.

MY DEAR MR. MITCHELL: I refer to your letter of November 9, 1945, referring to this Department a letter dated November 3, 1945, to you from Senator Brewster, in which Senator Brewster requested that you secure for him copies of all State Department reports and inquiries between Washington and London on the Tyler Kent affair.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 27, establishing the Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack, provides that the committee "shall make a full and complete investigation of the facts relating to the events and circumstances leading up to or following the attack made by Japanese armed forces upon [14681] Pearl Harbor in the Territory of Hawaii on December 7, 1941, * * *." The President's order of October 23, 1945, addressed to this and other departments instructs the Secretary of State to make available to the joint committee, for such use as the committee may determine, any information in his possession "material to the investigation." In pursuance of this order, this Department has made available to the committee counsel all information in its possession which is material to the investigation.

Mr. Tyler G. Kent, formerly a clerk in the foreign service employed as a code clerk in the American Embassy in London, was arrested in London in May 1940 and convicted by a British court in October 1940 for violation of the British Official Secrets Act. He was convicted of obtaining and communicating documents which might be useful to the enemy for a purpose prejudicial to the interests and safety of Great Britain and of stealing one of those documents. There is enclosed herewith for your further information, a copy of a release to the press dated September 2, 1944, concerning the Kent case.

This Department does not understand how the facts concerning the arrest and conviction of Kent, or correspondence between the Department and the American Embassy in London in regard to the matter, could be considered material to the committee's investigation within the meaning of the President's [14682] order of October 23, 1945. Therefore, the Department is unable to comply with the request of Senator Brewster.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) DEAN ACHESON,
Under Secretary.

(Enclosure: Press release No. 405, September 2, 1944.)

The Honorable WILLIAM D. MITCHELL,

General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor, Attack, Congress of the United States.

(Handwritten note on letter:) In subsequent conversations with Mr. Marks, it was understood that counsel might examine documents in the TK file for relevancy after the committee specified what aspect of the case was considered pertinent.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

For the press.
No. 405

SEPTEMBER 2, 1944.

The Department of State has taken note of recent inquiries and newspaper reports regarding the case of Tyler Kent, former employee of the American Embassy at London, and the Office of Foreign Service Administration has been instructed to review the matter thoroughly and prepare a comprehensive report. The following is the text of the report:

[14683] Tyler Kent, American citizen, an employee of the American Foreign Service assigned to London, was tried and convicted under the Official Secrets Act (1911) of Great Britain before the Central Criminal Court at the Old Bailey, London, in October 1940. The charges against him were the obtaining and delivering to an agent of a foreign country (Germany) copies or abstracts of documents which might have been directly or indirectly useful to the enemy, and which were, at the same time, prejudicial to the safety or interests of Great Britain. Incidental to the proceedings against him, it was brought out that he had violated the Larceny Act of 1916 of Great Britain by the theft of documents which were the property of the Government of the United States in the custody of the American Ambassador, London. The above-mentioned were found proven by a jury on the basis of evidence presented during the trial. Kent had worked through a confederate who was allegedly anti-Jewish and pro-Nazi.

The background of the case and the circumstances leading up to Kent's arrest and trial were as follows: Kent, at the age of 22, had entered the foreign service as a clerk, his first assignment having been to the American Embassy at Moscow.

He was later transferred to the American Embassy, London, arriving there in October 1939. He was assigned to the code room as a code clerk, where his duties were to encode and decode telegrams. Before entering the service he had attended Princeton University, the Sorbonne (Paris), the [14684] University of Madrid, and George Washington University. He had acquired several foreign languages, including Russian, French, German, and Italian.

On May 18, 1940, a representative of the London Police headquarters at Scotland Yard called at the Embassy to report that Kent had become the object of attention by Scotland Yard through his association with a group of persons suspected of conducting pro-German activities under the cloak of anti-Jewish propaganda. Prominent in this group was Anna Wolkoff, a naturalized British subject of Russian origin, the daughter of a former admiral of the Imperial Russian Navy. Miss Wolkoff had resided in Great Britain since emigrating, with her father, from Russia following the Bolshevik revolution, had been hospitably received and had made a considerable circle of friends among Londoners of standing, some of whom had assisted in setting up the Wolkoff family in a small business. After the outbreak of the present war, the British police had become interested in Miss Wolkoff's activities, believing that she was in sympathy with certain of Germany's objectives, that she and some of her associates were hostile to Britain's war effort, that she was involved in pro-German propaganda, that she had a channel of communication with Germany and that she was making use of that channel of communication.

Kent had been observed by Scotland Yard as having been [14685] in frequent contact with Anna Wolkoff and in touch with others of a group known to her. Among other things, it had been noted that Kent and Miss Wolkoff were sharing an automobile and that Miss Wolkoff frequently drove this car using gasoline allegedly supplied by Kent. Scotland Yard was now convinced that Anna Wolkoff was receiving confidential information from Kent and stated that she would be arrested on May 20. The police added that on the same day they considered it highly desirable to search the rooms occupied by Kent. In reply to an inquiry made by British authorities, Ambassador Kennedy with the approval of the Department, informed such authorities of the waiver by this Government of the privilege of diplomatic immunity. Scotland Yard thereupon indicated that a search warrant would be issued and that Kent's rooms would be searched on May 20, 1940.

The possibility that an employee of the Embassy having access to the confidential codes, was making improper use of the material entrusted to him in the course of his work was of the utmost concern to Ambassador Kennedy and to the Government of the United States. Preservation of the secrecy of this Government's means of communication with its establishments abroad is a matter of fundamental importance to the conduct of our foreign relations. In the circumstances described, it was imperative that Ambassador Kennedy ascertain, and ascertain immediately, whether Kent was guilty of a violation [14686] of trust. There was every reason, in the interest of the American Government, for the waiving of diplomatic immunity and for allowing the British authorities (who alone had the means of obtaining the evidence) to proceed in an effort to prove or disprove their suspicions. In this connection it may be noted that it is well established in international law that the so-called immunity of an employee of a diplomatic mission from criminal or civil processes may be renounced or waived by the sending state at any time.

The search of Kent's room was conducted according to plan, an officer of the Embassy being present throughout. It revealed that Kent had in his possession copies of Embassy material totaling more than 1,500 individual papers. He also had two newly-made duplicate keys to the index bureau and the code room of the Embassy, these being unauthorized and in addition to the keys furnished him officially for his use as a code clerk. He explained that he had had these keys made so that in the event he should ever be transferred from code work to another section of the Embassy he would still have access to the code room. Also found in his possession were two photographic plates of Embassy documents believed to have been made by confederates for the purpose of endeavoring to transmit prints thereof to Germany, and certain printed propaganda material which was prejudicial to the British conduct of the war. The police also established [14687] that some of the papers found had been transmitted to an agent of a foreign power.

An examination of the documents found in his room indicated that Kent had begun classifying the material by subject, but this work was far from completed. They covered practically every subject on which the Embassy was carrying on correspondence with the Department of State. As may be supposed, they included copies of telegrams embodying information collected by the Embassy which otherwise would not have been permitted to leave Great Britain without censorship. As may be likewise supposed, they contained information which would have been useful to Germany and which Great Britain would not have permitted to reach Germany. It is of interest to note, in this connection that Kent had, during his service in London written to the chargé d'affaires of the American Embassy in Berlin asking his assistance in arranging for his (Kent's) transfer to Berlin. When questioned as to what he would have done with the documents in his possession had he been transferred to Germany, Kent replied that he could not state what he would have done with them; he regarded the question as a hypothetical one.

Regardless of the purpose for which Kent had taken this material from the Embassy, he had done so without authorization, in violation of the most elementary principles governing the rules for the preservation of the secrecy of the Government's [14688] correspondence. By his own showing he had, while occupying a very special position of confidence, within the Embassy, displayed a shocking disregard for every principle of decency and honor so far as his obligations toward the United States were concerned. The removal of so large a number of documents from the Embassy premises compromised the whole confidential communications system of the United States, bringing into question the security of the secret ciphers. It was obviously impossible to continue his services, and Kent was dismissed from the Government service as of May 20, 1940. Thereafter the question of diplomatic immunity naturally did not arise.

So far as the British police were concerned, the evidence found in Kent's room was such as to convince them of the necessity of detaining him at Brixton Prison pending investigation of the use he had made of the documents in his possession and the true implications of his connection with Anna Wolkoff. Ambassador Kennedy, with the consent of the Department of State, agreed to Kent's detention.

On May 28 a representative of Scotland Yard informed the Embassy that investigations were proceeding, that the case became progressively more complex, and that it could not be cleared up quickly. It was believed, however, that there would be a case for prosecution against Kent and Anna Wolkoff under the Official Secrets Act of the United Kingdom.

[14689] Kent's trial eventually commenced August 8, 1940, and was attended by the American Consul General. It was held in camera because of the harmful effects to British counter-espionage efforts which were to be anticipated if certain of the evidence became public. Prior to the trial the American Consul General in London had called upon Kent (July 31, 1940) at Brixton Prison. The Consul General informed him that he would be taken to court the following day and formally charged with offense under the Official Secrets Act of the United Kingdom, i. e., obtaining documents for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the United Kingdom which might be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy. The Consul General inquired whether Kent had a lawyer to represent him, to which Kent replied that he had not, and that he had not given the matter any thought. The Consul General advised him that he should be represented by a lawyer and agreed to assist in getting in touch with a suitable solicitor. Kent was subsequently placed in touch with a lawyer, whom he engaged to represent him during the trial.

On October 28, 1940, the jury found Kent guilty of violating the Official Secrets Act. The sentence was postponed until completion of the trial of Anna Wolkoff. On November 7, 1940, Kent was sentenced to 7 years' penal servitude and Anna Wolkoff was sentenced to 10 years. Kent's attorneys [14690] applied for permission to appeal. On February 5, 1941, this application was rejected by a panel of judges which included the Lord Chief Justice.

In reviewing the Kent case it is important to bear in mind the circumstances surrounding it. At the time of Kent's arrest and trial Great Britain was at war and the United States was not. The case involved a group of people suspected of subversive activities. The evidence relating to individuals of the group was inextricably mixed, and the activities of no single suspect could be separated from the activities of the others. The interest of Great Britain in such a case, at a time when it was fighting for its existence, was therefore preeminent. Deep as was the concern of the Government of the United States over a betrayal of trust by one of its employees, it is hardly conceivable that it would have been justified in asking the Government of Great Britain to waive jurisdiction over an American citizen in the circumstances described. Kent was within the jurisdiction of the British courts, and all the evidence, witnesses, et cetera, were available to the British courts. Moreover, it was, as has been mentioned, in the interest of the United States to have determined immediately on the spot, where the evidence was available, whether or not one of its employees in a position of trust was violating such trust. The question whether the United States will prefer additional charges against [14691] Kent will be decided after his release, from imprisonment in Great Britain and he again comes under the jurisdiction of our courts.

[14692] Senator BREWSTER. What is the disposal of the matter?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It leaves the Tyler Kent business like Mohamet's coffin, halfway between heaven and earth. A request is made of the State Department and they reply that they don't think it relevant. It was discussed three or four times in the committee in detail that that was the position of the State Department. We have never received any committee direction as to what it wanted to do with respect to the position taken by the State Department and it stands there now and we offer it so that the record will show that it, at least, was not overlooked.

The CHAIRMAN. As counsel says this matter was brought up time and time again and no action was taken in the committee. As I recall, nobody ever made a motion to take action. It was left that way.

Senator BREWSTER. If the chairman will permit, each time I brought it up the chairman requested me to defer it and said that the matter would be taken up subsequently.

The CHAIRMAN. I don't recall that.

Senator BREWSTER. Several times you asked me to defer, not to press it.

The CHAIRMAN. I haven't talked to the Senator from Maine about it or in his presence for at least 3 months. The conversations were always in the committee.

Senator BREWSTER. That is right.

[14663] The CHAIRMAN. Not as individuals.

Senator BREWSTER. They were always in the committee. Every time the matter was taken up I stated why I felt it was important for us to have access to this information. And the last time was when we were trying to complete the record, I think some time in February, and we had two or three other matters, the Hull and Stimson matters up, and the chairman suggested that we defer further consideration, that we would take it up subsequently, and I deferred it.

The CHAIRMAN. I don't recall that. But if there is a record of it the record will show it.

Senator BREWSTER. It was an executive session; I don't think we had a record.

The CHAIRMAN. The Kent matter was brought up in open session several times, as I recall. Whatever the record shows I stand by.

Senator BREWSTER. Am I to understand that this matter is now to be ignored? I certainly do not accept the State Department's judgment as to what is relevant after the revelations we had from them on various matters, and I think the record is left in an awkward position, when they are willing for counsel to look at the record and that has not been done, as a result of the committee not taking action.

I now move that counsel be requested to look at the record and report to us whether or not there is anything of [14964] relevancy.

The CHAIRMAN. If that will involve any further hearings and involves an extension of this hearing, so that we cannot complete this record today, as far as I am concerned, as an individual member, I vote against the motion.

Senator BREWSTER. I make that motion.

The CHAIRMAN. In favor of the motion?

Senator BREWSTER. Aye.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. No.

The CHAIRMAN. No.

Senator BREWSTER. That makes the record very clear. One more count in the indictment.

The CHAIRMAN. We are not indicting you.

Mr. LANE. Mr. Chairman, with respect—

Senator BREWSTER. I would like to have a roll call on that.

I move that the counsel shall comply with the suggestion of the State Department that the counsel may examine the Kent records in the State Department and report to us whether or not it would appear that they are relevant.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I make a statement on that, as I wasn't here before.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Murphy.

Mr. MURPHY. I would like to state that Congressman Keefe and Congressman Gearhart, members of this committee, spent [14695] several hours with Tyler Kent, discussed the matter thoroughly, and reported to the committee in executive session that Tyler Kent himself, as well as each of the said members who discussed the matter with Tyler Kent, stated that he knew nothing about Pearl Harbor and couldn't contribute anything.

Senator BREWSTER. I would like to make a little statement.

I do not think that the gentleman from Pennsylvania, or the other members of the committee, saw any evidence as to make us think that statement completes what the situation is.

It was thoroughly understood in executive committee discussions, and I think in the record as well, that there were some twelve to fifteen hundred messages between a certain naval person, otherwise known as Winston Churchill, and Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, which were items about which a great deal of the preliminaries to this world war evolved, and it is a fair presumption that in connection with this affair and the alleged theft of certain of these documents that the State Department records will disclose these communications which never have been made available to this committee.

Whether or not they have a relevancy to the preliminaries to our becoming involved in the war could only be determined by investigation. That has been clearly and repeatedly stated as the reason why I felt this record should be looked over.

I have never been interested in Mr. Tyler Kent or in his evidence. I have been offered an opportunity to talk with [14696] Mr. Tyler Kent and I have not been interested. But I am interested in what the record of the State Department shows as to these communications. And I think that this committee is making very clear their desire to leave certain dark recesses unexplored in their continued refusal to even permit counsel to examine this record and the other records of the State Department in this connection.

Mr. MURPHY. Senator Barkley?

The CHAIRMAN. No.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Cooper?

The VICE CHAIRMAN. No.

Mr. MURPHY. Senator Brewster?

Senator BREWSTER. Aye.

Mr. MURPHY. No.

Affirmative one; negative three.

The CHAIRMAN. The motion is lost.

Go ahead.

Mr. LANE. With reference to the requests which have been made on the record by members of the committee throughout the hearings and with reference to the requests they have made in writing, counsel is in a position to state that except for those brought to our attention just prior to this time, in this meeting, all of the requests have been answered by the various departments, one way or another. Those in writing from the various members were in general answered in [14697] writing by the counsel to the various committee members, transmitting the replies of the Department. Those that were on the record we tried to answer by putting the material either in the record itself or advising the member who asked the question and asking whether he desired that the information be placed in the record.

Senator BREWSTER. I understand your statement on the Kent affair was in the record, was it; your statement of the discussions and the letter was put in?

Mr. LANE. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, in continuation of making the record complete, I should like to call the committee's attention to a letter from the War Department under date of April 29, 1946, with reference to a request of Senator Brewster of April 16; a letter of April 30, 1946, to me from Grace G. Tully, which is self-explanatory; together with a letter of May 3, 1946, to me from the Secretary of State, signed by Herbert S. Marks, which is self-explanatory; letter of May 13, 1946, from Commander Baecher of the Navy Department in response to my request of April 25, 1946, which is self-explanatory.

May they be extended on the record?

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The matter referred to follows:)

[14698]

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON,

Room 4D761, The Pentagon, 29 April, 1946.

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

With reference to your memorandum of April 25 forwarding Senator Brewster's request of April 16 for all communications between the British Government in London and our Government in Washington on November 25, 26 and 27, 1941, a search of the War Department files discloses no such communications.

/s/ ROBERT M. DIGGS,
Captain, AUS.

13 MAY 1946.

Memorandum

To: Mr. Seth W. Richardson.

In response to your request dated April 25, 1946, for "copies of communications concerning Japan and/or the Far East which were transmitted between the British Government in London and our Government in Washington on November 25, 26 and 27, 1941, and which now appear in the Navy Department files", [14699] you are advised that a search of the pertinent files of the Navy Department reveals no dispatches of this nature.

There are, however, in Navy files, messages between the Navy Department and the British Admiralty for 25, 26 and 27 November 1941, copies of which were furnished prior counsel on 14 November 1945, as follows:

November 251005Z	Admiralty to OpNav
November 251114Z	Admiralty to OpNav
November 251205Z	Admiralty to CNO
November 251733	OpNav to Admiralty
November 252229	Admiralty to Spenavo
November 261722A	Admiralty to OpNav
November 262251	OpNav to Spenavo for Admiralty
November 270015Z	Admiralty to OpNav
November 271250Z	Admiralty to OpNav

You will probably recall from our conversations and the correspondence of the undersigned with prior counsel, that in view of the understanding between the Navy Department and the British Admiralty, none of the messages referred to above, nor any others between the Navy and the Admiralty, should be made public until first there has been obtained the consent of the British Admiralty. The obtaining of such consent may possibly require a considerable period of time. Since it is not known whether you desire that there be obtained the consent of the [14700] British Admiralty to the publication of the above mentioned messages, no proceedings will be initiated by the Navy toward that end unless and until further advice is received from you.

/s/ JOHN FORD BAECHER,
Commander, USNR.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Washington, May 3, 1946.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: I refer to your letter of April 25, 1946 requesting "copies of communications concerning Japan and/or the Far East which were transmitted between the British Government in London and our Government in Washington on November 25, 26, and 27, 1941".

Enclosed are photostatic copies of four documents which are being furnished in accordance with your request. After a careful search of the Department of State files, these documents, other than those already furnished to the Joint Committee, appear to be the only communications between the United States and the British Governments relating to Japan and/or the Far East covering the three days specified. The documents which have already been furnished are the following:

- (1) Conversation between the Secretary of State and the British Ambassador, which attached memorandum [14701] from the British Embassy, November 25, 1941 (Exhibit 18);
- (2) Message "For the President from the Former Naval Person", November 26, 1941 (Exhibit 23); and
- (3) Conversation between Under Secretary of State and the British Ambassador, November 27 1941 (Exhibit 18).

Sincerely yours,

/s/ HERBERT S. MARKS,
Assistant to the Under Secretary.

The Honorable SETH W. RICHARDSON,
General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack,
Congress of the United States

5532 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

(The documents referred to follow :)

[14701-A]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

MEMORANDUM OF CONVERSATION

NOVEMBER 27, 1941.

Subject:

1. British parallel action desired re our export policy to French Indo-China.
2. Desire of French ship in Philippines for bunkers.

Participants:

Mr. Thorold—British Embassy
Mr. Hallett Johnson—Department of State

Copies:

DE Mr. Bunn
A-A Mr. Reinstein

I referred to Mr. Thorold's letter to Mr. Reinstein of November 19, 1941, and said that Mr. Reinstein was studying all possible means to prevent the shipment of cotton to French Indo-China and that a communication would soon be prepared in this regard.

I then informed Thorold that our authorities in the Philippines have been informed that we do not desire that any commodities other than foodstuffs be licensed for export to French Indo-China and said that we would be glad if the British can see fit to take parallel action.

Thorold gave the following background with regards to British exports to Indo-China:

Before the Japanese went into Indo-China, the British made what is known as the Decoux Agreement. Under this agreement Indo-China agreed to export its commodities through normal trade channels and to normal destinations. In return, England agreed, apart from certain strategic commodities to maintain normal trade with Indo-China. The purpose of this agreement was to prevent the diversion of Indo-China exports from Hong Kong, Singapore, and France, to Japan and to make possible a continuance of rubber shipments to this country. The chief value of the agreement to the British was that through it rice was secured for British possessions. The agreement has not, however, been adequately carried out since the export of rubber has been diverted from the U. S. A. to Japan or to North Africa. The British have now cut off the export of oil to Indo-China and have gradually whittled down other exports.

Thorold will convey our suggestion regarding parallel action to London and let us know upon receipt of reply. He believes that the reply will be favorable except that the British will probably desire to continue to export to Indo-China sufficient jute sacks for the rice still being exported from Indo-China to Hong Kong and Singapore for the Straits Settlements and the Dutch East Indies.

In conclusion Thorold brought up another question. A french ship has applied in the Philippines for sufficient bunkers for the voyage to Shanghai and back to Indo-China. This ship is carrying coal from Indo-China to Shanghai for the use of a public utilities corporation, the Shanghai Power Company. Thorold said he understood the State Department was interested in the British viewpoint as to the propriety of the ship being bunkered in the Philippines and added that the British have no objection but wondered whether the question had been studied in the Department from the point of view of the desirability of facilitating the export of coal from Indo-China.

DE: HJ: FBS

/s/ HJ HALLETT JOHNSON.

[14701-B]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

MEMORANDUM OF CONVERSATION

NOVEMBER 25, 1941.

Subject: Aid Needed by Thailand

PARTICIPANTS:

British Ambassador, the Viscount Halifax;
Under Secretary, Mr. Welles.

Copies to: S, AA-, PA/D, Eu, PA/H, FE

The British Ambassador called to see me this evening at his request.

The Ambassador said he wished to discuss with me an urgent instruction he had received from his Government concerning Thailand. A message received by the British Foreign Office from Sir Josiah Crosby, the British Minister in Bangkok, gave as the opinion of the latter that the Thai Government was again becoming very shaky and that unless some practical action were taken by Great Britain and the United States, the Japanese influence would again become preponderant.

The Ambassador said that the aviation gasoline and the artillery given to the Thai Government by the British had been regarded by the former as completely insufficient and had had no appreciably beneficial effect. He stated that the Thai Government was urgently desirous of obtaining airplanes. I replied that it was the case it would seem to me that the British might use some of the planes allocated by the United States to Great Britain which are now in Singapore and make these available to the Thai Government without publicity by flying them in at night. The Ambassador said that the trouble was that the British Government urgently needed all the airplanes they could get from us for use in Singapore. I said that that was the situation with respect to the United States since, as the Ambassador knew, we were building up as rapidly as possible our air strength in the Philippines, and I had been informed by both General Marshall and Admiral Stark that the planes we had in the Philippines are infinitely more valuable to us there than they would be in Thailand.

The Ambassador then suggested on behalf of his Government that the situation might be ameliorated by a credit of $10,000,000 to Thailand by the United States. I said that this matter would be given immediate consideration.

/s/ SW.

U: SW: GES

[14701-C]

[Telegram received]

ALH This telegram must be closely paraphrased before being communicated to anyone.

London

Dated November 27, 1941.

Rec'd 8:30 p. m.

SECRETARY OF STATE,
Washington,

5727, November 27, 12 p. m.

Department's telegram 4222, October 3; Embassy's despatch 2127, November 19.

Ministry Economic Warfare is now making a special study of Japan's war potential and as a part of a much larger work on Japan's economic and industrial position has completed a preliminary survey, copies of which are being forwarded with Embassy's despatch No. 2195, November 27. Ministry feels that this preliminary survey fails to answer the main question of how far Japanese industry is in a position to maintain military forces under blockade conditions and would greatly appreciate Department's cooperations in assembling any information already available in Washington on the following points:

- (1) Iron and steel production Japan, Korea, Manchukuo and North China.
- (2) Iron ore production particular in Manchukuo and Korea. Present annual production and future planned production from the Tungpientsao deposits in South-east Manchuria and the Mosan deposits in Korea.
- (3) Details of blast furnaces, steel furnaces, rolling mills and coke ovens. (a) installed during recent years, (b) under construction.
- (4) Position of coke supply for iron and steel industry. Are deposits of reputedly good coking coal at Tungpientsao being exploited and what is the production and planned production? When is this coal shipped to (*)?
- (5) What quantities of iron ore are being obtained from China—Tayeh mines in Central China and from North China?
- (6) Synthetic oil production. (a) present and estimated future output, (b) difficulties in obtaining the necessary coal, (c) any interference with development through stoppage of German machinery supplies.
- (7) Is there any shortage of mining labor? Are there difficulties in securing Northern Chinese and Korean labor for coal and iron mines in Manchukuo and Korea?
- (8) To what extent has morale been affected by (a) shortages of goods for civilian consumption and of the increasing restrictions thereon, (b) the rationing of rice and enforced mixing with other cereals, (c) any shortages of oil affecting the fishing industry?
- (9) Transport. (a) Is the railway system being overworked and is the equipment showing any signs of deterioration, (b) is the transport of essential goods being unduly delayed?

(10) Japanese mining activities in Indochina or Thailand particularly as regards exploitation of manganese deposits and phosphates in Tonkkin (urgently required).

(11) Stock position. (a) What stocks of war materials especially nonferrous metals have been accumulated, (b) what is the public warehousing position. Are there difficulties in finding storage space?, (c) have large stocks of scrap iron been accumulated in recent years? If so where is it stored and what area cover?

(12) Production of explosives. British officials believe better information is available in United States on the phenol position and suggest that the Monsanto Chemical Company might be helpful as regards synthetic phenol.

(13) Automobile industry. (a) estimated production, (b) extent of assistance in production of tanks and aircraft.

These questions have also been discussed with Military Attache who is advising G-2 War Department.

WINANT.

[Copy]

[14701-D]

NOVEMBER 25, 1941.

Mr. R. J. STOPFORD,

Financial Counselor, British Embassy.

MY DEAR MR. STOPFORD: I refer to Mr. Hall's letter of October 2 regarding exports of cotton to Japan.

No licenses for the exportation of raw cotton to Japan were issued by the Treasury Department in October. As has been previously indicated to the Embassy, no such licenses were issued in September.

Official figures for exports of cotton to China are not available as yet. Preliminary figures obtained from the Treasury Department indicate shipments to all of China during September of 155,120 pounds, values at $27,037. No division of this figure between occupied and unoccupied areas is available. Shipments of cotton to occupied China during October are tentatively estimated at 300,537 pounds, valued at $50,045.

Sincerely yours,

DEAN ACHESON.

3000 CONNECTICUT AVENUE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., April 30, 1946.

DEAR MR. RICHARDSON: After receiving your letter of April 25th, I again went through the files of the late President Roosevelt and I find the only communications between our government and the British Government on the dates you mention were sent to your Committee. They are as follows:

[14702] Message from the Former Naval Person to the President, dated November 26, 1941, and signed by Ambassador Winant. I quote the beginning of the message—"Your message about Japan received today. Also full accounts from Lord Hallifax of discussions and your counter project to Japan on which Foreign Secretary has sent some comments."

Copy of a "Memorandum of Conversation", dated November 25, 1941—Subject "Suggested changes in Modus Vivendi" which Secretary Hull had with the British Ambassador, and attached to it a memorandum given to Secretary Hull by the British Ambassador.

Also, I find a message from the President to the Former Naval Person, dated November 24, 1941, which starts as follows: "On November 20th the Japanese Ambassador communicated to us his proposals for a Modus Vivendi".

I hope the above information will be of some help to you.

Very sincerely yours,

(S) GRACE G. TULLY.

Honorable SETH W. RICHARDSON,

General Counsel, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack,

201 Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

P. S. I am sorry but I have no record of any telephone communications which might have taken place on any of these dates.

[14703]

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
May 20, 1946.

Senator OWEN BREWSTER

Room 248, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR: Reference is made to your letter of April 16, 1946, in which you suggested that the Committee should have available all communications between the British Government in London and our Government in Washington on November 25th, 26th and 27th of 1941, including any trans-Atlantic telephone communications during those days. Reference is also made to my memorandum to you dated April 17, 1946, concerning your request. There are enclosed herewith the following replies to your request:¹

1. Reply of Miss Grace G. Tully concerning the files of the late President Roosevelt.
2. Reply of the Department of State, with attached photostats of documents.
3. Reply of the War Department.
4. Reply of the Navy Department.

Unless you desire that some of this material should become a part of the committee record, I do not contemplate offering it in evidence. I shall depend upon you to advise me as to your wishes in the matter.

Yours very truly,

(S) SETH W. RICHARDSON,
General Counsel.

Mr. RICHARDSON. A request was made of me to ascertain from the War Department whether any copy of the Stimson diary, so-called, was in the possession of the War Department, and on May 22, 1946, I contacted the War Department and I have here the written statement of Capt. Robert N. Diggs, representing the War Department, as follows:

Memorandum for Mr. Richardson:

With reference to your oral request today for a copy of Secretary Stimson's diary, I am advised by the Office of the Secretary of War that the diary was not regarded as an official War Department record, and that the War Department has no copy of it.

That, I think, completes all of the record that we have. That would complete all requests and all other sources which are identified in the record except as we had the discussion [14705] this morning.

I have this to say to the committee, that we have received from the Printing Office two copies of the page proofs of the exhibits. They are the only two copies we have to date in our office. These two copies of all exhibits to date have been placed in folders, and are plainly marked for the purpose of facilitating examination of them. They are available for any member of the committee who wants to use them. That, of course, is preliminary to the final copies of all.

The CHAIRMAN. That is all counsel has to submit by way of evidence?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is correct.

Senator BREWSTER. When will the printed copies, do you think, be available; what is the latest estimate?

Mr. LANE. We have the entire transcript up to today's hearing in page-proof form. It has to be footnoted to take care of the requests and the answers, to tie them together. That has been done but it hasn't been revised by the Printing Office. We have in page-proof form all of the exhibits up to those introduced today and it is anticipated that as soon as the Printing Office can handle the material introduced today they will be in shape to furnish a final print.

¹ Printed immediately preceding this document.

The CHAIRMAN. How many bound volumes will the testimony and the exhibits all make up when finally printed?

Mr. LANE. We estimate 39 volumes, Senator.¹

[14706] The CHAIRMAN. I hope we can adjourn Congress sometime during July so I can spend the rest of the year reading them.

Senator BREWSTER. I still am not clear as to when you think those might be available.

Mr. LANE. It probably won't be before 3 weeks from today.

The CHAIRMAN. You mean all of them?

Mr. LANE. All.

The CHAIRMAN. There will be some available?

Mr. LANE. The prior proceedings have been set in type and page-proofed. There is a copy in the office of each member of the committee and the entire transcript.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee doesn't have to wait until they are bound up in printed form to have them available.

Mr. LANE. No, sir. However the committee doesn't have all copies of the exhibits. We have these two copies that are complete.

Senator BREWSTER. There was some question about the military intelligence reports. Do you know about those that were requested? I have a copy of it here. I don't know whether this has been put in the record.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I don't know about that.

Mr. LANE. I don't believe that is in the record. I have never seen it before.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no objection to putting these [14707] in the record as an exhibit.

The CHAIRMAN. What are they?

Mr. RICHARDSON. It is entitled "Military Intelligence Estimate, January 1 to July 1, 1941," prepared by G-2 of the War Department.

Senator BREWSTER. We have the last 6 months in. I thought this should be in. Those are not complete. On what basis they were selected I do not know. I don't know whether those relate to the Far East. Do you know what the basis was?

Mr. MASTEN. I have never seen them before, Senator. I understood they had been gotten through a request of yours.

Senator BREWSTER. They skip around.

The CHAIRMAN. How long has this been available?

Mr. MASTEN. Either Mr. Hannaford or Mr. Gesell had them and sent them to Senator Brewster, about 3 or 4 months ago.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Apparently Mr. Greaves² presented it here. Where did he get it?

Mr. RICHARDSON. From Senator Brewster's office, undoubtedly.

The CHAIRMAN. I thought where a Senator made a request through the committee that the document came back to the committee, not just to the member who made the request.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Chairman, it has happened that where [14708] a committee member made a request for some documentary evidence, the moment it came in, for facility, it was transmitted to that member. Now, this has undoubtedly come in under the earlier regime and I have never seen it or had my attention called to it. Since this is all official I see no reason for not putting it in the record.

¹ The complete record of this Committee comprises 39 parts.

² Percy Greaves, an assistant to Senator Brewster.

The CHAIRMAN. I have no objection to it being put in. I was curious as to why a document like that would come in months ago and show up on the last day.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I can't help you on that.

The CHAIRMAN. All right. Without objection let it be printed.

Mr. LANE. We ask that be given Exhibit No. 182.

The CHAIRMAN. So ordered.

(The document was marked "Exhibit No. 182.")

The CHAIRMAN. Is that all counsel has to offer?

Mr. RICHARDSON. I think that completes the record.

Just one moment. Let me be clear on this matter of Senator Brewster's request.

If those documents that are asked for in his letter to me are included in the record as of this date——

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Do you mean Senator Brewster or Senator Ferguson?

Mr. RICHARDSON. Senator Ferguson.

[14709] If they are to be included in the record we will then endeavor to get the documents and see that they go in physically.

The CHAIRMAN. They are, as I understood it, to be included in the record as of today.¹

Of course, there is this disadvantage about that, and it applies to everything else that goes in, that we haven't had a chance to see it, none of the committee knows what the documents contain, or what statements are made. We are rather blind on that subject. But in order that nobody can be prejudiced by it, it was understood that that would go in as of today and be a part of today's record.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to whether or not all of the interrogatories, some 238 of Senator Ferguson to Secretary Stimson, are now a part of the record?

Mr. MASTEN. You mean those not answered?

Mr. MURPHY. Yes.

Mr. LANE. They are all in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. All asked, whether answered or not, all are made a part of the record.

Mr. LANE. Yes, sir.

Mr. MURPHY. That also holds true of Secretary Hull?

The CHAIRMAN. The same applies.

Senator BREWSTER. Mr. Chairman, I want to make a speech.

The CHAIRMAN. Here?

Senator BREWSTER. Yes.

[14710] The CHAIRMAN. This is not the proper time. [Laughter.]

You have something you want to say?

Senator BREWSTER. Yes. I will not tax the time of the committee unduly.

I think the unusual if not irregular character of the situation is illustrated by the comment of the chairman when he spoke about having this material go into the record which none of the committee members have seen. We have sat here and seen a vast stack go in, which, so far as I know, no member has seen, or had opportunity to see. I think that officially illustrates the somewhat unjudicial character of the termination of this. I would not call it a legislative divergence of the minority, but it certainly departs very considerably from the original program of the committee and from the scope of the investigation, which has covered a lot of ground, had a lot of latitude, and brought to light a lot of things.

¹ Exhibit No. 183.

On the other hand there have been certain twilight zones and brown-outs into which the committee has not been permitted to penetrate under the policy pursued by those who control the action.

Before the record closes I want to make it clear that I do not feel that we have covered the ground we should have. We have gotten 75 or 80 percent of what we went after and it has been a matter of great interest and value to the American people and has carried out to that extent the very lofty purpose [14711] which the chairman outlined when he presented his original resolution some time ago.

On the other hand we have faced these problems, and I want to just enumerate three or four of the items which it seems to me leave us still not in a sufficiently good position to pass finally on the matters which we were authorized and directed to carry out.

One is the matter of the Philippine situation, which was clearly within the scope of the committee as stipulated by the chairman and the Senator from Illinois in colloquy at the time the resolution was introduced; and outside of the discussion with Admiral Hart when he appeared in connection with certain other matters that has not been at all explored.

In my judgment it has a vitally important bearing on the circumstances surrounding Pearl Harbor.

The refusal to have the Grew diary and the Stimson diary available for examination of the committee I feel is a further unfortunate aspect of the matter as it seems to me clear from what excerpts we have been permitted to see, that they had a vitally important bearing, and I do not believe that this committee can fulfill its functions by permitting any other individuals, either inside or outside of Government, to determine what is and what is not relevant. I believe that is a matter for the determination of the committee.

The unfortunate aspect of Mr. Hull's illness is something [14712] which is clear and we have done the best we could to meet that.

The telephone communications between London and Washington during the period before Pearl Harbor is something which we have not been able, apparently, to run down. Miss Tully advises she has no record. It seems to me incredible that communications of that importance between the heads of state were not made a matter of record. If they were not made a matter of record it seems to me there was serious dereliction. If they were made a matter of record I believe that this committee should have knowledge regarding them.

I think that covers some of the items. There are many other unexplored fields in the higher echelons which it seems to me most unfortunate that the committee has not been able to explore and expose.

I want to conclude by saying that I do not feel this investigation should be terminated at this time or at this point and I have so voted consistently in the committee. I wanted this to be a matter of public record at this time.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair wishes to state in connection with what the Senator from Maine has stated that he thinks that this committee has made as exhaustive, meticulous, careful, an investigation of the pertinent or related facts connected with the Pearl Harbor attack as any committee ever made of anything in connection with an episode, incident, or the [14713] official conduct of men in any branch of our Government.

At the time this resolution was introduced by me I was interrogated by Senator Lucas as to whether it was broad enough to include an inquiry into the Philippine situation, which involved an attack the following day after Pearl Harbor, and I stated that it was, and I still maintain that the resolution was broad enough to do that.

The committee has never taken any action to follow up that. Nobody on the committee ever made a motion that we go to the Philippines or that we investigate the Philippine end of it.

Evidently the committee felt that after going into the immediate related facts pertaining to Pearl Harbor that it was not essential or necessary that we go into the Philippine end of it, which may or may not have involved somebody who happened to be in charge in the Philippines at the time.

So far as these records of telephone conversations are concerned, I think this committee, and counsel, have felt, and the President of the United States, who issued orders with reference to the examination of documents in the State, War, and Navy Departments, and other departments, and in the White House, realized that Miss Tully, who had been in charge of those documents, was a reputable, responsible woman of long experience and high character, I think the committee felt that she had brought to the attention of counsel everything [14714] in the President's papers that had any relationship to this investigation.

So far as the diaries of Mr. Grew and Secretary Stimson are concerned, when Mr. Grew was on the stand he was asked by the committee with respect to his diaries kept in Japan consisting of some 13 volumes, many of which contained private comments and private entries that had nothing to do with Pearl Harbor, and the question was raised, although the committee never took a vote on it, whether the diary should be requested, as I recall now, but the Chair would say, speaking for himself, that he would not have voted, and would not now vote, to require Mr. Grew to give his diary, his private diary, kept over a long period of years, in his capacity as a diplomat, to make it public and exhibit it before this committee.

The same applies to Mr. Stimson. If he had been able to appear as a witness members of the committee might have examined him about entries in his diary or about statements that he was able to refresh his mind on from reading his diary. But my attitude about compelling him to make public his private diary, from which he has taken anything that has a pertinency or relationship to this investigation, I certainly would not have voted, as a member, to require him to make that diary public.

I am perfectly willing to take full responsibility as an individual member for that attitude. That is my attitude. I [14715] think that we have made a thorough, complete, broad investigation of this whole matter. I have no doubt that we have, as part of the evidence in this record, voluminous as it is, many things that really have no bearing upon the attack on Pearl Harbor, because they have gone in because members requested them. If they had any relationship to it, well and good, and if they didn't, why, no harm was done.

I feel that this committee has devoted itself assiduously, in the midst of great work in other fields of legislation, to the task set for it by the Congress of the United States, and personally I feel that it has fulfilled its duty to the fullest extent expected or required by the country.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman—

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURPHY. I would like to state that Ambassador Grew, former Ambassador Grew, stated that if his complete diary were to be placed in the record that it would seriously impair the work of every American diplomat and Ambassador or representative in the foreign field, and that it would seriously interfere with the protection of American security in future years, and for that reason I would have voted, had it come to a vote, against insisting upon the presentation of the diary.

Senator BREWSTER. I would not want anything I have said to infer a lack of appreciation of the amount of time which [14716] the chairman and the other very busy members and very responsible members of both bodies have given.

In my experience I have never witnessed more time and diligence given to a specific matter than in this case and I think that should continue to be a matter of record.

On the other hand, I do feel, as I stated, about this unexplored field. I am a little disturbed at the chairman making a point of the fact that this has not been made an issue or a matter of a motion, so in order to correct the record I would like to complete the record and to make the three motions which, apparently, are essential in order to leave no doubt as to the position of the members.

So I move that the committee should further explore the occurrences at Manila and Clark Field and the Philippines on December 7 and December 8, 1941.

The CHAIRMAN. I suppose from a technical standpoint, in view of the action the committee has taken about closing the hearings today, I could declare that motion out of order, but I will not do so.

Senator BREWSTER. The hearing and the record has not been closed.

The CHAIRMAN. The hearing and the record has been closed. We will vote on it. Do you want a roll call?

Senator BREWSTER. No.

The CHAIRMAN. As many in favor of the motion say "aye"; [14717] opposed, "no"; the motion is lost.

Senator BREWSTER. I move that the committee request that the Grew diary be made available for examination of the committee and counsel to determine the relevant portions which can be made a part of the record without detriment to the public interest.

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. Chairman, may I state that means asking Mr. Grew to produce 10 volumes.

The CHAIRMAN. As many in favor of that motion say "aye"; opposed "no." Motion lost.

Senator BREWSTER. I move the same request be made for the Stimson diary, under the same circumstances and conditions.

[14718] I point out I do not contemplate the publicity which the other gentleman has mentioned, but it shall be a matter for the committee to determine as to the relevancy and importance.

The CHAIRMAN. As many in favor of the motion say "aye"; opposed "no." Motion lost.

I should have said a while ago when I was responding to the suggestions of the Senator from Maine, that the committee feels very grateful to counsel, who have, in all cases, abandoned their legal pursuits, their law practice, and the peace and quietude which they would have otherwise enjoyed, to assist this committee; first, in the case of Mr. Mitchell and his assistants, Mr. Hannaford, Mr. Masten, and Mr. Gesell who, I think, in the gathering of evidence and in going through the records and the comprehensive preparation of this investigation, did as magnificent a piece of work as was ever done by any counsel for any committee in the Congress of the United States.

Unfortunately, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Gesell were compelled to retire from the investigation because of their private interests, and the probability, as has turned out to be the fact, that the hearing would drag on beyond the time which they could devote to it; and in January, I think it was, we secured the services of Mr. Seth Richardson, and Mr. Kaufman, of New York, and others, to take up where Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Gesell and others left off, to pursue this investigation to its ultimate conclusion. It was a difficult task which they assumed in [14719] stepping into the investigation, in the midst of it, and grabbing up the loose threads and the continuity of the testimony, in order to move on with it, and they did that in a manner which I feel sure is eminently satisfactory to the committee, with a devotion to duty that has never been excelled to my knowledge; and, as a matter of fact, notwithstanding the change of counsel we lost very little time by reason of that. So that the testimony went on continuously and has now been completed.

I want to thank the counsel, all of them, from the top to the bottom, both sets and all sets, and all their assistants, the girls that worked with them and for them. I want to thank the Federal Bureau of Investigation who were assigned to us by Mr. Hoover for the very efficient and outstanding work they have done.

I wish also to take advantage of this opportunity to thank the press who have been diligent in their attendance upon the hearings, who have been fair in reporting the hearings. Obviously, in a long-drawn-out hearing like this, over months, it is impossible for the newspapers to carry the testimony in full so that the people who read can get a full account of the testimony and what really happened. That is perfectly obvious and it is inherent in the newspaper field. It isn't possible that they could print every day all that everybody said. But the press has been diligent, it has been fair, it has been, I think, constructive, and I want to, on behalf of the committee, thank the press and the reporters who have set with us here since last September [14720] in undertaking to make the public aware of what we were doing and let the public make up its own mind about this episode out in the Pacific Ocean, which they may have done by now or will do when the final conclusion is reached.

I think one of the valuable things, whatever else may happen, or whatever else may be said about the investigation, whatever the report may contain, one of the valuable things and maybe the most valuable of all is the fact that all these people involved in this unfortunate affair have had an opportunity to tell their story in public and to have it reported so that the people could read it, hear it, and make up their own minds with respect to it.

That has been a real service for which I am sure the committee in its entirety is grateful.

I was about to include another group. The liaison representatives from the War, Navy, and State Departments who have from the beginning worked with counsel and with the committee in finding and sorting the official testimony and records which we have called for. They have been very efficient and always at the beck and call of the committee and its counsel. We are very grateful to them.

I also wish to include in what I said about the press the radio. That is a new field of intelligence and information. It is so important that we have set apart the radio press, and they are recognized as a part of the informational set-up in [17421] the United States.

All, radio, press, liaison, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and everybody who has assisted the committee, have our everlasting gratitude; and if I have left out anybody, consider yourself included.

Senator BREWSTER. As a representative of the minority, and since we have had some matters on which we haven't agreed, I wish to associate myself with the expressions of appreciation of our distinguished chairman and particularly wish to thank the press who I think have done an extraordinary job and have given the American public a fair analysis.

I also wish to thank our distinguished counsel and his associates who have labored in season and out of season in what was sometimes seemingly an impossible situation.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. Now that we are all in accord, it would be a good time to close.

The CHAIRMAN. Yes.

The Chair will announce that today officially closes the record of this hearing, and the committee will now stand adjourned, subject to call by the Chair, and I hope we will be able to call you early next week.

(Whereupon, at 12:15 p. m., the committee adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.)

[14722]

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1946

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION
OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK,
Washington, D. C.

The joint committee met, pursuant to call, at 10 a. m., in room 312, Senate Office Building, Senator Alben W. Barkley (chairman) presiding.

Present: Senators Barkley (chairman), George, and Lucas and Representatives Cooper (vice chairman), and Keefe.

Also present: Seth W. Richardson, general counsel; John E. Masten, Logan J. Lane, and Edward P. Morgan of counsel, for the joint committee.

[14723] The CHAIRMAN. Admiral, will you come around?
Admiral Stark.

TESTIMONY OF ADMIRAL HAROLD R. STARK (Resumed)

The CHAIRMAN. Gentlemen, I want to explain for the record why I called this meeting. It was called rather suddenly. I regret that it had to be that way because some of the members are away on account of Memorial Day and haven't returned.

Senator Ferguson and Senator Brewster are both away. Congressman Murphy, Congressman Clark. Congressman Gearhart is out in California. Congressman Keefe is here. He told me to go ahead, that he would come over as soon as he could, but not to wait for him.

The reason I called this meeting is that 2 or 3 days ago Admiral Stark called over to the Capitol and gave me a letter, which I will read for the record:

26 MAY 1946.

Hon. ALBEN W. BARKLEY,

Chairman, Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack (S. Con. Res. 27), Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR BARKLEY: I have testified before the committee that the President did not call me on the night of 6 December (preceding the attack on Pearl Harbor on 7 December). I also [14724] stated that it was of course possible that I might be mistaken on this after over 4 years lapse of time, but that I recalled no such call.

I am now informed that I did talk to the President over the telephone on 6 December, and hasten to put this before the committee in order to set the record straight.

The circumstances are as follows: Last night (Saturday 25 May) Capt. H. D. Krick, USN, now on duty in the Bureau of Ordnance (Captain Krick had been my flag lieutenant in my last sea command) and his wife made a social call on Mrs. Stark and me. During the course of the evening Captain Krick asked me if I recalled the evening of 6 December—when I replied "No" he recalled that he and his wife had dinner with Mrs. Stark and me at my quarters, and that we had then—the four of us—gone to see The Student Prince.

Captain Krick also recalled that on returning to my quarters after the theater to pick up his car they, the Kricks, had come into the house for a while and that I was told by one of the servants that the White House had called me; that I then went upstairs to talk to the President (the White House phone was in my house on the second floor). Krick further stated that when I came downstairs after the phone call I said to him in substance that the situation with Japan was very serious.

I felt I should put this matter before the committee [14725] immediately. I have again searched my memory for this phone call and I can only repeat that I do not recall it.

Very truly yours,

[S] H. R. STARK.

The CHAIRMAN. Now, Mr. Richardson, you may proceed.

I might state before you start that Admiral Stark advises me that he is leaving this afternoon for a long delayed important engagement in London and that he will be gone 3 or 4 weeks; therefore it seemed desirable that we get this in the record before he leaves, in order to accommodate him as well as the committee.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Admiral, your arrangements for this trip abroad long antedated the discovery of the knowledge of Lieutenant Krick of this episode of Saturday evening, December 6, did it not?

Admiral STARK. Yes; months ago.

Mr. RICHARDSON. So that your trip away has no reference whatever to any of the transactions in connection with Pearl Harbor?

Admiral STARK. Not the slightest. I had been asked for this trip last October and I refused, not being able to leave at that time, and the date was then set the latter part of June which I accepted months ago.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Does this episode which the lieutenant refers to in your letter refresh your recollection at all today, Admiral?

[14726] Admiral STARK. No, sir; it does not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You still have no recollection whatever of any events of that evening?

Admiral STARK. No, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And you have no recollection of going upstairs and using the White House phone in response to any report made to you by any of your servants?

Admiral STARK. No; I do not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. The evidence, as you know, indicates here that at an earlier time on that evening, when the President was made familiar with the first 13 parts of this now celebrated 14-part message, he characterized the message and then sought to get in touch with you, received a report that you were at the theater, and said he would contact you later.

From that if we assume that he wished to talk to you about this 13-part message, it would be reasonable that any message to you from the White House that night would have communicated to you the existence of that message, wouldn't you think so?

Admiral STARK. That is correct.

Mr. RICHARDSON. You will recall the last time you were on the stand you suggested that your visit to your office on Sunday morning was in accordance with your practice to go to your office on Sunday morning, while you were uncertain as to the precise time, being of the opinion yourself that it might have been a little later because it was Sunday morning—

[14727] Admiral STARK. Yes.

Mr. RICHARDSON (continuing). That you didn't go to your office for the purpose of seeing a 13-part message because you had no recollection of having known there was such?

Admiral STARK. That is correct.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And the first time you saw the message, or the fact that it existed came to your attention, is when you found it in your office when you went there that morning?

Admiral STARK. That was my recollection.

Mr. RICHARDSON. This discussion, with your letter, the detailed report he gives you, doesn't refresh your recollection with reference to any of those particulars?

Admiral STARK. It does not.

I might say in that connection that I talked very frequently with the President. I think you will all be surprised to know how much, how minutely he was following every detail, and how fully I kept him acquainted with anything going on that was of any interest that came to my attention in connection with naval matters and international matters at that time. I frequently called the President along about a quarter after 6 in the evening, which I knew was about the time he was likely to be finished signing his mail, and I frequently called him, and I mean frequently, not only at that time but after the war was on, in the late evening, perhaps around half past 11, after I had gone over the contents of [14728] my brief case, because at that time the President was likely to be free. I would call and ask if he were free and talk to him over any items of interest.

That went on continuously. So there was nothing unusual in my talking to the President that time of night, not the slightest. I can only assume that when the President called me that he mentioned this note that we had received from the Japanese, that he did not, certainly did not, impress me that it was anything that required action; I took none. I am certain that he gave me no directive or I would have carried it out. It would have been the simplest matter in the world for me to have called up the Department and said to send out that message if it had been anything that I should have seen. The President, of course, knew that I was going to the office the next morning; I was always there; he called me up Sunday mornings, and I called him up. And in connection with that also it is my recollection that every witness who testified as to the material which the President had before him that evening, the 13 points, has stated that it was nothing but a rehash and nothing which required any action.

I think that was the testimony of both Army and Navy. I remember Ingersoll's particularly, and in talking to him about it later, that there was nothing to it that required any action. I am certain that nothing was indicated to me. [14729] I also testified that when I did see that message, that had I seen it the night before I would have taken no action on it. That was in response to a question by one of the members of the committee. Not only the 13 points but even the fourteenth point, which was different from the rest, and which struck me in particular because it was almost a paraphrase of what I had included in our message of the 27th and confirmation of what I had sent.

The President was familiar with every move we had made. I kept him fully informed. We were all intensely aware of the seriousness of the situation, watching it just as closely as we could. Even on the 6th we had sent a message authorizing destruction of certain codes to the commanders in the Pacific, stating "Hold on to some", in winding up the message, "until the last minute." Everything we had seen, in our opinion had indicated the tenseness of the situation, that anything might break at any time. In fact, we said so specifically.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, Admiral, you remember when you were last on the stand the question was asked you whether if you had received any intimation from the President that he thought the 13-part message meant war, that would have been a very important statement to you and one that would have stirred you into action, based on the President's statement?¹

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir; if he had said anything to me [14730] about the imminence or anything new, or indicated any action, it would have stirred me into immediate action.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, now, the testimony indicates that when the President read this message he said, "This means war", or used equivalent language. Would you, from your knowledge of the President and the detail, as you say, with which he followed the events which were transpiring, would it be your presumption now that the President made no such statement to you if he talked to you on the night of December 6?

Admiral STARK. It would be, decidedly. We had, of course, and I think my letter of the 25th indicated that, both the President and Mr. Hull had stated in my presence that they would not be surprised if the Japanese attacked at any time, and I think if the President had made any such statement to me on the night of the 6th that I would have recalled it.

I also remember Beardall's testimony when the fourteenth point was presented the next morning and in which, I believe, he testified to the best of his recollection that the President merely said, well, it looked like a rupture of negotiations. That fourteenth point, of course, was in much stronger, more definite language than the preceding 13.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Now, the subject of this message and any discussion with reference to it would be within the limitations of magic, would it not?

[14731] Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. So that any discussion between you and the White House, if Captain Krick is correct, having been about magic, there would be no possibility of discussing with Captain Krick any of the details of your conversation?

Admiral STARK. Oh, no; no, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. So that when he told you that you stated that our affairs with Japan were in a very critical condition, or something of that sort, that would be as much comment as you could make, from such a conversation?

Admiral STARK. Yes; I think it would. I had made that statement to others.

¹ See p. 5157, supra.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then, the fact that you didn't say anything to Captain Krick as to the details of your conversation would be entirely in accord with the way you would have to handle any information that had anything to do with magic?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Was Captain Krick one of those who would have any knowledge of magic or transactions that were passing, magic interceptions?

Admiral STARK. I think not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Well, it turned out, did it not, Admiral, that this 14-part message was a very significant and important message?

[14732] Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And there were significances with respect to it which if fully appreciated made it of startling importance?

Admiral STARK. Well, we had come to the conclusion previously that we considered Japan likely to attack at any time in any direction. I wouldn't say that it changed any of our previous conceptions. It was a confirmation, if anything.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Would you include in that estimate any of the significances of the use of the 1 p. m. date?

Admiral STARK. The 1 p. m. date, and again in the light of hindsight—

Mr. RICHARDSON. Yes; I realize that.

Admiral STARK (continuing). Was different. It set a time and, as you will recall, I was discussing the matter when General Marshall called me, and my first reaction was that we had sent so much, and we had assumed that what we had sent out there was, I previously testified, enough to have everybody fully alerted, it was questionable whether to send anything more, including the message, you remember, which I recalled we sent on the 6th; then, after only a little further reflection I told Marshall to go ahead and send it and to be sure that our people were notified.

I put that in a different category because I think there was nothing in the 14-point message which in one way or another [14733] we had not previously covered.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then, it would be your conclusion as Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral, that the fact that the President made no mention to you that in his opinion this message meant war, deducing that—he couldn't have, because of the fact you have no such recollection in your memory—

Admiral STARK. That is the assumption, yes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Plus the fact that when Admiral Wilkinson saw the message, General Miles saw the message, and Beardall saw the message—

Admiral STARK. Admiral Ingersoll.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Beardall saw the message the night before, I mean.

Admiral STARK. Yes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And Secretary Knox saw the message the night before. The fact that nothing immediately was done with reference to that message is because you feel that the message itself was simply a rehash of information which had come before and of which you were already aware?

Admiral STARK. I feel that very definitely; yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And that if any of those high officers had any different view there would have been a different attitude toward this message?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir; I think we all felt the same [14734] about it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then, the first expression of anything unusual about this message in point of action came with the suggestion of General Marshall with reference to a message that he proposed to send?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did you have any, when you were examining the message, when you went to your office—I have forgotten your testimony, I am sure you testified on it—were you informed as to any of the possible significance of this 1 o'clock date, from either Kramer's report or the report of any of your aides?

Admiral STARK. No, I was not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And as soon as Captain Krick told of this incident, of his knowledge of this situation, you immediately prepared this letter to the chairman of this committee in order to inform him of this much light, at least, on what happened on Saturday night?

Admiral STARK. I did; yes, sir. When Captain Krick first mentioned this to me, about our having been to the theater that night together, and about my having gone upstairs and talked to the President, which was the natural way for it to have followed through, that the White House had called, my first thought was, well, I can't add anything to this testi- [14735] mony, it doesn't bring up anything which I haven't covered so far as I can, goodness knows I have racked my brains on that evening—why report it—and the more I thought about it the more I realized that this indicated that my testimony was incorrect, the impression of it, and it was quite definite that I had not talked to the President that night; the more I thought of it the more disturbed I became that the committee should have this, the record should have it straight, and I got up around 2 or 3 in the morning, thinking this thing over, and wrote this letter in longhand and had it typed the following day, I sent it for typing on Sunday, got it Monday, and brought it up to Senator Barkley, Monday.

Of course, I am extremely glad it came up. If it had come up after everything was over I never would have felt comfortable about it, I wouldn't have known how to get it before the committee, and I would have felt I couldn't rest until I squared this away.

You may recall—I think you were not here on my first hearing—when I stated that if anything whatsoever came up with regard to Pearl Harbor, that I thought of anything of interest to this committee, that I would report it immediately. That was on the conclusion of my hearings. And this is the only thing that has come up which I have thought any different from what I have previously testified to.

[14736] Mr. RICHARDSON. Admiral, if the President had told you in his talk with you that night, assuming that you talked to him, and had told you that it was his opinion that this thirteenth-part message meant war, thereby impressed you with his very serious estimate of it, what would have been, in accordance with your custom, the action for you to have then taken, with that information?

Admiral STARK. I don't know, sir, that I would have, that we would have sent anything more. I think that I should have gotten in touch with Ingersoll and with Turner. We had had a conference a few days previously, going over the seriousness of the situation, if there was anything more we could have sent, and, as I say, we practically repeated this fourteenth point, repeated, some days earlier we had sent the same thing. We thought, and the President knew every move that we had made, that we had sent everything possible, on that premise, that war was in the immediate offing.

I don't know that I would have done anything. I couldn't say.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Would there have been any customary acceleration of getting the completed message? The evidence indicates that the message was completed around 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning; it then lay without attention until Kramer came down about 7:30, and it passed out of Kramer's hands along about [14737] 9 or 9:30, somewhere in there.

Admiral STARK. At 10:30—Well, the 1 o'clock part.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What I am wondering is whether if you had been apprised it would have been proper and usual to have taken steps to see to it that someone was waiting and ready to receive the full message for the purpose of effectuating such action as might be necessary.

Admiral STARK. Well, I think it might have, sir, if I had had any feeling as you have just represented, I think I should myself.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Admiral, let me ask you another odd question. Are you able to state from your recollection of Saturday the 6th that there was not at the White House an extensive conference between the heads of the Army and the heads of the Navy in discussion of matters and things which in part had to do with this fourteenth-part message?

[14738] Admiral STARK. I never had heard of such a conference, I know of nothing now regarding such a conference, I was not present at it, I had never even heard anyone suggest such a thing until it was mentioned here in previous hearings.

My honest opinion is that nothing of the sort took place. It was a complete surprise to Marshall that even the question came up. It was to me. I am certain that I didn't leave the house after the Kricks left. I just can't think of any such thing as happening. Certainly I was not present, and Colonel Knox never mentioned any such thing to me.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And despite your inability to recollect detail, such a conference at the White House, under those circumstances, would be so extraordinarily unusual, that don't you think that would at least stand out in your memory, even though you don't remember the details of this evening?

Admiral STARK. I think so, unquestionably.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is all the questions I have.

The CHAIRMAN. Admiral, had Captain Krick ever said anything to you about this matter that he mentioned last Saturday night, until last Saturday night, when his wife and he were guests of Mrs. Stark and you?

Admiral STARK. No, sir; never. It was out of a clear sky to me.

The CHAIRMAN. You realize that it might seem strange that [14739] a thing like that would escape your memory altogether.

What is your explanation or interpretation of the reason why, if all this happened as he said, that it still doesn't register in your mind?

Admiral STARK. Well, lapse of time, I would say, was certainly an important factor. The immediately following events, which stand out crystal clear, as to some other events; and an awfully busy time since then probably has simply wiped it out.

And I might say there was nothing unusual about the Kricks being with us for any entertainment or otherwise. One's flag lieutenant gets very close to one, and we had been together afloat just previous to my coming ashore for a couple of years, attending many, many functions together, and coming ashore about the same time, and they were often with us.

The CHAIRMAN. Would the fact that you had, as you have testified, frequent White House talks over your direct line with the President, maybe night after night for a period, or as often as several times a week, would that have anything to do with your ability to identify this particular night as against any other night when you had a conversation with the President over the telephone?

Admiral STARK. I think so, because it wasn't something unusual which might stand out. I mean, my talking to the White [14740] House. I would pick up the phone and talk just as freely to the President as I would, almost, pick it up and call my own home.

The CHAIRMAN. Any questions?

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Chairman, if I may interrupt at this point. As I told you on the phone when I called I had just then received notice that this meeting was to be held, just a few minutes before 10 o'clock, and I hurried to get here.

The CHAIRMAN. I explained the reason for the sudden call was that Admiral Stark is leaving tonight for London to fulfill a long-delayed engagement, and upon the receipt of this letter I felt that whatever pertained to it ought to go in the record and not simply have the letter filed with the committee.

Mr. KEEFE. I raised the question because I had understood that the hearings had, by action of the committee, been closed, and that the testimony had been closed, and I want to keep the record clear, in the absence of my colleagues, none of whom are present here this morning.

I assume that the chairman felt that it was due propriety that the action heretofore taken by the committee in closing the testimony in this matter should be vacated and set aside in order to permit this testimony to go in, but I wonder if we have established a precedent now that may plague us in the future, because I understood very definitely that the [14741] testimony in this case was closed, definitely closed by vote and action of the committee.

Now, if it is to be reopened for this purpose, it may be perfectly proper to reopen it for some other purpose, and this committee will go on and on.

I want the record to show that I have raised this question. I do not know, I haven't had any notice of action by the committee vacating the previous action closing the testimony, but it seems to me that we ought to keep our record clear, Mr. Chairman.

I don't know whether this testimony amounts to anything or not. I didn't hear the first part of it. I don't know what it is, except what I heard since I came in, and that doesn't seem to cast very much light on the testimony as it heretofore appears.

Unless Admiral Stark knows when he talked to the President and what the President told him, what they talked about, I don't know that it makes much difference to now confirm the fact that he attended The Student Prince that night.

The CHAIRMAN. All you say is true now, Congressman, that the hearings were closed.

Mr. KEEFE. I am not criticizing the chairman.

The CHAIRMAN. This situation was brought suddenly to my attention. The admiral was on the verge of leaving the country [14742] for 3 or 4 weeks, and I felt that in view of what Captain Krick had said to him about it, and will say here in a few minutes when he is called, that it was the part of wisdom to get the committee together, even though all of them couldn't be here, and make this matter of record by public testimony, instead of simply filing Admiral Stark's letter with the committee.

I don't think it sheds any light on it, but Admiral Stark felt, having been told this by Captain Krick, as late as last Saturday night, that he ought to bring it to the attention of the committee, and he having brought it to my attention, I felt whatever was done about it ought to be done publicly and not just hand the letter in to the committee and simply file it.

Mr. KEEFE. I take it, Mr. Chairman, that if the testimony means anything, it means that Admiral Stark now says his memory has or has not been refreshed by reason of his conversations with Captain Krick.

Now, if his memory has not been refreshed by reason of his talks with Captain Krick, his whole testimony, it seems to me, is utterly inconsequential and immaterial.

I am not interested in the fact that Captain Krick comes in and now says that he was at the dinner with Admiral Stark and that they went to the theater and saw The Student Prince, and then went home and had a lunch and Admiral Stark went to [14743] the telephone and talked to someone, and then he left. I don't see that that is of any particular probative value unless those facts related to him will recall to Admiral Stark's mind those facts and the fact that the President did talk to him and what the President said and what was the discussion.

I understand that it doesn't click with him, he doesn't remember any such situation. So under those circumstances, I feel compelled to object to any further repetitious testimony going into this record on a matter that is not of any probative force or value, in view of the fact that the committee has definitely voted to close the testimony, and it would establish a precedent which would clearly offer the opportunity for my colleague, Mr. Brewster, or Senator Ferguson, or somebody else, to plague the committee with offers of testimony that will continue this thing on and on and on.

I have made my statement. That is the way I feel.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair appreciates your statement and cannot controvert it. I mean, all you have said about the matter is undoubtedly accurate.

Senator LUCAS. Mr. Chairman, I want to subscribe to the statements made by the Congressman from Wisconsin. He has said exactly what I was about to say. As he has said, if we are going to continue hearings on this matter, there is no question but what somebody will continue to bring [14744] something forward, and cause delays.

I know that the chairman has been tremendously busy with legislation on the Senate floor, and I think, perhaps—I am not criticizing him—but I think if we had discussed this in executive session we might have accomplished something without this testimony.

I didn't know that we were going to have hearings this morning.

The CHAIRMAN. I will state this, that I conferred with counsel of the committee in respect to the proceedings that ought to be had in view of the admiral's letter to me. If we had had all the time that might be available we might have had an executive session and decided it wasn't worth while to even put the letter in the record.

The admiral felt compelled to address the letter to me, in order not to be in a position of holding back something that somebody had told him, and I called the hearing this morning because the admiral is leaving the city and might not be back until we have made our report, or were on the verge of doing so.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Might I make this suggestion, Mr. Chairman. Suppose we take the Captain's testimony, which will be very brief, and then if the committee later decides not to use any of this testimony, all right; on the other hand, if they allow it to go in, we have it.

[14745] I would like to state for the record that one of the issues that I think is involved in the record is the fact that about 9:30 on Saturday evening the President sought to get in touch with Admiral Stark. He was unable to do so. There, up to this morning—

The CHAIRMAN. If you will permit, it was about 10:30 when Commander Schulz delivered the message.

Mr. RICHARDSON. All right. Whenever that time was.

It, therefore, would stand upon the record as though the President paid no more attention to contacting Admiral Stark, because Admiral Stark remembered nothing of any message from the White House that evening. Apparently, from Captain Krick's testimony, it now becomes definite that there was a communication after Admiral Stark came home from the theater, between Admiral Stark and the President on that evening; so that, so far as the President is concerned, his statement that he would later contact Admiral Stark was accomplished.

I advised the chairman that I thought that that fact should be in the record.

Senator LUCAS. Well, it just shows one thing, that the President was more alert than anybody else.

Mr. KEEFE. Does Admiral Stark recall what the conversation was?

The CHAIRMAN. No.

[14746] Senator LUCAS. He doesn't recall a thing.

Mr. KEEFE. He doesn't recall that they even had a conversation, or that he was called, or anything else?

Senator LUCAS. That is right.

The CHAIRMAN. Nor that he went to see The Student Prince.

Senator LUCAS. I don't see how Admiral Stark can go to London this afternoon, in view of the fact that this has been reopened, and in view of the fact that Senator Brewster and Senator Ferguson are not here; they are the individuals who voted not to close the hearings, and they are the two individuals who are going to have much to say if when they return they don't have a chance to examine Admiral Stark, notwithstanding the fact that he doesn't know anything about the conversation.

I have observed Mr. Brewster, and I say this not because he is absent, but from beginning to end, trying to make—well——

The CHAIRMAN. I might say that I asked Senator Ferguson after the vote in the Senate Wednesday at 5 o'clock if he would be here this morning. He was rushing to catch a plane. And he said he would be here. I learned from his office that he wouldn't be here until this afternoon. And Senator Brewster may be here this afternoon.

The committee can do what it wants to do. I did what I [14747] thought was my duty in calling the meeting, under the circumstances. If the committee wants to postpone the meeting in order to get all the members present, to let them examine into this matter as much as they please, it suits me. I did what seemed to me to be the best thing to do. I didn't feel that, with Admiral Stark on the verge of leaving for London for 3 or 4 weeks, the matter should be withheld from the committee.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Chairman, I have not talked to Captain Krick, I don't know what he is going to say, but from what has been stated, and what appears in Admiral Stark's letter, there must have been conversation between Admiral Stark and Captain Krick which would inform Captain Krick that the President had called and that the telephone conversation was between Admiral Stark and the President.

Admiral STARK. That is right.

Mr. KEEFE. Now, then, Admiral Stark doesn't remember a thing. He can recall nothing. Therefore the statement of Captain Krick hasn't prodded his recollection at all. I don't see how any great help is being given to the record to have Captain Krick testify that he was out at Admiral Stark's house and that Admiral Stark went to answer the telephone and came back and said "I talked with the President," or something of that kind.

[14748] Admiral STARK. Mr. Chairman, I may state that my feeling is that I couldn't add anything to the record, except to show, as counsel has suggested, that I did talk to the President that night. The record as left showed that, too.

The CHAIRMAN. You mean you assume you talked to him from what Captain Krick said?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. If you don't remember anything about it you are no better off than you would be if Captain Krick didn't say that.

Admiral STARK. No, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. But you are assuming that you talked to the President inasmuch as he, Captain Krick, did say that to you?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir. And I thought that that fact should be in the record, along the line of thought which counsel has suggested. I don't know of another thing that I could give the committee.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Chairman, I shall have to insist upon my point, because it seems to me perfectly obvious that it is so unfair to the other members of this committee, in view of the action heretofore taken by the committee, to now reopen this case, without the other members of the committee being present and given an opportunity to ask any questions [14749] that they see fit to ask.

The chairman will recall, as will the other members, that it has been my purpose to close these hearings and to get on with the report and finish our obligation, and I don't think that this little bit of second-hand testimony would be, on the part of Captain Krick, very important.

The CHAIRMAN. Assuming that, and I don't dispute it, I am sure that you will agree, all members will agree, that having received this letter from Admiral Stark, if I had stuck it in my pocket and suppressed it and not brought it to the attention of the committee, I would have been pilloried not only by certain members of the committee but by others for withholding something that the committee was entitled to.

I have presented the letter. The committee may take such action as they see fit. If it wants to have another meeting, maybe this afternoon, when the other members can be here—I can't assure that.

Senator GEORGE. Mr. Chairman, I think the suggestion made by counsel is not an unwise one, that we might have Captain Krick now make a statement and subsequently, in executive session, decide whether any of it would go into the record, beyond the bare letter of the admiral, if he wishes it to go into the record.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. I agree with that statement, Mr. [14750] Chairman. I think that probably would be the best course, to hear what Captain Krick has to say, and just suspend the question until a full attendance of the committee can be had.

The CHAIRMAN. Captain Krick is here in the Department in Washington. He can be obtained if the committee wants him at any time.

Is that agreeable?

Admiral, we thank you for your appearance.

Senator LUCAS. May I ask the Admiral one question before he leaves?

The CHAIRMAN. Senator Lucas.

Senator LUCAS. Admiral, do I understand now from your conversation with Captain Krick that it appears you had dinner together that night?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Senator LUCAS. Then following the dinner you went to the show?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir.

Senator LUCAS. Then from there you went home?

Admiral STARK. Yes, sir. Captain Krick drove his car to my quarters, we went to the show in my car, and he came back to my quarters to get his car.

The CHAIRMAN. Do you remember any of that or are you saying what he told you?

[14751] Admiral STARK. I am saying what he told me. That would be the normal course.

Senator LUCAS. You don't remember any thing of that kind?

Admiral STARK. I do not remember that evening and I have stated so. My original impression was that I was home, which I know to be incorrect, but I do not recall it. I stated that I recalled having seen a revival of The Student Prince but I did not connect it with the night of December 6. I still do not.

Senator GEORGE. You have no independent recollection except what you have given the committee?

Admiral STARK. That is right.

The CHAIRMAN. You mean you have no independent recollection?

Admiral STARK. I have not. I don't have any independent recollection. My sole purpose was the fact that a conversation took place that should be in the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Thank you, Admiral.

Well, if it is agreeable we will let Captain Krick make his statement and then the committee can decide what course it wishes to take.

Admiral STARK. May I ask whether or not I shall be free to go on?

Senator LUCAS. What time do you leave, Admiral?

[14752] Admiral STARK. I am sailing tomorrow morning. Have to be aboard ship between 8:30 and 10:30.

Senator LUCAS. You will leave here tonight for New York?

Admiral STARK. I was leaving this afternoon. I could leave on a midnight train and make it.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, Admiral, it is rather difficult for me to say. If the other members wish to be called into session I would be glad to call a session this afternoon and let them decide.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Chairman, I can't see any conceivable possible statement that Admiral Stark can give the committee that he hasn't already given them and he could go to London to perform his service and perhaps be performing a greater service than sitting around here and telling us that he doesn't remember anything.

Admiral STARK. I quite agree.

Mr. KEEFE. That is, in substance, the picture as I see it.

Admiral STARK. I thought of that when I wrote the letter, that I couldn't add anything, but I couldn't leave without giving you this letter.

The CHAIRMAN. Is it the feeling of the committee, in view of the situation and suggestion, that Admiral Stark need not delay his trip?

Mr. KEEFE. That is my opinion.

[14753] The VICE CHAIRMAN. I agree.

Senator GEORGE. That is my opinion.

Senator LUCAS. I will agree but you will hear plenty about it afterwards.

The CHAIRMAN. Well, we can't help that.

Thank you, Admiral.

Admiral STARK. I am grateful to you, sir, for permitting me to say what I have.

Senator LUCAS. Don't find any more friends, please. When friends come in say nothing about Pearl Harbor. [Laughter.]

(Admiral Stark was excused.)

The CHAIRMAN. Come up, Captain Krick.

[14754] TESTIMONY OF CAPT. HAROLD D. KRICK, UNITED STATES NAVY

(Having been first duly sworn by the chairman:)

Mr. RICHARDSON. State your full name, Captain.

Captain KRICK. Harold D. Krick, United States Navy.

Mr. RICHARDSON. How long have you been in the Navy, Captain?

Captain KRICK. I will be in the Navy 28 years on the 7th of June 1946.

Mr. RICHARDSON. How long have you known Admiral Stark?

Captain KRICK. I have known Admiral Stark since 1933 when he commanded the U. S. S. West Virginia, to which ship I was attached.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What was your last assignment with him?

Captain KRICK. My last assignment with Admiral Stark was as his flag lieutenant when he was commander of the cruisers of the battle force.

Mr. RICHARDSON. When did you come to Washington to live?

Captain KRICK. I came to Washington to live in July 1939.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Since your coming to Washington, has there been a continuation of social relations between your family and Admiral Stark's family?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; there has been a very close relation.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Socially?

[14755] Captain KRICK. Socially.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Frequently at his house?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; frequently at his house.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Were you familiar, from your acquaintance with his house, whether Admiral Stark had a White House phone in his house?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; Admiral Stark did have a White House phone in his house.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What floor was it on?

Captain KRICK. It was on the second floor, in his study.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you recall your whereabouts on Saturday night, December 6?

Captain KRICK. On Saturday night, December 6, 1941?

Mr. RICHARDSON. That is right.

Captain KRICK. I was with Admiral Stark and Mrs. Stark.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Who was with you?

Captain KRICK. My wife.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Just the four of you?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. When did you meet that evening, first?

Captain KRICK. We assembled at Admiral Stark's house about 6:30 or 7 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did you have dinner?

Captain KRICK. We had dinner at the Stark residence.

[14756] Mr. RICHARDSON. Were there any other guests?

Captain KRICK. No other guests.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Where did you go after dinner?

Captain KRICK. After dinner we attended a performance, I believe it to be the The Student Prince, at the National Theater in Washington, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did you stay for the entire performance?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Were did you go after the performance?

Captain KRICK. Subsequent to the performance we returned to the Stark residence in order to pick up my transportation.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Whose car did you go to the theater in, and from?

Captain KRICK. In the admiral's car.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And you left your car at the Stark house?

Captain KRICK. That is correct; yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And you returned for it after the theater?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did you go in the Stark residence upon your return?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; we did go into the Stark residence, as was the custom, for a few moments, before returning to our home.

Mr. RICHARDSON. To get something to eat and drink?

[14757] Captain KRICK. There were usually refreshments; that was the usual custom.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you recall the occasion of going into the house on that evening?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; I do recall that evening.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What occurred when you went in the house?

Captain KRICK. One of the admiral's servants advised the admiral that—

Mr. RICHARDSON. What did he say?

Captain KRICK. That there had been a White House call during the evening, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What happened then?

Captain KRICK. The admiral excused himself and retired to his study on the second floor and returned.

Mr. RICHARDSON. How long was he there?

Captain KRICK. I would say approximately between 5 and 10 minutes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did he come downstairs again?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; he did come downstairs.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did he say anything to you?

Captain KRICK. Only to the extent that the conditions in the Pacific were serious; that was the substance of it, that conditions with Japan were in a critical state, something of that sort, sir.

[14758] Mr. RICHARDSON. Did he say anything to you, as near as you can recall, that he had had a telephone message, on the second floor?

Captain KRICK. That is my inference. There is absolutely no doubt in my mind about it, sir. But I do not recall the exact statement. I do not recall that he stated "I have talked with the President of the United States". But I heard, of course the statement of the servant that there had been a White House call, and the admiral retired immediately, and he may have stated that he was going to call the White House; but I have the distinct impression that the conversation was with the White House.

[14759] Mr. RICHARDSON. Do you have any impression that upon his return from upstairs Admiral Stark made any statement then that his talk had been with the White House?

Captain KRICK. My impression very definitely was that; yes, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. That was the end of the conversation?

Captain KRICK. That was the end of the conversation. The admiral never talked over any of his affairs in that connection with me, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. How long did you stay after that statement?

Captain KRICK. Approximately not more than 15 minutes.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Then, you and your wife went home?

Captain KRICK. Yes sir; I would say that it would be not later than 11:30 on the night of the 6th.

Mr. RICHARDSON. When did you first relate to anyone the details of what you have just told us?

Captain KRICK. That was the night, I believe, of the 25th of May 1946, at the admiral's home; this conversation came up very casually.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Who was there?

Captain KRICK. The admiral and Mrs. Stark and my wife.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And yourself?

Captain KRICK. That is correct.

[14760] Mr. RICHARDSON. What was the conversation then?

Captain KRICK. The substance of the conversation was referring back to the night before Pearl Harbor on the 6th of December 1941, that I had noticed a headline to the effect that the admiral hadn't known where he was, I had not followed this case closely, and I then informed the admiral that we were his guests that night, and I informed him what I have just said, to the effect that as usual he had left with his boy the number of the National Theater, so that he could be called in the event any calls came in.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Wait just a moment. Was there any such conversation in your presence that evening before you went to the theater between Admiral Stark and any of his servants?

Captain KRICK. I am quite sure that there was; sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. And what was the admonition which he gave to his servants?

Captain KRICK. The custom was, sir, to give to the boy a slip of paper with the number of the telephone where the admiral could be contacted.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Are you of the opinion that occurred that evening?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; I am quite sure of it.

Mr. RICHARDSON. When you reached the theater what was done with respect to advising the theater officials?

[14761] Captain KRICK. As I recall it, either the admiral or I notified the head usher in that respect, where the admiral was sitting, where we would be during the entire evening, and no call came for the admiral during that time.

Mr. RICHARDSON. What statement did the admiral make when you told him what had happened on the night of December 6?

Captain KRICK. The admiral was very disturbed. He said, in effect, "You realize that I have testified to the contrary," and I told him that I hadn't followed his testimony in the newspapers, and that I, therefore, didn't realize what he had done, and he implied that it should be laid before the committee, which has now been done, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Did you tell this incident to anyone else before you recalled it to Admiral Stark?

Captain KRICK. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. RICHARDSON. When this hearing was going on and the newspapers were referring to Admiral Stark's knowledge, had you made any statement to anybody that you had any knowledge with reference to where Admiral Stark was on the 6th?

Captain KRICK. Possibly only conversation in the family, sir. Certainly, to no one about the 6th.

[14762] I just didn't give this thing very much importance in my own mind, sir.

Mr. RICHARDSON. There was no attempt on your part to conceal it?

Captain KRICK. Definitely not.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Or not to advance the testimony?

Captain KRICK. Definitely not. I just had not followed the testimony.

Mr. RICHARDSON. I have no further questions.

The CHAIRMAN. You never, between that night, the 6th of December 1941, and last Saturday night, the 25th of May this year, you never attempted to remind Admiral Stark of the events of that night, which you have detailed here and which you detailed to him last Saturday?

Captain KRICK. Never, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. Any further questions?

Mr. KEEFE. No questions.

Senator LUCAS. One question.

The CHAIRMAN. Senator Lucas.

Senator LUCAS. What was the exact time, Captain, that you saw Admiral Stark first on the evening of the 6th?

Captain KRICK. That I saw him first on the evening of the 6th?

Senator LUCAS. Yes.

[14763] Captain KRICK. I would say in the neighborhood of 7 or 7:15, sir, at dinner. He came in from the office, as I recall, about that time, sir.

Senator LUCAS. Did you have any conversation with him as to where he might have been previous to the time you saw him?

Captain KRICK. No, sir; I did not, sir.

Senator LUCAS. Did he say anything to you at that time about having any conference of any kind or character with the President and Cabinet officers before that dinner took place?

Captain KRICK. No, sir. As I previously testified, the admiral never made any mention of his business at the office in my presence, sir.

Senator LUCAS. So you were with him from about 7 o'clock, then, until about 11 that night?

Captain KRICK. 11 or 11:30; yes, sir.

Senator LUCAS. That night?

Captain KRICK. Yes sir.

Senator LUCAS. Now, when he came away from the telephone after having this purported conversation with the President, was there anything unusual about his appearance or demeanor, as a result of that conference?

Captain KRICK. Absolutely not, sir, he was very much as he always is, apparently not disturbed, there was nothing [14764] unusual.

Senator LUCAS. Did he make any further telephone calls while you were there, to anyone?

Captain KRICK. No, sir; but I would not be in a position to know. I was not in a position to know that, because his telephones were in his study.

Senator LUCAS. I mean after he came down?

Captain KRICK. After he came down, no, sir.

Senator LUCAS. And he stayed with you until you left?

Captain KRICK. Yes. Not to my remembrance did he make any additional calls.

Senator LUCAS. How do you remember this so well, Captain?

Captain KRICK. Because I was a very small fish, and great things were transpiring, and you don't forget that sort of thing. It is not like looking down, when you look up at something.

Senator LUCAS. You were looking up, and the Pearl Harbor disaster struck the following day, and the entire evening was definitely impressed upon you?

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir; and it will be there for a long time to come.

Senator LUCAS. Always will be.

Captain KRICK. Yes, sir.

Senator LUCAS. I am glad we found out where Admiral Stark [14765] was.

The CHAIRMAN. I thought until now I was the only man in the United States who knew where he was on Saturday night, the 6th of December, but I find that I am not. I know where I was and why I was there.

Senator LUCAS. Even though Admiral Stark doesn't know.

The CHAIRMAN. Anything further?

Senator GEORGE. No.

The CHAIRMAN. Mr. Cooper.

The VICE CHAIRMAN. No.

The CHAIRMAN. I believe you stated, Captain, that having served with Admiral Stark as his flag officer, that you were friends, and you and your wife were frequent visitors at their house?

Captain KRICK. That is correct, sir, particularly was that true from 1939 until the admiral left for London in 1942, the spring of 1942, sir.

The CHAIRMAN. I don't think there is anything further. Thank you very much.

(The witness was excused.)

The CHAIRMAN. The committee will adjourn, subject to call.

(Whereupon, at 11:15 a. m., the committee adjourned subject to call of the Chair.)

×

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

HEARINGS

BEFORE THE

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES

SEVENTY-NINTH CONGRESS

FIRST SESSION

PURSUANT TO

S. Con. Res. 27

(79th Congress)

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING AN INVESTIGATION OF THE ATTACK ON PEARL HARBOR ON DECEMBER 7, 1941, AND
EVENTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES RELATING THERETO

PART 12

JOINT COMMITTEE EXHIBITS NOS. 1 THROUGH 6

Printed for the use of the
Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

HEARINGS

BEFORE THE

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
SEVENTY-NINTH CONGRESS

FIRST SESSION

PURSUANT TO

S. Con. Res. 27

(79th Congress)

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING AN INVESTIGATION OF THE ATTACK ON PEARL
HARBOR ON DECEMBER 7, 1941, AND
EVENTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES
RELATING THERETO

PART 12

JOINT COMMITTEE EXHIBITS NOS. 1 THROUGH 6

Printed for the use of the
Joint Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor Attack

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE
WASHINGTON : 1946

JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE INVESTIGATION OF THE PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

ALBEN W. BARKLEY, Senator from Kentucky, Chairman

JERE COOPER, Representative from Tennessee, Vice Chairman

WALTER F. GEORGE , Senator from Georgia	JOHN W. MURPHY , Representative from Pennsylvania
SCOTT W. LUCAS , Senator from Illinois	BERTRAND W. GEARHART , Representative from California
OWEN BREWSTER , Senator from Maine	FRANK B. KEEFE , Representative from Wisconsin
HOMER FERGUSON , Senator from Michigan
J. BAYARD CLARK , Representative from North Carolina

COUNSEL

(Through January 14, 1946)

WILLIAM D. MITCHELL, General Counsel
GERHARD A. GIBELL, Chief Assistant Counsel
JULIUS M. HANNAFORD, Assistant Counsel
JOHN E. MASTEN, Assistant Counsel

(After January 14, 1946)

SETH W. RICHARDSON, General Counsel
SAMUEL H. KAUFMAN, Associate General Counsel
JOHN E. MASTEN, Assistant Counsel
EDWARD P. MORGAN, Assistant Counsel
LOGAN J. LANE, Assistant Counsel

HEARINGS OF JOINT COMMITTEE

Part No.	Pages	Transcript pages	Hearings
1	1- 399	1- 1058	Nov. 15, 16, 17, 19, 20, and 21, 1945.
2	401- 982	1059- 2586	Nov. 23, 24, 26 to 30, Dec. 3 and 4, 1945.
3	983-1583	2587- 4194	Dec. 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, and 13, 1945.
4	1585-2063	4195- 5460	Dec. 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 20, and 21, 1945.
5	2065-2492	5461- 6646	Dec. 31, 1945, and Jan. 2, 3, 4, and 5, 1946.
6	2493-2920	6647- 7888	Jan. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 21, 1946.
7	2921-3378	7889- 9107	Jan. 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 28, and 29, 1946.
8	3379-3927	9108-10517	Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 4, 5, and 6, 1946.
9	3929-4599	10518-12277	Feb. 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, and 14, 1946.
10	4601-5151	12278-13708	Feb. 15, 16, 18, 19, and 20, 1946.
11	5153-5560	13709-14765	Apr. 9 and 11, and May 23 and 31, 1946.

EXHIBITS OF JOINT COMMITTEE

Part No.	Exhibits Nos.
12	1 through 6.
13	7 and 8.
14	9 through 43.
15	44 through 87.
16	88 through 110.
17	111 through 128.
18	129 through 156.
19	157 through 172.
20	173 through 179.
21	180 through 183, and Exhibits-Illustrations.
22 through 25	Roberts Commission Proceedings.
26	Hart Inquiry Proceedings.
27 through 31	Army Pearl Harbor Board Proceedings.
32 through 33	Navy Court of Inquiry Proceedings.
34	Clarke Investigation Proceedings.
35	Clausen Investigation Proceedings.
36 through 38	Hewitt Inquiry Proceedings.
39	Reports of Roberts Commission, Army Pearl Harbor Board, Navy Court of Inquiry and Hewitt Inquiry, with endorse- ments.

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
1-----	23 11-15-45	1	Selection of intercepted diplomatic messages sent and received by the Japanese Government and its foreign establishments between July 1 and Dec. 8, 1941.
2-----	24 11-15-45	254	Selection of intercepted messages sent and received by the Japanese Government and its foreign establishments between Dec. 2, 1940, and Dec. 8, 1941, concerning military installations, ships movements, espionage reports, etc.
3-----	87 11-16-45	317	Navy Department dispatch No. 252203 dated Nov. 25, 1941, directing the routing of trans-Pacific shipping through Torres Straits.
4-----	142 11-16-45	318	Chart showing plotting record of early plane flights Dec. 7, 1941, obtained by Opana Radar Detector Station.
5-----	153 11-16-45	318	Army compilation of documents, tables, photographs, and maps offered by Colonel Thielen as illustrating his narrative statement.
6-----	153 11-16-45	337	Navy compilation of documents, tables, photographs, and maps offered by Admiral Inglis as illustrating his narrative statement.
7-----	172 11-17-45	391	Photostatic copy of Opana Radar Detector Station plot, submitted by Senator Ferguson, identified by Admiral Inglis, previously marked "Exhibit 3-B in evidence" in proceedings before Army Pearl Harbor Board.
8-----	233 11-19-45	391	Material obtained by Army and Navy primarily from Japanese sources, relating to Japanese plans for Pearl Harbor attack. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
8-A-----	1792 12-18-45	413	Report dated Nov. 29, 1945, from General MacArthur, Tokyo, with further reference to Japanese plans for Pearl Harbor attack.
8-B-----	1792 12-18-45	415	Report dated Nov. 29, 1945, from General MacArthur, Tokyo, with further reference to Japanese plans for Pearl Harbor attack.
8-C-----	1792 12-18-45	424	Report dated Dec. 4, 1945, from General MacArthur, Tokyo, with further reference to Japanese plans for Pearl Harbor attack.

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
8-D	2480 1-5-46	425	Report dated Dec. 13, 1945, from General MacArthur, Tokyo, with further reference to Japanese plans for Pearl Harbor attack.
9	256 11-19-45	923	Selection of letters between Admiral H. R. Stark and Admiral J. O. Richardson, from Jan. 18, 1940, to Feb. 10, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
10	279 11-20-45	1000	Letter dated Jan. 24, 1941, from Secretary of Navy to Secretary of War regarding defenses of Pearl Harbor, and reply by Secretary of War, dated Feb. 7, 1941; letter from Adjutant General to Commanding General, Hawaiian Department, dated Feb. 7, 1941, transmitting the above letters with instructions and receipt therefor.
11	319 11-21-45	1006	Memorandum dated Oct. 16, 1940, from Admiral Richardson to Admiral Hart, concerning a proposed blockade of Japan in the event of aggressive action over the reopening of the Burma Road.
12	363 11-21-45	1013	Letters from War Department and Navy Department with enclosures, dated Nov. 7, 1945, and Nov. 14, 1945, respectively, to Congressman Frank B. Keefe, concerning data on amounts requested by the services, amounts approved by the Bureau of the Budget, and contract authorizations for the years 1932 through 1941.
13	387 11-21-45	1019	Study of the air situation in Hawaii dated Aug. 20, 1941, by Maj. Gen. F. L. Martin, Commanding General, Headquarters Hawaiian Air Force, for Commanding General, Army Air Forces, through Commanding General, Hawaiian Department.
14	397 11-21-45	1040	Letter dated Apr. 14, 1941, from Assistant Adjutant General, Hawaiian Department to the Adjutant General, entitled "Air Defense of Pearl Harbor" in reply to letter of Feb. 7, 1941, on this subject (see exhibit No. 10), enclosing Annex No. 7 to Joint Coastal Frontier Defense Plan, Joint Estimate Hawaiian Air Force, and Patrol Wing 2 (Naval Base Defense Air Force), and Field Order No. 1 NS (Naval Security).
15	401 11-23-45	1042	Dispatches from Ambassador Joseph E. Grew, Tokyo, to Department of State, dated Jan. 27, 1941, Nov. 3, 1941, and Nov. 17, 1941; memorandum dated Feb. 1, 1941 from Chief of Naval Operations to Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet, advising him of contents of above message dated Jan. 27, 1941, which reported Japan would make surprise attack on Pearl Harbor in event of trouble with United States.

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

VII

16	401 11-23-45	1061	(a) Memorandum Estimate Concerning Far Eastern Situation, dated Nov. 6, 1941, for the President, by General Marshall and Admiral Stark; (b) Minutes of The Joint Board for Nov. 3, 1941; (c) Memorandum "Far Eastern Situation" dated Nov. 3, 1941, for General Marshall by General Gerow.
16-A	3839 2-6-46	1077	Undated note from President Roosevelt to Secretary Hull, attached to letter dated Oct. 30, 1941, from Secretary Morgenthau to the President, transmitting a message from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.
16-B	4341 2-13-46	1081	Message dated Nov. 7, 1941, from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Churchill, delivered through the Department of State.
17	402 11-23-45	1083	Memorandum "Far Eastern Situation" dated Nov. 27, 1941, for the President, by General Marshall and Admiral Stark.
18	402 11-23-45	1084	Documents relating to proposed " Modus Vivendi ," including Secretary Hull's recommendation dated Nov. 26, 1941, to President Roosevelt. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit).
19	402 11-23-45	1201	Memorandum dated Nov. 29, 1941, by Secretary Hull for the President, and attached draft of a proposed message from the President to Congress, and proposed message from President to Emperor of Japan.
20	402 11-23-45	1226	Message dated Dec. 6, 1941, from President Roosevelt to Emperor of Japan, and related documents, including draft of proposed message dated Oct. 17, 1941.
21	402 11-23-45	1246	Two dispatches dated Dec. 6, 1941, from Ambassador Winant, London, to State Department; memorandum of conversation dated Nov. 30, 1941, between Secretary Hull and British Ambassador, with attached memorandum; memorandum handed to Mr. Hornbeck by Netherlands Minister on Nov. 21, 1941; dispatch from Secretary of State to United States Consul, Manila, P. I., dated Nov. 29, 1941. All documents concern intelligence information relating to Japanese military and naval units in the Far East.
22	458 11-23-45	1252	(a) British draft, dated Aug. 10, 1941, of proposed parallel communications to Japanese Government; (b) Two messages from the President (at Atlantic Conference) to Secretary Hull, Nos. 121645 and 160115; (c) Draft, dated Aug. 15, 1941 (not used), of proposed communication to the Japanese Ambassador brought to State Department by Sumner Welles following (Atlantic) conference between the President and British Prime Minister.
22-A	1694 12-15-45 2065 12-31-45	1262	Revised draft (not used), dated Aug. 16, 1941, of draft dated Aug. 15, 1941 ((c) above), of proposed statement to the Japanese Ambassador, prepared by Sumner Welles. (See p. 556, vol. II, Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan 1931-1941, Joint Committee Exhibit No. 29, for text of statement made to Japanese Ambassador by the President on Aug. 17, 1941.)

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
22-B	1783 12-18-45	1269	Memorandum, dated Aug. 10, 1941, prepared by Sumner Wells of his conversations that date at the Atlantic Conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Sir Alexander Cadogan, concerning proposed parallel action with reference to Japan.
22-C	1783 12-18-45	1275	Memorandum, dated Aug. 11, 1941, prepared by Sumner Wells, of conversations that date at the Atlantic Conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, attended by Welles, Sir Alexander Cadogan, and Harry Hopkins concerning "British-American Cooperation".
22-D	1783 12-18-45	1292	Memorandum, dated Aug. 11, 1941, of conversation between Sumner Wells and Sir Alexander Cadogan, concerning "British-American Cooperation" at the Atlantic Conference, and Welles' subsequent conversation with the President.
23	476 11-24-45	1300	Message, dated Nov. 26, 1941, from Prime Minister Churchill to President Roosevelt, transmitted by Ambassador Winant.
24	476 11-24-45	1300	Message, dated Nov. 30, 1941, from Prime Minister Churchill to President Roosevelt, transmitted by Ambassador Winant.
25	574 11-26-45	1301	Dispatch, dated Dec. 1, 1941, from Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, to Secretary of State, reporting reaction in Japan to the Secretary's proposal of Nov. 26, 1941 (the so-called Ten-Point Note). See pp. 766 to 770, vol. II, Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan 1931-1941, for proposal dated Nov. 26, 1941, to the Japanese Government.
26	634 11-27-45	1303	Dispatch, dated Sept. 24, 1940, from Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, to Department of State concerning general policy toward Japan (so-called "green light" dispatch).
27	670 11-27-45	1315	"Peace and War, United States Foreign Policy, 1931-1941", Introduction (pamphlet edition, 1942), Department of State Publication 1853.
28	670 11-27-45	1315	"Peace and War, United States Foreign Policy, 1931-1941", Introduction and Documents (cloth edition, 1943), Department of State Publication 1883.
29	670 11-27-45	1315	"Foreign Relations of the United States, Japan, 1931-1941", vols. I and II (1943), Department of State Publication 2008.
30	670 11-27-45	1315	"Ten Years in Japan", by Joseph C. Grew, Simon and Schuster (1944).

31	737 11-28-45	1316	Six dispatches bearing various dates from April 4 to Dec. 2, 1941, from United States diplomatic officials in foreign countries reporting to the Department of State inquiries and comments of Japanese representatives in those countries concerning possible break in United States-Japanese relations.
32	778 11-29-45	1326	Selection of messages between War Department and Hawaiian Department from July 8 to Dec. 7, 1941. Included are certain messages sent by the War Department to the Western Defense Command, to General MacArthur in the Philippines, and to Commanding General, Panama, as well as their replies. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
33	778 11-29-45	1334	Selection of Military Intelligence Estimates prepared by G-2, War Department, Washington, D. C., covering period July 7 to Dec. 6, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
33-A	2092 12-31-45	1385	Secretary of War's copy of memorandum, dated Oct. 2, 1941, from Col. Hayes A. Kroner to the Chief of Staff, concerning "Japanese-American Relations", bearing note in handwriting of Secretary Stimson.
34	825 11-30-45	1389	Memorandum, dated Oct. 18, 1941, by Brig. Gen. L. T. Gerow, for Chief of Staff, concerning "Resignation of Japanese Cabinet" and proposed message to Army outpost commanders.
35	828 11-30-45	1390	Memorandum, dated Jan. 31, 1942, prepared by Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, concerning "Warnings Sent to Hawaii Prior to Dec. 7, 1941", with enclosures.
36	830 11-30-45	1393	Photostatic copy of draft of General Marshall's message of Nov. 27, 1941, to General Short, containing phrase "hostile action possible at any moment", which draft contains a sentence that did not appear in the message as transmitted to General Short. (See Exhibit No. 32 for message sent.)
37	839 11-30-45	1395	Selection of dispatches sent and received by the Navy Department entitled "Basic Exhibit of Dispatches". (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
38	841 11-30-45	1409	Paraphrase of message, dated Dec. 3, 1941, from General Miles to Military Attaché, Tokyo, concerning the handling of his codes and secret documents.
39	928 12-4-45	1409	Memoranda for the record on events of Dec. 7, 1941, by Brig. Gen. L. T. Gerow, Acting Assistant Chief of Staff; Col. W. B. Smith, Secretary, General Staff; Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, Acting Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2; Col. J. R. Deane, Secretary, General Staff.
40	954 12-4-45	1412	Dispatch, dated Dec. 7, 1941, from CinCAF to OPNAV (979645) concerning report of promised armed support to British under certain conditions.
41	988 12-5-45	1413	Information from documentary evidence on interception, decoding, and translating of Japanese messages Nos. 901, 902, 907, 910 (so-called pilot message, 14 part message, 1 o'clock delivery message, and code destruction message).

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
42-----	990 12-5-45	1416	Copy of Army Regulation No. 10-15, dated Aug. 18, 1936, with amendments up to Dec. 7, 1941, entitled "General Staff—Organization and Duties".
43-----	997 12-5-45	1422	Instructions dated Jan. 27, 1941, of Chief of Naval Operations and Chief of Staff concerning staff conversations to be held with representatives of British Commonwealth.
44-----	1001 12-5-45	1423	Compilation entitled "Copies of Defense Plans", which contains extracts from various basic Army and Navy plans, to illustrate defensive measures contemplated against air attack. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
45-----	1019 12-5-45	1471	Memorandum, dated Nov. 27, 1941, by Brig. Gen. L. T. Gerow, for the Chief of Staff, concerning "Far Eastern Situation" and warning messages to outpost commanders.
46-----	1027 12-5-45	1472	Photostatic copies of replies by General MacArthur and General Short to warning messages of Nov. 27, 1941, with routing slip.
47-----	1041 12-5-45	1476	Supplementary documents concerning the Nov. 5, 1941 Marshall-Stark memorandum for the President (see Exhibit No. 16), including dispatch dated Nov. 3, 1941, from Ambassador Gauss to State Department; message dated Nov. 2, 1941, from Chiang Kai-Shek to President Roosevelt; memorandum for Director of Naval Intelligence concerning "Dispatch from Alusna, Chungking, 300850"; dispatch 300850 from Alusna, Chungking, to OPNAV dated Oct. 30, 1941, and another same date, same correspondents; message dated Oct. 28, 1941, from General Magruder, Chungking, to War Department.
48-----	1044 12-5-45	1481	Two memoranda dated Nov. 17, 1941, by Brig. General Gerow, for the Chief of Staff, concerning "Method of Coordination of Command in Coastal Frontiers", and letter dated Dec. 20, 1941, to Gen. Delos C. Emmons, from General Marshall, concerning unity of command in Hawaii.
48-A-----	2093 12-31-45	1484	Memorandum, dated Dec. 5, 1941, from General Marshall for General Gerow, concerning coordination of command.
49-----	1053 12-6-45	1485	Report dated Mar. 27, 1941, of United States-British Staff conversations (ABC-1).
50-----	1053 12-6-45	1551	Report of American-Dutch-British Staff conversations at Singapore, dated Apr. 27, 1941 (A. D. B.).

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

XI

51	1053 12-6-45	1585	Report entitled "Joint Canadian-United States Basic Defense Plan No. 2" (ABC-22).
52	1053 12-6-45	1593	Compilation of communications between the War Department and General Herron at Hawaii, concerning 1940 alert of Hawaiian Department. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
53	1063 12-6-45	1600	Compilation of correspondence between General Marshall and General Short from Feb. 7 to Oct. 28, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
54	1067 12-6-45	1627	"Notes on General Council Meeting", Feb. 19, 1941, concerning "Defense Objectives" (revised Feb. 13, 1941).
55	1067 12-6-45	1628	Minutes of "Conference in the Office of the Chief of Staff", on Feb. 25, 1941, at which air defense of Pearl Harbor was discussed.
56	1076 12-6-45	1630	Memorandum, dated May 13, 1941, concerning "Dispersion and Protection of Aircraft, Hawaiian Department" by Brig. Gen. Harry J. Malony, for the Chief of Staff.
57	1077 12-6-45	1631	Minutes of "Conferences in the Office of the Secretary of War, May 19, 1941", concerning use of planes in proposed expedition against Martinique, referring to supply of B-17 bombers that were not dispatched to Hawaii.
58	1088 12-6-45	1632	List of President's appointments with military representatives from Oct. 1 to Dec. 7, 1941; telephone calls through White House switchboard on Dec. 6 and 7, 1941; White House dinner guests on Dec. 6, 1941; list of President's appointments on Dec. 6 and 7, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
59	1092 12-6-45	1635	General Marshall's aide memoire to the President concerning "Defense of Hawaii".
60	1094 12-6-45	1636	General Marshall's memorandum for the President concerning "Ground Forces".
61	1112 12-7-45	1640	Photostatic copy of Dec. 7, 1941, warning sent by General Marshall to theater commanders.
62	1284 12-10-45	1641	Minutes of The Joint Board meeting, Nov. 26, 1941, at which the situation in the Pacific was discussed.
63	1345 12-11-45	1644	Top Secret Report, Army Pearl Harbor Board, and Top Secret Memorandum of Judge Advocate General in connection therewith.

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
64-----	1544 12-13-45	1645	Tentative draft of Standing Operating Procedure, Hawaiian Department, dated July 14, 1941.
65-----	1541 12-13-45	1677	Memorandum, dated July 3, 1941, from the Chief of Naval Operations and the Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, to Special Navy and Army Observers, London, instructing them to advise British that United States disapproves A. D. B. Report for reasons stated.
66-----	1642 12-15-45	1680	Dispatch, dated Dec. 6, 1941 (961255), from CinCAF to OPNAV, and memorandum dated Dec. 6, 1941, by R. E. Schuirmann, for the State Department, relating contents of the dispatch which reported the sighting of Japanese convoys in Far Eastern waters.
67-----	1642 12-15-45	1682	Intercepted messages, dated Aug. 17, 1941, from Japanese Ambassador Nomura to the Japanese Government, repeating the material handed him that date by President Roosevelt after the President's return from the Atlantic Conference (so-called "parallel action message").
68-----	1675 12-15-45	1689	Log of U. S. S. Boise for period Nov. 25 to Dec. 7, 1941, inclusive, and map showing position of the ship on certain dates.
69-----	1677 12-15-45	1715	Table showing scheduled inspections of ships at Pearl Harbor during October, November and December 1941.
70-----	1695 12-15-45	1716	Message, dated Aug. 18, 1941, from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister Churchill, concerning the President's statements to the Japanese Ambassador on Aug. 17, 1941.
71-----	1696 12-15-45	1719	Message, dated Aug. 25, 1941, from State Department to Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, quoting an extract from radio address of Prime Minister Churchill on Aug. 24, 1941. The extract refers to Japanese policies.
72-----	1696 12-15-45	1721	Dispatch dated Aug. 1, 1941, from State Department to Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, and the Ambassador's reply dated Aug. 2, 1941; both concerning the report of Japanese aggression against Thailand; digest of Secretary of State's news conference on Aug. 6, 1941, when he was questioned concerning reports of Japanese aggression against Thailand.
73-----	1700 12-15-45	1727	Three State Department drafts, all dated Oct. 16, 1941, of a proposed message from the President to the Emperor of Japan, and a memorandum expressing views of officers in the Far Eastern Division of State Department on the matter. No message was sent to the Emperor at that time (fall of the Konoye cabinet in Japan).

74-----	1703 12-15-45	1735	Three messages from State Department to Far Eastern offices, advising American citizens to leave the Orient, dated Oct. 6, 1940, Feb. 11, 1941, and Nov. 19, 1941.
74-A-----	2768 1-19-46	1741	Memorandum, dated Dec. 4, 1941, from Far Eastern Affairs Division officers to the Secretary of State concerning British suggestion on exchange of nationals with Japanese Government in event of hostilities.
75-----	1705 12-15-45	1744	Three messages, all dated Nov. 26, 1941, from Secretary Hull to Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, explaining the delivery of the so-called "Ten Point Note" on that date to the Japanese Ambassadors and their oral comments upon its receipt, and furnishing Ambassador Grew with the text of the note.
76-----	1709 11-15-45	1754	Translation of notes regarding discussion between Adolf Hitler, Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, State Minister Meissner, and Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoaka in Berlin, Apr. 4, 1941, as introduced at the Nuremberg trials on Nov. 23, 1945.
77-----	1712 12-15-45	1757	Message, dated Aug. 31, 1940, from United States Embassy, Peiping, China, to State Department presenting summary of situation in Japan and Manchuria as prepared by A. T. Steele, correspondent for Chicago Daily News, which summary is referred to in Ambassador Grew's message dated Sept. 12, 1940 (Joint Committee Exhibit No. 26), his so-called "green light" dispatch.
78-----	1724 12-17-45	1768	Navy dispatches concerning "Kra Peninsula Alert (1941)". (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
79-----	1724 12-17-45	1770	Navy dispatches concerning Netherlands East Indies Alert (1941). (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
80-----	1724 12-17-45	1774	Office of Naval Intelligence "Fortnightly Summary of Current National Situations" dated Nov. 1, Nov. 15, and Dec. 1, 1941.
81-----	1724 12-17-45	1837	Selection of Office of Naval Intelligence periodic estimates and memoranda dated from Apr. 17 to Dec. 6, 1941.
82-----	1728 12-17-45	1864	Navy Regulations concerning Duties of Intelligence Division (OP-16).
83-----	1754 12-17-45	1866	Message, dated Dec. 3, 1941 (#31850), from OPNAV to CinCAF, CinPAC, COM 14, and COM 16, advising them of instructions Japanese sent on Dec. 2, 1941, to certain consular and diplomatic posts to destroy most of their codes and secret documents.
84-----	1775 12-17-45	1867	Transcript of telephone call on Dec. 3, 1941, between Japanese citizen in Honolulu and person in Tokyo (so-called "Mori telephone call").

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
85	1799 12-18-45	1870	Selection of Navy Department memoranda reporting Japanese fleet locations during period Nov. 4 through Dec. 3, 1941.
86	1825 12-18-45	1901	Tabulation showing Naval combatant strength of the Axis and Allied Powers as of May 1, 1941, and Dec. 7, 1941, in both Atlantic and Pacific Ocean areas.
87	1889 12-19-45	1907	Memorandum, dated Dec. 15, 1945, prepared by Maj. Gen. George V. Strong, concerning "Alert of Panama and Hawaiian Departments on June 17, 1940", with attached documents referred to therein.
88	1912 12-19-45	1937	Sections of document "Organization of the Office of Naval Operations, Oct. 23, 1940", concerning duties of "War Plans Division (OP-12)".
89	1938 12-20-45	1937	Memorandum prepared by Gen. L. T. Gerow, regarding the respective responsibilities of the Army and Navy "For Defense Against Air Attack in Hawaii".
90	2066 12-31-45	1941	Dispatch dated Dec. 18, 1941, from the State Department to the American Legation, Bern, Switzerland, concerning Swiss Government's offer to represent American interest in Japanese-occupied territories, and instructions for closing of diplomatic stations under certain emergencies.
91	2067 12-31-45	1950	Dispatches dated Dec. 15, 1941 (2), Feb. 16, 1942, and Mar. 25, 1942, from Ambassador Grew, Tokyo, to State Department, relating action taken in Tokyo to destroy codes, ciphers, and confidential papers and records after outbreak of hostilities.
92	2068 12-31-45	1960	Photostatic copy of pp. 591 to 618, vol. 377, Official Reports of the Parliamentary Debates, House of Commons, containing statement by Prime Minister Churchill before the House of Commons on Jan. 27, 1942.
93	2075 12-31-45	1974	Photostatic copy of p. 2, G-2 Record Section Register of Incoming Cables on Dec. 5, 1941.
94	2078 12-31-45	1975	3 intercepted messages dated Nov. 26, 1941, from Ambassador Nomura to the Japanese Government, transmitting the so-called "Ten Point Note" which was handed to the Japanese Ambassador by Secretary Hull on that date.
95	2091 12-31-45	1987	Memoranda dated July 12, 1940, by Stanley K. Hornbeck, concerning his conversation with Admiral J. O. Richardson on July 11, 1940, and a handwritten note by Admiral H. R. Stark.

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

XV

96	1989	2091 12-31-45	Memorandum dated July 16, 1940, and study "Reflections on Certain Features of the Far Eastern Situation and certain problems of United States Far Eastern Policy, July 4, 1940", attributed to Stanley K. Hornbeck.
97	2007	2091 12-31-45	Memorandum dated Sept. 21, 1940, by Stanley K. Hornbeck, for Under Secretary Sumner Welles, concerning a Navy proposal for execution of a fleet problem involving simulated attack on the Panama Canal during January 1941, and three related memoranda.
98	2014	2093 12-31-45	Memorandum dated Nov. 26, 1941, by Secretary Stimson for the President concerning "Japanese Convoy Movement Toward Indo-China".
99	2015	2094 12-31-45	Memorandum dated Sept. 26, 1944, prepared by J. W. Ballantine and M. M. Hamilton, relating their recollection of the delivery of intercepted Japanese messages to Secretary Hull's office by Lieutenant Commander Kramer on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941.
100	2016	2095 12-31-45	Transcript of Interrogation on Dec. 8, 1941, of (Japanese) Prisoner of War No. 1, by Naval Intelligence officers at Honolulu, statement by the prisoner, and memorandum concerning "Investigation of Japanese Submarine Aground in Waimanalo Bay".
101	2023	2095 12-31-45	Log of U. S. S. Enterprise from Nov. 24 to Dec. 16, 1941, inclusive.
102	2107	2095 12-31-45	Log of U. S. S. Lexington from Dec. 5 to Dec. 8, 1941, inclusive.
103	2118	2095 12-31-45	"Report of Action With Japanese Air Force at Oahu, T. H., Dec. 7, 1941", by Commander, Enterprise Air Group to his Commanding Officer, dated Dec. 15, 1941.
104	2122	2095 12-31-45	"U. S. S. Lexington War Diary" for period Dec. 7 to Dec. 25, 1941, inclusive.
105	2140	2096 12-31-45	Certain estimates of Japanese Situation and Intentions as made by British agencies and relayed to this Government during period from Oct. 21, to Nov. 22, 1941.
106	2144	2096 12-31-45	Compilation of letters between Admiral H. R. Stark and Admiral H. E. Kimmel from Jan. 13 to Dec. 12, 1941.
107	2258	2349 1-4-46	"Appendix to Narrative Statement of Evidence at Pearl Harbor Investigations", prepared by Navy Department. It contains endorsements by Secretary James Forrestal, Judge Advocate General, Admiral T. L. Gatch, and Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Ernest J. King, to the Hewitt Report, and endorsements by the same officials to the Report of the Navy Court of Inquiry's Findings of Fact.

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
107-A	2479 1-5-46	2393	"The Findings, Conclusions and Action by the Secretary of the Navy", including the Fourth Endorsement by Secretary Forrestal to the Report of the Navy Court of Inquiry, and a summary of an offer by the Navy Department of a General Court Martial for Rear Adm. H. E. Kimmel.
108	2364 1-4-46	2432	Memorandum, dated Nov. 2, 1944, by Stanley K. Hornbeck attached to his memorandum of Feb. 28, 1944, which related to an attached third memorandum by Mr. Hornbeck dated Nov. 27, 1941, entitled "Problem of Far Eastern Relations. Estimate of situation and certain probabilities", described by him as "a memorandum regarding the contents of which there have been leaks and misrepresentation".
109	2476 1-5-46	2444	Guide to Symbols, and series of maps submitted by Admiral R. N. Turner, showing the location of ships Dec. 1 to 6, inclusive, 1941.
110	2477 1-5-46	2444	Compilation of letters from Admiral H. R. Stark to Admiral T. C. Hart, from Feb. 9, 1940, to Nov. 8, 1941.
111	2495 1-15-46	2457	Letter dated Dec. 5, 1941, from President Roosevelt to Mr. Wendell Willkie, concerning proposal from Australian Minister for Mr. Willkie to make a trip to Australia, together with related correspondence and memoranda.
112	2496 1-15-46	2458	Dispatches and other material referred to in footnotes to Admiral Kimmel's prepared statement before the Joint Committee. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
113	2558 1-16-46	2502	Letter, dated Aug. 13, 1941, from Admiral Kimmel to Pacific Fleet Task Force Commanders, concerning Employment Schedules, U. S. Pacific Fleet, Second Quarter, Fiscal Year 1942, and attached Employment Schedules for Task Forces 1, 2, and 3.
113-A	2807 1-19-46	2532	Letter, dated Feb. 21, 1941, from Admiral Kimmel to Pacific Fleet Commanders, concerning "Battle Organization and Condition Watches".
113-B	2807 1-19-46	2534	Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter 14CL-41, dated Oct. 31, 1941, concerning "Task Forces—Organization and Missions".
113-C	3449 1-31-46	2538	(a) Revised Employment Schedules of Task Force 9, submitted pursuant to Pacific Fleet Confidential Letter 14CL-41, together with documents which approve same; (b) Watch and Duty Schedules for Patrol Wing 2 (December 1941).

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

XVII

114	2558 1-16-46	2568	WPPac-46, and letters from Admiral Kimmel to his commanders, dated July 21 and July 25, 1941, promulgating WPPac-46, which is U. S. Pacific Fleet Operating Plan—Rainbow Five (Navy Plan O-1, Rainbow 5);
115	2558 1-16-46	2601	Communications Intelligence Summaries concerning location of Japanese Fleet Units: (a) Fourteenth Naval District Summaries, dated Nov. 1 to Dec. 6, 1941; (b) Pacific Fleet Intelligence Officer Reports dated Oct. 27 to Dec. 2, 1941; (c) Pacific Fleet Intelligence Memorandum dated Dec. 1, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
115-A	3449 1-31-46	2672	Fourteenth Naval District "Communication Intelligence Summaries of Dec. 9 and 10, 1941, showing assumed Composition of Japanese Striking Force".
115-B	3450 1-31-46	2677	Pacific Fleet Intelligence Bulletin No. 45-41, dated Nov. 27, 1941.
116	2558 1-16-46	2700	Selection of correspondence of Admiral H. R. Stark, Admiral H. E. Kimmel, and others from Feb. 11, 1941, to Oct. 3, 1941, concerning anti-torpedo baffles for protection of ships in harbor against torpedo plane attacks.
117	2559 1-16-46	2707	Selection of Army and Navy correspondence from Jan. 16, to Feb. 14, 1941, concerning the air defenses of the Hawaiian Islands.
117-A	5015 2-20-46	2713	Letter dated Feb. 17, 1941, concerning "Maximum Readiness of Aircraft in Hawaiian Area," from Gen. W. C. Short to his Commanders.
118	2559 1-16-46	2714	Memoranda, dated Nov. 30 and Dec. 5, 1941, of Admiral Kimmel, entitled "Steps to be Taken in Case of American-Japanese War within Next Twenty-Four Hours".
119	2559 1-16-46	2716	Radio Log of Bishop's Point Radio Station, Oahu, T. H., Dec. 7, 1941.
120	2559 1-16-46	2721	(a) Memorandum dated Dec. 19, 1941, by Admiral Bellinger for Admiral Kimmel concerning "Availability and Disposition of Patrol Planes on morning of Dec. 7, 1941"; (b) Compilation of dates on which Pearl Harbor Air Raid drills were held during 1941; (c) Report of Army-Navy Board dated Oct. 31, 1941, convened to prepare recommendations covering the allocation of aircraft operating areas, Hawaiian area.
121	2561 1-16-46	2727	Statement by Admiral H. E. Kimmel and copies of correspondence submitted by him, concerning the circumstances of his retirement by the Navy Department, and related matters.
122	2588 1-16-46	2735	Selected correspondence in June and August 1941 of Admiral H. E. Kimmel, Admiral C. C. Bloch, and Gen. W. C. Short concerning aircraft warning facilities for the Hawaiian Department.

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
123-----	2588 1-16-46	2736	Selection of correspondence, memoranda, and dispatches concerning the proposed construction of a combined operating center for Army and Navy in Hawaii from Oct. 29, 1941, to Jan. 7, 1942.
123-A	5015 2-20-46	2743	Additional selection of correspondence and memoranda concerning Joint Operations Centers for Army and Navy from Oct. 17, 1941, to Jan. 10, 1942. (See also Exhibit No. 123.)
124-----	2674 1-17-46	2749	Intercepted Japanese diplomatic messages between Washington and Tokyo, dated Aug. 18 to Aug. 29, 1941, inclusive, concerning United States-Japanese negotiations and the United States note to Japan dated Aug. 17, 1941. These intercepted messages are additional to those published in Joint Committee Exhibit No. 1.
125-----	2678 1-17-46	2801	Log of the U. S. S. Wright from Nov. 27 to Dec. 7, 1941, inclusive, and chart of locations of the ship on Nov. 27 and Dec. 7, 1941.
126-----	2767 1-19-46	2832	(a) Navy Department General Order No. 143, dated Feb. 3, 1941, entitled "Organization of the Naval Forces of the United States"; (b) excerpts from Navy Regulations, setting forth the general duties of a Commander in Chief; (c) Pacific Fleet Staff Instructions (1941), dated July 14, 1941.
127-----	2768 1-19-46	2867	Correspondence, memoranda and dispatches concerning the aircraft situation in Hawaii after Dec. 7, 1941. (See also Exhibit No. 112, p. 77, for letter dated Jan. 7, 1942, by Admiral Nimitz on same subject.)
128-----	2768 1-19-46	2870	Selected correspondence relating to the proposed prosecution of Japanese consular agents in Hawaii, recommended by United States Attorney in Hawaii by letter dated June 4, 1941.
129-----	2842 1-19-46	2875	Navy Basic War Plan—Rainbow No. 5 (WPL-46), and letter dated May 26, 1941, from Admiral H. R. Stark promulgating the plan.
130-----	2879 1-21-46	2941	Selection of memoranda and dispatches contained in files of State Department concerning Japanese and United States air reconnaissance in Pacific prior to Dec. 7, 1941, including dispatch dated Nov. 29, 1941, from Ambassador Grew to State Department forwarding note from Japanese Government protesting reported flight of United States planes over Taiwan Nov. 20, 1941, and State Department's reply to Ambassador Grew.
131-----	2892 1-21-46	2943	Testimony of Admiral H. E. Kimmel before the Roberts Commission, Navy Court of Inquiry, and Army Pearl Harbor Board.

132	2017 1-21-46	2943	Selected items obtained by War Department from General MacArthur's Headquarters, Tokyo (see pp. 7874-7877, Joint Committee Transcript): (a) Memorandum "Report on Conference between Foreign Affairs Minister Togo and the American Ambassador, 7:30 a. m., Dec. 8, 1941"; (b) Memorandum "Gist of Conference between Foreign Affairs Minister Togo and the British Ambassador, 8:00 a. m., Dec. 8, 1941"; (c) Memorandum written by one Matsumoto, Head of Treaty Bureau, Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs, "On the Declaration of War against the United States and Great Britain—Meeting of Privy Council, Dec. 8, 1941."
132-A	5137 2-20-46	2946	Additional selected items obtained by War Department from General MacArthur's Headquarters, Tokyo (see pp. 13662-13665 Joint Committee Transcript): (a) Diplomatic messages between Tokyo and Washington which had not been completely intercepted, being Washington to Tokyo Nos. 881, 941, and Tokyo Circular Nos. 2288, 2313 and 2193; (b) Memoranda of three conversations on Aug. 19, 29 and 30, 1941, between German Ambassador Ott and Japanese Foreign Minister Toyoda and Vice-Minister Aman; (c) Memoranda dated Sept. 6 and 13, 1941, concerning basic conditions for a peace settlement between Japan and China; (d) Memorandum dated Nov. 26, 1941, summary of the progress of Japanese-American negotiations.
133	2965 1-23-46	2953	Statement by Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, of events and conditions leading up to the Japanese attacks Dec. 7, 1941, introduced at his request. Identical with exhibit he introduced before Roberts Commission and Army Pearl Harbor Board.
134	2965 1-23-46	3124	Dispatch dated Nov. 29, 1941, from War Department to Gen. W. C. Short, concerning reinforcement of advance Pacific bases, and five charts and Bureau of the Census publication on the Population characteristics of Hawaii used by General Short in his prepared statement before the Joint Committee.
135	2965 1-23-46	3171	Compiled summary of evidence concerning time of sending and receipt of War Department warning messages of Nov. 27-28, 1941, and replies thereto, together with photostatic copies of the messages.
136	2966 1-23-46	3187	Memorandum dated Nov. 14, 1941, by Lt. Col. C. A. Powell, Signal Officer, Hawaiian Department, concerning operation of radar equipment during recent military exercises, and attached transmitting memorandum for Special Assistant to Secretary of War.
137	2966 1-23-46	3187	Four original reports concerning training and operations time schedules of radar stations, Hawaiian Department, from Nov. 27 to Dec. 7, 1941, inclusive, and related material.
138	2976 1-23-46	3195	Photostatic copy of memorandum bearing approval of Gen. W. C. Short of report prepared by Gen. F. L. Martin dated Aug. 20, 1941, entitled "Study of the Air Situation in Hawaii". (See Joint Committee Exhibit No. 13.)

INDEX OF EXHIBITS

139	3006 1-23-46	3196	Two reports dated Oct. 17 and 25, 1941, entitled "G-2 Estimate of International (Japanese) Situation" by Lt. Col. G. W. Bicknell, Assistant G-2, Hawaiian Department.
140	3188 1-26-46	3203	Selection of memoranda by the Secretary of War, Chief of Staff, Judge Advocate General, including proposed charges against Maj. Gen. W. C. Short, retired, prepared by the office of the Judge Advocate General, and related material.
141	3311 1-28-46	3254	File of Capt. E. M. Zacharias, U. S. Navy, entitled "Notes, Correspondence, and Reports Relating to Pearl Harbor and Events Leading Up to It".
142	3324 1-29-46	3302	Compilation of Material Relating to so-called "Winds" code. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
142-A	3324 1-29-46	3318	(a) Memorandum dated Dec. 5, 1941, concerning interception by Portland F. C. C. station of Japanese Weather Broadcast; (b) Federal Communications Commission, Radio Intelligence Division, Night Watch Log for Nov. 24 to Dec. 8, 1941, inclusive.
142-B	3674 2-4-46	3321	Additional material concerning translation of Circular No. 2494, from Tokyo, dated Dec. 7, 1941 (see p. 251, Exhibit No. 1), subsequent to the original translation.
142-C	3741 2-5-46	3322	Letter dated Feb. 4, 1946, from State Department to Committee Counsel enclosing paraphrases of three messages two from London dated Dec. 15, 1945 and Jan. 31, 1946, and one from The Hague, dated Jan. 26, 1946, regarding the so-called "winds" messages, indicating no interception by the British or Dutch Governments of a "winds execute" message prior to Dec. 8, 1941.
142-D	3780 2-5-46	3323	Material from Hawaiian office, Federal Communications Commission, concerning the so-called "winds" code.
143	3929 2-7-46	3332	Proceedings of the Roberts Commission appointed Dec. 18, 1942, by the President. (See Parts Nos. 22 through 25.)
144	3929 2-7-46	3332	Proceedings of the Inquiry conducted by Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. Navy, retired, pursuant to precept dated Feb. 12, 1944, of the Secretary of the Navy. (See Part No. 26.)
145	3929 2-7-46	3332	Proceedings of the Army Pearl Harbor Board, convened by the Secretary of War pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 339, 78th Cong., approved June 13, 1944. (See Parts Nos. 27 through 31.)

146	3929 2-7-46	3332	Proceedings of the Navy Court of Inquiry, convened by the Secretary of the Navy pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 339, 78th Cong., approved June 13, 1944. (See Parts Nos. 32 and 33.)
147	3929 2-7-47	3332	Proceedings of Investigation conducted by Col. Carter W. Clarke, U. S. Army, Sept. 14, 15, and 16, 1944, and continued from July 13 to Aug. 4, 1945. (See Part No. 34.)
148	3929 2-7-46	3332	Report of Investigation during the period Nov. 23, 1944, to Sept. 12, 1945, conducted by Lt. Col. Henry C. Clausen, A. U. S., for the Secretary of War, and supplementary to the proceedings of the Army Pearl Harbor Board. (See Part No. 35.)
149	3929 2-7-46	3332	Proceedings of the inquiry conducted by Admiral Henry Kent Hewitt, U. S. N., pursuant to precept dated May 2, 1945, of the Secretary of the Navy, and supplementary to the proceedings of the Navy Court of Inquiry. (See Parts Nos. 36 through 38.)
150	4083 2-8-46	3333	Letter dated Mar. 18, 1944, from Admiral H. E. Kimmel, retired, to Admiral W. E. Halsey, suggesting questions for Comdr. A. D. Kramer concerning the so-called "winds" message.
151	4421 2-13-46	3335	Six memoranda prepared by Capt. L. F. Safford, U. S. Navy, during May, June, and July, 1945 in connection with the inquiry conducted by Admiral H. K. Hewitt, concerning intercepted Japanese messages. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
152	4794 2-18-46	3351	Memorandum dated Dec. 23, 1941, "General Observations of Damage by Projectiles in the City of Honolulu on Dec. 7, 1941", prepared by employees of the Honolulu Board of Water Supply, and a map of the city of Honolulu, T. H., showing points struck by projectiles, Dec. 7, 1941.
153	5009 2-19-46	3353	Prepared statement dated Dec. 1, 1945 entitled "The War Record of Civilian and Industrial Hawaii", with attached Exhibits, submitted to the Joint Committee by the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association.
154	5013 2-20-46	3430	Compilation of selected correspondence between Gen. H. H. Arnold and Gen. F. I. Martin from Aug. 15 to Nov. 27, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
155	5068 2-20-46	3435	Original Radar Plot of Detector Station OPANA, Dec. 7, 1941.
156	5122 2-20-46	3436	Memorandum dated June 21, 1941 prepared by Col. Moses W. Pettigrew concerning "Final Recommendations Far Eastern Intelligence Organization".
157	5201 4-11-46	3441	Reports, findings, and conclusions of Roberts Commission, Army Pearl Harbor Board, Navy Court of Inquiry and Hewitt Inquiry, with endorsements. (See Part No. 39.)

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date introduced	Exhibits page No.	Description
158-----	5201 4-11-46	3441	Compilation of selected documents obtained from State Department files relating to United States-British Conversations concerning the Japanese situation. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
159-----	5201 4-11-46	3488	Compilation of selected material obtained from State Department files relating to United States-Chinese Conversations concerning the Japanese situation. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
160-----	5240 4-11-46	3502	Transcript of remarks of the President on the occasion of the meeting of his cabinet at 8:30 (p. m.) and continuing at 9 o'clock with legislative leaders, on Dec. 7, 1941.
161-----	5241 4-11-46	3508	Drafts of Secretary Knox and Secretary Stimson of a proposed message for the President to deliver to Congress on the state of relations with the Japanese Government. (See Joint Committee Exhibit No. 19 for final draft by Secretary Hull.)
161-A-----	5464 5-23-46	3520	Draft of a proposed message to Congress as prepared in the State Department, which contains suggestions made in the memoranda by Secretary Stimson and Secretary Knox, as shown in exhibit No. 161.
162-----	5269 4-11-46	3534	Log of the Watch Officer, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, from 1145, Dec. 6, 1941, to 2000, Dec. 7, 1941.
162-A-----	5464 5-23-46	3543	Naval communications referred to by serial numbers in Log of the Watch Officer, as shown in exhibit No. 162.
163-----	5292 4-11-46	3557	Log of the U. S. S. Helena from Nov. 26 to Dec. 7, 1941, inclusive.
164-----	5292 4-11-46	3593	Reports made by Gen. W. C. Short and his subordinate officers to the War Department concerning the attack on Oahu, T. H., Dec. 7, 1941.
165-----	5292 4-11-46	3643	Copy of a partial translation of a document relating to a Feb. 23, 1941, conference between German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and Japanese Ambassador Oshima.
166-----	5468 5-23-46	3648	State Department dispatch No. 5682 dated Dec. 5, 1941, to the American Embassy in London. (This dispatch is mentioned in American Embassy, London, dispatch No. 5923 dated Dec. 6, 1941, to State Department, which appears in exhibit No. 21.)

167	5468 5-23-46	3652	(a) State Department file copy of document handed by Secretary Hull to the Japanese Ambassador on Nov. 26, 1941 (the so-called Ten-Point Note); (b) State Department statement to the press on Nov. 26, 1941, relating to the delivery of (a); (c) State Department Press Release No. 585, dated Dec. 7, 1941, concerning the delivery and text of (a); and (d) memorandum dated Dec. 2, 1941, concerning President Roosevelt's remarks at his press conference that date, relating to delivery of (a) and general Far East matters.
168	5468 5-23-46	3666	Compilation of documents from State Department files which are dated in November and December 1941, concerning a proposed modus vivendi , which documents supplement those introduced as exhibit No. 18. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
169	5469 5-23-46	3696	Compilation of documents relating to conversations between State Department officials and representatives of the Thailand Government, between Aug. 6 and Dec. 8, 1941. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
170	5469 5-23-46	3789	Compilation of documents from War Department files concerning the retirement of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, and related matters. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.) These documents supplement those introduced as exhibit No. 140.
171	5469 5-23-46	3942	Compilation of documents from Navy Department files concerning the retirement of Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, and related matters. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
172	5469 5-23-46	3978	Compilations made by War and Navy Departments of data concerning airplanes and antiaircraft guns produced and their distribution from Feb. 1 to Nov. 30, 1941.
173	5469 5-23-46	3985	Memoirs of Prince Konoye, former Prime Minister of Japan, and related documents.
174	5469 5-23-46	4030	Compilation of miscellaneous documents from State Department files. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
175	5470 5-23-46	4115	Memorandum from Secretary of Navy dated Dec. 5, 1941 and letter from Secretary of War dated Dec. 6, 1941, submitting estimates concerning Japanese forces in Indochina and adjacent areas, to the Secretary of State for delivery to the President, and memorandum dated Dec. 6, 1941, from Secretary of State for the President.
176	5470 5-23-46	4121	Compilation of location of United States naval forces in the Atlantic, Pacific, and Far East, also foreign naval forces in the Pacific and Far East, as of Dec. 7, 1941.
177	5470 5-23-46	4132	Compilation of State Department documents dated in 1939, concerning a proposal made by former Japanese Prime Minister Baron Hiranuma for United States-Japanese understanding. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)

Exhibit No.	Hearings, page and date intro- duced	Exhibits page No.	Description
178 - - - - -	5470 5-23-46	4209	Compilation of documents from Ambassador Joseph C. Grew to the President and the State Department, and attached memoranda. (See table of contents attached to this exhibit.)
179 - - - - -	5470 5-23-46	4241	Miscellaneous documents from the files of the late President F. D. Roosevelt, as furnished to the Committee, concerning Far East matters.
180 - - - - -	5471 5-23-46	4551	Organization charts of the Army and Navy at Washington, D. C., and Hawaii, as of Dec. 7, 1941.
181 - - - - -	5520 5-23-46	4565	The United States News, extra number, Sept. 1, 1945, publishing reports of the Army Pearl Harbor Board and the Navy Court of Inquiry, and related documents.
182 - - - - -	5537 5-23-46	4702	Compilation of military intelligence estimates, prepared by G-2, War Department, for period Jan. 1 to July 1, 1941.
183 - - - - -	5468 5-23-46	4766	Material compiled at request of Senator Ferguson by letter dated May 20, 1946, to Committee counsel (p. 5464), including data concerning the test bombing of the Utah by the Army Air Corps in 1937, and data concerning the program of the Army Air Corps for 1940-45 production of B-17 4-engine bombers.

EXHIBIT NO. 1INTERCEPTED DIPLOMATIC MESSAGES SENT BY THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT BETWEEN JULY 1 AND
DECEMBER 8, 1941

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Berlin
July 2, 1941
Purple (CA) (K9)
Circular #1390 (Part 1 of 2.)

(National Secret.)

At the conference held in the presence of the Emperor on July 2nd "The Principal Points in the Imperial Policy for Coping with the Changing Situation" were decided. This Policy consists of the following two parts. The first part "The Policy" and the second part "The Principal Points" (I am wiring merely the gist of the matter.) Inasmuch as this has to do with national defense secrets, keep the information only to yourself. Please also transmit the content to both the Naval and Military Attaches, together with this precaution.

The Policy.

1. Imperial Japan shall adhere to the policy of contributing to world peace by establishing the Great East Asia Sphere of Co-prosperity, regardless of how the world situation may change.

2. The Imperial Government shall continue its endeavor to dispose of the China incident, and shall take measures with a view to advancing southward in order to establish firmly a basis for her self-existence and self-protection.

Army 20701

Secret Trans. 8/8/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Matsuoka)
To: Washington
July 2, 1941
Purple (CA) (K9)
Circular #1390 (Part 2 of 2.)

The Principal Points.

For the purpose of bringing the CHIANG Regime to submission, increasing pressure shall be added from various points in the south, and by means of both propaganda and fighting plans for the taking over of concessions shall be carried out. Diplomatic negotiations shall be continued, and various other plans shall be speeded with regard to the vital points in the south. Concomitantly, preparations for southward advance shall be reenforced and the policy already decided upon with reference to French Indo-China and Thailand shall be executed. As regards the Russo-German war, although the spirit of the Three-Power Axis shall be maintained, every preparation shall be made at the present and the situation shall be dealt with in our own way. In the meantime, diplomatic negotiations shall be carried on with extreme care. Although every means available shall be resorted to in order to prevent the United States from joining the war, if need be, Japan shall act in accordance with the Three-Power Pact and shall decide when and how force will be employed.

Addresses to which this message is sent: U. S., Germany and Soviet Russia. From Germany transmit to Italy.

Army 20702

Trans. 8/8/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Canton

To: Tokyo

July 14, 1941.

Purple

#255.

To be kept secret within the Department.

Re my #253^a.

Subsequent information from the military officials to the Attaches is as follows:

1. The recent general mobilization order expressed the irrevocable resolution of Japan to put an end to Anglo-American assistance in thwarting her natural expansion and her indomitable intention to carry this out, if possible, with the backing of the Axis but, if necessary, alone. Formalities, such as dining the expeditionary forces and saying farewell to them, have been dispensed with. That is because we did not wish to arouse greatly the feelings of the Japanese populace and because we wished to face this new war with a calm and cool attitude.

2. The immediate object of our occupation of French Indo-China will be to achieve our purposes there. Secondly, its purpose is, when the international situation is suitable, to launch therefrom a rapid attack. This venture we will carry out in spite of any difficulties which may arise. We will endeavor to the last to occupy French Indo-China peacefully but, if resistance is offered, we will crush it by force, occupy the country and set up martial law. After the occupation of French Indo-China, next on our schedule is the sending of an ultimatum to the Netherlands Indies. In the seizing of Singapore the Navy will play the principal part. As for the Army, in seizing Singapore it will need only one division and in seizing the Netherlands Indies, only two. In the main, through the activities of our air arm (in your city, the Spratley Islands, Parao, Thaiese Singora, Portuguese Timor and French Indo-China) and our submarine fleet (in the South Seas mandate islands, Hainan Island, and French Indo-China) we will once and for all crush Anglo-American military power and their ability to assist in any schemes against us.

3. The troops soon to occupy French Indo-China will be reorganized as the 25th Army Corps (one Army Corps consists of four divisions) and also the 30th Army Corps, consisting of the South China forces, which will be assigned to special duty with airplanes, tanks, and howitzers. General IIDA (the IIDA Army mentioned in preceding telegrams has been changed to the Nishimura detachment) will be placed in command and general military headquarters will be set up in Saigon. All preparations have been made. The ship fees have been paid and the expedition will soon proceed from here.

Army 19731

Trans. 7-19-41 (5)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.

To: Berlin.

19 July 1941

(Purple)

#669

(Abstract)

The Cabinet shake up was necessary to expedite matters in connection with National affairs and has no further significance. Japan's foreign policy will not be changed and she will remain faithful to the principles of the Tripartite Pact.

Relayed to Rome, Nanking.

19842

JD-1: 3838

(A) Navy Trans. 7-21-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

21 July 1941

(Purple—CA)

#545

At the request of Acting Secretary of State Welles, Wakasugi called on him on the 21st. (The Ambassador is expected back in Washington tomorrow morning.) Welles said that he has been giving careful study to recent world conditions. He had asked Wakasugi to come to his office, he said, so that he could express the opinions reached by Secretary Hull and himself, in the light of recent world developments, regarding the unofficial discussions which have been taking place for the past several months between the Ambassador and Secretary Hull.

After thus prefacing his remarks, the Undersecretary said that the real objectives, set up by the Ambassador, Wakasugi, et al., of the Japanese-U. S. conversations, were identical to those towards which the Secretary was striving.

According to information received from various sources in various areas, he continued, there are definite indications that Japan is planning to take some steps very shortly which would upset the peaceful status of certain areas. If these reports are based on fact, he said, there would be a conflict between Japanese acts and the gist of the Ambassador's intentions expressed during the conversations.

Recently when the Ambassador met with him, Welles said, Japan's position was discussed. In the course of those conversations, the Ambassador claimed that Britain, the United States and other nations were applying the pressure on Japan, and described this as an "encirclement" of Japan. This expression is identical to that employed earlier by Germany, he pointed out.

As a matter of fact, the Undersecretary continued, the above was clearly a misunderstanding on the part of Japan, because the United States has no such intentions as those Japan apparently feels. It is because the United States wishes to maintain peace between the two countries that she has been continuing the talks.

He went on by saying that the advices received were to the effect that Japan would take the southern portion of French Indo-China by force within the next few days. Such an act would definitely be in violation with the spirit of the Japanese-U. S. conversations which are being conducted in behalf of maintaining peace on the Pacific.

That is the American viewpoint, he said, but would appreciate being advised of the Japanese viewpoint.

Wakasugi, therefore, replied that he was well aware of the fact that the Ambassador and the Secretary were conducting negotiations aimed at improving U. S.-Japanese relations, and that he, himself, prays that they will succeed. By "a reliable source of information", Wakasugi asked, did the Undersecretary mean the U. S. Embassy in Japan? To this, avoiding a clear answer, Welles merely replied that the report was an accurate one.

Wakasugi then said that he would relay the information contained in the report referred to to the Ambassador. In the meantime, he said, he would like to make an inquiry, as one emanating purely from himself and one which in no way should be considered an official one. Assuming, Wakasugi said, that Japan is planning to make a move in the manner described by the Undersecretary in some direction, what effect would that have on the U. S.-Japanese discussions which were being conducted?

Welles replied that such an act on the part of Japan would be in direct conflict with the spirit of the discussions. So saying, he implied that further discussion would be in vain. On the other hand, he continued, he had been lead to understand that the new Foreign Minister of Japan was a close friend of Ambassador Nomura. Moreover, in view of the fact that very little time has elapsed since the new Cabinet was installed, probably it had not decided upon any definite policy as yet. In view of this fact the United States would patiently await developments before taking any steps to halt the discussions.

Wakasugi told Welles that he would report this conversation to the Ambassador in detail, and withdrew.

20026

JD-1:3937

(D) Navy Trans. 7-25-41 (X)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
To: Washington.
23 July 1941
(Purple—CA)
#397

Regarding your message #545*.

1. You were correct in assuming that I have not as yet determined upon a definite policy because of the fact that I have not been in office very long.

As was pointed out in my message #368, our occupation of French Indo-China was unavoidable. This step had been decided upon by the Cabinet even before I assumed office. It is to be carried out peacefully for the purpose of jointly defending French Indo-China.

It is my intention to continue to make an effort to decrease the friction between Japan and Britain-U. S.

Should the U. S., however, take steps at this time which would unduly excite Japan (such as closing of ----- for all practical purposes and the freezing of assets), an exceedingly critical situation may be created. Please advise the United States of this fact, and attempt to bring about an improvement in the situation.

2. Please carefully reread messages Nos. 368  and 396 , and make an effort to improve the situation.

3. With regard to your message #536* ----- (last 13 groups garbled).

*JD-1: 3937. Wakasugi reports conversation with Undersecretary Welles.

JD-1: 3680 (S. I. S. #19501). Tokyo informs Washington of the contemplated negotiations with France or establishment of Jap naval and air bases in French Indo-China.

JD-1: 3953 (S. I. S. #20029).

*JD-1: 3974 (S. I. S. #20067).

20091

JD-1: 3986

(D) Navy Trans. 7-25-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

23 July 1941

(Purple—CA)

#555 (In 2 parts, complete).

Since Wakasugi had called on the Acting Secretary of State, as reported in my message #545*, I called on Welles myself this afternoon. I explained to him that our southern occupation was absolutely essential from the standpoint of national security and economic safety. I further pointed out the impossibility of Japan to pursue a "do nothing" policy in the face of the embargoes being clamped down against her by various countries, for such a policy would lead to national suicide.

After carefully explaining the above situation, I said that according to press report the French Indo-China affair was apparently being carried out peacefully with the full approval of the Vichy government. I added that in view of those circumstances, it was my hope that the government of the United States would restrain itself from jumping to hasty conclusions, and instead would watch the trend of further developments for a little while yet.

I told him that I feared considerable repercussions among the general public, if measures such as an export embargo on oil is put into effect at a time such as this.

The new Cabinet in Japan, I advise the Undersecretary, is as anxious to bring the U. S.-Japanese "Understanding Pact" to a successful conclusion, as was the previous cabinet.

To the above, the Undersecretary replied that he would not reiterate his statements to Wakasugi. He would not, he said, reconcile the Japanese policy with regard to French Indo-China with the basic principles of the plans being discussed by Secretary Hull and myself. Neither Great Britain nor the United States had any intention of attacking French Indo-China, he said. The concensus here is, he said, that Vichy's submission came as a result of pressure from Hitler and that Japan intends to use French Indo-China as a base from which to make further southward moves.

The U. S. Government, he continued, has not for the past many years made any hasty conclusions. Her actions are governed by Japan's policies.

Although he did not mention what steps the United States is planning to take in the future, he did say, as I was about to depart, that Secretary Hull was expected back at his desk very shortly and that he would no doubt welcome an opportunity to discuss matters with me.

In reply to my inquiry, the Undersecretary said that traffic through the Canal has been indefinitely suspended while it is undergoing repairs. He asserted that no particular nation was suffering discriminatory action.

(Time at present: 2130).

*JD-1: 3937 (S. I. S. 20026). Acting Secretary Welles, in a requested interview with Jap Minister Wakasugi, states that the reported aggressive move by Japan toward F.I.-C. would violate the basis of proposed understanding with Japan. Requests Japanese statement of intentions. Wakasugi asks for source of Welles information and is told that "it is accurate".

20186

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 7-29-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
July 24, 1941
Purple (CA)
#406

Secret outside the Department.

Re my #397*.

That the leaders of the United States Government will at this time display a high degree of statemanship is what I am secretly hoping for the sake of maintaining peace in the Pacific. The Japanese Government would do likewise and would like to reciprocate. However, according to information received by us lately, especially according to newspaper reports, there is the possibility of the United States freezing Japanese funds or of instituting a general embargo on petroleum, thus strongly stimulating public opinion in Japan. Should this plan of freezing Japanese funds be put into effect, it would have an adverse effect on many aspects of our domestic life and might compel us to resort to diverse retaliatory measures. This would lead to a breakdown of Japanese-American economic relations and we cannot be certain that it would not in turn hasten the development of the worst situation. Will you please get in touch with Finance Official NISHIYAMA and, in accordance with the contents of the caption telegram, request the United States Government to favorably treat this question.

Army 20034

Trans. 7/25/41 (5)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Net

July 26, 1941

Red

Circular #1616

Depending upon how Japanese relations with England and the United States turn out, we may have to consider divesting England and the United States of all their interests in China. If and when things come to the worst, I want all areas concerned to cooperate in either destroying or seizing the considerable mining and other industrial equipment and ships of these countries. Be particularly sure to let nothing be taken away. I want you all to be ready at any moment to take this precautionary step of transferring the property of these two nations to our control.

Army 20144

Trans. 7-28-41 (5)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

27 July 1941

(Purple)

Circular #1622)

In retaliation for the steps taken by the British and United States by which our assets were frozen, the rules restricting foreign business transactions in Japan which are included in the rules governing foreign exchange, shall be put into effect on the 28th by order of the Finance Ministry. Manchukuo will also take similar steps while in China proclamations by the Consulates will be made subsequently. As an emergency measure, the above regulations will be announced by the Consulates as a bulletin and will be made effective for all practical purposes. (All transactions involving Britain and America will be placed on a license basis). At the same time, the Chinese will receive instructions to put similar measures in effect.

With regard to the Customs, all exports to countries which have frozen our assets, shall have to receive licenses in accordance with orders issued by the Financial Bureau. Guidance will be given to settle all complications which accompany the materialization of these regulations.

Ample study has been made so as to make these measures counter whatever measures the opposition should choose to actually take.

This message addressed to London and Washington.

20267

JD-1:4111

(D) Navy Trans. 7-29-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

July 30, 1941

Purple

#609 Re my #608^a.

Today I knew from the hard looks on their faces that they meant business and I could see that if we do not answer to suit them that they are going to take some drastic steps.

During my first conversation with Roosevelt after I took office the President, referring to the Panay incident, said that at the time he cooperated with the Secretary of State and succeeded in restraining popular opinion but that in case such a thing happened a second time, it would probably be quite impossible to again calm the storm. The latest incident brought all this back to me and I can see just how gravely they are regarding it. Think of it! Popular demand for the freezing of Japanese funds was subsiding and now this had to happen. I must tell you it certainly occurred at an inopportune moment.

Things being as they are, need I point out to you gentlemen that in my opinion it is necessary to take without one moment's hesitation some appeasement measures. Please wire me back at the earliest possible moment.

^a See S. I. S. #20331 (J. D.-1: 4149): Welles summons Nomura and demands explanation of Tutuila bombing immediately.

Army 20423

Trans. 8/2/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

July 31, 1941

Purple (CA) K9

#433 (Part 1 of 4) (Message to Berlin #708)

From time to time you have been sending us your various opinions about what we ought to do to help Germany who desires our assistance now that she is at war with Russia. After a conference with the military, at the risk of a certain amount of repetition which may cause you some ennui, I am wiring you the Imperial Government's policy and views. Hereafter, will you please act accordingly.

1. In a cabinet meeting during the forenoon of July 2, the broad outlines of our decision concerning our future policy were drawn. You were informed of it by Circular #1390^a. Ever since then the Government has been and is devoting every effort to bring about the materialization of that policy.

2. The China incident has already extended over a period of four years, and the Imperial Government's general trend, particularly its military trend, has hitherto been to expend the greater part of its energies in an endeavor to bring a conclusion to the incident, and now a new situation faces us from the north and from the south. In order to meet it, there is more reason than ever before for us to arm ourselves to the teeth for all-out war.

^a Not available.

Army 20461

Trans. 8/4/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

July 31, 1941

Purple (CA)

#433 (Part 2 of 4) (Message to Berlin #708)

It seems that Germany also understands this position of ours fairly well. The German Embassy people here in Tokyo are already quite aware of it. And yet I fear that their homeland is not yet as well informed as they are on our position.

3. Commercial and economic relations between Japan and third countries, led by England and the United States, are gradually becoming so horribly strained that we cannot endure it much longer. Consequently, our Empire, to save its very life, must take measures to secure the raw materials of the South Seas. Our Empire must immediately take steps to break asunder this ever-strengthening chain of encirclement which is being woven under the guidance and with the participation of England and the United States, acting like a cunning dragon seemingly asleep. That is why we decided to obtain military bases in French Indo-China and to have our troops occupy that territory.

That step in itself, I dare say, gave England and the United States, not to mention Russia, quite a set-back in the Pacific that ought to help Germany, and now Japanese-American relations are more rapidly than ever treading the evil road. This shows what a blow it has been to the United States.

Army 20462

Trans. 8/4/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

July 31, 1941

Purple (CA)

#433 (Part 3 of 4) (Message to Berlin #708)

Needless to say, the Russo-German war has given us an excellent opportunity to settle the northern question, and it is a fact that we are proceeding with our preparations to take advantage of this occasion. Not only will we have to prepare, however, but we must choose well our chance. In view of the real situation facing our Empire, this should be easily understood. If the Russo-German war proceeds too swiftly, our Empire would inevitably not have time to take any effective symmetrical action.

5. I know that the Germans are somewhat dissatisfied over our negotiations with the United States, but we wished at any cost to prevent the United States from getting into the war, and we wished to settle the Chinese incident. We were working toward those objectives. Let him who will gainsay the fact that as a result we have indelibly impressed upon the United States the profoundness of the determination of the Empire of Japan and restrained her from plunging into the conflict against Germany.

It should be understood that we started these talks at a time which seemed opportune to us, and on the assumption that there was complete trust between Japan and Germany. For that matter, did not Germany start a war with Russia because of her own military expediency when it was least desirable on our part? Now we have not only to settle the Chinese incident but have to meet a new challenge in the north as well as in the south, and this is quite inconvenient.

Army 20463

Trans. 8/4/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

July 31, 1941

Purple (CA)

#433 (Part 4 of 4) (Message to Berlin #708)

We are expending our best efforts to cooperate with Germany. She knows it and ought to understand our actions.

6. Well, the formula for cooperation between Tokyo and Berlin, in order to realize the fundamental spirit of the Tripartite Pact, should be for each country to have a certain flexibility in its conduct. What I mean to say is that each should understand that real cooperation does not necessarily mean complete symmetry of action. In other words, we should trust each other and while striving toward one general objective, each use our own discretion within the bounds of good judgment.

Thus, all measures which our Empire shall take will be based upon a determination to bring about the success of the objectives of the Tripartite Pact. That this is a fact is proven by the promulgation of an Imperial rescript. We are ever working toward the realization of those objectives, and now during this dire emergency is certainly no time to engage in any light unpremeditated or over-speedy action.

Please send to Rome. Have sent to Washington.

Army 20464

Trans. 8/4/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.

To: Washington.

5 August 1941.

(Purple) (CA)

#447 (In 2 parts, complete).

1. The Imperial Government is trying to give its attention to the all important matter of Japanese-U. S. relations. This is not an easy task, for there are numerous obstacles involving domestic politics.

According to the various reports you have submitted on the subject, the President and the Secretary of State are displaying considerable understanding in their attitudes towards Japan. You imply that they view the situation cool headedly, regardless of the trend of general public opinion.

On our side, however, there are quite a few persons who vigorously insist that the U. S. economic pressure on Japan is being daily increased in intensity. For example, the newspaper Yomiuri carried a dispatch from ——— on the 2nd, in which it was reported that the President of the United States had either ordered the complete suspension of, or curtail to the extreme, all exports of petroleum products. As a result of this order, the dispatch continued, even those exports for which permits had already been issued, had to be cancelled.

Regardless of whether there was any truth in the report or not and regardless of the extent of the alleged curtailment, such reports give the antagonists a strong talking point. This is a situation which causes us no end of anxiety.

2. If it is believed by any that our people and country can be threatened into submission by the so-called strengthened encirclement policy or by the application of economic pressure, it is a mistaken notion. As a matter of fact it is erroneous to the extreme as should be obvious to any who understands our national characteristics.

If such a policy as the above is adopted, we cannot guarantee that the trend will not be in directly the opposite direction from our goal of an improved U. S.-Japanese relationship. One should be able to see this clearly from the example set forth above.

3. We are convinced that we have reached the most important, and at the same time the most critical, moment of Japanese-U. S. relations. It was at a time like this that the Imperial Government voluntarily agreed to temporarily cease the bombing of Chungking and its suburban area. This should clearly indicate Japan's sincerity, considerateness, and restraint toward the United States.

If an improvement in the relations between the United States and Japan, as two equal powers on the Pacific, is sincerely desired, the points which will most effectively bring about such improvements must be given unbiased and cool consideration.

For the purpose of preventing the possibility of letting anyone, either within or out of the country, be under the impression that the negotiations were conducted under the threat of economic pressure, all measures which may be construed as being economic pressure should be abandoned at once. That we shall reciprocate in kind was made clear in the recent statement issued by the Minister of Finance.

4. Based on the general plan outlined by the last Cabinet, the Imperial Government proposes a plan, set forth in my separate message #448*, to improve Japanese-U. S. relations. This last plan was drawn up as a reply to the plan suggested by the President on the 24th, and is being submitted only after the respective positions of the United States and Japan as they affect the other, were given thorough consideration.

Will Your Excellency make an effort to clearly impress this point on the President and the Secretary of State and at the same time draw their attention to the graveness of this matter.

5. In form, the proposal which is being forwarded herewith, is a reply to the President's plan of the 24th. Our real motive, however, is to incorporate its provisions into the final agreement. With this instrument, we hope to resume the Japanese-U. S. negotiations which were suspended because of the delay in the delivery of our revised proposals of 14 July and because of our occupation of French Indo-China which took place in the meantime. Since that is our intention, please relay the matter contained in my separate message #448* without delay.

*JD-1: 4326.

From: Tokyo.
 To: Washington.
 7 August, 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #452

Through my previous messages on the subject, you are perfectly well aware of the fact that the Konoye Cabinets have been sincerely interested in the betterment of Japanese-U. S. relations. Through misunderstandings and manipulations by third countries, and in spite of our above described desires, Japanese-U. S. relations are, today, critically tense. We feel that a policy of laissez faire should no longer be pursued.

We are firm in our conviction that the only means by which the situation can be relieved is to have responsible persons representing each country gather together and hold direct conferences. They shall lay their cards on the table, express their true feelings, and attempt to determine a way out of the present situation.

2. In the first proposal made by the United States mention was made of just such a step. If, therefore, the United States is still agreeable to this plan, Prime Minister Konoye himself will be willing to meet and converse in a friendly manner with President Roosevelt.

Will you please make clear to them that we propose this step because we sincerely desire maintaining peace on the Pacific. Please sound out their attitude on this proposal.

3. If, however, they show any signs of hesitation (from the contents of your message #649* this possibility cannot be discounted entirely) on the grounds of our occupation of French Indo-China and the reports that we have increased our military strength in the north, put up the following arguments:

(a) That we recognize the exceedingly criticalness of the situation and for that reason, the Prime Minister made up his mind to break all precedent to represent his country himself.

(b) That unless every possible effort is made to maintain peace on the Pacific, we would be failing to fulfill our duties to our people.

4. If they are agreeable to holding such a conference, make inquiries as to the time which would best meet the President's convenience. In view of the times and conditions, we are of the opinion that the sooner that such a meeting took place, the better.

The subjects which will be discussed, undoubtedly will depend greatly on the time it is held. In general, however, the discussion will be conducted along the lines of the negotiations which were being conducted in an attempt to bring about better relations between Japan and the United States. In view of the fact that both the Prime Minister and the President have many uses for their time, arrangements should be made so that the discussions between them will last no longer than a few days. With a view to practicalness it is our hope that the delegations representing Japan and the United States will consist of the minimum number of persons.

5. In view of the extremely important nature of this subject, it is essential that strict secrecy be observed until the holding of the discussions are definitely agreed upon. Therefore, Your Excellency will convey this proposal in person to the President or to the Secretary of State. As soon as you come to an agreement and if the President has no objections, it shall be publicly announced. Therefore, will you confer as to the opportune time, etc. and come to an agreement on those points as well.

For the purpose of security, we are not advising the U. S. Ambassador in Tokyo regarding this subject for the time being. This is for your information.

*JD-1: 4345 S. I. S. #20649. Amb. Nomura discusses various angles of Jap-U. S. relations with a U. S. cabinet member (identity not given); suggests conclusion of an agreement upholding the integrity of territories adjacent to F. I. C. to facilitate supplies of materials.

20699

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 8-8-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

7 August 1941

(Purple—CA)

#663 (In 2 parts, complete).

U. S.-Japanese relations have now reached an extremely critical stage. However, this does not come unexpectedly; undoubtedly it was unavoidable and is the by-product of our government's pursuing other essential policies.

I now wish to describe the recent general outlook in the United States. I realize, of course, that I may be too presumptuous, but I do so only because I believe it might be of some interest to one whose time in office has been as short as yours.

1. Fundamentally speaking, the United States is under the impression that the ties between the Axis partners are closer than appear on paper. It is convinced that the East is working in close cooperation with the West, and vice versa. It assumes that the aims of Germany and Italy in the West and Japan in the East are to conquer the world. Talking with ones who harbor such policies, the United States says, is out of the question.

We, therefore, carefully explained that Japan is guided solely by the principles of HAKKO ITIU (brotherhood of mankind) and that the Axis Pact, like the earlier Anglo-Japanese Pact, is merely an agreement within limitations. This explanation lead eventually to beginning the unofficial discussions.

Then, while the Secretary of State was on leave due to illness, the occupation of French Indo-China took place. The United States, refusing to accept our explanation that that was a peaceful occupation, discontinued the unofficial discussions then and there. Moreover, the United States returned to its original opinion with regard to Japan. Acting Secretary of State Welles made this clear in his statement and it was later confirmed by Secretary Hull himself. Last night, the Secretary expressed his deep disappointment to me. According to the Postmaster General, this disappointment on the part of the Secretary was all the deeper because he had been so very interested in bettering the relations between Japan and the United States. I have already reported that Secretary Hull and his very good friend Walker were put in an exceedingly embarrassing spot in their relations with their Cabinet colleagues.

2. The United States policy toward Japan cannot be termed as one of definite unfriendliness to Japan herself, they explain. The United States has to take some measures, they say, to counteract certain steps taken by Japan. The United States is only taking measures which will counter Japanese southward or northward expansion attempts.

When Japan occupied French Indo-China, the United States retaliated with the "freezing" order and the export embargo; a joint warning by Hull and Eden was issued with regard to any ambitions in the direction of Thailand. There is no doubt whatsoever that the United States is prepared to take drastic action depending on the way Japan moves, and thus closing the door on any possibility of settling the situation.

With regard to a northward move by us, it must be remembered that the United States has suddenly established very close relations with the Soviet Union. In view of this fact, it is highly doubtful that the United States would merely watch from the sidelines if we should make any moves to the north.

It is reported that the President accompanied by high army and navy officials is meeting with Churchill. This indicates that careful preparations are being made to counter our every move without falling back a single time.

3. It must be noted that the government of Germany is exercising the utmost precaution and perseverance in dealing with the United States. It has even gone so far as to issue peace terms in an attempt to ease U. S. public opinion. Therefore, the Pacific, of late, has become the center of public attention and there is a good possibility that, depending on developments in Europe, this trend will be considerably invigorated in the near future.

I have submitted my humble opinions before and they are unchanged today. Our country is at present standing at a most critical crossroads. My only desire is that we choose the right road, for the sake of the future of our country.

21045

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 8-15-41 (X)

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

9 August 1941

(Purple)

#674 (In 2 parts, complete).

Re your #465*

Upon the President's return to Washington (when this will be unknown) I shall make arrangements to call on him and explain to him the subject contained in your message referred to above. I shall do everything in my power to make a favorable impression on the President on that occasion.

As I have pointed out in my various reports on this subject, I am convinced that as long as we proceed along the lines of our present policy, the United States, too, will undoubtedly undeviatingly follow the course whose trend has already been established. The United States assumes that our occupation of South French Indo-China indicates that Japan has definitely set her course. On this point the President and the Secretary of State are in complete agreement and it would be a mistake to try to differentiate between their attitudes. I was made acutely aware of the firm attitude of the United States during my conversations of the 6th and the 8th.

In view of this situation, I greatly fear that even the offer of the Prime Minister to personally come here, would not move the United States to any perceptible degree. For this reason, I regret to have to say that I do not expect too much from the interview I plan to have with the President.

Unless we can draw up some plan by which we can persuade the United States to change its policy toward Japan, I can only feel pessimism for any attempts to break up the present critical situation.

Though I regret that I can report only dark clouds over the world from my distant vantage point, I submit these humble opinions to you for whatever value they may be.

*JD-1: 4429. Immediately upon Roosevelt's return to Washington call upon him and do your utmost to bring about a materialization of these conversations (re Jap-American understanding).

20868

JD-1: 4465

(D) Navy Trans. 8-12-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.

To: Berlin.

15 August 1941

(Purple)

#739 (Separate message)

At the time of my conversation with Ambassador Smetanin the other day, I mentioned our desires in regard to the full realization of our rights and interests in Northern Saghalien and also the removal of danger zones in the waters of the Far East. Since then, we have been asked by the Soviet as to the attitude of Japan toward the German-Russian war; to which we have replied that there has been no change in our intentions of continuing friendly relations between Japan and Russia, that thus far we have maintained an attitude of observing the neutrality pact, and that it is still our desire to continue this in the future, but, that whether or not we can continue thus is a question that depends on the way in which the Soviet Union responds to this. For instance if (a) any of the Soviet Union's territory in East Asia should be ceded, sold, or leased to a third power, or offered as military bases, (b) the Soviet Union should take any steps that would cause the sphere of any third power's military movements to be extended into East Asia, or should conclude with a third power an alliance that might have the Empire as its object, we certainly could not overlook the threat that this would be to our nation.

To this the Soviet Ambassador replied, that the Soviet government is rigidly observing the Japanese-Soviet neutrality pact, and that as far as the above mentioned two points are concerned he could give assurance that there has been nothing of the kind and that there will be none in the future.

I furthermore took this opportunity to call the attention of the Soviet to the fact that of late it is persistently rumored that the United States will be shipping munitions to the Soviet via Vladivostok, and that if this should be true, Japan would have to take a serious view of it, as it would involve the three power pact relations.

In regard to the Japanese Government's attitude to the German-Russian war, I reiterated that there has been no change in our foreign policy, which has as its keynote the spirit and the objectives of the three power pact, even as Foreign Minister Matsuoka had communicated to the Soviet Government 2 July, and that this point is well understood by the Soviet.

21175

JD-1: 4637

(F) Navy Trans. 8-19-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Berlin
15 August 1941
(Purple)
#740

On the 15th I told the German and Italian Ambassadors in Tokyo, confidentially, of my recent conversations with the Soviet Ambassador along the lines of my separate message #739*. Ambassador Ott expressing a desire to understand the basic problem, said that according to the notice sent to the German Government on 2 July, he understood that the possibility of Japan's participating in the German-Russian war was not precluded, but asked if, now since the Soviets have given assurances regarding the two points which Japan considers vital, to the effect that there has been nothing of the kind and will not be in the future, the Soviets do not have the impression that Japan will not take part in the German-Soviet war. To this I replied that, in view of the military expansion the Empire is at present effecting, I think under present existing conditions the above-mentioned arrangement with the Soviet is the very best means of taking the first steps toward carrying out future plans concerning the Soviet, which will be undertaken together with the German Government, that this is entirely in harmony with the spirit and objectives of the Tripartite Treaty, and that I hoped that the German Government would fully understand this point. Ambassador Ott thereupon asked if it is proper to understand that this present arrangement is the first step toward future measures that are to be taken against Russia, that this is merely a temporary arrangement, in other words that it partakes of the nature of a restraint upon the Soviet until preparations can be completed. To this I replied in the affirmative.

Please relay to Rome together with the separate message.

*JD-1: 4637 S. I. S. #21175. Report of conversation between Japanese Foreign Minister and the Soviet Ambassador in Tokyo, in which both insist the Neutrality Pact is being strictly observed; Japan warns against third power's acquiring Russian territory in East Asia; extension of third power's military movements to East Asia, and shipment of U. S. munitions to Vladivostok.

21219

JD-1: 4656

(F) Navy Trans. 8-20-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
August 16, 1941
Purple (CA)
#703 (Part 1 of 4)

Re your #480*.

(1) As I have successively reported to you, Japanese-American relations have today reached a stage in which anything might happen at any moment, and they are likely to grow worse suddenly as soon as Japan makes her next move. That this sudden change will take place with Japan's occupation of Thailand is a view upon which both Japanese and Americans agree. As I have already informed you, the United States has not yet attained sufficient unity of mind with regard to participation in the European war, and the President himself is hesitant. However, the people are unanimous with regard to taking a strong hand in the Far East. According to those well versed in political affairs, this is what Great Britain approves of and both China and Germany desire.

* Not available.

Army 21150

Trans. 8/19/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
August 16, 1941
Purple (CA)
#703 (Part 2 of 4)

I hardly think the President will go to the extreme, inasmuch as he and the naval leaders realize what a tremendous undertaking a Pacific war would be. I understand that the British believe that if they could only have a Japanese-American war started at the back door, there would be a good prospect of getting the United States to participate in the European war. The people here believe that though Germany might eventually defeat Soviet Russia, the war has already passed the stage of being a short, decisive one and has entered the stage of being one of attrition; that inasmuch as the submarine war in the Atlantic is turning in favor of Britain and the United States, these countries will be able in time to attain their original objective; and that the situation resembles closely that which existed in 1917. I understand that confidence in ultimate victory is gaining.

Army 21151

Trans. 8/19/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
August 16, 1941
Purple (CA)
#703 (Part 3 of 4)

(2) Since such is the state of affairs in this country, I could not have helped but refer to the State Department the proposal for a conference which you made in your telegram, but as you already know, the Secretary of State gave a negative reply to the proposal.

I, therefore, subsequently tried to interest a member of the cabinet who was intimately associated with the Secretary of State, but he also showed little interest in the subject. Besides, it is customary for the Secretary to be present at such conversations. I understand the President at one time had thought of arranging for a conference between the leaders of the two countries, but since Japan's occupation of French Indo-China, he has come to believe that Japan does not want a fundamental readjustment of Japanese-American relations but that she is carrying on an appeasement policy toward the United States. I hear that they are beginning to think that I have been fooled by my country and that his having conferred with me was an exceptional thing.

Army 21152

Trans. 8/19/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 August 16, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #703 (Part 4 of 4)

In the meantime, Japanese newspapers have printed scorching criticism of the statement issued by the American Government. Thus the atmosphere is getting worse. Unless something is done now to eliminate this misunderstanding, I shall not be able to accomplish our object. Furthermore, viewing the problem from the political standpoint, so long as the head of the country remains unfavorable to the proposal, we cannot expect him to do anything about it. I believe the United States is wishing that we would give, at least, some sort of a pledge regarding those three critical points taken up during the past conversations; namely, the question of self-defense, withdrawal of troops from China, and nondiscrimination in trade. Today, when the Secretary of State has already rejected our proposal, I cannot help but feel keenly the necessity of careful consideration and a great deal of smoothing out if we are to bring about what you have instructed me in your telegram. I am told that the President will be returning in a few days, so will you please consider the points I have given above, and if you have any further instructions, wire them at once.

Army 21153

Trans. 8/19/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 August 20, 1941
 Purple CA
 #487 (Part 1 of 2)

Re the last part of your #705*.

We cannot, of course, predict what the outcome of the Russo-German war will be, but this does not preclude our anticipating the fact that in case Soviet Russia loses and as a result the Stalin Regime disintegrates, Far Eastern Russia will be thrown into political confusion. It is a self-evident fact that Japan is pressed with the necessity of taking precautionary measures for the sake of maintaining peace in the Far East as well as for the sake of Japan's national defense and security, in view of the actuality that that part of Soviet Russia is adjacent to Japan and Manchuokuo. Furthermore, since, due to the Russo-German war, there is a possibility of the influence of a third power being implanted in Far Eastern Soviet Russia, as for instance of Soviet Russia resorting to such unfriendly act as to allow the establishment of ————— and military bases in the Maritime province of Siberia or in Kamchataka, and consequently of the security of both Japan and Manchuokuo being threatened, we need to prevent such a thing from happening.

The Japanese Government has decided to increase the Japanese forces in Manchuokuo to the minimum number necessary to cope with such a possibility. On the other hand negotiations are being carried on in Tokyo with Soviet officials in order to arrive at a friendly solution of various matters having to do with this area. I understand that the Soviet officials have been instructed by the party leaders to be cautious in their attitude toward the forces stationed in Manchuokuo. This is solely for your information.

Army 21234

Trans. 8/19/41 (S)

• S. I. S. #21165. NOMURA asks to be informed for his own information what the Japanese government intends to do with regard to her northern policy.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
August 20, 1941
Purple (CA)
#487 (Part 2 of 2)

If ----- the United States Government asks you questions concerning the increase of Japanese troops in the North, will you explain to them suitably as your own view of the matter what I have pointed out above. Impress upon their minds that the movement of the troops has for its objective purely preventive precautions against unforeseen emergency and that by it we will be able to forestall any possibility of peace in the Far East being disturbed.

Recently when the Soviet Ambassador in Tokyo inquired about this matter, I replied that so long as the Russian Government lives up to the treaty Japan also will be faithful to it. The Ambassador was very much pleased to hear this, saying that my statement had clarified the matter. This is solely for your information.

If it becomes definitely known that the United States is shipping iron, airplanes and other materials by way of Japanese coastal waters to assist Soviet Russia, this fact would unnecessarily provoke the feelings of the Japanese people, and it cannot be said that it will not have an unfavorable effect on the question of readjusting Japanese-American relations—a question which is at the present stage a very delicate one. We would like, therefore, to see the United States refrain from such action. Will you take a good opportunity and tactfully call the attention of the United States authorities to this fact. Today I personally called the attention of the American Ambassador to it.

Army 21235

Trans. 8/20/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
To: Washington.
23 August 1941
(Purple)
#497

From Financial Attache Nishiyama (#70).

1. American inspection of Japanese firms and banks comes closer to being a search for "subversive acts" rather than an inspection connected with the freezing order. There was a marked difference in the Japanese inspection of American banks. Influential persons in the Specie Bank are much concerned and desire an investigation to ascertain just what the real purpose of the American officials is. Furthermore the National City Bank is arranging for the Kobe and Yokohama branches to unite with the Tokyo office and is closing out the Dairen office. According to Curtis's explanation the above move is dictated by economic policy as was the case in the Osaka amalgamation and that there is no other reason for the move. Two or three young Americans will be left in the Tokyo office and the others will be returned home.

2. A proposal has been received from the British-Dutch Bank to exchange commodities for commodities in order to liquidate the bank's accounts and this matter is being pressed by the head of the London branch of the Yokohama Specie Bank. However officials in the foreign office do not look with favor upon pushing negotiations to the solution of this one problem when there are so many other questions pending between Japan and Britain. Also the immediate conclusion of such an agreement would exert an unfortunate influence upon the leadership of public opinion hence orders have been issued not to ratify such an agreement.

(This item is for your information only).

21644
JD-1: 4860

(H) Navy Trans. 8-30-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
August 26, 1941
Purple CA (Very Urgent)
#504

Re my #503.

That message contains the maximum concessions that we can make to the proposal of the President of the United States; however, whether or not you can convince the Americans of this is naturally another matter. Now the international situation as well as our internal situation is strained in the extreme and we have reached the point where we will pin our last hopes on an interview between the Premier and the President.

Please try to convince ROOSEVELT and HULL to this effect and please bear in mind that I do not consider that the interview need necessarily be bound strictly by what is set forth in my caption message.

Army 21481

Trans. 8/26/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
August 26, 1941
Purple
#505

Notwithstanding representations made by us on successive occasions the United States is treading a course which seems to be bent on exciting public opinion within our country. Beginning the first day of September they are exercising stringent limitations on gasoline shipments essential to our civilian population. At this time they are planning to pass through waters adjacent to our shores with cargoes of petroleum products which should be coming to us. The fact that they are transporting these petroleum products to Vladivostok has dealt a severe blow to the sensibilities of our government and people. At the same time that this brings about grave effects upon Japan and American relations, a terrific blow is being dealt by those in Washington to the whole country far more than you can realize.

This being the case, we are forced to cry out our disapproval of the realization of such measures and the Ministry of Interior as well as the War Ministry are very apprehensive. Therefore, because such measures are not in keeping with the neutrality treaty between Japan and Soviet Russia nor in accord with the interpretation of international law, I would like to have you make representations again to the Secretary of State in order that he may reconsider an immediate cessation of these measures from the general view point of the current Japan-American diplomatic relations. Wire me back as soon as you have filed these representations.

In the event the United States assumes the position that it is impossible to cut off shipments of petroleum products to the Soviet, then as it seems advisable to your Excellency make suggestions that they change the transportation route. However, should they not comply with this request, either, I think it would be wise to try to persuade the American authorities that they revive shipments of petroleum products to Japan immediately.

Furthermore, additional representations have been filed with the Soviet too, as of the 26th.

Army 21482

Trans. 8/26/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington.
To: Tokyo.
29 August 1941
(Purple—CA)
#756 (4 part message, complete except for Part 4)

Regarding my #732 (?)*

The following is the gist of my discussion with Hull, last evening. (28th), regarding the proposed conference, etc.

(A) As the result might be quite unfortunate should either one of the conferring heads of the two governments assume an uncompromising attitude on certain points, it is the expressed desire of Hull to hold preliminary conversations for the purpose of effecting a general agreement prior to the meeting of the two heads, and also to make the decisions of the two principals as final. (Hull used the expression "certification"). (Regarding this point please refer to my #703 (?)).

(B) While it is necessary to bring up to date the various points of past conversations, the United States maintains that the adjustment of Japanese-American relations can be achieved without considering the question of China, which is vital to her.

(C) Despite Japan's insistence that she cannot alter her policy towards China, the United States government is unwilling to seek adjustments in Japanese-American relations at the expense of existing American-Chinese relations. Neither is the United States Government willing to give cause to "explosion" in China by its action. Furthermore, the task of placating China by the United States Government for accepting the basis of Chinese-Japanese negotiations will involve the tremendous effort of winning the approval of Britain and the U. S. S. R. and for this reason it is deemed unfeasible.

(D) Regarding the question of withdrawal of our troops from China and the right of protection, I informed the Secretary that I had nothing to state except what has already been stated on previous occasions. However, when I explained that so long as Prince Konoe remains in the saddle, I am confident that he will make every effort to settle these questions satisfactorily, Hull replied that he hoped that the Imperial Government will see fit to take definite steps towards this end.

Please check over my #540 regarding these questions and let me know the government's opinion regarding them. Also please obtain details regarding same from Colonel Iwakuro upon his return.

(E) I wish to make the following suggestions in the event that it has been decided to hold the "Leaders' Conference".

(1) While it is the desire of the Japanese Government to designate Hawaii as the meeting place, we should consent to accept Juneau, if for reasons of constitutional requirements or personal safety, Hawaii is unsatisfactory to the President.

(2) The conference date should be from September 21st (?) to——.

(3) Five persons each from the Foreign Office, the Ministries of Navy and War, the Embassy and Consulate, that is a total of 20 persons or less, should be present at the conference.

(Part 4 not yet available).

#732 available, not translated. Dated 23 August. Corrects the word "insisted" in a previous message to "instituted".

JD-1: 4642 (S. I. S. #21150 to 53). Amb. Nomura brings up to date the seriousness of Japanese-American relations; reports that since Secy. Hull has already rejected Japan's proposal (for continued negotiations) and the President is returning shortly, Tokyo should consider giving the U. S. some sort of pledge regarding the three critical points: self-defense, withdrawal of troops, and nondiscrimination in trade.

JD-1: 3842 (S. I. S. #19911). Amb. Nomura expresses the opinion that, based on the thought and discussions given the proposals for an Understanding Pact, there is a wide gap between the viewpoints of the two countries, and that Tokyo's proposals will lead to a misunderstanding. Comments on several items of the proposal and requests Tokyo's opinion regarding each.

[Secret]

From: Batavia (Isizawa)
To: Tokyo
September 2, 1941
Purple
#902

Re the first part of Circular #261* from Ambassador HONDA.

1. Conditioned by our military invasion of French Indo-China, it is a fact that the government of these islands has drastically stepped up their anti-Japanese tendencies and very evidently assumed an attitude of aid to China. This is evidenced by the unconvincing control exercised by the authorities here over the anti-Japanese editorials of the Chinese press, the solicitation of funds for the construction of military airplanes for Chungking among Chinese resident here, and their demand for suspension of publication of the Japanese-operated East India Daily News Chinese character edition, as well as the Malayan language magazine Sinarusuratan. However, on the other hand, in order that we may give a sufficiently clear picture of the situation, there is a small group of Chinese resident here whose anti-Japanese tendencies have slightly improved as a result of the activities of the government here. However, no sooner than they got the impression that these Chinese were coming slightly closer to us in feeling, it could be seen that they began to exercise their old tendencies on a still greater scale. Japanese who had good contacts with Chinese here were unmercifully exiled, and these Chinese friends were hauled unceremoniously to the police stations for questioning or possibly taken before the person in charge of Chinese affairs here. It has been anonymously reported that a statement has been made that they are in danger of their lives. Thus they have begun to hinder our schemes with regard to the Chinese with more and more determination.

2. Therefore, when an excellent opportunity presented itself, I deliberately took the occasion to exchange arguments on the Sino-Japanese incident with the Chief of the Far Eastern Section, RO^b, who is chiefly in charge, within the government circles, of the handling of the Chinese question. At that time, the fundamental points of his argument relating to the Chinese question here, I am giving below for your information.

(a) "I have lived in China many, many years. In addition, since my return to the Netherlands East Indies ten years ago, I have gradually come into repute in my handling of the Chinese question. I think I am pretty well aware of matters having to do with the Chinese, but the fact that Japan has set up the Nanking regime and is very anxious to overthrow the regime of CHIANG KAI-SHEK is, I think, extremely foolhardy and has slight chance of success. I personally cannot condone Japan's effort to beguile the Chinese masses from CHIANG KAI-SHEK through the establishment of the Nanking Government made up of second-rate or worse individuals. There is no more logical course for Japan to follow in the settlement of the China incident than to reach a compromise with CHIANG KAI-SHEK. This is my firm belief.

(b) "Though it is said that there are practically no Chinese living here in the Netherlands East Indies who support the Nanking Government, this is actually no exaggeration. All Chinese here give their support to CHIANG KAI-SHEK. Furthermore, the Dutch Government recognizes the CHIANG regime, and because she does not recognize the Nanking regime, it can be clearly seen that the Netherlands Government entertains the same convictions.

(c) "WANG CHING-WEI, who heads the Nanking Government, is sold on the Asia doctrine. He advocates Sino-Japanese peace. His fundamental policy is the expulsion of the white man from East Asia. It is but natural that the Netherlands East Indies Government should oppose this theory. Therefore, the consequent reaction here is the decision to follow a course of seeing to it that the Chinese on these islands are not swept off their feet.

(d) "At the present time, martial law has been put into effect on these islands, and everything is on a wartime footing. The people are united, and in order that the Netherlands home government might be restored, they are ready to fight. The 1,500,000 Chinese resident here on these islands are an important and integral part of the society of the Netherlands Indies. Their well-being greatly affects the peace, order, and economic livelihood of all living on these islands. Therefore, the Netherlands Indies authorities have definitely decided to follow a policy of unequivocally crushing out political schemes from abroad directed toward the Chinese resident here."

3. Having said all this, I endeavored to refute him with all the strength that I could command. RO, however, would not be convinced and adamantly stuck to his statements. Not only is the situation like this, but recently the fact that the police strength on these islands has been greatly augmented has made it extremely difficult for us to carry on our schemes toward the Chinese residents here. As a consequence, the situation practically means that we can do nothing directly. Therefore, I would like to have our organs here for the manipulation of public opinion as well as those who work in the development of our schemes remain passive for a little while. For the time being, we are concentrating our efforts in the collection of intelligences having to do with the activities of Chinese here as well as other things.

4. Therefore, in the meantime, until we have securely brought French Indo-China and Thai within our sphere of influence, I think that it would be most propitious for us to strengthen our schemes with regard to the Chinese here. For this purpose I would like to have sent to these islands influential persons in whom the Nanking Government has much confidence, who can command large numbers of followers among the Chinese here, who will have for their main objective the preaching of the doctrine that the Chinese and the Japanese are one, as well as set up organizations to influence Chinese opinion. These men would have absolutely no relations with either this office or with Japanese persons but would meet in large and small groups and talk with influential Chinese as well as substantial individuals of that group here.

Please transmit this message to Ambassador HONDA in China and to other competent diplomatic officials to whom this information, in your good judgment, might be usable.

Army 21816

Trans. 9/4/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
To: Washington.
3 September 1941
(Purple—CA)
#524

Since the existence of the Premier's message was inadvertently made known to the public, that gang that has been suspecting that unofficial talks were taking place, has really begun to yell and wave the Tripartite Pact banner.

In the midst of this confusion at home Fleisher's story in the Herald-Tribune relating the rumor of a proposed conference between the Premier and the President broke, which was unfortunate, to say the least, as you can well imagine.

The government is not afraid of the above mentioned confusion; nor does it feel that that condition will destroy the fruits of the said conference. It is only that the government wished to keep the matter a secret until the arrangements had been completed. I am sure that you are aware that such a policy is not limited to just this case.

Because of the circumstances being what they are, we would like to make all arrangements for the meeting around the middle of September, with all possible speed, and issue a very simple statement to that effect as soon as possible. (If the middle of September is not convenient, any early date would meet with our approval).

Will you please convey this wish of the government to Hull and wire us the results. If an immediate reply is not forthcoming, we plan to issue a public statement describing our position in this matter. We feel that this should be done from the viewpoint of our domestic situation. Please advise the United States of this plan.

21792

JD-1: 4923

(D) Navy Trans. 9-5-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
September 4, 1941
Purple (CA)
#528 (Part 1 of 2.)

Re your #556^a.

1. What the United States Government proposed as a preliminary to the meeting of the leaders of the two countries were the questions of self-defense, occupation of China by the Japanese Army and equal treatment in trade, discussed during the informal negotiations in the past. The fact is that the recent situation in Japan, especially since the leakage of Premier KONOYE's message, has made it urgent to hold the conference as soon as possible and thereby adjust Japanese-American relations. However, if we continue to argue merely the legal angle of the aforementioned three pending questions as we have been doing, we believe that it would be impossible to be ready, as you have suggested, by the latter part of September. Furthermore, regarding what was communicated to us by the United States Government on July 24th and (August ?) 17th, we have already expressed our views, in addition to our sending the Premier's message. Since we have nothing more to say on the subject, we have decided to express first of all our viewpoint given in #529^b, and, after finding out on what points the leaders of the two countries preliminarily and principally can agree, to hold a conference for the discussion of those points and then issue a joint statement at the end (I will wire you our text as soon as it is ready,) and thus help create a more wholesome atmosphere between the two countries.

Army 21790

Trans. 9/4/41 (S)

^a Not available.

^b See S. I. S. #21786, #21787 and 21788.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
September 4, 1941
Purple (CA)
#528 (Part 2 of 2.)

And so at 4:30 P. M. on the 4th I asked Ambassador GREW to come to see me and, upon his arrival, I communicated to him what is in the separate telegram. Bearing this in mind, will you also communicate the same to the Secretary of State.

2. The points in the separate telegram which require special explanation are as follows: (This was promised by the leaders of the two countries today during their conference. Whether it should take the form of a secret agreement or an ordinary agreement will be left to the discretion of the conferees.)

(1) We expect each of the matters upon which Japan has made her pledge, especially Japan's stand with regard to the Three-Power Alliance, will win the approval of the United States Government.

(2) As to the withdrawal of the orders for freezing of assets by both countries, you should avoid giving the impression that this freezing measure taken by the United States had proven to be damaging to Japan.

(a) Explain the fact that if the—of this measure is technical and complicated and, furthermore, a halfway step, it will not be understood by the people at large.

(b) Explain the fact that this step which the United States has taken has given the impression to the Japanese people that it was meant to be a punishment for Japan's occupation of French Indo-China.

(c) Consider its spectacular aspect as secondary and emphatically propose that in view of the importance of the pledges made at this time by Japan, the United States must reciprocate Japan's decision even by overcoming a possible strong opposition within the American Government. By the word "immediately" with reference to the time when these orders are to be withdrawn, the time when an agreement regarding the matter included in the aforementioned (1) has been reached by the leading conferees, is meant.

(3) By ceasing to take military measures we mean, for example, to cease dispatching more submarines and airplanes to the Philippines and cease acquiring military bases in the southwestern Pacific area, in China and in Far Eastern Russia.

Army 21791

Trans. 9/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

15 September 1941

(Purple)

#819 (In 3 parts, complete).

Re your 561 to 563*.

Points that have occurred to us here:

(1) Whatever we tell to Secretary Hull you should understand will surely be passed on to the President if he is in Washington. It seems that the matter of preliminary conversations has been entrusted by the President to Secretary Hull, in fact he told me that if a matter could not be settled by me and Secretary Hull it would not be settled whoever conducted the conversations. Hull himself told me that during the past eight years he and the President had not differed on foreign policies once, and that they are as "two in one".

(2) The expression "Communistic and other subversive activity" would arouse their caution, and the words "common defense in China" would give rise to questions, while "agreement" would still leave a doubt as to just what it does mean in concrete terms.

(3) The United States has intimated that it wants to be advised of the peace terms between Japan and China and has further indicated that she would refuse to act as intermediary in the peace negotiations unless the terms were fair and just. Under such circumstances, I feel certain that the United States will not agree to promoting the peace conference if we now avoid outlining our terms.

(4) In view of the national characteristics of the United States and of the President's position, it will be next to impossible to leave the interpretation of the Tripartite Pact up to the "leaders" at the conference, for them to settle from a political viewpoint. In other words, if opinions of both sides do not coincide at the preliminary conferences, there will be no "leaders' conference".

(5) The United States has absolutely no objections to making these talks a Japanese-U. S. affair. Moreover, she has never even suggested the addition of a third power to it. The only thing they want to do is to arrange matters with Britain, China, Netherlands, etc. in advance, so that they will not get the impression that the United States is trading them off. However, I shall, of course convey the gist of your instructions to Hull.

(6) I have been doing everything in my power, however insignificant my efforts may seem, to carry out your various instructions and suggestions concerning the proposed negotiations. I fear, however, that if I were to go ahead and make some disposition of the various points you are discussing in Tokyo, I may find myself going off at a tangent. I should like, therefore, to leave these points alone for the time being and watch developments.

22427

JD-1:

(FD) Navy Trans. 9-18-41 (1)

*561-JD-1: 5159. (S. I. S. #22247)

#562-JD-1: 5160. (S. I. S. #22248)

#563-JD-1: 5161. (S. I. S. #22249)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)

17 September, 1941

(Purple—CA)

#823 (Parts 1 and 2 of 3)*

(1) On 6 August, I said at the White House that of the three main points, both parties were in agreement in principle on two. As for the matter pertaining to our evacuating our troops, I expressed my opinion that it was only because he was confident that an agreement could be reached that the Premier is prepared to attend the meeting. At that time, the Secretary of State said that there were two or three other points that had to be clarified and "brought up to date." When he said that, he was referring to our proposal of 24 June.

Although we are aware of your instructions contained in your message #397 of 24 July,* since the negotiations broke down at about that time, we could do nothing about your instructions of 15 July. The break-down continued, and the talks were resumed only after the recent message was sent.

(2) The "understanding" which was put into words and submitted as a proposal on 24 June, was the culmination of over a dozen conferences between the Secretary of State and myself, in accordance with your instructions of 11 May. The Secretary and I conferred almost up to the moment he departed on his trip in behalf of his health. It is natural that the Secretary feels considerable attached to the proposal, since he had worked on it so hard for so many months.

It is my opinion that the U. S. will be more likely to come to terms at the preliminary negotiations if the general lines contained in that proposal were followed.

Hull (insists ?) that the negotiations be held here.

*JD-1: 3986 (S. I. S. #20091)—(You were correct in assuming that I have not as yet determined on a definite policy because of the fact that I have not as yet been in office very long. It is my intention to continue to make an effort to decrease the friction between Japan and Britain-U. S. Should the U. S., however, take steps at this time which would unduly excite Japan (such as the freezing of assets), an exceedingly critical situation may be created. Please advise the U. S. of this fact, and attempt to bring about an improvement in the situation.

* For Part 3; see S. I. S. #22477.

22506

JD-1: 5301

Navy trans. 9-19-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)

17 September, 1941

(Purple—CA)

#823 (Part 3 of 3)*

In view of the above facts, I believe that it is doubtful whether the preliminary negotiations can be arranged in accordance with only our proposal of 4 September. In any event, our first task is to find terms which are acceptable to both sides concerned, regarding the three points—particularly regarding the matter of garrisoning troops.

According to information from that usual source, the atmosphere of the Cabinet meeting held here last Friday showed considerable signs of anticipation of a Japanese-U. S. conference. There is no mistaking the fact that the President is prepared to attend the meeting if the preliminary arrangements can be made.

Nishiyama (Financial Attaché) says that a very good friend of his told him that Hull said to him (the friend) that the President "went too far" during the talks with this Ambassador.

• Parts 1 & 2 not available.

22477

JD-1: 5301

Navy Trans. 9-19-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

September 22, 1941

J-19

#839 (Part 1 of 4)

Currently the feeling here is, as ever, to aid the various countries on the side of the United States in carrying out the ultimate destruction of Germany. Though the Soviet, far more than was expected, has been able to put up a remarkable fight, there are many who sense an early defeat. England and the United States render such assistance as is possible in order to make impossible a separate peace or surrender. They are hopeful of being able to maintain her fighting strength in the spring, provided she can weather the winter. Opinion has developed to this point. The United States is putting up an estimated $-0,000,000 worth of assistance. As a result of this, they plan to encourage the Britons' will to fight.

With regard to submarines, their utter annihilation is recognized to be virtually impossible. But then the American Navy could move directly into the Atlantic in order to protect Atlantic shipping. Furthermore, after the anticipated 6,000,000 "dead-weight" tons of increased construction have been completed by the United States alone during the twelve months of next year, a crisis will arise in the Atlantic. No one is unduly alarmed about submarines.

Army 23011

Trans. 10/3/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

September 22, 1941

J-19

#839 (Part 2 of 4)

With regard to the question of the policy toward....., the people, as a general rule, are extremely happy-go-lucky. Should a war develop between Japan and the United States, "why worry, it's inevitable," is their attitude. There is still a great deal of talk on the comparative merits of the navies of both countries, the gist of which can be summed up as follows: A war between Japan and the United States will be one within the scope of the navy alone; Japan's economic strength cannot stand a long war; the United States excels greatly in its ability to replace warships lost in battle; saying these things, they boast of their ability to win out in a short while. There are only a few who are at all conscious of the danger of a war with Japan. In the field of international diplomacy, they still maintain their age-old policy toward There are many who argue that to reach a compromise with Japan at the expense of China is fundamentally wrong. For example, according to the Hyde Park correspondent writing in the New York Times, Sunday edition, at the present time attempts to ameliorate the situation existing between Japan and the United States are deadlocked. Because Japan's demands for the continued occupation of territory held by them in China is not in agreement with HULL's categorical denial of the possibility of such continued occupation, Premier KONOYE has requested a direct conference with the President.

Army 23012

Trans. 10/3/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

September 22, 1941

J-19

#839 (Part 3 of 4)

Nevertheless, notwithstanding all that, since the German people's will to fight is stronger than ever before, there are a greater number of people who feel that such a non-aggressive policy as outlined above cannot bring about a successful conclusion.

Many feel that as a result of the discontent of people in occupied lands, Italy will withdraw herself from the line of battle. In addition, many feel that the unrest of people in occupied areas will continue to increase. There are others, too, who pin unfounded hopes that the power of endurance of the German people will crumble within a short space of time.

If the war is to be a short one, one or two years will be required. If it is a long one, it will be protracted from five to ten years. The people generally here are maintaining an extremely happy-go-lucky frame of mind. There are practically none at all who think that as a result of this war the United States will be destroyed. With regard to their will to enter into the war, they feel that naval participation is sufficient. And, aside from the preparations being undertaken by military authorities, there are practically none who anticipate the dispatch of expeditionary forces on a large scale.

However, most recently there has been a sharp decline in the isolationist opinion expressed in the houses of Congress. One group is already going over to the majority group who back up the Government's foreign policy.

Army 23013

Trans. 10/3/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

September 22, 1941

J-19

#839 (Part 4 of 4)

Nevertheless, the President is a person who unceasingly confers with HULL. Today the greater portion of the American Navy is being kept in the Pacific. Japan, in the event of the Russian downfall, might move either to the south or to the north. In such a case there is some fear that a frontal clash might occur at the same time in the Atlantic and the Pacific as well. The President is giving the utmost consideration to this matter.

As for Japan's peace terms, rumors are being circulated that in addition to Japan demanding the treaty ports and the four southern provinces in China, she might go so far as to demand other points of military importance.

Finally, though the United States Government does not wish to compromise with Japan at the expense of China, should Japan give up forceful aggressions, Japanese-American trade relations could be restored, and the United States would even go so far as to render economic assistance to Japan.

The above are the critical observations concerning the trend of opinion in the United States made by KURATUKUHOON,* and I think he hit the nail on the head.

* Kana spelling.

Army 23014

Trans. 10/3/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

23 September, 1941

(Purple—CA)

#842 (3 Parts—complete)

On the morning of the 23rd. I called on Hull and handed to him the English texts of your messages #562* and #564, and our terms of peace between Japan and China as contained in your message #590.

I took this opportunity to point out the following points: That with these notes, together with the various other statements made by us, we have said all that we can say; that we have nothing further to say to Ambassador Grew, either; that we shall leave all matters pertaining to the Tripartite Pact, other than the points which have already been brought up and explained, to be decided upon at the meeting of the leaders of the two countries; that the proposals which we now make are not intended to show down the original proposals made by the U. S., but rather are intended to enlarge their scope.

I continued by describing the situation and conditions in Japan in accordance with the contents of your message #589*. I added that our government was sincerely interested in having the "Leaders' Conference" materialize at the earliest possible opportunity.

Part 2.

In reply to this, Hull said that he was spending much time in promoting the materialization of the "Leaders' Conference". He then said that he had previously expressed his hope that we would guide public opinion to a more favorable one, and inquired if we had been successful in this.

I replied that as I had pointed out on several previous occasions, the government has faced this problem with sincerity, and that it is gradually being improved.

Hull then asked for my own personal opinions on the matter, so I replied that it is the government's opinion that the Tripartite Pact and the improvement of U. S.-Japanese relations can be made to parallel each other. I also said that I was firmly convinced that the meeting between the two leaders would immeasurably strengthen the peace of the Pacific.

Part 3.

Hull then advised me that he has received Grew's report of the Minister Toyoda-Grew meeting of the 22nd, and that he is giving it his careful study at the present time. He said that he is anxious to reply to it at the earliest possible moment. I then tried to have him commit himself to be in favor of the materialization of the "Leaders' Conference", even if in principle only, but I was unable to make him say anything definite.

Hull then went on to say that in view of world conditions, it is not too early even now, for the U. S. and Japan to consider the reconstruction of a peaceful world. He, himself, thinks that Japan and the U. S. are ideally situated right now to lend leadership to the world. At the same time, however, he is not sure whether the caliber of the statesmanship of the two countries is capable of coping with such an undertaking.

I, therefore, said that even from this standpoint, it was essential that the "Leaders' Conference" takes place.

With this, our meeting was brought to an end.

*JD-1: 5160 (S. I. S. #22348)—Detailed reply of Foreign Minister to Grew's request for interpretation of various phrases and paragraphs in Japan's notes and statements of intentions in the current U. S. negotiations.

JD-1: 5162 (S. I. S. #22350)—"Equitable basis" is not to be judged solely by Japan. (Refers to open door & commerce in China.)

JD-1: 5360 (S. I. S. #22550-51)—Outline of Japan's terms for peace with China.

*JD-1: 5359 (S. I. S. #22547-49)—Grew-Toyoda talk in which Japs again emphasize that all U. S. questions have now been answered and they therefore expect a U. S. reply on the leaders' conference question. The situation during past month has steadily become more critical and will become more so, due to pro-Axis elements in Japan, if a decision is not reached prior to the 1st anniversary of the Tripartite Pact the 26th of this month. Tell the Secretary this and wire his reactions.

22749

JD-1:

Navy trans. 9-26-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
September 26, 1941
Purple (CA)
#597

In solving so difficult a problem as Japanese-American relations, your Honor's troubles and anxieties have always been deeply appreciated by me. I can easily see that, concerning the negotiations, Your Honor's views are not infrequently at variance with mine; but, as I told you in my #554*, this is a very serious matter and I am proceeding cautiously and deliberately. Therefore, I wish to caution you again not to add or detract a jot or tittle on your own without first getting in contact with me. In this connection, please wire me back concerning the following points:

1. Have you communicated to them the contents of my #590*?

1. In your conversation with the President, did he not mention a promise on our part that we would avoid and cease any further increase in our troops stationed in French Indo-China for the sake of success in the Japanese-American negotiations? When the President stated with smiling cynicism that he expected we might occupy Thailand while the Premier and he were talking, just as we did French Indo-China while you and the Secretary of State were conferring (see your #752^e), did he not also refer to such a promise? I think he probably did. In view of the seriousness of matters as they stand, although I know the hour is all ready late, because of the necessity of keeping records, I want you please to go and question them again. Now when Germany (?) is becoming so aroused, we have no intention of rehashing things which have been gone over in the past. Please, also, (tell this to them?). Needless to say, there will be no changes in my #595^d of today, so will you please communicate it to them.

* See S. I. S. #22191 in which Tokyo tells Ambassador NOMURA that the texts of certain notes are decided upon after very careful study by all of the various ministries involved. If, however, he notes any points in such messages, he should make inquiries and suggestions by cable before delivering them to the addressees.

• See S. I. S. #22550-51 in which Tokyo sends Washington the text of the basic terms of peace between Japan and China.

• See S. I. S. #21651 and #21615 in which Ambassador NOMURA wires Tokyo of his conference with the President with regard to the meeting between Prince KONOYE and the President.

• See S. I. S. #22748 in which Tokyo wires Washington the text of a proposed agreement between Japan and the United States.

Army 22753

Trans. 9/26/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
27 September 1941
(Purple—CA)
#604

On this the 27th, at 1630, after completing the ceremonies celebrating the first anniversary of the Tripartite Pact, I requested Ambassador Grew to call on me. Off the record, I talked to him along the lines contained in my separate message #605*. I urged him to strongly recommend to his home government to have the "leaders' meeting" materialize immediately. Will you too, therefore, carefully read the contents of my separate wire and secretly do everything in your power to prevail upon the President to have this meeting materialize.

The above is not to be construed as being the absolutely final proposal on our part, nor is it absolutely essential that a time limit be put in force. However, in view of internal and external circumstances of our country, we cannot keep postponing matters forever. Please, therefore, put primary emphasis on the importance of holding the meeting immediately. (I mentioned this point to the U. S. Ambassador, too.)

*JD-1: 5503.

22863

JD-1: 5502

(D) Navy Trans. 9-30-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
27 September 1941
(Purple—CA)
#605 (In 4 parts, complete)

(Translator's note. This is the gist of the off-the-record statement made by Foreign Minister Toyoda to Ambassador Grew—see Tokyo to Washington #604*—and is written in the first person, Toyoda speaking.)

(Part 1)

1. Europe has now fallen into a chaotic condition. The flames of war have spread to the Atlantic and they are enveloping the various powers of the world. Fortunately, however, no war has, as yet, broken out in the Pacific. The United States and Japan, alone, hold the key to continued peace or war in the Pacific.

Should the United States and Japan come to blows, the Pacific, too, would be immediately thrown into the chaos that is war. World civilization would then come crashing down. No greater misfortune could befall mankind.

In recent times, there have been numerous and various incidents between Japan and the United States. Relations are at an exceedingly sensitive point, and even the slightest thing must be treated with the utmost precaution.

If, at this time, Japanese-U. S. relations were to be adjusted so as to promote friendship between them, the effects would be felt not only by the United States and Japan, but would indeed contribute greatly to a world peace. The Imperial Government desires the adjustment of Japanese-U. S. relations not only for the sake of Japan and the United States, but hopes that at the same time, such a step would become the opening wedge to bringing about peace throughout the world.

2. Since assuming my post two months ago, I have been working on the matter of readjusting Japanese-U. S. relations even to the extent of almost forgetting to eat and sleep. It is with the same objective that Premier Konoye has expressed his willingness to act as a leader in a conference with President Roosevelt.

(Part 2)

3. Japan is connected to Germany and Italy by an alliance. The fact that the Premier of Japan had volunteered to meet the President, in itself has given rise to much misunderstanding regarding her relations with Germany and Italy. Thus, there is proof that Japan is making a supreme sacrifice. Moreover, the history of Japan has no precedence of an instance where the Premier himself has gone abroad in behalf of diplomacy. This fact in itself should clearly show the sincerity of the government of Japan in its expressed desire of adjusting the relationship between Japan and the United States, and through that, of maintaining peace on the Pacific, and, indeed, for the world.

4. Maintenance of peace is Japan's sole motivating power. Should there be those who believe that Japan was forced to her knees by U. S. pressure, it would indeed be a sad misconception on their part. Japan desires peace; she is not succumbing to outside pressure. Moreover, Japan is not one to yearn for peace at any price.

The Japanese people have a peculiar characteristic of repelling all outside pressures. We have pointed this fact out previously but in view of the general tone of U. S. newspapers in the past, (it is admitted that this has been considerably toned down of late), I feel that it is necessary to repeat this.

(Part 3)

5. Japanese-U. S. relations are exceedingly complicated. Hence, it is quite possible that the entire matter cannot be settled in a day and a night. It is quite possible that not all of the difficult problems can be ironed out by a single meeting between the leaders of the two countries. However, the political aspect of such a meeting would have exceedingly far reaching effects. Moreover, those items which have as yet remained unsettled (we do not believe that any of these exist any longer, but assuming that some do) after all of the goings and comings of cables, they could undoubtedly be settled at the conference. It should be unnecessary to point out the turn for the better in U. S.-Japanese relations that this would have.

We are under the impression that in theory, your side is not opposed to the holding of the "leaders' conference". Should, however, in spite of this, the meeting does not materialize for some reason, we doubt if another opportunity such as the present would appear for some time to come. Moreover, it is quite possible that there may be some fearsome reactions from such a failure.

6. Japan has already announced the proposals she will make at the meeting. We have moreover already submitted for your convenience a complete resume in accordance with the lines contained in the United States' proposal of 21 June. I feel certain, therefore, that the United States is fully aware of the Japanese viewpoint by this time

7. We have, of course, already decided upon the vessel which will transport the Premier and his party; the personnel of his party, including the generals and admirals, have also been decided upon. We are in a position to start at any moment now.

(Part 4)

8. Since the situation is as described above, the Imperial Government awaits with expectations the United States' reply at the earliest possible moment. Any further delays would place the government in an exceedingly difficult position from the viewpoint of the Tripartite Pact. Your Excellency is certainly fully aware that there is every possibility of commemorating the first anniversary of the Tripartite Pact, to strengthen the ties of the three powers.

From the viewpoint of the weather there is considerable danger that it will become unfavorable in the North Pacific and in the Alaska area.

9. From both domestic and external circumstances, time is of paramount importance, as I have pointed out previously. It is essential that the meeting be decided upon at all possible speed and it is with this thought uppermost in my mind that I so strongly insist upon this matter at this time. I would consider it to be of greatest fortune if we were to receive a definite reply at the earliest moment.

From our standpoint if the meeting were scheduled from 10 to 15 October, it would meet with our best convenience.

In conclusion, I would like to say that in a negotiation of this type, it is of the utmost importance that each respect the other's reliability and sincerity. Your Excellency is fully cognizant of Premier Konoye's character and his political position. I hardly feel that I can add anything in this respect at this time. However, as I said before, I doubt if another opportunity to adjust Japanese-U. S. relations will present itself because, at present, the Premier and the entire Cabinet are behind the move. At the same time, it is essential, even under present circumstances, that the leaders meet and confer directly, and at the earliest possible time. I repeat this last point over and over again.

JD-1: 5602.

JD-1:
22864

(D) Navy Trans. 9-30-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
27 September 1941
(Purple—CA)
#865 (In 10 parts, complete)

(Part 1)

On this, the 27th, I had Matudaira call on Ballantine and had him relay the contents of your message and at the same time deliver the English texts contained in your messages 591* and 595. He requested that they be delivered to Hull.

I am taking this opportunity to express my humble opinion on various points which happen to draw my attention in regard to your message #595. I pass them on to you for whatever value they may have.

1. As I have pointed out on several previous occasions while reporting on matters pertaining to this issue, the United States insists that it would be inappropriate to hold the "leaders' conference" until the two nations have come to a complete agreement on all the points involved. At present the United States is allegedly investigating our attitude with regard to said various points. Since, as you said, we have already said all that is to be said, we are now committed to await expression of intentions by the United States.

(Part 2)

If we submit further papers to them in advance of receiving some reply from them, there is a danger that matters would become further complicated and less clear. I am of the opinion that this would tend to hamper the progress of the negotiations.

If, by some chance, some apparent inconsistencies appear in our various papers, it may lead to their becoming suspicious of our sincerity.

(Part 3)

Fundamentally speaking, the United States wishes to proceed along the lines she express in the U. S. proposals of 21 June. Judging from developments to date we do not feel that the premises outlined in those proposals are too far afield. Moreover, from the viewpoint of practicability we feel that they are the most concrete. I, therefore, hope that you will accept the reasonings embodied therein.

2. The deletion of the item reading "no northward advance shall be made without justification" will no doubt be the point which will invite the most suspicion.

(Part 4)

3. The respective attitudes of the two nations to the war in Europe: As I have pointed out in messages pertaining to this phase, (see particularly my message #540), it would be exceedingly difficult from the United States' viewpoint to retain paragraph 1 proposing joint mediation. Recent developments (particularly in view of the President's statement subsequent to the sinking of the U. S. vessel) have further stiffened the U. S. attitude. Therefore, it is my opinion that considerable difficulty will be encountered in securing U. S. agreement to this point.

(Part 5)

Concerning the matter of self defense as contained in paragraph two: Again, as I have previously reported, all U. S. moves pertaining to the European war are allegedly being made from the basic national policy of self defense as the starting point. Even if the United States does become actively involved in the war, she will do so in behalf of self defense and will not, supposedly, be in any sense an aggressive attack, even though she may have had ample provocation to make it so. In this way, they intend to obviate the necessity of our invoking the terms of the Tripartite Pact. Thus, the United States is very anxious to have the term "right to self defense" as elastic as possible. (Read Secretary Hull's speech, contained in my message #381*). For this reason, they may not be tempted to accept the wording of our proposal on this point. The fact that we outline our needs for self defense may unduly arouse their suspicion.

(Part 6)

Regarding the matter pertaining to the settlement of the Chinese Incident: As I pointed out in my message #540, the United States has, fundamentally speaking, insisted that we outline the peace terms we shall propose to China. She maintains that she will enter into the real negotiations only after a complete agreement as to the contents of the "annex." Therefore, we shall undoubtedly be confronted with the difficult task of coming to an agreement on the matters of garrisoning troops and non-discriminatory treatment. I am of the opinion that in the final analysis, we shall have to agree to the terms offered by the United States in so far as they do not conflict with the terms of the Nanking Agreement. We should word our explanations and counter proposals with this in mind.

(Part 7)

Before we are able to have the United States yield, we shall undoubtedly have to conduct several negotiations even after this. The danger of the negotiations breaking down completely as a result of the matter of our stationing troops, is constantly on the increase.

The "non-discrimination" phase is not quite as tickling a problem as the former. In our proposal we state that non-discrimination will apply to the conducting of business between China and Japan only. We add that as long as any third nation conducts her economic enterprises on a fair and even basis, she will in no way be discriminated against. I am not at all sure that the United States will be satisfied with these conditions.

(Part 8)

Furthermore, we will probably encounter considerable difficulty in making the United States swallow, from the standpoint of policy, the new "principle of especially close relations".

Aside from these points, paragraph one is so worded as to imply that the United States and Japan were jointly responsible to settle the China Incident. I am not at all confident that we shall be able to succeed in this because it may not give a favorable impression at the time this "understanding" is published. (As I have reported in previous messages, the United States is not in favor of keeping this "understanding" a secret).

-----with regard to the contents of paragraph two referring to having the United States use her good offices ----- and the point making the demands, shall necessitate the making of new demands if we are to pursue the lines laid down heretofore, as well as those contained in your instruction of 11 April.

(Part 9)

I also believe that considerable difficulty will be encountered in having them agree to the new matter. In that part referring to peace terms, the following words appear: "Konoye statement and those agreements between Japan and China". I feel that here, too, we shall encounter difficulty in getting their approval. Since President Roosevelt is very interested in taking the mediation actions himself it might be well to insert the word "President" in the sentence.

(Part 10)

5. We have your instructions of 15 July with regard to the matter of trade between the two countries. We would appreciate your basing your proposal on the U. S. proposal of 21 June.

6. With regard to the matter pertaining to the political stabilization of the Pacific, it is said that that part of the U. S. proposal of 21 June referring to it was written by Secretary Hull himself. Since the United States looks upon this phase with the most importance, we would appreciate your allowing that part of their proposal to stand as is. We would particularly appreciate your deleting from the new proposals that part which states that we agree to evacuate our troops from French Indo-China only at the termination of the China Incident. We feel that it would be more acceptable to the United States if we were to retain only that part which refers to the condition of a large scale peace on the Pacific.

In other words, we hope to wind up all arrangements of the preliminary conference.

*JD-1: 5415 (S. I. S. #22700). Japan presents a long explanation of the necessity for her maintaining troops in certain parts of China even after peace with Japan is restored.

JD-1: 5438 (S. I. S. #22748). Tokyo sends what appears to be nearly their final effort to get the U. S. to agree to a "leaders' conference".

JD-1: 3842 (S. I. S. #19911). Amb. Nomura expresses the opinion that based on the thought and discussions given the proposals for an Understanding Pact, there is a wide gap between the viewpoints of the two countries, and that Tokyo's proposals will lead to a misunderstanding. Comments on several items of the proposal and requests Tokyo's opinion regarding each.

*Not available.

22961

JD-1: 5534

(D) Navy Trans. 10-1-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

September 28, 1941

Purple (CA)

#606 (Part 1 of 2)

In connection with my off-the-record communication to the American Ambassador in Tokyo last night, in case you have an interview with the President, the following is for your information:

1. As the last paragraph of that communication makes clear, we do not mean at all that all questions and answers are now useless. However, I wished again to emphasize that the first anniversary of the conclusion of the Tripartite Alliance is the turning point and that this occasion is all the more grave. If they have any questions, of course, we will be glad cordially to respond (but as a matter of fact, they have not asked us a single thing since the 10th, and I find this very mysterious).

2. The meaning of the statement that yesterday was the turning point and that the occasion is an important factor is that for the last few days a movement to strengthen the Axis has been afoot, and the popular psychology is being adverted toward this trend. Consequently, the tendency to oppose an adjustment with the United States is naturally increasing. Hence, now is the time, if ever, to concentrate on this accord. This does not mean at all that the power of the present government has dwindled or that the advocates of anti-Americanism have strengthened their position.

Army 22819

Trans. 9/29/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

September 28, 1941

Purple (CA)

#606 (Part 2 of 2)

It is true, we shall have to get quicker and better results than ever before from our endeavors for an understanding. It may even be necessary for us to publish them. Nevertheless, once the negotiations are decided upon or once the date of an interview is set, the government of this country is sure that the people will stand united and that the opposition's voice will be quickly drowned in a chorus of approval. Of this we have always been sure, nor has our conviction waned for a moment lately. Notwithstanding, the Premier sent his message more than a month ago. Nothing has happened; it seems as though it were pigeon-holed. The government is very much worried over this, needless to say.

3. It is true that one influential admiral and one general were included in the Premier's entourage. This made the United States suspect that a hostile military was holding the whip hand over us. I took this action, therefore, to dispel any such fear on their part (I seem to recall that HULL asked Your Honor something about this once).

4. I talked with the British Ambassador the other day and he said, "To speak frankly, the trouble is that the United States is uneasy and lacks confidence concerning the attitude of the government of Japan." Well, the integrity of Premier KONOYE and of the present government ought to be a hundred per cent reliable, and the American Ambassador must have sufficiently advised his government on the trustworthiness of Prince KONOYE.

Army 22820

Trans. 9/29/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

29 September 1941

(Purple) (CA)

#867

During the morning of this, the 29th, (Monday), I called on the Secretary of State, and, in accordance with the instructions contained in your messages from 604 to 606*, I asked that I be granted a secret interview with the President. The Secretary said that because of death in his family, the President had been in Hyde Park since Thursday. Upon his return to Washington, however, he would see the President, he said and would hand me a memo of the U. S. Government within the next couple of days. He added that he read Ambassador Grew's report yesterday and thus gave evidence of being thoroughly familiar with the situation.

Hull gave indications that he too felt that immediate action was essential. At the same time, however, he seemed to think that it was of primary importance to get public opinion in Japan thoroughly unified in favor of it.

I, therefore, pointed out that though the government, the army, and the navy, were in full accord with the proposals being discussed, considerable time would have to elapse before the entire public could be made to understand them. There are those, for example, who cannot understand why the United States should meddle so deeply in Asiatic affairs when she herself constantly refers to the Monroe Doctrine and who, in actual practice, has seized the leadership of the American continents. Japanese public opinion cannot be made to conform with the every whim of the United States. To await its doing so would be like watchfully waiting for the century plant to bloom, I said.

23033

JD-1: 5592

(D) Navy Trans. 10-3-41 (7)

*604-JD-1: 5502 (S. I. S. #22863). Toyoda-Grew talk held 1630 Sept. 27. Japs again strongly urge early action on the "leaders' conference", and directs Nomura to do everything possible to avoid further postponement.

*605-JD-1: 5503 (S. I. S. #22864). Gist of remarks made by Toyoda to Grew.

*606-JD-1: 5504 (S. I. S. #22819-20). Toyoda elucidates for Nomura's information various points of his talk with Grew.

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

29 September 1941

(Purple)

#870 (In 4 parts, complete)

(Part 1)

To Chief of Bureau Terasaki from Iguti.

I realize, of course, that I am being presumptuous, but the following are my opinions of the negotiations to adjust U. S.-Japanese relations:

(1) In view of such incidents as were described in our message #866*, we believe that it would be well if we did not deliver those papers here which have already been delivered in Tokyo to Ambassador Grew. Duplications in this manner are apt to create misunderstandings through transmission errors and through differences in translations. This is particularly true of some vague passage which cannot be made clear without lengthy explanations. (Please see our message #865, and others for points which are in doubt). Under these circumstances, we are unable to make explanations when we are requested to do so by the United States. The Ambassador himself is placed in an exceedingly awkward position. We, therefore, would prefer to put most of our efforts in trying to sound the U. S. attitude.

(Part 2)

(2) We have already said that we have said all that is to be said. To keep submitting notes after notes, thereafter, which do not always run in sequence with the previous note, is not good, for it causes confusion and further delays.

As a matter of fact DESUBANIN  told us in confidence that the United States is of the opinion that the scene of the negotiations was shifted to Tokyo by us so as to bring about delays. They think that we are watching developments of the German-Soviet war, and that we shall launch a northward move if indications seem to favor it.

(Part 3)

(3) Father Dught advises us that a friend of his in Tokyo (probably Walsh) reports that Japanese governmental circles feel that there is absolutely no reason why the United States should not accept the most recent proposals. The fact that she has not done so, must be due to interference from some Washington source, Walsh cables.

For the past six months, we have been holding talks here during which the attitude and stand of the United States has been set down clearly. We feel confident that you are aware, through our various reports on the subject, that it is exceedingly unlikely that the United States has any intention of backing down from those established stands.

We feel that there must be a tendency in Tokyo to view the United States statements too optimistically. It is imaginable to us that there are those who approach the Premier with a little too much "wishful thinking".

(Part 4)

(4) It is admittedly true that impatience in this matter must be avoided. We realize, of course, that circumstances have made it unavoidable to a certain extent, but even so, it seems to us that we have been urging the United States to reply quite frequently of late. This apparently is giving the impression to the United States that we are overly anxious.

On the other hand, the United States applied the "freezing" order on us, effecting our entire economic structure. Since then, they have been sitting tight, awaiting and watching subsequent developments. The United States does not suffer greatly from that measure; hence they are in no rush.

Under such circumstances, we do not feel that it is to our advantage to show signs of over-anxiety all by ourselves.

23110

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 10-4-41 (1)

*JD-1: 5560 (S. I. S. #22977). Grew's report of our terms of peace with China differs from what you sent me. Please check.

JD-1: 5534 (S. I. S. #22961). Long report from Nomura giving his views of current state of U. S.-Jap negotiations.

R. E. Desvernine, President American Crucible Steel Co.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 September 30, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #614 (Part 1 of 3.)
 Re your #865^a.

1. As you say, so long as they do not send us any reply we should avoid presenting them with various written suggestions. I am entirely in agreement with you.

2. I, too, in the beginning was in a hurry to draw up a plan and hurry along the negotiations, that is why on the 14th of July I sent you some instructions, but since you never presented the American officials with them, and in the light of subsequent events, in order to finally evolve a comprehensive settlement, on September 4 I brought forth a proposal. I incorporated this proposal in my #595^b and did my best to harmonize it with the American proposal. There are no changes to be made in the substance of it and if the Americans so desire I think we might negotiate on the basis thereof.

3. My views on certain points which you mention in your message are as follows. In case they question you please answer accordingly:

1. The reason why I left out the expression, "As there is no real objection we will make no northward invasion", in part 2 of your message is that if we were to insert this into the body of the text it might only give them the suspicion that we have direct designs against the Soviet. This whole matter, after all, concerns the China incident and the South Seas question. There is no particular problem in the north. In the preface to the clause concerning the stability of the Pacific area, this matter is fully included so I am willing to leave it up to the leaders on both sides and if necessary to clarify this in the minutes. In my proposal of the 4th I made it plain that there was no objection to this statement.

Army 22870

Trans. 9/30/41 (S)

* Not available.
* See S. I. S. #22748 in which Tokyo wires Washington the text of a proposed agreement between Japan and the United States.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
September 30, 1941
Purple (CA)
#614 (Part 2 of 3)

2. The first clause relating to the attitude of both Governments toward the European war is all right as it stands so far as I am concerned. Since we say "when the proper time comes" I am sure that this will cover their misgivings.

3. Concerning the second clause of the same article, as you say, they may have something more to say. We will merely wait for them to broach the subject and if necessary not be loathe to consider it again.

4. The part concerning the adjustment of the China incident.

a. We do not mean by the first clause that this is the joint responsibility of the Japanese and the American Governments. All along the United States has insisted that a settlement of the China trouble has a great bearing on the stability of the Pacific. That is why we went so far as to say that both Governments "will endeavor to bring about etc." We do not mean to discuss this in detail but if they oppose it as it stands we are ready to change it or leave it out.

b. We have been looking forward with expectancy from the beginning to American mediation and so we are not making any new requests such as you mentioned.

c. The insertion of the phrase "a treaty between Japan and China" is merely in accordance with the three principles laid down by KONOYE and there is no special meaning to it. Please explain this to them.

d. There is no objection to requesting that President ROOSEVELT mediate.

Army 22871

Trans. 9/30/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
September 30, 1941
Purple (CA)
#614 (Part 3 of 3.)

e. When we come to the question of non-discrimination in economic activities in China, I want you to make it clear to them so that they will not entertain any misgivings that this principle should not apply merely between Japan and China but also to third countries. Advise them, furthermore, that the principle that neighbors naturally have intimate relations is practiced throughout the whole world and is by no means a new theory.

5. The clause concerning commerce between the two countries in my #595^a coincides in meaning with the American proposal. Only in the meantime the freezing order has taken place and subsequent developments have modified the situation. We only hope that conditions will soon be ameliorated. Once they eliminate this order we will have no objection to their proposal on this subject.

6. a. Concerning the stipulations about the political stability of the Pacific, the stipulations in the American proposal are pet principles of Secretary HULL and the United States sets great store by them. They are merely general stipulations, therefore, we will not be loathe to reconsider them.

b. I transferred the matters concerning the military evacuation of French Indo-China and the settlement of the Chinese incident to the clause concerning the establishment of peace in the Pacific. This will make the clause more harmonious and expand its significance. That is all I meant by this action. If they don't like it, however, we will put it back like it was.

If the Americans present you with an aide memoire today, without any delay, wire it on to me. I am ready and eager to make a translation of it. If possible, before you send it, send me a brief summary.

Army 22872

Trans. 9/30/41 (S)

^a See S. I. S. #23748 in which Tokyo wires Washington the text of a proposed agreement between Japan and the United States.

[Secret]

From: Rome
To: Tokyo
September 30, 1941
Purple
#627

Our recent negotiations with the United States have put a bad taste in the mouths of the people of this country. Our attitude toward the Tripartite Alliance appears to them to be faithless. Recently the newspapers have been growing more critical in tone where we Japanese are concerned. Official comment, too, has been none too complimentary. As for Italy's attitude toward the recent celebration of the first anniversary of the conclusion of the Japanese-German-Italian Tripartite Alliance, its coolness reflects the attitude of the whole Italian people. I mean to say:

1. The Propaganda Department told the press to confine itself to a mere mention of the present anniversary and to turn its attention mainly to other things, refraining from discussion of the bearing of this alliance upon the present international situation.

2. The ceremonies attendant upon this anniversary were carried out half-heartedly or even less by the Italians. It would even seem that this was done to spite Japan and Germany. At Villa Madama there was a reception held for CIANO, but certainly no festivities worth mentioning took place. At a reception held for the press, at first the German and Italian flags only were hanging in the hall. A Japanese reporter mentioned this, and then they pulled them all down.

3. When asked about felicitations and ceremonies, the Propaganda Department always replied that this was not a good time to be ostentatious.

Furthermore, the other day PRUNAS told ANDŌ that word had been received from Ambassador INDELLI that when he inquired of the Japanese Foreign Office officials concerning the negotiations between Japan and the United States, they were very reserved and uncommunicative, showing that their erstwhile fervor for the Axis was not as glowing as in days gone by.

All this shows how dissatisfied the Italian people are. All I can say is that the exercises held in Tokyo on the ——— and the Minister's speech, together with the messages from the Premier and Minister, saved the situation perhaps to some extent.

Army 22946

Trans. 10/2/41 (G)

—————
[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

September 30, 1941

Purple (CA)

#881 Part 1 of 2*

Last Monday after a long time I went to call on Admiral STARK. In the middle of our conversation Rear Admiral TURNER joined us. The Admiral said that after all the question of troops stationed in China would do most damage to the negotiations and that unless the China Incident is settled an understanding between Tokyo and Washington will be impossible. TURNER said that he doubted if we would agree to evacuate China, but if no agreement were reached in the preparatory talks any conversations between the leaders of the two countries might be dangerous.

While we were talking about the Tripartite Alliance, the Admiral stated that the United States does not intend to go ahead and strike at Japan, adding that if the United States fights a two ocean war after all she will have to defend herself in the Pacific.

Army 22987

Trans. 10/2/41 (2)

* Part 2 not available.

—————
[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

1 October 1941

(Purple—CA)

#618 (In 5 parts, complete)

(Part 1)

To Counselor Iguti from Terasaki.

Re your #870*

1. Please refer to our message #613 with regard to the matter contained in your #866.

2. I feel that you are justified to a certain extent when you complain that after we have stated that we have put all of our cards on the table, we continue to send you note after note, etc. Our note of 4 September was so designed to contain our views of the three subjects which have been discussed hitherto in a very broad light. It was not drawn up with any intention of "slowing down" the procedure in the sense voiced by Hull. We were of the opinion that there were some points of the preliminary talks which needed clearing up. Thinking that it would facilitate matters if we drew up our proposals in the form that the U. S. proposal of 21 June was put in (my message #595*). We further sent you message #590*, dealing with Japanese-Chinese peace terms and my message #591 pertaining to the garrisoning of troops, in the hope that they would supplement and explain our note of 4 September. They were forwarded to your office by the Foreign Minister, as reference material to be used by the Ambassador in explaining our position to the United States. They were sent at the request of the Premier and the military.

(Part 2)

Putting it bluntly, we were quite unaware of the fact that the Ambassador in the United States had allegedly submitted, for the purpose of further consideration by this office, certain changes in our note of 4 September, (the 1st, 4th—including the supplements—, 6th and 7th paragraphs were unchanged; paragraph 2 was unchanged with the exception of that part referring to the exchanging of official notes; paragraph 3 was identical to the Japanese note of 15 June; and to paragraph 5 was added the words: "For the production and procurement of national resources" to the U. S. proposal of 21 June), until we were questioned about it by the U. S. Ambassador in Tokyo. This allegation came as a great surprise and the Foreign Minister replied that the note of 14 July must have been the one implied. The Minister added that if the Embassy in Tokyo was in immediate need of the English text of that message, he could no doubt obtain it from the State Department, and that we could supply him with the Japanese text immediately.

It was then that that part which appears in parentheses in the preceding paragraph came to light. At the same time, the fact that the Japanese Ambassador had said that the "draft was not official" to the State Department was also brought to light.

(Part 3)

These conditions have further complicated the already exceedingly complicated negotiations and for that reason, it is indeed very regrettable.

3. It is regrettable that in spite of the fact the Ambassador in Washington and yourself are putting forth your best efforts and in spite of the fact that we are facing the problems with the utmost sincerity, the United States does not reciprocate our statesmanship. However, there are none here who are underrating the United States or who are looking upon the developments with undue optimism.

4. We fear that possibly you are not completely familiar with the exceedingly critical situation at home. It is only through the clear thinking of the military and the superhuman work on the part of all those officials concerned with domestic matters that we have been able to avert the breaking out of any unfortunate incident subsequent to the 27th. The utmost caution shall have to be exercised in the future to preserve this condition. Will you please obtain from Minister Wakasugi at first hand a description of the situation in Japan. This is, of course, for your and the Ambassador's information only.

Your explanation to the United States should be made along the following lines: "Apparently there are those in the United States who misunderstand the political situation in Japan. These persons seem to be of the opinion that the Konoye cabinet's position is not strong. Therefore, any agreement entered into with that government is in danger of being disregarded by the military or some other strong organization. This is not a correct analysis of the situation in Japan. It is true that there are those who express opposition to the present cabinet but these elements can be easily overruled.

(Part 4)

"Of course there have been public utterances such as Colonel Mabuchi's broadcast and Nakano's speech, who expressed, judging from the reports, opinions opposed to those contained in the Premier's message. Anyone, however, who knows the characteristics of the Japanese and who are familiar with conditions in Japan, should be able to understand the true meaning of those speeches. Mabuchi placed the most emphasis on encouraging the people while Nakano, pursuing his usual line, need not be looked upon with any importance.

"Unfortunately, however, foreign newsmen stationed in Japan, attached much importance to these speeches. British and American newspapers which place the most importance on 'journalistic interest' played up minor points in an exaggerated manner.

"These, of course, are causing misunderstandings. We are confident, however, that the people who have spent any time at all in Japan can see the true picture, etc."

We believe that if the situation were explained to them in that manner, they will more readily understand matters. Moreover, it is the truth.

Not only the Foreign Minister but all concerned are as one in this matter, and are willing to meet any without fear. You can readily see, in view of domestic circumstances and in view of external relations, that we are all eager to have the "leaders' conference" take place. This is but a natural development, and if they insist on construing it to be impatience on our part, I guess it can't be helped.

(Part 5)

That we intend Washington to be the central locale of these negotiations is as you stated in your recent message and should have been further clarified by the telephone communication between the Foreign Office and the Embassy. Because of some peculiar circumstances, the occasion may arise where some talks are conducted in Tokyo first. That would be done only under unavoidable circumstances. Any who believe that any idea of stalling was behind such a move, thoroughly misunderstands the Foreign Minister's motives.

Time is now the utmost important element. Whether this matter materializes or not has a direct and important bearing on peace on the Pacific and even of the world. The seriousness of the situation must be thoroughly recognized. Please exercise every bit of power available to bring about a favorable conclusion of this matter.

Paragraph 2 of my message #614 was meant to point out that we have no objections to using the contents of my message #595* as a basis of negotiations if so desired by the United States.

Although there is that matter contained in my message #617 , we make the above statement anew.

23078

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 10-4-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 5614. Available, being translated.

Available, not translated; dated 30 September.

JD-1: 5560 (S. I. S. #22977). Grew's report of our terms of peace with China differs from what you sent me. Please check.

*JD-1: 5438 (S. I. S. #22748). Tokyo sends what appears to be nearly their final effort to get the U. S. to agree to a "leaders' conference".

JD-1: 5360 (S. I. S. #22550-51). Outline of Japan's terms for peace with China.

JD-1: 5415 (S. I. S. #22709). Japan presents a long explanation of the necessity for her maintaining troops in certain parts of China, even after peace with Japan is restored.

First anniversary of the Tripartite Pact.

JD-1: 5510 (S. I. S. #22870-71-72). I agree that we should avoid any more written suggestions to the U. S. until they give us some reply.

JD-1: (Available, being translated.)

[Secret]

From: Berlin

To: Tokyo

1 October 1941

(Purple)

#1198

On this the occasion of the first anniversary of the Tripartite Pact, Foreign Minister Ribbentrop has come to Berlin from the Imperial Headquarters especially and I have had several visits with him. Using this opportunity I, and the other members of the staff, have mingled with people from all classes of society and visited with them. I am endeavoring to sum up all these experiences and analyze the present state of feeling toward Japan held by Germany in this report to you.

1. Ribbentrop said that he had absolute proof that, while reports of the content of the Japanese-American negotiations were withheld from Ambassador Ott, America was in secret communication with England in regard to the Japanese-American negotiations. Even Ribbentrop who is supposed to understand Japan's position, expressed great dissatisfaction regarding Japan's attitude.

2. That the Foreign Office staff from Weizsacker down and also everyone in general were thoroughly disgusted with Japan was very apparent from their attitude toward myself and other members of the staff. Everyone who feels kindly disposed toward Japan is deeply concerned over this state of affairs. Even those who do not come to the same conclusion that Ambassador Ott did in his telegram are outspoken in their dissatisfaction and expression of pessimistic views. I am trying to take the position in interviews with newspaper correspondents and others concerned with the outside that Germany is cognizant of the Japanese-American negotiations and that they are no indication of an alienation between Japan and Germany.

3. Foreign diplomats and newspaper correspondents of third countries show great interest in the Japanese attitude and seem to consider it in a certain sense as a barometer by which the course of the European war can be judged. However we receive the impression that the greater number feel that Japan is avoiding war because of the impoverishment resulting from the China incident and is taking a pessimistic attitude toward the course of the European war.

4. Even though it might be said that Germany is prepared for these machinations of estrangement by third countries and that she is keeping up the pretence that there is no change in her feelings toward Japan, the fact that the feeling of German leaders and the people in general toward Japan is getting bad is one that cannot be covered. Please bear this fact in mind. If Japan takes a wishy-washy attitude and goes ahead with her negotiations without consulting Germany there is no telling what steps Germany may take without consulting Japan.

Please convey this to the army and navy.

Relayed to Rome.

23673

JD-1:

(H) Navy Trans. 10-18-41 (4)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
October 2, 1941
(Purple—CA)
#625

Special intelligence #330 from New York states that an A. P. dispatch declares that the Japanese-American negotiations warrant a pessimistic outlook and that the KONOYE Cabinet will face a crisis in about two weeks, whereupon it will be inevitable that the Cabinet undergo a revision. It seems that this rumor is going around in Washington, but in any case, it is absolutely false and untrue. The situation here in Japan as described in my #618* should be known to you and, whenever necessary, will you please enlighten the Americans. Too, Secretary HULL appears to be gravely concerned over public opinion here in Japan. I think that he has questioned you twice on this subject. Well, let me tell you that public opinion is very calm here and we intend to take advantage of the situation. We are merely awaiting their memorandum, and the Government entertains the view that we had better issue a statement on these Japanese-American negotiations at the earliest opportunity. This opinion is growing.

Naturally the substance of this statement will be confined to our side. We can merely refer briefly to matters on the American side. In any case, we will discuss all this with the Americans.

It seems that there have been a number of rumors concerning a statement by the Government, lately. Among them there are many mistaken ones.

Army 22988

Trans. 10/2/41 (S)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
October 2, 1941
(Purple—CA)
#889

At Secretary HULL's invitation, I called on him at nine o'clock this morning. He handed me the reply of the United States Government which I have given in the separate telegram #890* and said that it is the opinion of the United States Government that a conference of the leaders of the two governments would be a precarious affair unless a (complete ?) understanding could be arrived at thereby and that if peace is to be maintained all over the Pacific, a "patch-up" understanding would not do, but a "clear-cut" understanding would have to be made. I remarked that the Japanese Government will, no doubt, be very much disappointed in such a reply but that in any case I would transmit it.

Army 23001

Trans. 10/3/41 (7)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
3 October 1941
(Purple—CA)
#627

I described the various problems involving the United States and Japan to British Ambassador Craigie who was scheduled to have gone on a vacation trip to the United States on 28 September. (He had planned to leave from Nagasaki and make connections with the President Coolidge at Shanghai on 4 October. However, in view of illness on the part of the Counselor who was to have acted as Charge d'Affaire in the Ambassador's absence, his trip has been apparently postponed for about three weeks).

At the same time, we asked Ambassador Grew to also speak to Ambassador Craigie and we understand that they also discussed matters on the same day.

Subsequently, according to absolutely unimpeachable sources, Ambassador Craigie cabled Foreign Secretary Eden and Ambassador Halifax, explaining the importance of having the United States and Japan come to an immediate agreement to hold a conference. The gist of Craigie's opinions contained in those messages is being forwarded to you as my supplementary message #628*.

In view of the source, will Your Excellency keep the information contained strictly to yourself only.

23079

JD-1: 5623

(D) Navy Trans. 10-4-41 (W-TT)

*JD-1: 5624.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
3 October 1941
(Purple—CA)
#628

1. With the resignation of former Foreign Minister Matuoka the chances of turning away from the Axis policy and toward the Democracies, has been considerably enhanced.

2. Among the difficult points in the materialization of a Japanese-United States conference, is that with Japan speed is required. Moreover, she can enter into nothing more, at the present time, than a temporary understanding. On the other hand, by pursuing a policy of stalling, the United States is arguing about every word and every phrase on the grounds that it is an essential preliminary to any kind of an agreement. It seems apparent that the United States does not comprehend the fact that by the nature of the Japanese and also on account of the domestic conditions in Japan, no delays can be countenanced. It would be very regrettable indeed if the best opportunity for the settlement of the Far Eastern problems since I assumed my post here, were to be lost in such a manner.

3. Prince Konoye is sincerely desirous of avoiding the dangers which Japan may face through her connections in the Tripartite Pact and in the Axis for which the Prince, himself, feels responsibility. Opposition within the country to the Prince's reversal of policy is fairly strong. Therefore, unless the Japanese-U. S. conversations are held in the very near future, the opportunity will probably be lost. Moreover, if by some chance, meetings fail to materialize, or if they are unduly delayed, the Konoye cabinet will be placed in a precarious position.

4. We realize, of course, that there are numerous very complicated matters involved in the proposed negotiations. However, both the U. S. Ambassador in Japan and I are firmly of the opinion that it would be a foolish policy if this superb opportunity is permitted to slip by assuming an unduly suspicious attitude.

In conclusion, it must be added that until Japan's reversal of policy is concretely proven—in other words, until the Konoye principles actually materialize—there should be no let up in the retaliatory economic measures by us.

(NOTE.—The above message expresses the views of British Ambassador Craigie in Tokyo, as explained in JD-1: 5623).

23080

JD-1: 5624

(D) Navy Trans. 10-4-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo.
3 October 1941
(Purple—CA)
#894 (In 4 parts, complete)

Although there is a feeling that the Japanese-U. S. talks have finally reached a deadlock, we do not believe that it should be considered as an absolutely hopeless situation. We are of the impression that the United States worded their memorandum in such a way as to permit a ray of hope to penetrate through.

The general public has been becoming more and more favorable to the President's foreign policy, until today it is being supported overwhelmingly. The program of war time industrial production has been making satisfactory progress, and it may be said that the general public is taking a more optimistic view of the European war. This last is due to the surprisingly good showing the Soviet Union has been making in her war efforts. The United States is well satisfied with that.

At the same time, however, both the United States and Great Britain are fearful lest the Soviet Union enter into an independent peace. The United States and Britain are giving determined aid to the Soviet Union in order to prevent such a peace from materializing, and, if possible, to enable the Russians to hold out over the winter and resume fighting next spring. The Atlantic war has shown a definite turn in favor of Britain; submarine losses have increased and hence, loss to shipping has dropped radically. Due to the vastly strengthened air arm of the British and because of her power on the seas, England herself is practically safe from invasion.

(Part 2)

That all is not perfect for Germany in the war on her eastern front may be seen from the fact that the various Balkan countries show some hesitancy. At the same time unrest is on the increase in the various occupied areas and Italy's war strength is constantly on the decrease. Apparently it is only through German intervention and pressure that Italy is prevented from entering into a separate peace. The effectiveness of the blockade will increase as the war is prolonged, and the same situation as existed in the last war will probably be brought about.

Such are the optimistic predictions being made here with regard to the final outcome of the war.

Should Germany succeed in bringing about an independent peace with the Soviet Union at this time, Germany would be able to amply reinforce her forces directed toward England. This would place England in a critical position once again and this is probably the one thing the United States does not want. (Translator's note: From this point to end of Part 2 badly garbled; guess work contained in translation). For such a development will probably involve the United States very deeply in the Atlantic war and it is possible that the United States would lose ships because of it. If such a situation materializes, the United States would for the first time realize the imminence of the war to herself and may then—but not until then—take a slightly more conciliatory attitude toward Japan.

From the Japanese point of view, it would be most favorable if the Soviet Union does sue for an independent peace and if, as a result, the Germans launch a new phase of the war on the Atlantic, such developments would undoubtedly have the most favorable effects on U. S.-Japanese relations.

(Part 3)

It is true that the Konoye message relieved to a certain extent the very critical situation between the United States and Japan for it had a tendency to squelch those few in the United States who advocate going to war against Japan first. This sentiment has been kept smothered since then and at the same time the message did, indirectly, tend to get the United States to become further involved in the Atlantic.

On the other hand, however, the United States has not decreased her economic pressure against Japan one iota. It should be carefully noted that the United States is proceeding along a policy of making this her threatening power. Should the United States continue along her present economic policy, without resorting to the force of arms, she shall gain her objectives of a war against Japan without once resorting to a battle. Moreover, I am of the opinion that unless there is a radical change in the world situation or unless Japan changes her foreign policy, the United States will not alter this policy of hers against Japan.

(Part 4)

Of the three major topics involved in our negotiations, two have been agreed upon for all practical purposes. (Hull is an advocate of free trade and believes that "bloc" economics is the cause of wars. He is trying to force the British Empire to accept this philosophy at the present time). Thus the only remaining problem is that concerning the evacuating of our troops. In view, however, of the conditions you referred to in your message #622*, and upon taking into consideration the undoubted confusion in the future of the world, it will become apparent that a complete evacuation would be an impossibility. We do not believe that it will be an impossible task for us to come to some acceptable understanding with the United States at a later date.

In view of the fact that the "understanding" between the United States and Japan hinges on this one point, I would appreciate your giving this phase your further consideration.

Incidentally, in the course of a friendly discussion with a Cabinet official, he advised me that both the President and the Secretary of State are sincere in their desire to bring about an "understanding" between Japan and the United States and that the matter of the removal of the troops is the only thing that blocks the attainment of this goal.

In the opinion that the matter involved is of much importance, I submit my humble opinions concerning it to you.

23166

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 10-7-41 (2)

*JD-1: 5634 (S. I. S. #23073-75). Long 3 part summary of military-political-economic conditions with "free China".

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)
 To: Washington
 October 4, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #637

Re your #890*.

Please (make sure ?) immediately and suitably the following points:

1. Since the United States Government wishes to get our explanations regarding the fundamentals before entering upon the Japanese-American negotiations, theoretically speaking, as soon as we have satisfied it with our explanation we should be reaching the stage of actually opening the negotiations. As to the details of these fundamentals, we have already exchanged our views and so they should be clear. Now that only those points which the United States Government has pointed out remain difficult of agreement (namely, economic activity in the Pacific; withdrawal as well as stationing of troops, and the question of the Three-Power agreement), would it be all right for us to assume that the United States Government has a clear comprehension of the other points?

2. Now, as to the approval the Premier has given to the four basic principles, he has merely approved of them in principle. In other words, although in principle he considers them good, there may be differences of opinions when it comes to actually applying these four principles. The Premier stated that he would like to consider these differences at the time of the negotiations. In fact, it is on the presumption of doing so that we have been managing affairs domestically. Since this matter is of a delicate nature in its bearing upon the internal situation, I would like to have you see to it that the United States Government has no misunderstanding of it.

Army 23118

Trans. 10/6/41 (X)

* See S. I. S. #23101-#23109 inclusive and #23115-23116, inclusive. Text of American Government's statement to the Japanese Government.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 7 October 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #643 (In 3 parts, complete)

I requested the U. S. Ambassador in Tokyo to call on me on the 7th, and he complied. The following is the gist of our conversation, and I forward it to you for your information only.

"I am in receipt of the U. S. memorandum of the 2nd, and I (the Foreign Minister) assume that you (the U. S. Ambassador in Tokyo) have also received notification thereof from your home government. I would consider myself exceedingly fortunate if I were permitted to hear your opinions thereon", I said.

To this the Ambassador replied that he had received a resume of that memo from Washington, but that was all and for that reason he said he had no way of expressing his opinion. I, therefore, said that since the resume undoubtedly limited itself to the listing of all of the more important points, it should facilitate the forming of an opinion. I added that I was striving to reach an understanding through cooperation, in the same manner as is the Ambassador, not so much as a diplomat, but rather as a human being. From that viewpoint, what are the views of the U. S. Ambassador, I asked of him, and also asked him if he had not had some communication from his home government which would tend to explain or express opinions on the above mentioned resume.

The Ambassador said he had been cabled the resume only, and nothing more. Without seeing the entire memo, he said, he could not ascertain the tone thereof. He would be very happy if he could be permitted to read the full text, he said. Should, however, he be forced to express an opinion with his inadequate knowledge of the circumstances, he would be inclined to believe that the United States is trying to secure an agreement on the preliminary conditions.

I, therefore, replied that putting things bluntly, from the viewpoint of the sincere efforts we were making in this matter, we were not completely satisfied with the U. S. note referred to at present.

(Part 2)

By the above I do not imply that we do not trust the sincerity of the United States, I explained, but say so after taking into consideration the domestic and external circumstances of Japan.

The Ambassador then advised me that even as recently as on the 5th, he wrote up a fourteen page, 3000 word report of the various conditions in Japan based on what he had actually seen and heard himself during his many years of service in Japan. In it, he said that he fully described the real efforts that were being made by us in this matter. However, he did not dwell on this phase of the matter.

2. According to the U. S. memorandum of the 2nd, I continued, the Prime Minister of Japan allegedly stated that he "fully subscribed" to the Four Principles referred to during his conversations with the U. S. Ambassador on the 6th of last month. The record of the meeting, however, shows that the Premier stated that he was in accord with them only in principle. To this the Ambassador replied that being fully aware of the importance of every word of that interview, he had reported it absolutely accurately to his home government. I, therefore, said that it was because I agreed with him as to the importance of the matter that I wished to make this point clear. Our notes of the meeting clearly records that we agreed in principle only. The copies of the U. S. memorandum which were sent to various persons concerned for their perusal and study were corrected from "fully" to "in principle" so as to coincide with the original. We have already requested the Ambassador in the United States, I continued, to notify the United States of this correction. I am reporting this matter to His Excellency, I said, because I felt that he was concerned. The only reason we mentioned this matter to Ambassador Nomura was because this memorandum had been handed to him for delivery. There was absolutely no other motive in doing so, I said.

The U. S. Ambassador seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with my explanation and expressed his thanks for reporting it to him.

(Part 3)

Continuing, I said that though I had no intention of being too argumentative, there was one item I would like to question the Ambassador about. I pointed out that in doing so, I did not want the friendly relations between himself and myself to be altered in any manner.

After thus prefacing my remarks, I said that fundamentally speaking the Prime Minister's message was a private message addressed to a private party. How, then, I lightly pressed, was it that passages therefrom could be quoted in the memorandum which is an official note?

The Ambassador replied that he could see our point clearly and added that it must have been due to faulty handling of the various papers in the State Department. He said that that was entirely an on-the-spot assumption on his part. He went on to say that he would now be able to definitely state that the Prime Minister was in accord "in principle".

3. Returning to the matter concerning the "fully subscribed" quotation, the Ambassador started to say that he seemed to recall that when that matter was first brought up, Ambassador Nomura had accepted the "Four Principles" unconditionally. I, therefore, said that if there is some misunderstanding on the part of the United States through erroneous handling of some papers by our representative, it may become necessary to correct it at some future date. To attempt to do so now, though, I said, involves the danger of needlessly confusing the issue. (I referred to "Ambassador Nomura's draft" incident of 4 September as an example) and for this reason, I said that I thought it would be better if nothing were done about it at present.

23349

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 10-11-41 (1)

 [Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

October 8, 1941

Purple (CA)

Message to Berlin #873. Part 1 of 4.

Re my #708 *.

1. The Japanese American negotiations began under the conditions described in my aforementioned message during the Administration of the 2nd Konoye Cabinet. There was, however, a rupture caused by the occupation of French Indo-China. We hope by the penetration of French Indo-China to hasten the end of the China trouble; to break the Anglo-American encirclement by joint defense; and to procure raw materials. It is a measure taken in self defense. But England and the United States brought to bear against us measures equivalent to an economic blockade. Japanese-American relations deteriorated extremely and our internal situation was perilously affected. In the meantime, the European War took the trend of a protracted struggle. The fight between the Reich and the Soviet Union contrary to the calculations of Berlin reached a deadlock. Now the Soviet is going over to the Anglo Saxon camp and we must make ready to cope with this situation. Moreover commerce is disrupted between Europe and Asia and liaison between our country and Germany and Italy is for the time being severed.

Army 23221

Trans. 10/8/41 (S)

* See S. I. S. #20461-42 inclusive, giving the statement of the policy and views of the Imperial Government.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

October 8, 1941

Purple (CA)

Message to Berlin #873 Part 2 of 4

All the while England and the United States were strengthening their net about us and we could see no means of concluding the Sino-Japanese affair. It was under these conditions that the Imperial Government suddenly decided upon diplomatic negotiations to terminate their struggle with the Chinese; to establish an area of co-prosperity in East Asia; and to conserve our national resources in preparation for the future. We feel that it is necessary to open the way for a compromise in our relations with the United States.

2. When we concluded the Three Power Pact, we hoped while maintaining amicable relations with America, and to tell the truth through this very means, to conclude the China trouble; to win the Soviet over to the Japanese-German-Italian camp; to have Germany use her good offices between Tokyo and Moscow (STAHMER said that Germany would be an honest go-between and would be sure to bring about the solution of our troubles with the Kremlin and OTT sent us a letter to the effect that he himself was going to work for an understanding between Japan and the Soviet); to guarantee goods from the South Seas to Germany and Italy who, in turn, were to give us mechanical and technical assistance. But since then times have changed and unexpected events have taken place. All that remains unchanged is Japanese-American relations and that is about the only thing that could be patched up.

Army 23222

Trans. 10/8/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

October 8, 1941

Purple (CA)

Message to Berlin #873 Part 3 of 4

At the time Germany stated that she would not spare any effort to prevent a clash between Japan and the United States and that she would even do all she could to improve relations between the two countries (this was during the MATSUOKA-STAHMER talks.) Then Japan and Germany felt the need of preventing the United States from entering the war.

3. The objective of the Japanese-German-Italian Three Power Pact was to prevent the expansion of the European war, to restrain the United States from participating, and to establish universal peace. Statements exchanged at the time make this perfectly clear but now the war covers the face of Europe. The only placid expanse of water on earth is the Pacific. Under these circumstances, it is felt that it is up to both nations to probe into the causes of the trouble between their respective governments and to assure the harmony of the Pacific. It is further felt that this coincides with the spirit of the Three Power Pact.

Army 23223

Trans. 10/8/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Foreign Minister)

To: Washington

October 8, 1941

Purple (CA)

Message to Berlin #873. Part 4 of 4

4. It was with this view that the former cabinet began negotiations with Washington and still today we feel the necessity of continuing them. On the very occasion when Tokyo and Washington were arguing over our occupation of French Indo-China, Prince KONOYE was moved to reopen negotiations and messages were exchanged between him and President ROOSEVELT and ever since the respective Governments have been endeavoring to lay the groundwork for the opening of parleys through an exchange of opinions. We got our latest answer from Washington on the 4th of October and we are studying it now. It is not that we are divergent from our relations with the signatories of the Tri-Partite Pact but we are continuing our negotiations hoping to end the China affair. (The three principles of KONOYE envision a conclusion of hostilities with China through a basic treaty and the use of the United States to coerce the CHIANG regime, to establish an area of co-prosperity in greater East Asia, to procure materials, to prevent the expansion of the European war, to seal peace in the Pacific area and to prevent the United States from entering the war. Of course, however, we expect our ups and downs.) This is for your private information.

Relayed to Washington.

Army 23224

Trans. 10/8/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 8, 1941

Purple

#907 (Part 1 of 4)^a

(To be handled in government code. Departmental Secret)

Re your #637.^b

I will tell you more about this after I interview the Secretary of State a little later on. However, my views at present are as follows:

(1) According to the American memorandum of the 1st, the Americans realize that there is unanimity on the various principles and fundamentals which they have stuck to. However, they are dissatisfied because you did not express a desire to go into a detailed discussion. The Americans believe in the four principles as the basis on which relations between the two countries must be adjusted. The Americans consider that it is necessary to achieve unanimity on the various questions which have been fundamentally explored by both nations in the unofficial talks held so far in order to settle the Pacific question. They have always felt that if conversations between the leaders of the two countries are to be realized immediately, it must be definitely understood that these principles are to be applied to the concrete problems in the Pacific, and they desire a further clarification of our views.

Army 23319

Trans. 10/10/41 (1)

* For Part 3 of 4, see S. I. S. #23293.

† S. I. S. #23118 in which the Foreign Minister, TOYODA, asks Ambassador NOMURA to immediately clarify with the U. S. Government two points.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 8, 1941

Purple

#907 (Part 2 of 4)

(To be handled in government code. Departmental Secret)

Thus, they hope that we will make ourselves clearer on these points. In our proposal of the 6th and in the explanation thereof, not only did we limit them and narrow what we had discussed in our informal conversations thus far, but we also curtailed extremely the guarantees we offered concerning the aforementioned principles. We equivocated concerning guarantees that we would not engage in armed aggression. We limited the area to which the principle of non-discriminatory treatment would apply in the Pacific, and on the excuse that China was geographically near to us, we limited the very principle itself. On the question of stationing and evacuating troops in and from China (including French Indo-China), the Americans are making some demands which we in principle have objections to. Moreover, they figure that they must be much surer of our attitude toward the three-power pact. These points you probably already know.

Army 23320

Trans. 10/10/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 8, 1941

Purple

#907 (Part 3 of 4) *

(To be handled in government code.)

Judging by the impression I got from the above mentioned facts and my contacts with them so far, they figure on first bringing about unanimity on the fundamental questions on which our two countries have so far failed to see eye to eye, and then gradually to turn to the other matters. They evidently feel that so long as there is disagreement on the aforementioned points it would be vain and futile to discuss the various other problems, therefore, up to now the United States has done no more than express her opinions on the other matters in the proposal of June 11. (As I have wired you, some changes were made in the last clause.)

In their proposal of June 21, they made it evident that they were going to stick to this as the basis for negotiations. The latest reply of theirs shows, I am sure, that they are entirely disregarding our own proposal of the 25th. This shows that they are going to stick to their ideas as they stand; however, it will still be necessary for us to talk through certain matters concerning, A. The matter mentioned in the annex of the clause concerning the China incident. B. Discontinuing activities designed to help CHIANG. C. The stipulation concerning Nanking Treaty in the clause concerning the China incident (an agreement between Japan and China); joint mediation and the right of self-protection mentioned in the clause concerning our attitude toward the European war; the question of eliminating the annex to the clause concerning commerce between the two nations.)

Army 23293

Trans. 10/10/41 (7)

* Parts 1 and 2 not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
October 8, 1941
Purple
#907 (Part 4 of 4)

Concerning the four principles mentioned in (2) during the conversation mentioned in your #634^a, the American Ambassador talked like I had already reached an understanding with Secretary HULL on this. As I have told you in various messages, they shelved the question in both letter and spirit, but on April 16 when Secretary HULL presented me with these four points (see my #277^b), I certainly was in no position to accept such a proposal before getting instructions from my home government, nor would I give the impression that we would accept them. Please note that. Nevertheless, these are very abstract principles, and I figured that there would be some elasticity in their application. This country applies them with prudence to other foreign nations; for example, in peace conferences, discussions of principles are extremely circumlocutionary, so I do not think you need to be troubled over this.

Army 23321

Trans. 10/10/41 (2)

^a The number is apparently wrong, as the subject matter of the message mentioned is unrelated.

^b S. I. S. #17168 in which NOMURA gives his views on the attitude for policies of the United States Government, and the four basic points which the United States advocates.

[Secret]

From: Washington.

To: Tokyo.

9 October 1941

(Purple—CA)

#915

Re your #637*

This morning, the 9th, I called on Hull and relayed the matter contained in your instructions, and at the same time brought up the points discussed at the White House on 3 September. The Secretary, in reply, merely repeated that non-discriminatory treatment should extend over the entire Pacific area. He added that geographical proximity, etc., could be interpreted in many ways. He said that he would have Ballantine and others make a detailed reply to me later after the papers I submitted were carefully perused and studied. (Hamilton and Ballantine are supposed to call on me this afternoon.)

Referring to the matter of evacuating or stationing of troops in China, I carefully and in detail described the political situation in China from the Japanese viewpoint and pointed out that stationing of our troops in certain parts of China was absolutely essential. I requested that this point be given a reconsideration in this light.

I also stated that the Prime Minister had stated that he was in accord with the "Four Principles" in principle only, but Hull indicated that he was already aware of this fact.

*JD-1: 5665 (S. I. S. #23118). Re the U. S. note of 2 October it is assumed there is agreement with the U. S. on all points of the negotiations for an "Understanding Agreement", except evacuation from China, and the Tripartite Pact. Is that true? Konoye approves in principle the Four Principles laid down by the U. S. and expected to iron out their application in conference.

23437

JD-1: 5805

(D) Navy Trans. 10-13-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

9 October 1941

(Purple)

#917 (In 2 parts, complete)

For official code handling.

Secret outside of department.

Re my #915*.

On the 9th, Hamilton (accompanied by Ballantine and Schmidt) called on me on instructions of the Secretary of State, and I tried, on the basis of your #637 and along the general lines of your telephone conversation, to ascertain their intentions. They went into minute explanations pointing out that the U. S. Government's attitude is made plain in the memorandum of October 2nd, namely that this government is seeking to promote peace in the Pacific on the basis of the so-called Four Principles, and that the views of the United States in regard to such problems as Japan's forced advances northward and southward, indiscriminatory treatment in the Pacific, withdrawal of troops in China, and the Tripartite Treaty, have their origin in a fundamental concern with regard to the future. They stated that these principles apply to the entire Pacific area, and that there is no reason for applying different principles in the various areas of the Pacific. In reply to my question as to whether or not the United States is satisfied with our explanation in regard to all other points aside from those pointed out in the memorandum of the 2nd, they replied that they would like to have this ascertained from the basic attitude of the U. S. Government which is indicated in the memorandum of the 2nd, that this memorandum was given careful study by the U. S. Government and that this represents all that the U. S. Government has to say and that therefore there is nothing more for them to add. They emphasized the fact that they think that the U. S. Government does not now desire to enter upon any more discussions in regard to details, and that if there is a "meeting of minds" between the two nations in regard to the interpretation of the four basic principles, the other questions will find a natural understanding; but they avoided giving much in the way of definite replies to my questions.

Of course, they did state that there might be points in the proposal of June 21st which would need revision because of subsequent changes in the situation, but that in its larger aspects there has been no change and added further that after having studied these four basic principles, if Japan should reconsider the September 6th proposal and submit a second proposal, the United States stands ready to give it careful consideration.

With the situation as thus stated, I think we might as well proceed on the assumptions mentioned in my #907.

23438

JD-1:

(F) Navy Trans. 10-14-41 (2)

*JD-1: 5805 (S. I. S. #23437).

JD-1: 5665 (S. I. S. #23118). Re the U. S. note of 2 October, it is assumed there is agreement with the U. S. on all points of the negotiations for an "Understanding Agreement", except evacuation from China, and the Tripartite Pact. Is that true? Konoye approves in principle the Four Principles laid down by the U. S. and expected to iron out their application in conference.

JD-1: 5740 (S. I. S. #23319). In reply to Tokyo query whether the U. S. agrees to all points except "evacuation from China", Nomura explains in detail his ideas of the U. S. position and reasons for refusing the leader's meeting. Japan has equivocated and limited her agreement to the Four Principles the U. S. insist must be the basis of an understanding.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)

To: Washington

October 10, 1941.

Purple (CA)

#650

Re your #915*.

1. Slowly but surely the question of these negotiations has reached the decisive stage. I am doing my utmost to bring about a decision on them and the situation does not permit of this senseless procrastination. The difficult points must be clarified now. My #637^b and related messages were sent you for that reason. What I wish of you now is to find out as soon as possible the opinions of the United States concerning the matters mentioned in those messages. (Otherwise, as I have told you two or three times, it will be impossible for me to decide upon our policy.) Yes, I know you have told me your opinions quite sufficiently in a number of messages, but what I want is the opinions of the American officials and none other.

2. In your caption message you do not tell me whether or not we have a chance to proceed with these parleys. You do not tell me how HULL answers. You do not tell me anything else I need to know for my future consideration. You must wire me in detail and immediately the minutes of these conversations, what they say and the prospect for negotiations. Hereafter, when you interview HULL or the President of the United States, please take WAKASUGI or IGUCHI with you and please send me without any delay the complete minutes of what transpires.

Army 23384

Trans. 10-13-41 (X)

* Not available.

* S. I. S. #23118 in which the Foreign Minister, TOYODA, asks Ambassador NOMURA to clarify immediately with the U. S. Government two points.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 10, 1941

Purple (CA)

#923

I have read your #650*.

What they want is the maintenance of peace in the Pacific and they claim that our policy is semi-pacific and semi-aggressive. They say that our proposal of September 6 diverged greatly from preceding statements, and that it will be out of the question to agree on any preparatory talks on the basis of such a proposal. In addition to the three matters mentioned in your message, it seems that there are many other objections. I have repeatedly asked them to clarify what I do not understand, but they won't answer. At any rate, however, I feel safe at least in saying that they are demanding that we compromise in accordance with the lines laid down in their memorandum of October 2. I am sure that there is not the slightest chance on earth of them featuring a conference of leaders so long as we do not make that compromise.

In other words, they are not budging an inch from the attitude they have always taken; however, they act as if they were ready to consider at any time any plan of ours which would meet the specifications of their answer of the 2nd.

I think that you fully realize the situation I described in my #917* yesterday. However, I am sending you this for your information.

Army 23355

Trans. 10/11/41 (7)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)

To: Washington

October 12, 1941

Purple (CA)

54

On the afternoon of the 10th I asked Minister GREW to call on me. For your private information I spoke to him as follows, and as I have asked you before, I want you to continue your efforts to lead the United States officials to present us with a clear-cut proposal:

1. "On the 3rd we received the American memorandum of the 2nd and have given it our most cordial consideration. It is a little difficult for us to grasp the important points of it, but as best we can make out, they are (1) garrisoning and evacuating soldiers; (2) the English, Japanese, American attitude toward the European war; and (3) non-discrimination in commerce in China.

2. "Now we wish to put all our cards on the table and to proceed with negotiations. If the United States has any misgivings on those three points, or on any others, I am sure it will be possible for us to straighten them out. I would like to present to the treaty officials a proposal having some possibilities of adoption. Concerning those three points, there is also a question of time. There is no use in exchanging official letters, notes and other documents as we now are. If we would only start out with a conference of leaders, such difficulties as exist may fade away automatically."

3. The American Ambassador said "The United States is a free country and we have to carefully consider public opinion." I retorted "Well, it is none the less so with us. It is true that we are under the thumb of public opinion, but if we can agree with the United States on a conference, public opinion will, of itself, calm down and no such unrest as now exists will continue. If we go on this way, it will be hard to say what the extremists may do."

4. I passed on to the Army Your Honor's communication concerning French Indo-China, but so far I have received no reply. I expect it soon.

Army 23517

Trans. 10/15/41 (X)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
13 October 1941
(Purple) (CA)
#658

Re my #657*

I presume that your talks with Welles will cover the U. S.-Japanese negotiations in toto. We are particularly anxious to be advised as soon as possible, as I have mentioned in previous messages referring to this subject, on the points listed below. (The situation at home is fast approaching a crisis and it is becoming absolutely essential that the two leaders meet if any adjustment of Japanese-U. S. relations is to be accomplished. I cannot go into details now, but please bear this fact in mind).

1. May we assume that the United States has no particular disagreements other than the three points which are under consideration at the present time?

2. Submitting by the United States a counter proposal to our proposal of -- September. (As you are well aware, our proposal of -- September embodied our claims in the form submitted by the United States as their proposal on 21 June. Should the United States be reluctant to submit a clearcut counter proposal to ours referred to above, we should request that they submit a basically new proposal immediately).

Of point 1 set forth above, we are particularly interested in being advised of what the United States exactly desires concerning the matter of evacuation or garrisoning of troops.

23421

JD-1: 5779

(D) Navy Trans. 10-13-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 5778 (S. I. S. #23420). "We shall cable our instructions with regard to the talks referred to, subsequently. Please be so advised."

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
13 October 1941
(Purple—CA)
#662

We have made the necessary arrangements for a telephone connection between Chief of the American Bureau of the Foreign Office, Terasaki, and Minister Wakasugi, for noon (Japan time) on the 14th. On this occasion, the following passwords and codes will be used.

U. S. attitude
Is reasonable

MARIKO
OTAKU NI ASOBI NI KU-RUYA

(Is Mariko coming to pay you a social call?)

U. S. attitude
Is unreasonable

MARIKO
ASOBI NI KO NU

(Mariko is not coming to pay a social call.)

General outlook of the negotiations

SONO GO NO KŌSI NO
KENKŌ

(The health of the Minister since then.)

The Four Principles

SITIFUKUJIN NO KAKE
MONO

(Japanese scroll of the Seven Luck Gods.)

Will they stick to it?

KI NI IRIMASITA KA

(Did it meet with your approval?)

Is there some way through it?

KI NI IRIMASEN KA

(Did it not meet with your approval?)

23514

JD-1: 5840

(D) Navy Trans. 10-14-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 13 October 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #663

Re my #658*

I pointed out in my message referred to in the heading that circumstances do not permit even an instant's delay. Please, therefore, submit a report on the rough outline and the general tone of the conference between Wakasugi and Welles immediately, and dispatch a cable giving the details, subsequently.

23443

JD-1: 5815

(D) Navy Trans. 10-14-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 5779 (S. I. S. #23421).

[Secret]

From: Washington
 To: Tokyo
 13 October 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #939 (In 3 parts, complete)

The details of the Wakasugi-Welles conversations will be reported in a subsequent cable*, but in the meantime, I shall submit this which concerns the two points on which you requested information in your message #658. In view of the fact that the talks lasted for over two hours, will you please await the subsequent message for the details of the tone, etc. of the talks.

In general, the tone of the talks were friendly and frank. Welles said that there is no change in the President's expressed desire of meeting with the Premier if the three points can be agreed upon. He added that Secretary Hull is in full agreement on this point, too.

(1) As far as he knew, Welles said, there were no obstacles to the materialization of the leaders' conference, other than the three points. Wakasugi said that he got the impression that Secretary Hull was of the opinion that there would be one or two more points which would have to be cleared up when the preliminary arrangements were brought up to date, and asked Welles about that. Welles replied that he had not been advised by Hull of those points but that he would ascertain them and then advise us.

(Part 2)

With regard to the matter of withdrawing or stationing troops in China, Wakasugi said that the U. S. attitude had been made clear in her proposal of 21 June and again in her oral statement of 2 October. We have no intention of arguing about that point any further, Wakasugi continued, but that he would like to ask one question about it. This question was his own personal one as an individual and was not instigated by or put with the knowledge of either the Government or the Ambassador.

So saying, Wakasugi said that when a nation had been sending fighting forces to another over a long period of years, it was exceedingly difficult, from a practical standpoint, to suddenly evacuate them.

Even if such a program were to be carried out, years and months would be required before its completion, Wakasugi said, adding that Welles, who has had long years of experience as a diplomat should well understand that.

Moreover, Wakasugi continued, the matter of whether troops were to be removed or not was a matter involving Japan and China. Should, therefore, the United States be assured the withdrawal of troops by Japan, would the United States be willing to leave the details up to Japan and China to decide?

(Part 3)

Welles replied that that would depend entirely upon Japan's sincerity. If Japan is truly sincere in her assurance of troop evacuation there no doubt would be ways of coming to a successful agreement as to ways and means of carrying it out.

1. The United States has no intention of making any counter proposals other than those she has already submitted to Japan on 21 June and the Oral Statement of 2 October. The above two proposals were the result of careful and thorough consideration. However, it is in the realm of possibility that if the objectives contained in those proposals are kept intact the wording may, under certain circumstances, be altered. The United States' objections to the Japanese proposals of — September and 25 September are based on the fact that they considerably restrict the terms contained in the two U. S. proposals—which incidentally, contained the terms of the earlier Japanese proposals—referred to above.

23704

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 10-20-41 (1)

*Available, dated 13 October. (A 6 part message, only Part 4 available at present.)

JD-1: 5779 S. I. S. #23421. Since the situation at home is fast approaching a crisis, in your talks with Welles cover the entire subject of the U. S.-Jap negotiations, and in particular, just what the U. S. wants re evacuation or garrisoning of troops in China.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

13 October 1941

(Purple)

#941 (In 6 parts, Part 4 only available).

5. Of the three points, please be advised of the matter pertaining to withdrawing or stationing of our troops in China, by my previous report.

6. Wakasugi, therefore, said that in the final analysis, the stumbling block lies in the fact that whereas the United States is interested in agreeing upon basic principles first, Japan is insisting that the matter of primary importance is the clearing up of the outstanding differences first and then to discuss the generalities such as basic principles, etc. The truth of the matter is, Wakasugi continued, it is indeed rarely that a basic principle can be carried as such to any satisfactory degree. Moreover, he pointed out, without agreements or concrete factors, an agreement on principle is without meaning.

To this, the Undersecretary said that the basic principle should first be agreed upon, after which the actual problems can be fitted to it for individual agreements * * * (2 lines missed) * * *

 (Wakasugi pointed out that) our proposal of 6 September expressed a willingness to sacrifice a practically unanimous desire of the people of Japan for a northward and/or southward military move, for the sake of an adjusted relationship with the United States. This was indeed a bold stroke and probably one which a subsequent cabinet, regardless of its nature, would not dare to duplicate.

In view of this daring step, wouldn't the United States be willing to display some boldness in behalf of great statesmanship?, Wakasugi asked.

The Undersecretary said that he fully appreciated our moves and that the United States felt considerable encouragement therefrom. However, the United States has experienced disappointing reverses he said, pointing to the Japanese occupation of French Indo-China, even after matters had progressed to the point of the United States submitting the 21 June proposal.

Wakasugi, therefore, pointed out that the occupation of French Indo-China had a direct bearing on the China incident. He explained that, with a view to our security, we took this step with the agreement of the Government of France.

23817

JD-1: 5967

(D) Navy Trans. 10-21-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 14, 1941

(Purple)

#943 (Part 1 of 2)* (To be handled in Government Code)

I had an interview with Rear Admiral TURNER. If I sum up what he told me, it is this:

"What the United States wants is not just a pretense but a definite promise. Should a conference of the leaders of the two governments be held without a definite preliminary agreement, and should, in the meantime, an advance be made into Siberia, the President would be placed in a terrible predicament. Japan speaks of peace in the Pacific and talks as if she can decide matters independently, and so it would seem to me that Japan could set aside most of her obligations toward the Three-Power Alliance. As to the question of withdrawing or stationing troops, since it is impossible to withdraw troops all at once, it would seem that a detailed agreement could be arranged between Japan and China for a gradual withdrawal."

He speculated on the various difficulties which Japan had to face internally. It seems that this opinion of his has also been given to the Secretary of State.

Army 23570

Trans. 10/16/41 (2)

* For part 2 see S. I. S. #23516.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 14, 1941

(Purple)

#943 (Part 2 of 2)*

He said that should the Russo-German war suddenly end and should Germany offer Great Britain peace, it would be after all a German peace and England would not now accept it. Now, this man is a responsible fellow in an important position and I take it that this is the view of the Navy. On the other hand, HOOVER and his following consider that should Moscow make a separate peace with Berlin and should Berlin then turn to London with generous peace terms, this whole fray would end with unimaginable quickness. CASTLE^b told me that HUGH GIBSON feels the same way and that Japan, too, should be on the alert for this possibility. This, however, I take to be a minority view entertained by the Isolationists. MOORE^c reports that Secretary HULL told Senator THOMAS that he is proceeding patiently with the Japanese-American negotiations, but he hopes that Japan will not mistake this for a sign of weakness on America's part, and that no answer had arrived to the memo of October 2nd. KIPLINGER^d reports that there is a very good basis for rumors of a cessation of hostilities between Russia and Germany and that the chances for war between Japan and the United States are fifty-fifty.

Army 23516

Trans. 10-15-41 (7)

* Part 1 of 2 not available.

^b Former U. S. Ambassador to Japan.^c American legal advisor to Japanese Embassy in Washington.^d A Washington newspaper correspondent.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

15 October 1941

(Purple—CA)

#667

Regarding your #939* and #941.

Your message has clarified many points regarding the situation and the matter can be charged up to Welles' state of agitation. However as I feel that further conversations with Wakasugi might be continued, please maintain contact and also bear the following points in mind:

(1) If we quibble over the argument set forth in paragraph 6 of your message #941, it may give them an opening to insist on having the Four Principles included in the text proper of the agreement.

However, since not only have the so-called basic American stipulations been omitted from the preamble of the American proposal of June 21st, but the reference is made in the final clause to the effect that the principles (stipulations) contained in the proposal of June 21st are also included in the document of October 2nd. We wish to hold to this and should take advantage of the American desire to use the proposal of June 21st as the basis of negotiations and continue our conversations on the basis of the same proposal, without taking up the Four Principles independently.

(2) Our proposal is nothing more than our proposal of September 16th incorporated into the American proposal of June 21st. However, there is no need for us to make any further move until the other side decides that it is impossible to clarify the concrete proposal any further. Therefore please discuss the points of variance between our proposal and that of June 21st and ascertain the United States intentions regarding the various points involved in the concrete proposal, and reply results.

(3) Due to the nature of this negotiation we wish to have it handled between Wakasugi and Welles, for the time being, and should progress warrant, to transfer the whole negotiation to be handled between you and the Secretary of State.

23706

JD-1: 5933

(A) Navy Trans. 10-20-41 (2)

*JD-1: 5929 (S. I. S. #23704).

Available, dated 13 October. (A 6 part message, only Part 4 available at present.)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

15 October 1941

(Purple)

#950

Chief of Office routing.

Regarding Your #667*.

Tomorrow afternoon (16th) Wakasugi is expected to confer with Welles. Yesterday (14th) "O" is said to have conferred with the President and also with the heads of the Far Eastern Affairs. (For your information).

The Military Attache here has been instructed by the headquarters in Tokyo to advise us not to yield an inch in our stand regarding the question of the evacuation of troops. They are apprehensive that we have not emphasized enough our stand regarding it and urge us to lay special stress on this point.

It goes without saying that we fully understand our country's stand regarding this question and both Colonel Iwasa and I have repeatedly informed the other side of this.

However, when Wakasugi conferred with Welles on the 13th, he purposely did not go deeply into the subject of the evacuation of troops because it happens to be one of the three major questions which have been gone over many times before and the purpose of the above conference was to clarify certain points in the United States proposal in order to ascertain their intentions. You may be assured that we do not intend to minimize the importance of this question nor to effect any compromise.

At tomorrow's conference we intend to bring up this question for discussion once again.

Should you have any inquiry from the Military regarding this matter please explain the above in order to avoid any misunderstanding. I have already explained the situation as stated above to our Military Attache.

23708

JD-1: 5935

(A) Navy Trans. 10-20-41 (7)

*JD-1: 5933 (S. I. S. #23706).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)
To: Washington
October 16, 1941
Purple (CA)
#671

Although I have been requested by both the German and Italian Ambassadors in Tokyo to give them confidential information on the Japanese-American negotiations, I have, in consideration of the nature of the negotiations, been declining to do so. However, early this month, following the German attacks on American merchant ships and the consequent (revival ?) of the movement for the revision of the Neutrality Act, the German authorities demanded that the Japanese Government submit to the American Government a message to the effect that the Japanese Government observes that if the ROOSEVELT Administration continues to attack the Axis Powers increasingly, a belligerent situation would inevitably arise between Germany and Italy on the one hand and the United States on the other, and this would provide the reasons for the convocation of the duties envisioned in the Three Power agreement and might lead Japan to join immediately the war in opposition to the United States. We have not, as yet, submitted this message because, in view of the Japanese-American negotiations, we found it necessary to consider carefully the proper timing as well as wording of the message. The German authorities have been repeatedly making the same request and there are reasons which do not permit this matter to be postponed any longer. While Japan on the one hand finds it necessary to do something in the way of carrying out the duties placed upon her by the Three Power Alliance she had concluded with Germany, on the other hand, she is desirous of making a success of the Japanese-American negotiations. Under the circumstances, we can do no other than to warn the United States at an appropriate moment in such words as are given in my separate telegram #672 * and as would not affect the Japanese-American negotiations in one way or another. This message is a secret between me and you.

Army 23631

Trans. 10/17/41 (7)

* See S. I. S. #23571—English text of a message from the Imperial Japanese Government to the American Government.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
October 16, 1941
Purple (English Text)
#672

The Imperial Japanese Government has repeatedly affirmed to the American Government that the aim of the Tripartite Pact is to contribute toward the prevention of a further extension of the European war. Should, however, the recent tension in the German-American relations suffer aggravation, there would arise a distinct danger of a war between the two powers, a state of affairs over which Japan, as a signatory to the Tripartite Pact, naturally cannot help entertain a deep concern. Accordingly, in its sincere desire that not only the German-American relations will cease further deterioration but the prevailing tension will also be alleviated as quickly as possible, the Japanese Government is now requesting the earnest consideration of the American Government.

Army 23571

Trans. 10/16/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 16, 1941

Purple

#959 (Part 1 of 2)

On the evening of the 15th TERASAKI was invited to the home of Admiral TURNER, who, as you know, is a most trusted friend of Admiral STARK. In the course of their conversation TURNER said:

(a) "If HITLER gains control over Europe, it will constitute a direct threat to Central and South America, and America must certainly fight this. Therefore, it is the present policy of the United States to prevent the enfeeblement of Great Britain's national resources (including the Far East) by assisting her in stopping Germany."

(b) "It is said that the present Japanese cabinet is a strong one; however, it is doubtful whether it has the support of the Army, and if the Military finds itself at variance with the opinions of the cabinet, the cabinet might be overthrown at any time. Therefore, the United States cannot help feeling a little trepidation in broaching any negotiations with the Japanese Government under these circumstances."

(c) "It is urgent that a formula be drawn up on the basis of a fifty-fifty compromise between Tokyo and Washington." (TURNER does not think that we are compromising.)

Army 23715

Trans. 10-20-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 16, 1941

Purple

#959 (Part 2 of 2)

RETRANSLATION

TERASAKI explained that some Americans had already questioned him about the permanence of the present cabinet but that this was beside the point because to broach the Japanese-American negotiations while doubting the permanence of the cabinet was putting the cart before the horse. He said that at present, when mutual doubts were rife, particularly in the United States, the United States ought certainly to exercise statesmanship, and continued, "The United States is exceedingly idealistic concerning the Far East. Aiding China might be called a question of principle, but if I may say so, this talk of principles is a sort of hobby among the rich. If it's not a question of principle, all I can conclude is that you all are determined to make us fight with China until we are exhausted. On the other hand, you have followed a very, very realistic policy in Central America. Forgetting the history of Panama for a moment, we can find plenty of present examples proving what I say. Well, China is not an over-simplified question of principle with us Japanese. It is a question of our life. We have already fought there for four years. You went to Japan on the Astoria. I am sure you know something of the temperament of the Japanese. Once a Japanese is in a corner, he will forget all interest in life and death and fight back with fury. I know that we are much poorer than you Americans in material things. I don't know what the result of Japanese-American war might be, but even though we lost, I can tell you we would put up an awful fight. If we do not achieve what we are trying to do, it may come to that. Now if you Americans would only extend your hand of friendship to us a little, you could have our lasting amity; otherwise we may turn out to be permanent enemies.

my 23716

Trans. 10/22/41 (2)

[Secret]

om: Washington (Nomura)

: Tokyo

October 16, 1941

urple

62. (Part 1 of 5) (Extremely Urgent)

By previous arrangement WAKASUGI, HULL and WELLES had a conference lasting two hours beginning at 5:00 p. m., on the 16th. The substance of their talk was as follows: (Probably because he had received news of our Cabinet's general resignation, WELLES said that he would like to talk with WAKASUGI in the presence of Secretary HULL. He led WAKASUGI to HULL's room and they talked together.)

1. HULL asked the circumstances of the Cabinet's general resignation and wished to know what the outlook for the new Cabinet was. WAKASUGI said that all we had received was a public announcement of the general resignation and as yet no detailed news had reached us. WAKASUGI continued, "No matter what sort of Cabinet it is, however, it is impossible to leave Japanese-American relations in their present state. The world being in its present condition, particularly affected by the China problem, our people cannot continue undecided as they now are in the face of American opposition. They demanded of our Government that would take a definite stand either to the right or to the left. There is no mistake about that. If no unanimity can be discovered between our two nations, it would be hard to say in which direction the wind will blow. I wanted to talk with the Under-Secretary today and see if we could not find some points of agreement between your proposal of June 21st and our proposal of September 14th. That is why I came."

my 23711

Trans. 10-20-41 (2)

[Secret]

om: Washington (Nomura)

: Tokyo

October 16, 1941

urple

62. (Part 2 of 5) (Extremely Urgent)

HULL spent half an hour recounting the substance of his conversations so far and then went on to say, "The United States is certainly not playing along with a policy of procrastination. I earnestly wish to see peaceful and normal political relations reestablished."

lished between Japan and the United States. In Europe HITLER is trying to set up a new order by force of arms. Now, if you Japanese also are attempting to set up a new regime in the Far East by force of arms, this world is becoming cramped indeed. We cannot stand by and approve this course of events with equanimity. We stand for non-discrimination in trade and for freedom of the seas and are opposed to all of these militaristic policies. One of the hardest things to reconcile in Japanese-American relations is the fact that, while proclaiming the maintenance of peace, Japan actually carries on a military invasion. There are so many military expansionists now among the Japanese people and among influential people there that I doubt if it would be possible for Japan to cooperate on a new peaceful policy." WAKASUGI then said, "It is true that there are those who advocate expansion northward or southward; however, ever since we have been a naval power foreign nations have lined up our neighbors as colonies of theirs to oppose us. Recent events show how this economic pressure has again brought us to grief. All we have done is to follow the trend necessary for the national security and existence of our people. As a measure for self preservation we had to get necessary materials. Do not think that we deliberately embarked on a military campaign with any joy.

Army 23712

Trans. 10-20-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 October 16, 1941
 Purple (Extremely Urgent)
 #962 (Part 3 of 5)

"The United States seems to have an idea that in order to establish an understanding with Japan on these important questions, she must stop military moves northward and southward, but unless the United States ceases measuring everything by her own yardstick and understands Japan's peculiar position, and unless she shows a friendly attitude in lifting the limitations on the settlement of the China question which faces Japan, as well as commercial limitations, the situation will inevitably continue to grow worse."

3. WELLES urged HULL himself to continue an explanation of the three points he had made, and HULL repeated that the present object of the United States is to defeat Hitlerism; in short, (a) to abolish all militarism, and (b) to bring about equality of treatment and opportunity throughout the whole Pacific area, including China. He showed quite a bit of understanding of Japan's position with respect to the Tripartite Alliance. He seemed, however, loathe to go too deeply into the question of peace between Japan and China because he has always been an advocate of nonintervention in the internal affairs of other powers. He asked if there was not some Chinese with whom he (WAKASUGI) could discuss these matters directly. WAKASUGI, however, said that although he knew both AMBASSADOR HU SHIH and SOONG TSE-WEN, he was not able to discuss the relations of the two countries with them. HULL seemed to understand this and said that in any case this would have to be worked out between Japan and China.

Army 23713

Trans. 10/20/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 16, 1941

Purple (Extremely Urgent)

962 (Part 4 of 5)*

WAKASUGI then went on to say that it would be very difficult for us to evacuate China. He told them it was very necessary to keep troops there. He went on to explain the activities of the Communist forces in the north as described in your messages and by the Naval Attache. He told them that the Communists were like a cancerous growth on the development of China. He explained that we had to keep forces and to protect the lives, property, and commercial interests of both Japanese and foreigners. HULL then asked, "Well, if you did not take your troops away and left them there for a long time, how would the Chinese take it?" WAKASUGI said, "What the Chinese are most interested in is the safety of their lives and a guaranteed livelihood." He went on to say, "So far as the maintenance of peace is concerned, the Chinese do not care in the hands of what people it is. It is apparently being reported to the President that the Communist Party is engaged merely in educational activities. However, this is a tragic error. What the Communists are trying to do is to destroy Chinese society and industry at the very roots. All the Chinese fear this exceedingly." HULL, however, countered by saying, "In the past we, too, stationed some soldiers in Central America and left them there as long as ten years, but the results were bad, and we brought them out. Since then we have found it more profitable to practice the "Good Neighbor Policy." He did not appear to wish to discuss this matter any further and seemed to think that this should be thrashed out between ourselves and the Chinese. WELLES then asked, "Well, have you any other questions besides those three which you wish to discuss?" and HULL answered, "None in particular."

4. WELLES told HULL the desire of WAKASUGI to look into the differences and points of agreement in the Japanese-American proposals. HULL immediately agreed. He was all in favor of having the officials concerned in this business convene and work out the details immediately, but WAKASUGI said that when the officials concerned on both sides had met before, all they had done was waste their time in arguments without any results. He said that the time would not permit of such procrastination and that he would, for the time being, like to confine his discussions to important questions only and to discuss them with the Under Secretary alone.

Army 23714

Trans. 10/20/41 (2)

* Part 5 not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 17 October 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #682

The Cabinet has reached a decision to resign as a body. At this time I wish to thank Your Excellency and your entire staff for all the efforts you have made.

The resignation was brought about by a split within the Cabinet. It is true that one of the main items on which opinion differed was on the matter of stationing troops or evacuating them from China. However, regardless of the make-up of the new Cabinet, negotiation with the United States shall be continued along the lines already formulated. There shall be no changes in this respect.

Please, therefore, will you and your staff work in unison and a single purpose, with even more effort, if possible, than before.

23677

JD-1:5923

(D) Navy Trans. 10-18-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 17 October 1941
 (Purple)
 #966 (In 6 parts, complete)

Wakasugi met and talked with Hull and Welles for about an hour and a half, from 4:30 p. m. on the 17th. The following is the gist of their talk:

1. Wakasugi stated that he would like to further discuss the three points involved in the U. S.-Japanese negotiations with the understanding that neither side commit itself to what is said here in view of the fact that we were not in receipt of instructions from the new cabinet as yet. Hull expressed his agreement to this proposal and then inquired what the outstanding points were in the respective proposals.

In reply, Wakasugi read those paragraphs pertaining to the right of self-defense under the terms of the Tripartite Pact as contained in our proposal of 25 September, and the U. S. proposal of 21 June. He went on to explain the features in accordance with the various instructions from Tokyo, pointing out that we had made the right of self-defense on which the U. S. placed much emphasis, a mutual right. Did that not satisfy the U. S. demands?, Wakasugi asked.

Hull replied that during the tenure of the former Foreign Minister it was loudly broadcast that the purpose of the Tripartite Pact was to prevent the United States from entering the war. Since the United States may be forced to enter the war for self-defense purposes, the United States could not help but have doubts as to Japan's true motives. The United States has no intention of taking military aggression against any nation; her only intention is to consider ways and means of defending herself, he explained repeatedly.

Wakasugi, therefore, pointed out that fundamentally the thing called "right of self-defense" was put in motion in the direction it is intended to be used by the state which invokes its use. Therefore,

It is natural that depending on the intentions of another, we should restrain ourselves from fulfilling our duties under the terms of an agreement.

That is why we definitely established the fact in our proposal that our intentions are strictly self-preservation and that application of any phases thereof, would be absolutely on behalf of self-preservation. Self-preservation, as we have used the term, implies that Japan and Japan alone shall determine the means of carrying it out without depending on any foreign country whether it be Britain the United States or Germany, or any other. There are no other implications or interpretations to the phrases from our viewpoint.

Fundamentally, Wakasugi continued, wasn't it a self-evident fact that political agreements such as the Tripartite Pact cannot limit the signatories to any political commitments against a third country?

In the light of the Imperial Rescript published at the time of the signing of the Tripartite Pact, the spirit and the aims of said Pact should be evident. In the final analysis, that Pact's real mission is the contribution to world peace and does not support any intent of aggression and aggrandizement.

Hull listened carefully to Wakasugi's detailed explanations. Apparently the Secretary suspects that, basically, the nature of the Pact could be twisted at will to suit the needs of either a Japanese cabinet favoring military aggression or a cabinet favoring peace. Wakasugi, therefore, asked whether it was not true that unless suspicions were allayed, it would be impossible to come to agreements with any country. Was it not true, he continued, that when viewed through eyes of suspicion there would be much that could be questioned, even in the so-called defense measures of the United States?

In any event, it was agreed that both of the proposals in question shall be given careful study after which a reply would be submitted.

2. Hull places the most emphasis on matters pertaining to non-discrimination in trade. He urged that we listen carefully to Welles' explanation of how Japan would actually profit by such a system. Hull then went on to point out that materialization of the non-discrimination in trade matters has been his main objective since his assumption of post many years ago and described the progress he has made in various quarters. As an example, of the success of his program, he pointed to the recently signed trade agreement with Argentina. He seemed particularly proud of this accomplishment and added that even the self-interested British appeasement policy had been prevented in Central and South America. (What was meant exactly by this was not made clear).

Hull went on to say that if this policy were limited merely to the Southwest Pacific area, it would not be of much value. Unless this principle is applied to the entire Pacific area (including China) the contribution it would make toward peace would be negligible. There is more probability that world peace, under present world conditions, can be attained through adjustments in trade relations than through adjustments of political relations between nations, he claimed.

It cannot be doubted for a moment, he continued, that if Japan adopts this basic policy and applies it in the Far East, that she will have the advantage over all countries in her area because of her geographical position, her race, and because of her business acumen. He urged repeatedly that the concrete and positive advantages be pointed out to our government.

Will you please therefore, be thoroughly advised of this phase and let us know your opinions thereof.

Wakasugi then said that he would admit that the various principles set forth by the United States were indeed fine and as guiding principles no one could possibly find fault with them. The cold facts are, however, that different means have to be used by each individual nation in order to survive. In spite of this fact it is the United States custom to measure the others needs by a ruler which measures the needs of her own country, which is the most blessed from the standpoint of nature, of any nation in the world. The fact that the position and circumstances of other countries differ from those of the United States apparently is not taken into consideration by the United States, Wakasugi said.

Japan occupies only a small corner of what is known as the Far East; moreover, she has been occupied for over four years with the China incident. She has, therefore, a number of circumstances which are peculiar to herself. So though she may want to comply with all of what the United States suggests, it is impossible for her to immediately do so. For example, for obvious and unavoidable reasons, Japan has established various organs and put into effect various systems in China to cope with temporary conditions and circumstances. Even if we tried to comply with the basic principles advanced by the United States, we could not do so overnight where these are concerned. It would be an absolute impossibility from a practical and actual standpoint.

If the United States' principles are to be applied to the world at the end of the war, it is indeed a worthy undertaking and merits serious consideration. However, it is not in the realm of practicality to attempt to apply these principles at a time when the whole world is in a chaotic condition. It is asking too much of Japan to expect her to accept these principles under such world conditions, and to expect her, in turn, to apply them immediately to the Far East area which has been undergoing particularly unfavorable conditions.

Therefore, Wakasugi continued, the immediate need is to discuss matters which Japan is capable at the present time of carrying out. These actual problems should be worked out to the maximum point of possibility under present circumstances and in this manner, the first opening to the road of joint and cooperative action should be found.

Hull replied that he well understood Japan's position and the circumstances in which she was involved. However, he continued, the United States also has to cope with domestic problems. For example, there are complaints from U. S. business men in China who have been squeezed out or whose activities have been curtailed because of the monopolistic attitude Japan has assumed in the China trade. When these complaints are voiced, because of the make-up of the United States, they cannot be left unnoticed.

Returning again to fundamentals, it is an unalterable fact, the Secretary continued, that the United States' basic principle is advantageous to Japan. For this reason he desired acceptance of it by Japan, the Secretary repeated.

He agreed to compare the two proposals on this point, too, and to submit a reply after so doing.

In conclusion Hull asked what the conditions were in Japan. Wakasugi replied that the general public were very strained. The government is being forced to take an immediate and decisive turn to either the right or the left. The people are apparently ready to jump at a chance for an understanding with the United States and because of the sensitiveness of the Japanese people, the tension will no doubt be immediately relieved if there is the slightest gesture on the part of the United States to warrant it.

Although it may be true that more time will be required before an agreement can be reached on the weighty items, however, there would be made favorable reactions if even minor matters, such as the following, were cleared up: releasing of the Itukusima Maru and the Syoyo Maru which have been tied up in San Francisco for over a month because the money with which to pay for their fuel has been frozen; releasing of funds with which to pay for fuel for those ships which are coming over here at present. (There is some interference from the Treasury Department in this instance).

As Wakasugi mentioned these items, Welles took down the names of the vessels and other pertinent facts and promised to take the matter up with bureaus concerned.

23818

JD-1: 5968

(D) Navy Trans. 10-21-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 18, 1941

CA

Accept my congratulations on your appointment. Although I was instructed to carry out the policy of the former cabinet and endeavored to do my best, I was not able to do anything useful and naturally I have been keenly conscious of the responsibility. Since my appointment to this post, things have developed contrary to my wishes and, for this reason, I am deeply concerned. It should be fairly clear that I, with my limited ability, shall not be able to accomplish much in the future; I am afraid I shall be leading not only a useless existence but even a harmful one. Grateful for the kind encouragement which the former minister gave me, I would like to think over carefully what I should do; I would like also to return to Japan in the near future so that I may personally report the situation here to you and incidentally receive your instructions in all matters. Will you, therefore, give your approval at once. Inasmuch as both WAKASUGI and GUCHI are men of ability and efficiency, there should be no objections to leaving matters in their hands after I have left.

Army 23803

Trans. 10/22/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
October 20, 1941
Purple (CA)

(RETRANSLATION BASED ON COMPLETE INTERCEPT COPY)

Will Your Excellency please read this for your own information and then please transmit it to the Minister of the Navy.

My dear Mr. Minister:

Congratulations on your new appointment! When this humble Ambassador was appointed to his present post he asked for the fervent support of the whole Navy Department, but since I came to Washington I am sorry to say that there has been no cooperation between us. Furthermore, the Navy has not cooperated with the Foreign Office. The times do not permit of such incoordination. On the one hand the United States is faced by the European war and on the other hand by the Pacific problem, but still she has made no military move. I believe that there is a weak point here. Therefore, I had expected the United States to take a more or less conciliatory attitude toward us as soon as the situation was favorable, but, contrary to my surmises, so far all America has done is to stick to her own national policy, and I am beginning to doubt if she can be reformed very much. I think that probably in the last analysis this is due to the fact that the United States has too many interests in China. My own desire has been to leave the China question out of the picture and work out some modus vivendi between our two countries. In my conversations with the Secretary of State I have shown this by my way of talking. However, the Secretary says that the China question is inseparably bound up with the stability of the Pacific. Some days ago I talked for an hour or more with HALIFAX. He said that the British Empire has a great interest in the Pacific problem and he would like to see some modus vivendi worked out between Japan and the United States to avoid a crisis. He said that he would like to talk with Secretary HULL about this. Since then, however, I have had no chance to talk with him. Well, before I came here I had talked with all the cabinet officials of that time and thought I thoroughly understood the position of the Government; however, since then there have been two administrative changes and now I am left floundering. I cannot tell you how much in the dark I am. I have talked along my own lines with the Secretary of State so often that, if we now explored the situation from a new angle, all my presence would do would be to confuse the situation and cause an unfavorable reaction. There is no doubt about this. That is why I wired you the other day that I would like to come home. If you have anything which you want the Foreign Office to transmit to me, please be sure to let them know.

Army #23774

Trans. 10-22-41 (1)

[Secret]

from: Tokyo
to: Washington
1 October 1941
Purple—CA)
898

Re your #966*

What you say is well justified. We should, of course, send you instructions immediately, but in view of the fact that the new cabinet has only just formed, they have been unavoidably delayed.

The new cabinet differs in no way from the former one in its sincere desire to adjust Japanese-United States relations on a fair basis. Our country has said practically all she can say in the way of expressing of opinions and setting forth our stands. We feel that we have now reached a point where no further positive action can be taken by us except to urge the United States to reconsider her views.

We urge, therefore, that, choosing an opportune moment, either you or Wakasugi let it be known to the United States by indirection that our country is not in a position to spend much more time discussing this matter. Please continue the talks, emphasizing our desire for a formal United States counter-proposal to our proposal of 5(?) September.

8968

D-1: 6015

(D) Navy Trans. 10-23-41 (S-TT)

JD-1: 5968. (Long 6 part report). Wakasugi-Welles-Hull talk on 17 Oct. in which there is an extensive rehash of arguments and counter arguments that have been repeatedly discussed before. Wakasugi continues to emphasize the impracticability of evacuating China, while Hull emphasizes non-discrimination trade (i. e. the Open Door up-to-date).

[Secret]

from: Washington (Nomura)
to: Tokyo
October 22, 1941
Purple (CA)

I have already wired you something about my present psychology. I am sure that I, too, should go out with the former cabinet. I know that for some time the Secretary of State has known how sincere your humble servant is, yet how little influence I have in Japan. I am ashamed to say that it has come to my ears that this is the case. There are some Americans who trust this poor novice and who say that things will get better for me, but, alas, their encouragement is not enough. Among my confreres here in the United States there are also some who feel the same way, but, alas, they are all poor deluded fools. As for Your Excellency's instructions, WAKASUGI can carry them out fully. Nor do I imagine that you all have any objections. I don't want to be the bones of a dead horse. I don't want to continue this hypocritical existence, deceiving other people. No, don't think I am trying to flee from the field of battle, but as a man of honor this is the only way that is open for me to tread. Please send me your permission to return to Japan. Most humbly do I beseech your forgiveness if I have injured your dignity and I prostrate myself before you in the depth of my rudeness.

Army #23859

D 6017

Trans. 10-23-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 23 October 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 Unnumbered

From your message(s) I am advised of the various difficulties you are coping with and I wish to express to you that I appreciate the efforts you are making. As you are well aware, the outcome of those negotiations have a great bearing upon the decision as to which road the Imperial Government will pursue. As such, it is an exceedingly important matter. We are placing all of our reliance on Your Excellency's reports for our information on this matter.

For the above reason, we express our hope that you will see fit to sacrifice all of your own personal wishes, and remain at your post

23860

JD-1: 6016

(D) Navy Trans. 10-23-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 October 24, 1941
 Purple
 #995 (Part 1 of 4)

Re your #698^a.

On the 24th from 2:30 p. m., WAKASUGI conferred with WELLES for an hour, and following the purport of your telegram, explained that our new cabinet was as anxious as the former cabinet for a just readjustment of our relations; that our desires have already been clearly stated; and that since, from what WAKASUGI himself could judge on the basis of what he saw and heard during his recent visit in Japan, circumstances there do not permit prolonging these conversations any longer, he—though not yet in receipt of detailed instructions—would like to see, without a day of further delay, some sort of conclusion reached. He then requested that the United States submit a counter-proposal to our proposal of September 25th. WELLES first expressed his pleasure of learning that the new cabinet intends to continue the discussion of this question and proceeded to say that recently men in responsible positions in Japan—for example, the Naval spokesman—had made such a war-like statement as “the Japanese Navy is ‘itching for action’”, and that the ferocious attacks which the Japanese newspapers have been making on the United States had greatly provoked the American people both in and out of the government and are injurious to the continuation of discussions

Army #24002 Trans. 10-27-41 (1)

^a S. I. S. #23968 which points out the fact that the new cabinet is anxious as the former one to adjust Japanese-U. S. relations and that Japan has made her stand perfectly clear and can do no more. It further more directs WAKASUGI to inform the U. S. that Japan is not in a position to prolong the discussion and would like to be informed of the United States' counter-proposal to that of Japan's dated September 25th

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 24, 1941

Purple

995 (Part 2 of 4)

WAKASUGI replied that there were not a few influential politicians in the United States as, for example, Senator PEPPER, who have severely criticized Japan; that especially the speech made today by Secretary of Navy KNOX to the effect that Japanese-American war is inevitable and the clash of the two countries is only a few days ahead and other warlike statements are quite provocative to the Japanese government as well as the people; and that in this respect the two countries are very much alike. To this, WELLES came back with the argument that the Naval Secretary's speech was not such a provocative one but the newspapers had played up certain parts of it; that as a man responsible for the United States Navy, which is the most powerful influence in the country, he occasionally indulges in strong words with the intention of encouraging the Navy; and that he would like WAKASUGI to realize that these speeches are nothing other than those made for such purposes. WELLES proceeded, saying, "As to the counter-proposal which you request of the United States, as I have repeated at the time of the previous conversation, the principles as well as the proposal of the American Government are clearly given in the proposal made on June 21. To be sure, one way of approaching a solution would be to adjust the wordings of that proposal to those of the proposal made by Japan."

Army 24003

Trans. 10/27/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 24, 1941

Purple

995 (Part 3 of 4)

"However, in the light of the experience of the informal discussions held during the past several months, to do no more than to consider each paragraph of the past formula would result in repetition of the same old arguments and, therefore, would not be conducive to progress. As I have pointed out during the previous conversation at which Secretary HULL was present, it might be well to try to reach an agreement on such general matters as the three important points which are comparatively easy of settlement; such a new formula may be a short-cut. However, if this is to be done, we had better take up at the beginning the question of equal treatment in commerce, a question which is comparatively easy of agreement by both countries. In reference to this point, WELLES asked if we had transmitted to our government what HULL had so strongly advocated during the previous conversation, and so WAKASUGI replied that he had communicated the matter in detail; and secondly, we should debate the question of Japan's duties to the Three-Power Alliance." He spoke as if there was a possibility of some adjustment also on the part of the United States with regard to this question. WELLES then suggested taking up the China question next. Thus, he made an entirely new proposal.

Army 24004

Trans. 10/27/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

October 24, 1941

Purple

#995 (Part 4 of 4)

WAKASUGI replied, saying, "Since I have not yet received detailed instructions from my government, I haven't the liberty to add anything today to the proposal of September 25, but I would like to have the United States authorities draw up a definite proposal with reference to the new approach you just suggested and submit it before we will have our next conversation. We, too, shall make a study of this point."

Speaking on the request that frozen funds be released for the dispatching of the two tankers referred to during our previous conversation and the two ships of the NYK line at this time, WELLES said, "We at that time made immediate arrangements, and all procedures have been completed by the Treasury Department with regard to the three NYK ships; but in the matter of tankers, since the United States banking laws require strict investigations for the purpose of protecting bank depositors, once money has been transferred to an account with the Yokohama Specie Bank, it is impossible to release it, regardless of the fact that the money is in the form of cash or of a draft for transference of money to that bank. However, the State Department will offer as much assistance as possible if you wish to have drafts made so that they could be transferred through some American bank."

Army 24005

Trans. 10/27/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

25 October 1941

(Purple—CA)

#709

Re your #989*.

We are particularly anxious to get an idea of the extent to which the United States will agree with our final proposal. We are putting much expectation that this point will be clarified during the Wakasugi-Welles talks on the 25th.

With regard to the military general staff office's message, we obtained an explanation from it after we received your message. It seems that that message was an expression of the General Staff's hopes and the government in the meantime is going ahead with its studies to establish a basic national policy, embodying the results of the Japanese-United States negotiations.

My personal intentions are as I outlined in my message #698 (those on which the army and navy concurred). Bearing these facts in mind, will you please urge the United States to voice its intentions. At the same time will you continue to make an effort to definitely ascertain the U. S. attitude with regard to our proposal. I am exceedingly anxious to receive your findings on these points.

24069

JD-1: #6117

(D) Navy Trans. 10-25-41 (S-TT)

* S. I. S. #23006.

JD-1: 0016 (S. I. S. #23006). New cabinet sends first instructions on U. S.-Jap negotiations. The situation is at an impasse unless the U. S. will change its views.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
27 October 1941
(Purple)
#1004

Chief of Office Routing.

On the 25th, I met and talked with Admiral Pratt. The Admiral is one who recognizes the fact that in the final analysis, the aims of economic warfare and actual armed conflict are one and the same. He is of the opinion that as long as Japan stays within the scope of the China Incident, there will be no shooting war between Japan and the United States. He said, however, that if Japan moved either northward or southward, he feared the consequences. He added that the final decision rested in the Emperor and the President.

Knox's speech, he went on, was exceedingly unfortunate. When he (the Admiral) writes for magazines or speaks on the radio, he always takes Japan into his calculations very carefully. After all, the Commander-in-Chief of the Navy, as far as the President is concerned, is of course, Stark. The opinions of the two completely coincide. Unfortunately, however, Stark cannot be said to be a "strong" individual, Admiral Pratt said. Hart, on the other hand, although he has enemies within the Department, is a strong character.

He further reported that he had heard from other sources that the President is sincerely desirous of having a peaceful and stabilized Pacific. However, because he is advised by various people to pursue various courses of action, the Admiral could not guarantee that there would be no trouble on those waters.

Admiral Pratt went on to say that Harriman, who was sent to the Soviet Union, is a very capable person in whom every confidence could be placed. This man states that Stalin is not in a position to discuss peace and that without a doubt, Hitler is winning that battle.

Concerning the project to attempt to have Italy enter into a separate peace, Pratt is of the opinion that such a peace would put Italy in the same disastrous position that France now occupies and for this reason he is inclined to doubt that Italy will consider it.

In the final analysis, the Admiral is of the opinion that the war will be a long drawn out affair, and that sooner or later, one side will become more fatigued than the other.

Thus, he expressed what probably is the most optimistic view to come from any authoritative American.

He went on to express his opinion that the Atlantic would be saved for Great Britain.

Japan should do everything to avoid impairing her might on the seas, so that she can take it with her to the eventual peace conference. It will be only with a strong navy to fall back on that Japan will have much say in those peace terms, he said.

24192

JD-1: 6175

(D) Navy Trans. 10-30-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

29 October 1941

(Purple)

#1008 (In 3 parts, complete)

From Minister Wakasugi

U. S.-Japanese relations are now fast approaching a critical cross-road. In view of the fact that the times are indeed grave, I am waiving formality and, though it may seem very presumptuous of me, am reporting to you my views on the general attitude of the United States after coming in contact with its representatives on several occasions.

As you no doubt are well aware through the many other reports pertaining to this matter, the basic U. S. policy is the crushing of the so-called "Hitlerism", (establishment of a new order through the force of arms). Working from this principle, the United States is gradually strengthening its war-time structure. Britain and China have been set up as the first line of national defense. In this way, the United States has succeeded in steamrolling over the isolationist opposition and is forcing the government and the public alike to follow this policy.

The government has determined to gamble on a long term program. It is on these grounds that Hull has said on several occasions that though he yearns for the preservation of peace on the Pacific, on the other hand it will have to be based on agreements covering the entire Pacific area and not upon a patchwork of hit-or-miss local agreements. During my talks with him on the 24th, Welles said that the United States was not in agreement with the British practice in the past of establishing special relations with her colonial holdings. The United States is a firm advocate of an absolute non-discrimination and equal opportunities for all in the entire Pacific area, (including Japan, United States, Britain, China, Australia, Netherlands East Indies, etc.) Every nation will be offered opportunities equal to those existing between the home government and its colonies. For this reason, Welles pointed out on that occasion, this policy should be advantageous to Japan as well.

Judging from these factors, we assume that the United States based their demands for equal opportunities of access to the natural resources of French Indo-China and Thailand, as well as a guarantee that they will remain strictly neutral, upon their principle of non-discrimination. Apparently, they presume that we intend to develop this area under the principle of our military's co-prosperity sphere, in a monopolistic manner, and through the force of arms.

Thus, there has arisen a clash of ideologies.

The United States wants to tackle the China problem as merely one phase of the aforementioned "peace on the Pacific" issue. On the other hand, it should be recalled that Hull once said to the late Ambassador Saito that it was exceedingly doubtful that there should be war between Japan and the United States over merely the China problem. There are indications that the United States is still not anxious to fight Japan over only the China problem. However, it must be borne in mind that China is now relying solely on the United States. (It is said that T. V. Soong and others in the United States are working on the Treasury Department in particular) and the United States is doing everything in its power to prevent the bringing about of a truce between Japan and the United States. Since China is entirely dependent on the United States, the United States cannot turn a cold shoulder to her pleas. It is impossible for the United States to cruelly impose terms on China which would be almost impossible for the United States herself to endure.

Welles used the above described excuse during our talks on the 24th. He went on to say, however, that the United States would not be unreasonable; she would not demand of Japan to carry out that which is immediately impossible. What his implications were when he said that is not clear, but possibly he may have been referring to some such tough problem as that of evacuating our forces, (indications are that in spite of our repeated explanations concerning the garrisoning of troops in China, the above ambiguous statement may have been his camouflaged way of pointing out a means of carrying out a program of withdrawal of troops). I got the impression that he wanted to convey to me that the United States would not demand that it be carried out immediately.

In any event, it has become apparent that U. S.-Japanese relations have now become an integral phase of the national policy of the United States. There is every indication that the United States is anxious to adjust the relationship between the two nations as it has much bearing on her national policy. However, she is willing to come to terms only if the conditions suit her. She has set forth her stand in her proposals of 21 June and of 2 October. I am very doubtful that she will make any concessions therefrom.

Her preparations in the event of the worst have been completed. Therefore, I cannot believe that she is stalling for time. On the other hand, I am of the opinion that she is not so anxious to enter into the agreement that she will sacrifice any of her terms. Therefore, I do not believe that we should expect any further counter proposals from them. They have decided on a course of economic pressure plus watchful waiting.

Therefore, if we choose to good naturedly continue these talks, I am of the opinion that all is not hopeless. I feel that such a move will almost automatically open up ways of breaking down differences if we make the best use of world developments. However, if we depend on immediate settlement by settling local differences by insisting upon our freedom of action, we must have our minds made up that not only will these negotiations be terminated, but that our national relations will be severed.

The United States has expressed its interest in continuing with the talks after she has been advised of the attitude and policy of the newly formed Cabinet of Japan. I urge, therefore, that the new Cabinet establish its basic policy as speedily as possible, so that we may lay our cards on the table for them to see. I sincerely believe that that would be to our best interests.

24250

FD-1: 6207

(D) Navy Trans. 11-1-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

29 October 1941

(Purple)

#1010 (In 2 parts, complete)

Chief of Office routing.

I report the following points to you merely as reference material in connection with the adjusting of national relations.

1. Admiral Standley, Retired, told Member of Parliament Kasai that the more influential Congressmen from the Middle West (where there are many Americans of German descent) state that the majority of the Middle Westerners are opposed to a war against Germany, but that at the same time, a great number of them favor a U. S.-Japanese war. This is due, in part, he said, to Germany's superior propaganda work. I have heard O'Laughlin, who is familiar with that area, express similar opinions.

2. Secretary Hull has told Congress that the U. S. Government looks upon the Tripartite Pact as an instrument to be used to intimidate the United States. Its aim is to make impossible the aiding of Great Britain by the United States and thus gradually to force the United States to give up the control of the seas and bring back the first line of U. S. defense to the U. S. shore line. The United States desires peace; however, it is a well established fact that there is a better chance to have peace if strength can be shown. If I (Hull) were to make too many concessions to the Axis powers, there is danger that they would be interpreted as weaknesses on my part and no doubt their demands would be increased. (This is particularly true in Tokyo). There are indications, Hull continued, that the degree of enthusiasm in Tokyo to proceed on selfish courses, is determined to a considerable extent on how the German-Soviet war is going.

It is said that he went on to say that the situation was "very delicate and very changeable". (Reported in the New York Times 28th).

To me, Secretary Hull once said that the people of both Japan and the United States were proud peoples. For this reason, neither would easily succumb to bluffs of the other.

3. It is said that Assistant Secretary of State Breckenridge Long told a certain Japanese who called on him and set forth the many advantages of speedily entering into an understanding with Japan along the lines published in a newspaper as a Tokyo dispatch, that it would be impossible for the United States to get everything in order before 15 November.

4. On two different occasions recently, I met and talked with Lord Halifax. I tried to sound him out as to British attitude with regard to a Japanese-U. S. understanding. I gather from these that, in accordance with the Churchill speech, Britain would string along with the United States. Lord Halifax said that British did not want trouble on the Pacific; that is true of the United States, too, he said adding that he hoped that Japan would give the matter her thorough study from all angles and exercise the utmost of patience before doing anything.

He refused to enlarge upon the U. S. and British embargo policy in effect at present.

24376

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans, 11-5-41 (5)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Nanking
31 October 1941
(Purple)
#464

The agreement is to go into effect November 25th, and it is generally agreed between Japan, Germany, and Italy that it shall be continued for a period of five years. Negotiations should be begun between the three countries regarding the proposal for a new protocol. This is strictly secret and for your information.

24290

JD-1: 6225

(H) Navy Trans. 11-3-41 (5-AR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
1 November 1941
(Purple)
#721

Please advise this office what actual relationship exists at present between the original contents of the U. S. proposal of 21 June and the following points:

The matter pertaining to the exchanging of the official texts which was put into the 21 June proposal as a footnote to Section 2 thereof, (that part concerning the attitude of the respective nations to the European war); and, the three questions which were submitted concerning the United States' proposal of non-discrimination in trade, a subject which was put in as a supplement to Section 3, (concerning peace between China and Japan), of the 21 June proposal.

According to your message #424*, you told Secretary Hull on 22 June that you could not deliver the official note to the home government. Moreover, there seems to be indications that the U. S. Government is beginning to understand our viewpoint with regard to the matter of the right of self-defense.

In view of these facts, may we assume that the matter of exchanging of official notes has been dropped by the United States? We must have this information to discuss this whole matter in a business like manner, so please advise us immediately, although it may seem like bringing up old issues.

24531

JD-1: 6323

(D) Navy Trans. 11-7-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 3271 (SIS #18717, and 18735) dated 24 June. Amb. Nomura wires Tokyo that in an interview with Secy. Hull, Hull made the statement that there seems to be influential people in Japan who do not desire an understanding with the U. S. so, after all, does Japan consider the composure of relations between the two countries so important. Nomura replies that such concession as the U. S. has so far offered are not worthy of consideration.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
To: Washington
November 2, 1941
Purple (CA)
#722

The Government has for a number of days since the forming of the new Cabinet been holding meetings with the Imperial headquarters. We have carefully considered a fundamental policy for improving relations between Japan and America, but we expect to reach a final decision in a meeting on the morning of the 5th and will let you know the result at once. This will be our Government's last effort to improve diplomatic relations. The situation is very grave. When we resume negotiations, the situation makes it urgent that we reach a decision at once. This is at present only for your information. When we take up these negotiations once more, we trust you will handle everything with the greatest of care.

Army 24292

Trans. 11-3-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 2, 1941
Purple (CA)
#723 (Part 1 of 2)

Day before yesterday when I met the diplomatic corps, during the conversation I had with the American Ambassador, I said, "I am very sorry that Japanese-American relations have lately been growing worse and worse. If this continues, I fear that unfortunate results will ensue. For six months, negotiations have been dragging along, and our people are growing impatient. Therefore, I hope that a speedy settlement will be reached. In this connection, I would like to ask your friendly cooperation." I added, "It is necessary for the United States, in order to arrive at a frank understanding, to relinquish its theoretical procedure and view the Oriental situation realistically. For example, when we come to the question of evacuation, there are other countries besides Japan who actually have occupation forces in China. Furthermore, although Outer Mongolia is considered a part of Chinese territory, the Soviet has a considerable force stationed there. The United States must realize these facts and understand our position." The Ambassador nodded to this and promised cooperation. He said that he would like for the parleys between the United States and Japan to proceed amicably.

Army 24293

Trans. 11/3/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 2, 1941
Purple (CA)
#723 (Part 2 of 2)

On the 26th the British Ambassador came to see me on other business, and I said to him, "The attitude of the United States is entirely too theoretical, and if this continues there will be scant chance of a settlement. At the present time I am very much concerned over this. If the negotiations turn out to be a failure, cannot tell but what a lamentable situation will occur. Now you English, who have such important interests in the Far East, would not like this. I think that England ought to endeavor to improve Japanese-English-American relations in order to reestablish and maintain the peace of the world." The Ambassador replied that he would transmit what I said immediately to London. I saw him again (yesterday?) and endeavored to impart to him the impression that the situation is waxing more and more acute and will not permit of procrastination.

Sent also to London.

Army 24294

Trans. 11/3/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
3 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#1021

I plan to see Hull in two or three days. If possible I would like to be advised of the Cabinet's definite policy before then. If this is impossible will you please advise me of the points I should bear in mind while talking to the Secretary.

24424

JD-1: 6277

(D) Navy Trans. 11-5-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 3 November 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #1025

Re your #721*

1. As you mentioned in your message, it is true that I refused to relay the text of the exchanged notes. They have stuck firmly to their original stand and consequently the two proposals have remained at odds with each other.

2. The questions regarding the three items were made with reference to the 21 June proposal. They are still, as before, awaiting our definite reply.

24476

JD-1: 6316

(D) Navy Trans. 11-7-41 (2)

*Available, being decoded; will be translated. Dated 1 November.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 4, 1941
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)
 #725 (Part 1 of 3)

Concerning my #722*.

1. Well, relations between Japan and the United States have reached the edge, and our people are losing confidence in the possibility of ever adjusting them. In order to lucubrate on a fundamental national policy, the Cabinet has been meeting with the Imperial Headquarters for some days in succession. Conference has followed conference, and now we are at length able to bring forth a counter-proposal for the resumption of Japanese-American negotiations based upon the unanimous opinion of the Government and the military high command (ensuing Nos. 726^b and 727^b). This and other basic policies of our Empire await the sanction of the conference to be held on the morning of the 5th.

2. Conditions both within and without our Empire are so tense that no longer is procrastination possible, yet in our sincerity to maintain pacific relationships between the Empire of Japan and the United States of America, we have decided, as a result of these deliberations, to gamble once more on the continuance of the parleys, but this is our last effort. Both in name and spirit this counter-proposal of ours is, indeed, the last. I want you to know that. If through it we do not reach a quick accord, I am sorry to say the talks will certainly be ruptured. Then, indeed, will relations between our two nations be on the brink of chaos. I mean that the success or failure of the pending discussions will have an immense effect on the destiny of the Empire of Japan. In fact, we gambled the fate of our land on the throw of this die.

Army 24330
JD 6248

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

* S. I. S. #24292 which states that meetings are being held with the Imperial Headquarters to consider a fundamental policy for improving relations between Japan and America and that a final decision is to be made on the morning of the 5th.

^b Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#725 (Part 2 of 3)

When the Japanese-American meetings began, who would have ever dreamt that they would drag out so long? Hoping that we could fast come to some understanding, we have already gone far out of our way and yielded and yielded. The United States does not appreciate this, but through thick and thin sticks to the self-same propositions she made to start with. Those of our people and of our officials who suspect the sincerity of the Americans are far from few. Bearing all kinds of humiliating things, our Government has repeatedly stated its sincerity and gone far, yes, too far, in giving in to them. There is just one reason why we do this—to maintain peace in the Pacific. There seem to be some Americans who think we would make a one-sided deal, but our temperance, I can tell you, has not come from weakness, and naturally there is an end to our long-suffering. Nay, when it comes to a question of our existence and our honor, when the time comes we will defend them without recking the cost. If the United States takes an attitude that overlooks or shuns this position of ours, there is not a whit of use in ever broaching the talks. This time we are showing the limit of our friendship; this time we are making our last possible bargain, and I hope that we can thus settle all our troubles with the United States peaceably.

Army 24331

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 4, 1941
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)
 #725 (Part 3 of 3)

3. It is to be hoped earnestly that looking forward to what may come at the end—at the last day of Japanese-American negotiations—the Government of the United States will think ever so soberly how much better it would be to make peace with us; how much better this would be for the whole world situation.

4. Your Honor will see from the considerations above how important is your mission. You are at a key post, and we place great hopes in your being able to do something good for our nation's destiny. Will you please think deeply on that and compose yourself and make up your mind to continue to do your best. I hope you will. Now just as soon as the conference is over, I will let you know immediately, and I want you to go and talk to President ROOSEVELT and Secretary HULL. I want you to tell them how determined we are and try to get them to foster a speedy understanding.

5. In view of the gravity of these talks, as you make contacts there, so I will make them here. I will talk to the American Ambassador here in Tokyo, and as soon as you have got the concensus of the American officials through talking with them, please wire me. Naturally, as these things develop, in case you take any new steps, I want you to let me know and get in contact with me. In this way we will avoid letting anything go astray. Furthermore, lest anything go awry, I want you to follow my instructions to the letter. In my instructions, I want you to know there will be no room for personal interpretation.

Army 24332

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

 [Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 4, 1941
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)
 #726 (Part 1 of 4.)

Proposal "A".

1. This proposal is our revised ultimatum made as a result of our attempts to meet, insofar as possible, the wishes of the Americans, clarified as a result of negotiations based on our proposals of September 25. We have toned down our insistences as follows:

(1) The question of non-discrimination in trade.

Should they appear not to accede to our proposal of September 25 in this respect, insert the following statement, "The Japanese Government is prepared to carry out this principle in the entire Pacific area; that is to say, China as well, providing the principles of non-discrimination are applied to the entire world."

(2) The question of our understanding and application of the Tripartite Alliance.

At the same time that you clarify to them that we intend no expansion of our sphere of self-defense, make clear, as has been repeatedly explained in the past, that we desire to avoid the expansion of Europe's war into the Pacific.

Army 24334

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#726 (Part 2 of 4.)

(3) The question concerning the evacuation of troops.

We are toning down our stipulations in this connection as follows:

(A) The stationing and evacuation of troops in China since the outbreak of the China Incident.

Japanese troops which have been sent to China will be stationed in North China, on the Mongolian border regions, and on the Island of Hainan after the establishment of peace between Japan and China, and will not be evacuated until the elapse of a suitable interval. The evacuation of other troops will be carried out by Japan and China at the same time that peace is established. In order to maintain peace and order, this will be carried out within a period of two years. (Note: Should the American authorities question you in regard to "the suitable period", answer vaguely that such a period should encompass 25 years.)

(B) The stationing and evacuation of troops in French Indo-China.

The Japanese Government respects the territorial integrity of the French possession, Indo-China. In the event that a just peace is established, or that the China Incident is brought to a successful conclusion, Japanese troops which have been dispatched to French Indo-China and are there now shall be evacuated.

(4) As a matter of principle, we are anxious to avoid having this inserted in the draft of the formal proposal reached between Japan and the United States (whether it is called an understanding proposal or some other sort of a statement.)

Army 24335

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#726 (Part 3 of 4)

2. Explanation.

(1) Of course, there is the question of geographical proximity when we come to consider non-discrimination in commerce. However, we have revised our demands along this line hitherto and put the question of non-discrimination on a world-wide basis. In a memorandum of the American Government, they state in effect, however, that it might be feasible for either country within a certain specified area to adopt a given policy and for the other party within another specified area to adopt a complementary policy. Judging from this statement, I do not believe they will oppose this term. I think that we can easily reach an understanding on this matter.

(2) As for the question of the Three-Power Pact, your various messages lead me to believe that the United States is, in general, satisfied with our proposals, so if we make our position even more clear by saying that we will not randomly enlarge upon our interpretation of the right of self-defense, I feel sure that we will soon be mutually agreed on this point.

Army 24336

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#726 (Part 4 of 4)

(3) I think that in all probability the question of evacuation will be the hardest. However, in view of the fact that the United States is so much opposed to our stationing soldiers in undefined areas, our purpose is to shift the regions of occupation and our officials, thus attempting to dispel their suspicions. We will call it evacuation; but although it would please the United States for us to make occupation the exception rather than the rule, in the last analysis this would be out of the question. Furthermore, on the matter of duration of occupation, whenever pressed to give a clear statement we have hitherto couched our answers in vague terms. I want you in as indecisive yet as pleasant language as possible to euphemize and try to impart to them the effect that unlimited occupation does not mean perpetual occupation. Summing this up, Proposal A accepts completely America's demands on two of the three proposals mentioned in the other proposal, but when it comes to the last point concerning the stationing and evacuation of forces, we have already made our last possible concession. How hard, indeed, have we fought in China for four years! What tremendous sacrifices have we made! They must know this, so their demands in this connection must have been only "wishful thinking." In any case, our internal situation also makes it impossible for us to make any further compromise in this connection. As best you may, please endeavor to have the United States understand this, and I earnestly hope and pray that you can quickly bring about an understanding.

Army 24337

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#727

1. Proposal "B".

This proposal is based upon proposal "A". If there appears to be a remarkable difference between the Japanese and American views, since the situation does not permit of delays, it will be necessary to put forward some substitute plan. Therefore, our second formula is advanced with the idea of making a last effort to prevent something happening. The substance is as follows:

(1) The Governments of Japan and the United States agree that neither will militarily invade any area in Southeast Asia and the South Seas with the exception of French Indo-China.

(2) The Governments of Japan and the United States will cooperate mutually in guaranteeing the obtention of the materials they need in Netherlands India.

(3) The Governments of Japan and the United States will mutually return to the situation prior to the freezing of their respective assets and the Government of the United States will agree to furnish Japan with the petroleum she needs.

(4) The Government of the United States will engage in no activity which might put an obstacle in the way of Japan in her efforts to make peace with China.

Addendum:

(1) If necessary, upon the establishment of this understanding, as soon as peace is established between Japan and China, or as soon as a just peace is made in the Pacific area, Japan has no objection to promising to evacuate her troops.

(2) If necessary, we will insert an additional stipulation concerning the interpretation and carrying out of the Three-Power Pact and the question of non-discrimination in commerce which were referred to in proposal "A" in my #726*.

Army 24338

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

* See S. I. S. #24334 to 24337.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 4, 1941
Purple (CA)
#730

Re my #725*.

In view of the gravity of the present negotiations and in view of your request on instructions from me, Ambassador KURUSU is leaving—on the 7th by clipper to assist you. He will be your right-hand man in these parleys. He is carrying with him no additional instructions, so in order to prepare him for the talks, will you please tell him all, and I hope that you can, by all means, arrange for an interview between him and President ROOSEVELT.

By the way, will you please be sure to keep Ambassador KURUSU's activities strictly secret.

Army 24339

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

* S. I. S. Nos. 24330, 31, 32.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 4, 1941
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)
 #731

Re my #725.*

In these negotiations, Great Britain also is an actively interested party and has vast interests in the Far East. Therefore, in order to carry out this proposal (both Proposal A and Proposal B), it would certainly behoove Great Britain and, for that matter, the Netherlands also as interested parties, to put into effect the terms of the understanding in question. If we should proceed without any definite assurances on this point and reached an accord with Washington alone, it might very well be that it would never work.

Consequently, I want you please to impress upon the American officials the importance of this essential measure and have them agree to make Great Britain and the Netherlands both simultaneously sign those terms in which they are concerned. Please wire me the results.

Army 24333

Trans. 11/4/41 (S)

* See S. I. S. #24330, 31, 32.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 5 November 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #732

Re my #725*

If and when an agreement is reached on the basis of our latest proposal we would prefer that it not be written up in the form of a treaty. Ratification of the Senate is required for a treaty, and we fear that too much time would be consumed obtaining this. From the viewpoint of speed and certainty, we would like to avoid having to follow this course. From the gist of the U. S. proposals, we feel that the U. S. Government is also desirous of not having to await Senate ratification.

We have been lead to believe that it is the U. S. Government's intention to use this instrument as a basis for some future treaty, and that it would be classified as one type of an "Executive Agreement" as the President is authorized to do. We have been proceeding in the past on this assumption. (Please refer to page (3 ?) 1, Volume 2, of Hyde's International Law Chiefly as Interpreted and Applied by the United States). Will you please ascertain the U. S. attitude on this point.

In any event, it is of utmost importance that an agreement be entered into along the lines given in the message referred to in the heading at the earliest possible moment. Under present conditions, speed is an absolutely essential factor.

24372

JD-1: 6253

(D) Navy Trans. 11-5-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6248. S. I. S. #24330.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
To: Washington.
5 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#735

1. Our counter proposal in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations referred to in my message #725* was taken up at the Imperial Conference on this, the 5th, and was given approval. Therefore, will you please begin the talks along the lines given in my instructions.

2. We assume that it would meet with the U. S. approval, in view of past developments, if, for the time being, the 21 June proposal—25 September's from our point of view—was used as a basis of these new talks. Subsequently, we feel that from the standpoint of the likelihood of reaching an early agreement, our Proposal A (contained in my message #726) should be submitted for discussion. (As a matter of fact, there are a number of points in the form and in the expressions used in the U. S. proposal which do not meet with our complete approval. However, we feel that for convenience and speed's sake, Proposal A should be submitted first.) Please, therefore, explain these points to the United States and at the same time have them clearly understand the circumstances contained in my message #725*. Thereupon, do your utmost to have them accept that proposal in the shortest possible time.

3. If the United States expresses too many points of disapproval to Proposal A and if it becomes apparent that an agreement cannot be reached, we intend to submit our absolutely final proposal, Proposal B (contained in my message #727). Please, therefore, ascertain the U. S. attitude to Proposal A as soon as possible, and advise this office. Be sure to advise this office before Proposal B is submitted to the United States.

4. As stated in my previous message, this is the Imperial Government's final step. Time is becoming exceedingly short and the situation very critical. Absolutely no delays can be permitted. Please bear this in mind and do your best. I wish to stress this point over and over.

5. We wish to avoid giving them the impression that there is a time limit or that this proposal is to be taken as an ultimatum. In a friendly manner, show them that we are very anxious to have them accept our proposal.

(Although a "1" was placed at the beginning of the body of my message #727, there was no need for it, so please delete it.

24387

JD-1: 6276

(D) Navy Trans. 11-5-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6248 (S. I. S. #24330-33).

JD-1: 6249 (S. I. S. #24334-37).

JD-1: 6250 (S. I. S. #24338).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 5 November 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #736

(Of utmost secrecy).

Because of various circumstances, it is absolutely necessary that all arrangements for the signing of this agreement be completed by the 25th of this month. I realize that this is a difficult order, but under the circumstances it is an unavoidable one. Please understand this thoroughly and tackle the problem of saving the Japanese-U. S. relations from falling into a chaotic condition. Do so with great determination and with unstinted effort, I beg of you.

This information is to be kept strictly to yourself only.

24373
 JD-1: 6254

(D) Navy Trans. 11-5-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington
 To: Tokyo
 5 November 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #1037

I have received all of your messages of instructions, and after giving the matter my very careful consideration, I have decided to continue to put forth my best efforts, however feeble they may be. I, therefore, made arrangements immediately on this, the 5th, to meet with President Roosevelt through Hull. (I shall advise you the date and time of this interview as soon as it is made definite). I am of the opinion that it would be to our advantage to keep this meeting as secret as possible. I would appreciate being advised of the Foreign Office's view on this point as soon as possible. If you believe that it would be better if this were made an official interview, please advise me as to the manner in which it should be announced to the public.

24573
 JD-1: 6364

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 5 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #1040

Re your #735, paragraph 5*.

On the 5th, reports from Tokyo were played up by the newspapers here to the effect that Domei, the mouthpiece of the Japanese Government and the Times-Advertiser, the mouthpiece of the Foreign Office, were declaring that the 15th had been set as the "deadline" for the negotiations and were giving a list of the Japanese demands, (seven was given as the number).

While I recognize that the above may be considered as well intentioned efforts on our part to lead to a favorable reception of the negotiations still the above reports are directly opposed to the interest of your caption telegram. As you are well aware in view of the present delicate situation such reports will have the effect of alienating American public opinion or causing it to become actively opposed to Japan.

There is danger that America will see through our condition. If we have really made up our minds to a final course of action it would be the part of wisdom to keep still about it. I realize that the internal situation is causing you no end of worry, however I feel that in view of the present grave situation still further guidance should be given to the newspapers.

24479

JD-1: 6320

(H) Navy Trans. 11-7-41 (7)

*JD-1: 6276 (H-24387).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 6, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#739

Re my #730.*

The reason why we are sending Ambassador KURUSU to you so quickly is, in addition to what I have already wired you, to show our Empire's sincerity in the negotiations soon to follow. As I wired you before, he brings with him no new instructions in addition to the ones I have already sent you. I wish him, however, to communicate to you at first hand as best he may, the exact situation here in Japan, and now that we are on the last lap of these negotiations, I do hope that he can help you in unravelling this bewildering maze and through cooperation lead to a solution, and that right soon. To make it sound good, we are telling the public that he is coming to help you quickly compose the unhappy relations between the two nations. We have explained all this fully to the British and American Ambassadors here in Tokyo, and Ambassador KURUSU himself had a heart-to-heart talk with the American Ambassador here before he left, and both Ambassadors fully understand why he is making the trip.

The officials of both the Army and the Navy are pleased with the special dispatch of the Ambassador and are very grateful for the trouble he is taking. After you read this, please go and tell the American officials concerned and wire me back their reply.

Army 24439

Trans. 11/6/41 (S)

* S. I. S. #24330 which states that Ambassador KURUSU is being sent to Washington on the 7th by clipper to assist in the Japanese-American parleys.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 6, 1941
Purple (CA)
#740

Re your #1025.*

Through Your Honor's continuous efforts, gradually both the Japanese and American insistences centering around the question of self-defense in connection with the Tripartite Treaty have become clear. Now we might say that there exists almost no division between our respective views. At any rate, we have been taking it for granted that this is the case for some time. Our proposal of September 25, which is a counter-proposal to the American proposal of June 21, makes no reference to any exchange of notes, which means that we are refusing to consider such an exchange. We are taking it for granted that the United States, too, is eliminating this as a matter of course from the negotiations, and we are continuing the negotiations on the assumption that there will be no such exchange of notes. If, by any misadventure, the United States should say that they will not leave out the proposal for exchange of notes, it will be utterly and absolutely impossible for us to agree, so when you negotiate, please be fully aware of this.

Army 24442

Trans. 11/6/41 (S)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 6, 1941
Purple (CA)
#741

Re your #1037.*

The matter of Your Honor's interviewing the President is delicate in the extreme, and if the newspapers speculate on the import of it, the effect would doubtless be most regrettable. Therefore, if possible, I think we should avoid letting the press get wind of the substance of the interview or even the fact of the interview. If the American officials will agree with this, naturally we, too, will observe the same secrecy.

Carrying this idea still further, in all your subsequent contacts with American officials I would like for you to do your utmost to maintain the same secrecy and avoidance of publicity.

Army 24440

Trans. 11/6/41 (S)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
November 6, 1941
Purple
#1051

In the present delicate state of Japan-American relations the local press is becoming more and more excited over the dispatch of KURUSU, etc. From now on all kinds of articles and editorials based on conjecture will continually be appearing. Although I have been very careful in my contacts with the local and foreign press, on account of the rivalry between the different newspapers, spontaneous conjectures and reports are published.

Moreover these articles in English-language newspapers may be sent just as they are to Japan where I fear they would have an unforeseen influence on our already tense population. Considering the seriousness of the situation please prevent the publication of such writings for the time being in the interest of better Japan-American relations, and, keeping a strict control, follow the most prudent policy.

Army 24552

Trans. 11/10/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
7 November 1941
(Purple)
#1053

Re my #1040*.

We are of the opinion that it is absolutely essential that, at this time, to either through direct means or through suitable indirect channels, strike home Japan's determinations to the U. S. Government. Under this assumption we are making every effort to carry this out.

As I pointed out in the message referred to in the heading, there is everything to lose and nothing to gain to resort to a press campaign at a time like this, for such a campaign is aimed at the general public. The Times Advertiser is referred to here as the official government organ. We urge you to make that paper refrain from too bluntly commenting on the negotiations. As a matter of fact, we would be in favor of their remaining completely silent. We are convinced that an ominous silence would have the best effect, so will you make arrangements towards this end immediately.

24645

JD-1: 6401

(D) Navy Trans. 11-12-41 (1)

*JD-1: 6320 (S. I. S. #24479).

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

7 November 1941

(Purple)

#1054

Re my #10—

I met and talked with Secretary Hull at 0930 on the 7th, and I explained our new proposal to him in accordance with your instructions. I requested that it be given consideration by the United States and at the same time I expressed my desire to meet with the President at the earliest possible moment. Hull promised to give them his consideration.

With regard to the matter of nondiscrimination in trade, Hull showed indications of being satisfied. He did not indicate either approval or disapproval of the matters pertaining to rights of self-defense and of withdrawal of our troops.

The interview lasted approximately one hour.

This message dispatched at 1330.

24576

JD-1: 6372

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

7 November 1941

(Purple)

#1055 (Part 1 of 3) (Part 2 not available)

At 0900 on this, the 7th, I, accompanied by Wakasugi, called on Secretary Hull at his home. (Ballantine was also present.)

I said that I had been instructed by my home government to explain to the President and to the Secretary of State, Japan's attitude and position in the hope of bringing about immediate settlement of the various problems involved in the relationship between Japan and the United States.

In way of replying to this, Hull said that at present there were two political factions in this world which were at odds with each other and which were, consequently, embroiled in an armed conflict. Neither faction is able to decide the outcome speedily and hence there is a danger that they will be gradually thrown into the chaos of anarchism.

If, at a time like this, the United States and Japan simultaneously hit upon a method of maintaining peace on the Pacific, it is quite possible that the world may be saved from the apparently imminent chaos.

I, therefore, said, in accordance with your your various instructions, that:

1. Of the three outstanding problems, agreements have been practically been reached on two. With regard to the matter of garrisoning or withdrawing troops, Japan is prepared to make the maximum concessions which can be permitted by the domestic political conditions of Japan. ———(9 groups missed here———) I urged that the United States cooperate in bringing about a speedy settlement on that assumption.

24577

JD-1: 6372 (b)

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (7)

MEMORANDUM

In JD-1: 6372 (b), the last paragraph on the first page of this message should be changed to read as follows:

1. Of the three outstanding problems, agreements have been practically reached on two. With regard to the matter of garrisoning or withdrawing troops, Japan is prepared to make the maximum concessions which can be permitted by the domestic political conditions of Japan.

2. From the viewpoint of U. S.-Japanese friendship in its broad sense, the U. S. Government should take a philosophic attitude concerning present conditions, I said, and I urged that the United States cooperate in bringing about a speedy settlement on that assumption.

S. I. S. #24577.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

7 November 1941

(Purple)

#1055 (Part 2 of 3)*

(I pointed out that):

3. I have been instructed by my home government to fully explain Japan's determination and Japan's position to the President and the Secretary of State, and through such understandings to reach settlements as soon as possible.

4. After six months of negotiations, the people of Japan are getting a little impatient and that hence the situation there is becoming exceedingly critical. For this reason, we are very anxious that these negotiations be brought to a successful conclusion as soon as possible.

5. In view of the very critical situation parallel negotiations in Tokyo are to be conducted.

Explaining that Japan is now displaying the maximum amount of good will and the utmost of sincerity, I submitted the counter proposal which you sent us, to them. I requested that the United States give it her consideration from the broad aspect, and urged them to accept the terms contained therein.

Hull carefully read this document. He nodded approval of the section concerning the principle of non-discrimination, and commented that that way would prove to be to Japan's interest. With regard to the section of garrisoning troops, he simply asked what would be the proportion of those remaining to those being withdrawn. I replied that much the greater part would be withdrawn and only a small portion would be kept in China. I went on to explain our position with regard to the "right of self-defense" issue, in accordance with your instruction which I received today.

It was decided that an answer to all of the points would be submitted after this note had been carefully studied by them. They will submit their reply after my interview with the President, at which time I shall endeavor to make more detailed explanation.

24646

JD-1: 6372 (b)

(D) Navy Trans. 11-12-41 (1)

* Parts 1 and 3—S. I. S. #24577.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

7 November 1941

(Purple)

#1055 (Part 3 of 3) (Part 2 not available)

Hull went on to say that as he had said on previous occasions, Britain, China, the Netherlands and other countries had to be consulted regarding Japanese-U. S. talks of maintaining peace on the Pacific. He let it leak out in this connection that China was being consulted with regard to matters pertaining to the China problems.

Hull then said that he had happened to wonder what Japan's attitude would be if there were the following developments: Supposing an influential and reliable representative of China were to join in these talks. Supposing, further, that this representative states that China is desirous of resuming friendly relations with Japan, giving his pledge of true friendship and sincerity. What would Japan's reaction be?

Wakasugi asked whether he could assume first, that China's attitude had been ascertained. Hull replied that the matter hadn't been taken up with China as yet, and that it was just something that he as an individual had happened to think of. If such a thing could be done, however, he continued, peace on the Pacific would be maintained, and no doubt it would set an example for the world and thus have a very favorable effect on it.

We got the impression that he may have already discussed this matter with the Chinese and that his plan was a consequence thereof. In either event, Hull requested that this plan be struck upon, be relayed to the government of Japan and its attitude on it be ascertained. I said that I would give it my consideration.

24577

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

9 November 1941

(Purple—CA)

#751

Re the last part of your message #1055*.

We interpret Secretary Hull's plan to have a Chinese person of the highest integrity give his pledge regarding the China problem, to mean that the Secretary wishes to leave the China problem which has been a stumbling block in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations, up to direct negotiations between Japan and China for settlement. This would lead to having Chiang Kai-shek propose to us that peace negotiations be begun.

We recognize this to be a great contribution toward bringing about friendly relations between Japan and China and for this reason we highly welcome it. We will, of course, follow this message up with another giving this government's opinions. In the meantime please ascertain and advise us what relation this proposal has upon the Japanese-U. S. negotiations. Please make suitable inquiries on this phase to obtain as much information as possible, on whatever concrete plans the United States may have.

24579

JD-1: #6374

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6372 (b) (S. I. S. #24577).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
9 November 1941
(Purple)
#752

Re your #1040* and #1053.

1. This office is in complete agreement with the contents of your messages referred to above. The government is doing everything in its power to giving enlightenment to correctly guide public opinion. The censor bureau has evolved a plan whereby there will be no comments on the U. S.-Japanese negotiations. It goes without saying, of course, that the contents of the negotiations will not be published, but furthermore, all utterances which may tend to excite the United States will be censored. (It has been unofficially decided to even suppress information as to the dates on which the representatives of the two nations confer). We shall prevent the publication of anything that may interfere with the progress. We have issued a particularly vigorous warning to the Times of dire consequences if there are any infractions.

2. We see reports from correspondents in the U. S. area, (for example from the Domei office in your city), which are not in accord with our established policy of maintenance of calm and patience regarding the Japanese-U. S. talks. The situation here is a critical one, so please give correct guidance to all of the correspondents there.

24580

JD-1: 6375

(D) Navy Trans. 11-10-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6320 (S. I. S. #24479).

Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 10, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#755. Part 1 of 2.

Re my #754*.

In adjusting Japanese-American relations, the Government of Japan has attached a great deal of importance on speedy solution of the China Incident. At the same time the United States Government also has maintained the attitude that if peace is to be established in the Pacific, the China question cannot be overlooked. Now, if it is the intention of the United States Government to mediate between Japan and China along the lines proposed by Secretary HULL and also to leave the matter of peace terms to the Japanese and Chinese Governments, this plan harmonizes with what the Japanese Government has been looking forward to since the beginning of ———. It would mean that the question of withdrawing troops from China would according to HULL's suggestion be left out for the time being from the negotiations. This would make it possible for us to hasten the settlement by means of negotiations conducted between Japan and China alone and it would also have the advantage of bringing about peace between Japan and China without American interference.

Should we take advantage of this proposal, it goes without saying that it would be necessary to secure a promise or a definite statement that the settlement of the negotiations between Japan and the United States would not make the establishment of peace between Japan and China its condition and that the United States would not interfere with the peace to be established between Japan and China. (This promise includes cessation of activities for aiding CHIANG.) Furthermore, it is necessary to make it clear that the agreement between Japan and the United States would be immediately signed and put into effect.

Army 24581

Trans. 11/10/41 (S)

• Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 10, 1941
Purple (CA)
#755. Part 2 of 2.

As regards the China question, this would mean that the paragraph concerning the China Incident in Proposal "A" of my #726^a (paragraph 3 of the Agreement) should be eliminated from the agenda of the negotiations and paragraph 4 of Proposal "B" given in my #727^b (namely that the United States will refrain from any action detrimental to the efforts made for the purpose of establishing peace between Japan and China) be substituted in its place.

Furthermore, I believe that the United States wishes to see a speedy establishment of an agreement between Japan and the United States and so, for this reason, HULL's proposal is a sincere one and from this standpoint the United States Government proposes to mediate between Japan and China. If the United States is of the intention of postponing the settlement of questions other than the China question until peace is established between Japan and China or of continuing aid to CHIANG, we shall not be able to accept the proposal for it would prevent the establishment of an agreement between Japan and the United States and, furthermore, would be apt to put the blame for the failure of the Japanese-American negotiations upon us. I need hardly point this out to you but I would like to have you take care so that this would not happen.

Army 24582

Trans. 11/10/41 (S)

^a S. I. S. #24334-37.

^b S. I. S. #24338.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 10, 1941
Purple

#757 (Part 1 of 3) (To be handled in government code)

On the 10th I went to talk to the American Ambassador, and DOOMAN sat with us. I opened the conversation with a resume of my #725 * and reiterated my earnest hope that a decision could be reached in the negotiations on a basis just to our Empire. I explained that I would bend every effort toward the solution of this difficult situation. Then I continued, "Having examined the results of the negotiations thus far, what I feel is that the United States does not have full knowledge of the true situation. I feel that the United States does not have enough understanding and knowledge. Secretary HULL says that he recognizes Japan's stabilizing influence, yet unless he realizes sufficiently present conditions in East Asia and that we Japanese have been occupied over a period of four and a half years with the China incident, even though he calls us a stabilizing influence, he contradicts himself. Our population is ever increasing. Already we have about 100,000,000 people. In order to maintain their existence, we absolutely must obtain the necessary materials. On the other hand, six months have passed since Japanese-American negotiations began, and during that time, although we have given in as much as we could, the United States sticks to her first proposals and will not bend an inch. This is a most regrettable circumstance. It would seem that there are not a few Japanese who doubt the sincerity of the American Government. Consequently, a further delay would do great damage to our popular spirit. Moreover, the cabinet will soon convene, and the situation is becoming exceedingly tense. Without the loss of a day, we should establish these negotiations. I hope that the American Government, too, will fully consider all these points and take the large view, settling the whole thing at once. I do not honestly believe that there is any other way to settle this perplexing situation.

Army 24583

Trans. 11/10/41 (s)

* S. I. S. #24330-32 states that as a result of a conference between the Foreign Office and the Military High Command, two new proposals, containing the final concessions Japan is willing to make, have been devised.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 10, 1941
Purple (Urgent)

#757 (Part 2 of 3) (To be handled in government code)

Next I presented him with the English text of Proposal A contained in my #726 * and said, "As a result of deep thought, this was arrived at by the Government and represents the maximum compromise that we can endure to make. There is absolutely no possibility of our yielding any further.

"1. The attitude of both nations toward the European war is recorded in our proposal of September 25. Therefore, I take it for granted that we are in agreement on this score.

"2. I feel that this proposal fully covers America's desires concerning non-discriminatory treatment in commerce.

"3. Concerning the ever-knotty problem of evacuating troops, the present proposal, in view of the difficulties we face here in Japan, ventures our maximum compromise. I am sure that the United States officials can readily comprehend this. Let me tell you how strongly I hope that we can reach a quick settlement. Now included in this documents are many matters in which Great Britain's interests are deeply concerned, so it is necessary that, simultaneously with the establishment of Japanese-American negotiations, Japan and England make preparations to sign." I added, "I hope that the Government of the United States will undertake this."

The American Ambassador answered, "I have had no instructions from my home government, so I would like to reserve my opinion. Only as a hint, let me say that I have wired to Washington the true situation in detail, so the American Government understands the Oriental situation fully. Concerning influence for stability, there are many ways of interpreting that. Concerning the question of the obtention of materials, the present negotiations aim at that very thing, and I think that there will probably be some way for you Japanese to obtain what you need in a peaceful manner."

Army 24584

Trans. 11/10/41 (S)

* See S. I. S. #24334, #24335, #24336, and #24337.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 10, 1941
Purple

#757 (Part 3 of 3) (To be handled in government code)

I answered, "Though I have all along fully appreciated the efforts of Your Excellency, I do not feel that the Government of the United States has as yet fully appreciated the situation. The feeling in favor of stability and peace is, as a matter of course, the feeling of the majority of the people. Then too, insofar as the question of resources is concerned, if we take the example of the recent situation wherein the supplying of raw materials to Japan was suspended as a result of America's actions in the freezing of assets, such strong-arm measures of economic pressure, in addition to being a threat indicate the probability of even more severe measures in the future. The people of Japan, though they may feel deeply within themselves that extreme steps for self-defense must be brought to bear, cannot bring themselves to the point of carrying this out.

"On this question there is a definite need for the United States to give the most careful consideration. Furthermore, insofar as the China question is concerned, would you have us ignore the successes gained as a result of sacrifices that we have made over four and a half years? Submission to terms such as these would be suicidal to Japan. For the Government, as well as for the people, I believe that such a course is impossible."

At this point, Counselor DOOMAN interposed the following: "We cannot accept the results of aggression." I refuted him by saying, "The Imperial Government does not consider that it has carried on a war of aggression. Therefore, the question of the results of aggression cannot be raised. We should, therefore, make an exception even in a non-aggression pact insofar as military action in the interests of self-defense is concerned. The fact is, insofar as the interpretation of the right of self-defense is concerned, judging by the examples of recent arguments, I believe that it is the United States which has been exhibiting a tendency to wrongfully magnify this. Therefore, it seems indicated that it is for Japan to call for the exercise of self-control by the Government of the United States. But at any rate, insofar as today is concerned, it behooves us not to become too involved in such arguments as these."

Army 24585

Trans. 11/10/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple (CA)

(Urgent)

#1066. Part 1 of 2

1. I sent MOORE * to contact Senator THOMAS of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and HULL. His report reads as follows:

"The United States is not bluffing. If Japan invades again, the United States will fight with Japan. Psychologically the American people are ready. The Navy is prepared and ready for action."

2. Yesterday evening, Sunday, a certain Cabinet member, discarding all quibbling, began by saying to me:

"You are indeed a dear friend of mine and I tell this to you alone." Then he continued: "The American Government is receiving a number of reliable reports that Japan will be on the move soon. The American Government does not believe that your visit on Monday to the President or the coming of Mr. KURUSU will have any effect on the general situation."

I took pains to explain in detail how impatient the Japanese have grown since the freezing; how they are eager for a quick understanding; how both the Government and the people do not desire a Japanese-American war; and how we will hope for peace until the end.

He replied, however:

"Well, our boss, the President, believes those reports and so does the Secretary of State."

Army 24655

Trans. 11/12/41 (2)

* Frederick Moore—Legal Adviser to the Japanese Embassy in Washington.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple (CA)

(Urgent)

#1066 (Part 2 of 2)

In the newspapers and magazines, with the exception of the Daily News and the Hearst Papers, it is reported that the Americans are much more eager for a war with Japan than they are for one with Germany. It is said that some of the British are using this inclination for their own advantage and that already parleys have been started for joint Anglo-American action. Suggestions have already been made to the effect that it is necessary for some of the British fleet to be located in the Pacific. Now even if the President and other statesmen do not follow this trend, who can say how it will be? The friend I just spoke of told me that the United States cannot stop now because if Japan moves something will have to be done since it is a question of the United States saving its face.

3. Well, in any case, I am going to see the President today and talk with him on the bases of your instructions. You may be sure that I will do my very best.

Army 24656

Trans. 11/12/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple CA

(Extremely Urgent)

#1069

Today, the 10th, at 11:30, accompanied by WAKASUGI, I had an hour's conversation with President ROOSEVELT in the presence of Secretary HULL. I told them what you said in your instructions and explained in detail our proposal for the settlement of the three problems. In response the President said that in the present world crisis the American Government has as its objective to contribute to the establishment of peace and order in the Pacific in the spirit of fair play and that he hoped the Japanese-American conversations would be effective.

He continued, "In accordance with the desire of the Japanese Government we will endeavor immediately to continue the parleys and I hope that Japan too will make it evident that she intends to take a friendly attitude. What the United States most desires is (1) to prevent the expansion of the war, and (2) to bring about a lasting peace."

He concluded with the promise that he would carefully study, with Secretary HULL, our proposals as explained by me and after thinking them over make a reply.

I will wire you the details later, however, I am in a hurry to send you this résumé.

Army 24652

Trans. 11/12/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple (Extremely Urgent)

#1070 (Part 1 of 4)

(To be handled in Government Code. Secret outside the department)

My interview with the President, referred to in my #1069,^a was held in a private room in the White House in order to avoid publicity. It was as follows:

Prefacing my remarks with the fact that I was speaking on instructions, I said, "I have had no talks with the Secretary of State for about three weeks: ever since the resignation of the KONOYE cabinet; and since the present situation between Japan and the United States is such that it could not be left as it is, I am very pleased to have this opportunity of speaking with you. The conversations on this question have lasted for more than six months. From their inception, Japan has been wishing to arrive at a quick settlement. The people of Japan also looked forward to these conversations with much hope; however, the conversations have dragged on and in the meantime the relation between the two countries has grown worse. It has become increasingly difficult for the people of my country to be patient. Now, the Government of Japan has in the meantime made many concessions, but the Government of the United States has held to its arguments and has shown no willingness to respond to our compromises. As a result, some people in Japan have begun to doubt if the United States is really sincere in this matter. The Japanese people regard the freezing of funds as a kind of economic blockade, and there seem to be some who say that modern warfare is not limited to shooting alone. No country can exist without the supply of materials indispensable to its industry. From what reports I have received from Japan, the situation seems to be serious and threatening and, therefore, the only way to keep peace is for Japan and the United States to come, without further delay, to some kind of a friendly and satisfactory agreement. It is for no other purpose than that of keeping peace in the Pacific that the Japanese Government is endeavoring so hard to arrive at a satisfactory agreement by continuing our conversations.

Army #24714

Trans. 11/13/41 (1)

^a S. I. S. #24662 which states that President ROOSEVELT will endeavor to continue the parleys and that what the United States most desires is (1) to prevent the expansion of the war, and (2) to bring about a lasting peace.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
November 10, 1941
Purple (Very Urgent)
#1070 (Part 2 of 4)

"As a major effort in attaining this objective, our Government has made the recent proposal. I wish that your Government would make its views clear to us as soon as possible by responding to the views and desires expressed by the Japanese Government."

I incidentally told him that the Japanese Government, realizing the seriousness of the situation, is dispatching Ambassador KURUSU to assist me. Then I continued and said, by way of an explanation of our proposal, that taking together the views expressed on October 2 by the Secretary of State relative to our proposal of September 25, and what both the Secretary and the Assistant Secretary had said subsequent to that date, the whole question could be boiled down to consist of the following three difficult points. I went on to say:

1. "As to the principle of non-discrimination, we have decided to recognize the fact that if this principle is, as your Government wishes, to be applied to the whole world, it is to be applied in the entire Pacific area including China. Since this is something which the Secretary of State has often spoken to me about as being a long-cherished desire of his, I hope that this guarantee which our Government is offering would prove to be satisfactory to you.

2. "Now as to the attitude of the two governments toward the European war, we proposed in our proposal of September 25 that the action on the part of the two governments should be based upon consideration of 'protection and self-defense.'" (The English text used our expression as it stood.)

Regarding this point, I asked whether the United States Government would guarantee that it will not give an unnecessarily broad interpretation to the words "protection" and "self-defense", and I said, "If the Japanese Government could get such a guarantee from the United States Government, the Japanese Government is also willing to give a similar guarantee." I continued, "As to the words 'in case the United States enters the war, etc.,' since our conversations had for their object the maintenance of peace in the Pacific, we are not in a position, under the present circumstances, to make any definite statement outside of what has been given in our proposal of September 25. Unless we have confidence in each other, as you well realize, no guarantee would be a satisfactory one even if backed by a hundred promises and a hundred documents."

Army 24715

Trans. 11/13/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple (Very Urgent)

#1070 (Part 3 of 4)

3. I submitted the new proposal, as it stood, regarding the question of stationing and withdrawing of troops and proceeded to say, "With regard to this question, the Japanese Government has gone a step beyond her past proposals and has, by definitely fixing not only the localities in China where our troops would be stationed but also the period of their occupation, made it clear that the occupation is not a permanent and definite one. No doubt you would like to see the troops withdrawn at once, but I am sure you well understand that it is impossible under the present circumstances to do so. I earnestly wish that you would give favorable consideration to this question from the standpoint of the general situation."

Next, I said, "The Japanese Government is making the following proposal with regard to the Japanese troops in French Indo-China," and so saying, I submitted the proposal contained in your instructions.

In reply to this, the President, remarking that he had already thought on the question before our explanation was given him, spoke as follows from a note which he had been holding in his hand, "As a result of a confusion created by the forces of aggression, the whole world has fallen into a critical state. What seems to me to be common sense is for us to wish earnestly that the world will return to peaceful normalcy and for the United States Government to do its utmost in the spirit of fair play for the establishment of peace, stability, and order in the Pacific. If this object is to be realized, actual results must be effected for the sake of human welfare. It is my earnest wish that the preliminary talks relative to this question would have good results which would serve as a basis of future negotiations. I will; just as the Japanese Government hopes, do my best in order to help carry on these negotiations successfully. I wish that the Japanese Government would clearly set forth its intention of following a peaceful course in its policy and not an opposite course. This is the way to attain the results toward which both you and we are working."

What the United States desires, according to the President, are: (1) to prevent the war from spreading; and (2) to establish a permanent peace.

Army 24716

Trans. 11/13/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple (Very Urgent)

#1070 (Part 4 of 4)

The President elaborated on the point that with regard to the question of non-discrimination, he had agreed with CHURCHILL when he had conferred with that statesman to abolish the economic limitations throughout the world; that he had opposed Germany because Germany followed a policy contrary to this idea; and that he wished that the principle of non-discrimination would be applied generally throughout the world. The President then said by way of an incidental remark that in the days of President TAFT when disturbance arose in Cuba, the United States had failed by resorting to a policy of force; however, today under his administration, because the government had adopted a friendly policy, the relations with the Latin-American countries had improved. He then explained how necessary it is to follow a new policy in accordance with new situations. Secretary HULL inserted the remark that the South American countries, who had in the past been fearful of the United States, have come to take an attitude of welcoming the United States. Speaking on the remark I had made to the effect that economic pressure had aroused the ill feelings of the Japanese people and had made them impatient, the President said, "It is necessary to find a modus vivendi if the people are to live," and proceeded to explain that this expression should be translated as "method of living." Although it is not clear to me what it really means, I intend to ascertain whether he refers to, possibly, a provisional agreement.

The President then asked if Ambassador KURUSU was bringing with him a proposal other than that referred to above. I replied that he was not bringing any proposal, but in response to my wishes he was coming to assist me. Then the President said that he is leaving on the 15th and will be away for one week, as he must attend, as is his custom, a children's party at Warm Springs during the Thanksgiving week (the 20th), and that he wondered whether he would have the opportunity of meeting Ambassador KURUSU before he leaves.

Army 24717

Trans. 11/13/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
11 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#762

Re your #1069*

Judging from the progress of the conversations, there seem to be indications that the United States is still not fully aware of the exceedingly criticalness of the situation here. The fact remains that the date set forth in my message #736 is absolutely immovable under present conditions. It is a definite dead-line and therefore it is essential that a settlement be reached by about that time. The session of Parliament opens on the 15th (work will start on (the following day ?)) according to the schedule. The government must have a clear picture of things to come, in presenting its case at the session. You can see, therefore, that the situation is nearing a climax, and that time is indeed becoming short.

I appreciate the fact that you are making strenuous efforts, but in view of the above mentioned situation, will you redouble them. When talking to the Secretary of State and others, drive the points home to them. Do everything in your power to get a clear picture of the U. S. attitude in the minimum amount of time. At the same time do everything in your power to have them give their speedy approval to our final proposal.

We would appreciate being advised of your opinions on whether or not they will accept our final proposal A.

24653

JD-1: 6415

(D) Navy Trans. 11-12-41 (S-TT)

*S. I. S. #24652.

JD-1: 6254 (S. I. S. #24373).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
11 November 1941
(Purple)
#763

Re my #671*

With regard to our representations to the United States in this matter, we have received two representations from the Germans since then. On 6 November, I advised the German Ambassador in Tokyo that in view of the present general relationship between the United States and Japan, it was essential that this matter be given very careful study. I explained that there is a good chance that it would be more effective under the present circumstances, for us to present a determined attitude rather than to merely make representations to the United States. It is exceedingly doubtful, I pointed out, whether a mere representation would bear any fruit.

24654

JD-1: 6416

(D) Navy Trans. 11-12-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 5901 (S. I. S. #23631). Tokyo wires Nomura secretly that the Axis countries are demanding that Japan send a message to the U. S. stating that if the Roosevelt administration does not cease attacks on the Axis, it would provide reasons for convocation of the Three Power Pact and lead to war with Japan. Toyoda has to date held up such a note as well as information on talks with the U. S. in order to further those negotiations, but a warning note must now be presented by Japan in order to fulfill her obligations under the Tripartite Pact. (Mag. dated 16 October 1941)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
11 November 1941
(Purple)
#764 (In 3 parts, complete)

1. On the 11th, the British Ambassador, while calling on me on some other business, brought up the subject of the conversations. He advised me that he reported my talks of the other day (see contents of 2 of my message #723*) to his home government, to which his government replied along the following lines, he said:

"The British Government is not aware of the details of the conversations being conducted in Washington. Since its success would be of interest to Britain and Japan, it is fervently hoping for the success thereof. However, unless the basis of discussion is first settled upon, it would be useless to go ahead and enter into negotiations of the details. The British Government feels that discussions as to the basic principles could safely be left up to the U. S. Government. However, as soon as the real negotiations begin, the United States is to confer with Great Britain according to arrangement. Therefore, when that time arrives, negotiations will be carried on jointly with the United States and Japan."

2. I replied that in the matters being discussed between Japan and the United States there were some phases which greatly affected Great Britain. In the event of an agreement between Japan and the United States, Japan will simultaneously seek Britain's agreement. I wish to arrange matters so that the two agreements may be signed at exactly the same time. In view of the fact that to do the above is necessary, we have already requested the United States to give their approval to the terms, I said to the British Ambassador.

The British Ambassador said that he was not aware as to how much progress had been made between the United States and Japan, but he assumed that they were still in the preliminary stages.

I, therefore, replied that his assumption may have fitted in the past, but that at present they had already entered into the realm of the actual negotiations. Moreover, the Imperial Government has already submitted its final proposal, thus bringing the negotiations to the final phase. We have made this fact absolutely clear to the United States, I added.

I went on to say that I hear that the British Prime Minister made a speech at a luncheon given by the Mayor of London in which he stated that though he did not know the developments in the U. S.-Japanese negotiations, he would issue a warning to Japan. Would it not be more to the point, I challenged, if, instead of making threats without knowing of what he spoke, he were to try to more clearly understand the issues and to cooperate in an effort to clear them up? However, I said, with the U. S.-Japanese talks in the phase they are today, and in view of the fact that I realized that there were certain relationships between the United States and Great Britain, I have no intention of urging or opposing British participation in these talks at this time.

The Imperial Government has made the maximum concessions she can in drawing up its final proposal, I explained. We are of the opinion that the United States will find no objectionable points in it. I believe that it will be possible to sign the agreement within a week to ten days, I said. If, unfortunately, the United States refuses to accept those terms, it would be useless to continue the negotiations. Our domestic political situation will permit no further delays in reaching a decision.

I am making superhuman efforts at this time, I pointed out, in the attempt to ride out the crisis in the U. S.-Japanese and the British-Japanese relations. There are factions in the country which insist that there is no need for negotiating and point out the uselessness of doing so. The negotiations are being continued only after these factions were checked.

For these reasons, it is absolutely impossible that there be any further delays.

A speedy settlement can be made depending entirely upon the attitude of Britain and the United States, I said, and suggested that his country give serious consideration to this, and cooperate in bringing about an early agreement.

In the above manner, I pointed out the criticalness of the situation. The Ambassador listened to what I said very attentively, giving indications that he was realizing for the first time how critical the situation was. He advised me that he would send his government a report of the above conversation and that he himself would do his best to bring about a speedy settlement.

3. Thus, there are indications that the United States Government is still under the impression that the negotiations are in the preliminary stages and that we are still merely exchanging opinions. This is further supported by the words of President Roosevelt reported by you in your message #1070 (that part in which he says that he hopes that these preliminary discussions will lead to the basis of the real negotiations. etc.)

That the United States takes this lazy and easy going attitude in spite of the fact that as far as we are concerned, this is the final phase, is exceedingly unfortunate. Therefore, it is my fervent hope that Your Excellency will do everything in your power to make them realize this fact and bring about an agreement at the earliest possible moment.

24824

JD-1: 6417

(D) Navy Trans. 11-12-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6228 (S. I. S. #24203-04).

Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

11 November 1941

(Purple—CA)

#1074

Re your #762*

After my conversation with the President, I told Hull that as the situation is urgent, I would like to meet him the same evening or this morning, and go on with concrete discussion. He replied that they understand fully our need of haste, that, as a matter of fact both yesterday after our conversation and today, although it is the 11th and the Armistice holiday, he would gather those concerned and give study to our proposal, and that it would facilitate the negotiations to have our discussion tomorrow the 12th after hearing their opinions.

As for a conjecture regarding the success or failure of the negotiations, I will . . . after getting their opinions in tomorrow's interview.

24711

JD-1: 6453

(F) Navy Trans. 11-13-41 (7)

*JD-1: 6415 (S. I. S. #24653).

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

Purple

#1087 (Part 1 of 4)

(Departmental secret. To be handled in Government code.)

On the 12th at 3 p. m. WAKASUGI went with me to talk with Secretary HULL. BALLANTINE sat in and we conversed for about an hour. I asked if they had any answer to our proposal and HULL gave me the oral statements contained in my #1083^a and #1084^b. He said that he wanted me to ascertain if the new cabinet would also approve of oral statement A and stated that oral statement B was presented in the sense of a suggestion concerning peace between Japan and China referred to in our last conversation in accordance with our request. He went on to say that if the same principle were applied to the China question as was applied to all the other problems, a settlement should be possible; that also, such things as the question of non-discrimination in commerce had to be connected with this; and that by day after tomorrow he could let us have a definite proposal. I said that judging from this suggestion and our conversation it looked as though it was implied that unless Japan and China could get together on the question of the stationing of troops there would be no chance for any success at all in the Japanese-American negotiations. I said that if this was what was meant it would be leaving the key to Japanese-American relations in the hands of someone else, which looked rather inappropriate, and I asked him if he meant that Japanese-Chinese relations could be left to Japan and China and that the United States and Japan could agree on the other questions. HULL, however, replied vaguely that if the general principles were applied to China too, an understanding would be possible.

He then continued, "We have not yet privately informed China about these talks, but we are letting England and the Netherlands, who are concerned, know something of their general lines. In case some basis for negotiations is worked out, I believe it possible that they may sign along with the United States. However," he added, "I cannot guarantee this."

Army 24794

Trans. 11/14/41 (2)

^a See S. I. S. #24785-24788, inclusive.

^b See S. I. S. #24789 for part 1 of 4. Other parts not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

Purple (Extremely Urgent)

#1087. Part 2 of 4.^a

To be handled in government code.

Then BALLANTINE inserted the remark that it is stipulated in the American proposal of June 21st that the United States will not be a party to applying to other countries any condition conflicting with the principles which the United States has been consistently upholding.

WAKASUGI said:

"While we heartily welcome the suggestion offered, I would like to know more definitely how China is to be made to pledge to follow the suggestion. Is it the intention of Secretary HULL to leave this matter up to direct negotiations to be conducted between Japan and China; or is it his intention to have the United States secure the pledge from China and transmit it to Japan; or it is to be accomplished with Japan, the United States, and China meeting in a conference?"

It seems that Secretary HULL had no definite plan in mind regarding this matter, but he spoke as if he was confident that if the Japanese-American negotiations are carried out in accordance with the principle of peace that a stage would in due time be reached at which this suggestion could be carried out.

Whereupon WAKASUGI asked:

"Is it your intention to have China make this pledge when that stage has been reached in the course of the negotiations?"

HULL avoided making a definite reply and instead he brought out an example, stating that when two parties in a dispute wish to come to an agreement they could do so by the mediation of a third party and, so saying, HULL hinted his having the intention of mediating between Japan and China depending, of course, on conditions.

Army 24837

Trans. 11/15/41 (2)

* For Part 1 see S. I. S. #24794.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

Purple

#1087 (Part 3 of 4)* (Departmental Secret) (To be handled in government code)

Concerning the stationing of troops, I explained to him that in the new proposal we made it clear that we do not mean to keep them there indefinitely. HULL replied that to interfere in the private affairs of other nations contravenes any general peace program and that permanent occupation is impossible. However, he seemed quite satisfied with my explanation.

In connection with a general peace policy, HULL said, "In one breath you say that the three-power pact has a peaceful objective and in the other you confess that Japan is bound by the agreement and is tied up with Germany. Now the officials of our country and our public are at a loss to understand any explanation like this. HITLER has a hard task and to carry it out, he is making the people of the various small nations suffer. Now he cannot hold out forever in such a difficult undertaking, and sooner or later we are going to have to take charge of things after the war. In this we are going to need every resource. Leaders of both Japan and the United States ought to cooperate in a peaceful program. Thus, if some sort of plan can be worked out between Japan and the United States comprising the nations concerned—for example, England and the Netherlands—to bring about complete harmony over the Pacific, Japan would no longer need to worry about the three-power pact, and the three-power pact would die a natural death." I refuted this argument, saying, "The Japanese-British alliance was in effect at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, but afterwards at the time of the Washington conference it was nullified, so you see the situation changes with the times. The existence of the three-power pact presents no obstacle to any peace plan.

Army 24838

Trans. 11/15/41 (2)

* Part 4 of 4 not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

Purple

#1087 (Part 4 of 4)*

Departmental secret. (To be handled in government code.)

Continuing, he said, "Japan does not like to exercise force—not by any means. If we could get petroleum and other raw materials from the United States and the Netherlands Indies, we would not have to use force, would we? Then, when we come to the question of non-discrimination in commerce, I don't think that the United States will have any objection to our proposal."

HULL answered, "The United States also recognizes that the situation is tense and is considering your proposals concerning the three problems. We are doing this just as fast as we can but questions pending over a period of ten years cannot be settled over night. By day after tomorrow, I will be ready to reply."

WAKASUGI reiterated, "As I told you, the Diet assembles on the 25th and the situation is drawing more and more grave. I want to get a definite reply to our proposal at any time now so by day after tomorrow I will expect a clear concise reply on these various problems."

In a word, during that conversation they sought our recognition of the statement of August 28, number B, and made explanations of their recent suggestions for a Japanese-Chinese peace. They only wished to tell us that the United States is going deeper into the three problems and our proposal of September 25 and that they are making ready for a quick reply. I am not satisfied with their attitude toward taking up negotiations so tomorrow morning I am going to have WAKASUGI again tell HULL please to hurry up with a decision.

Army 25428

Trans. 11/26/41 (X)

* For Part 1 of 4 see S. I. S. #24794. For parts 2 and 3 see S. I. S. #24837 & #24838. A report of the conference between Ambassador NOMURA and Secretary HULL with WAKASUGI and BALLANTINE present.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Vichy

November 12, 1941

Purple

#528

In the face of the ever-straining international situation, the army is endeavoring to perfect as quickly as possible military facilities in French Indo-China. As a result, they now face a great need of making certain preparations in North Indo-China which would be in violation of the NISIHARA-MARUTAN agreement, especially the clause which forbids occupation by the army of the area south of the river Aju*. The French Indo-China authorities, I understand, claiming that they could not permit the Japanese Army to make such preparations because they consider the restrictions stipulated in the agreement still valid, refuse absolutely to recognize the demands of the Japanese Army. However, at the time the treaty for the joint defense was concluded, in anticipation of just such a case as this, we saw to it that a clause was inserted to the effect that the treaty includes cancellation of the restrictions stipulated in the NISIHARA-MARU-TAN agreement. Therefore, urge them to issue at once definite instructions to the French Indo-China authorities to withdraw their claim and then wire me the results.

Army 24915

Trans. 11/18/41 (NR)

* Kana spelling.

[Secret]

From: Toyko
To: Washington
13 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#766

Re your 1055*

1. Through the U. S. Ambassador's courtesy, I was, in confidence, shown the record of your conversations with Secretary Hull of the 7th. According to this record, the Secretary asked you, point blank, in connection with the so-called self-defense rights, for a "concrete statement of Japan's relations with the Axis powers".

You made no mention of this in your message. Will you please give us a detailed report of this.

2. Judging from the tone of these talks, the United States is apparently still assuming that they are of a preliminary nature. We pleaded with the U. S. Ambassador again on the 12th to try and see the seriousness of the situation. Will you, too, do everything in your power to make them realize this in accordance with the lines contained in my various instructions on this subject.

3. Since the record of your conversations with Hull were shown to me only through the personal courtesy of the Ambassador, please maintain strict secrecy regarding it.

24712

JD-1: 6455

(D) Navy Trans. 11-13-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6372(b) (S. I. S. #34577 & 24646).

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
13 November 1941
(Purple)
#1089

Re my #1087*

On this, the 13th, Wakasugi called on Ballantine.

(1) Wakasugi said:

"Yesterday's conversations led to no settlement and moreover, the outcome of it fell far short of Japanese anticipations. The times have become exceedingly critical and the Japanese people have become impatient with regard to the Japanese-U. S. conversations. They are becoming desperate as far as Japanese-U. S. relations are concerned. This being the general condition in Japan, and being confronted with the fact that it is the eve of the convening of the session of the Diet, the government of Japan is anxious to have these U. S.-Japanese talks reach some conclusion without a moment's unnecessary delay.

"The above is as was explained forcefully in yesterday's conversations. In the next conversations, any discussions of general attitudes and comments on the possible outlook should be unnecessary.

"We request that Hull be asked to give a clear reply at our next meeting on the following points: Does the United States intend to accept our proposal of 25 September, including the proposals submitted by us on 7th and 10th of this month? If not, will the United States submit a counter proposal to the above, clearly indicating the revision desired? Or, on the other hand, is the United States of the attitude that she will stick to her proposal of 21 June and make that instrument her final proposal?

"Many in Japan are of the opinion that the United States is purposely stalling the procedure", Wakasugi said.

Ballantine:

"The United States is also aware of the fact that matters have reached an exceedingly critical stage. In spite of the fact that the 11th was a holiday, it was disregarded and this matter was discussed. There is no truth in the charge that the United States is pursuing a "stalling" policy.

"However, in spite of the fact that we do not wish to appear to be quibbling about details, there are several points which will have to be explained by Japan before the United States can make definite replies.

(Part 2)

"For example, Japan has expressed her acceptance of non-discrimination of commerce on the Pacific but on condition that said non-discriminatory treatment be applied to the entire world. Does this sweeping proposal include those nations which are at present embroiled in the war? We cannot help but have some misgivings as to when such an agreement would become effective over the entire Pacific area, if its effectivity there depends on its applicability on the nations at war."

Wakasugi:

"Fundamentally speaking, the basic aims of this is to bring about a U. S.-Japanese agreement. The supporters would be Japan and the United States, hence the terms are not intended to be made applicable to every country in the world. It is our intention that the United States and Japan agree upon the basic principle of non-discriminatory treatment throughout the world."

(2) Concerning the matter contained in your messages #758 and #764, it is true that the United States is still assuming that, as it was in the beginning, these talks are as yet in the exploratory stages through which the basis of agreements may be discovered. We, on the other hand, are going on the assumption that these are the actual negotiations. There exists, therefore, a fundamental discordant note.

Wakasugi pointed out this fact, to which Ballantine replied:

"The United States is proceeding along the lines set forth heretofore. Even as late as yesterday, Hull said that if these conversations can be carried to the point of their being made the basis of a negotiation, we could no doubt get Britain and The Netherlands to participate."

(Part 3)

Wakasugi:

"Leaving aside the U. S. viewpoint on this particular matter for the time being, if talks between the duly recognized Ambassador of one country and the President and Secretary of State of another, concerning adjustments of relations between the two countries they represent—regardless of the form in which said talks are conducted—are not negotiations, we are indeed hard put to it to figure out what, indeed, does constitute a diplomatic negotiation.

"I request that Hull be clearly advised that we are treating the present proceedings as part of the negotiations."

(3) Regarding your message 766*:

The main objective of that day's interview was to submit our new proposal and to arrange for a meeting with the President together with Secretary Hull and to advise them that we would make a more detailed explanation at that time. For that reason, as I reported in my message, the only reference I made to the Tripartite Pact was to express my hopes that they would not insist upon enlarging the scope of the right of self-defense. Besides that, we discussed nothing pertaining to the Tripartite Pact. Hull never requested that we made a "concrete statement" concerning our relations with the Axis Powers. Had he done so, I would have been compelled to make some reply.

For the sake of reassuring myself, I had Wakasugi make indirect reference to this matter to Ballantine who was present on the occasion in question. Wakasugi asked Ballantine if he could remember any other points that might have been discussed, stating that he wanted this information for the sake of the records. Ballantine replied that he could recall nothing further.

If any mention was made of the topic you state was in the records of the meeting, it would not be likely that Ballantine, who was the only other person there, knows nothing about it. No doubt there is some mistake there. You are aware, of course, that the United States is trying to get us to assure them on our stand with regard to our duties under the terms of the Pact. You can see that by the contents of their proposal.

(Please insert "766-(2)" following that part reading "764" in (2) of this message.)

24882

JD-1: 6559

(D) Navy Trans. 11-17-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6521 (S. I. S. #24794, 24837-38).

JD-1: 6413 (S. I. S. #24650).

JD-1: 6417 (S. I. S. #24834). (Note: In connection with this ref. see last sentence above.)

*JD-1: 6455 (S. I. S. #24712).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

November 14, 1941

Purple (CA) (Urgent)

#772

The time of presentation of Proposal B will be according to my instructions of today. We have drawn up this proposal in a formal measure including the addendum. (I mean to say the proposal you are to present to the American officials upon instructions from me.) I am sending to you the English text thereof in ensuing message #773.^a

 Army 24791 Trans. 11/14/41 (S)

^a See S. I. S. #24792.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 14, 1941
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)

Points 1, 2, 3, and 4 are given in my #727 ^a.

5. The Japanese Government agrees to withdraw her army, which is at present stationed in French Indo-China, whenever peace shall have been established between Japan and China or a just peace firmly established in the Pacific area.

6. The Japanese Government (agrees ?) that if the principle of non-discriminatory treatment in trade is to be applied throughout the world the same principle should also be applied to the entire Pacific area, in other words, in China as well.

7. The two governments shall make world peace their common objective and shall cooperate at a suitable time for speedy realization of world peace. However, in dealing with developments prior to the establishment of world peace, the two governments shall act in accordance with the viewpoint of protection and self defense. Furthermore, in the event of the United States' participation in the European war, Japan shall automatically carry out what she understands to be the obligations which befall her as a party to the Three Power Agreement existing between Japan, Germany and Italy. (Point 7 is identical with what is given in paragraph 2 of our proposal of _____ of this month and does not contain the purport given in the first part of (2) of our Proposal "A". This is for your information.)

Army 24792 Trans. 11/14/41 (S)

^a S. I. S. #24338. Text of proposal "B".

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Hongkong
 November 14, 1941
 Purple

Cir. #2319 (To be handled in Government Code)
 (Strictly secret outside the Department)

Though the Imperial Government hopes for great things from the Japan-American negotiations, they do not permit optimism for the future. Should the negotiations collapse, the international situation in which the Empire will find herself will be one of tremendous crisis. Accompanying this, the Empire's foreign policy as it has been decided by the cabinet, insofar as it pertains to China, is:

- a. We will completely destroy British and American power in China.
- b. We will take over all enemy concessions and enemy important rights and interests (customs and minerals, etc.) in China.

c. We will take over all rights and interests owned by enemy powers, even though they might have connections with the new Chinese government, should it become necessary.

In realizing these steps in China, we will avoid, insofar as possible, exhausting our veteran troops. Thus we will cope with a world war on a long-time scale. Should our reserves for total war and our future military strength wane, we have decided to reinforce them from the whole Far Eastern area. This has become the whole fundamental policy of the Empire. Therefore, in consideration of the desirability to lighten our personal and material load, we will encourage the activities of important Chinese in their efforts in the occupied territories insofar as is possible. Japan and China, working in cooperation, will take over military bases. Thus, operating wherever possible, we will realize peace throughout the entire Far East. At the same time, we place great importance upon the acquisition of materials (especially from unoccupied areas). In order to do this, all in the cabinet have concurred, in view of the necessity, in a reasonable relaxation of the various restrictions now in force (after you have duly realized the critical situation which has brought the above decisions into being you will, of course, wait for instructions from home before carrying them out).

In connection with the above, we have the precedent of the freezing legislation. We are wiring you this particularly for your information alone. Please keep absolutely quiet the existence of these decisions and the fact that they have been transmitted to you.

This message is directed to Nansō,* Hokudai,* Shanghai, Tientsin, Hsinkow, Hankow, Canton, and Hongkong. Hokudai* will transmit to Kalgan and Taiyuan. Tsingtao will transmit to Tsinan. Canton will transmit to Amoy.

Army 25322

JD 6801

Trans. 11/26/41 (NR)

* Kana spelling.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 14, 1941

Purple

#1090 (Part 1 of 3)* (Departmental Secret)

(To be handled in Government Code)

I am telling Your Excellency this for your own information only.

I believe that I will win out in the long run in these negotiations, and I will fight to the end. I will do my very best with infinite patience and then leave the outcome up to God Almighty. However, I must tell you the following:

1. As I told you in a number of messages, the policy of the American Government in the Pacific is to stop any further moves on our part either southward or northward. With every economic weapon at their command, they have attempted to achieve this objective, and now they are contriving by every possible means to prepare for actual warfare.

2. In short, they are making every military and every other kind of preparation to prevent us from a thrust northward or a thrust southward; they are conspiring most actively with the nations concerned and rather than yield on this fundamental political policy of theirs in which they believe so firmly, they would not hesitate, I am sure, to fight us. It is not their intention, I know, to repeat such a thing as the Munich conference which took place several years ago and which turned out to be such a failure. Already I think the apex of German victories has been passed. Soviet resistance persists, and the possibility of a separate peace has receded, and hereafter this trend will be more and more in evidence.

3. The United States is sealing ever-friendlier relations with China, and insofar as possible she is assisting CHIANG. For the sake of peace in the Pacific, the United States would not favor us at the sacrifice of China. Therefore, the China problem might become the stumbling block to the pacification of the Pacific and as a result the possibility of the United States and Japan ever making up might vanish.

Army 24877

Trans. 11/17/41 (2)

* For Part 2, see S. I. S. #24857; Part 3 of 3 not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 14, 1941

Purple (Urgent)

#1090 (Part 2 of 3)* (Departmental Secret) (To be handled in Government Code)

4. There is also the question of whether the officials of the Japanese Government are tying up very intimately with the Axis or not. We are regarded as having a very flexible policy, ready, nevertheless, in any case, to stab the United States right in the back. Lately the newspapers are writing in a manner to show how gradually we are tying up closer and closer with the Axis.

5. If we carry out a venture southward for the sake of our existence and our lives, it naturally follows that we will have to fight England and the United States, and chances are also great that the Soviet will participate. Furthermore, among the neutral nations, those of Central America are already the puppets of the United States, and as for those of South America, whether they like it or not, they are dependent for their economic existence on the United States and must maintain a neutrality partial thereto.

6. It is inevitable that this war will be long, and this little victory or that little victory, or this little defeat or that little defeat do not amount to much, and it is not hard to see that whoever can hold out till the end will be the victor.

7. It is true that the United States is gradually getting in deeper and deeper in the Atlantic, but this is merely a sort of convoy warfare, and as things now stand she might at any moment transfer her main strength to the Pacific.

Army 24857

JD 6553

Trans. 11/17/41 (7)

* Parts 1&3 not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 14, 1941

Purple

#1090 (Part 3 of 3)* (Secret outside the Department)

Great Britain, too, in the light of the present condition of the German and Italian navies, has, without a doubt, moved considerable strength into the area of the Indian Ocean. I had expected in the past that should the United States start warlike activities in the Atlantic, there would be considerable feeling for a compromise in the Pacific, but there has been no evidence of such an inclination as yet. There are even now many arguments against war with Germany as opposed to internal questions, but there is not the slightest opposition to war in the Pacific. It is being thought more than ever that participation will be carried out through the Pacific area.

8. Though I cannot be a hundred per cent sure of the present situation in Japan, having read your successive wires I realize that the condition must be very critical. In spite of the fact that it is my understanding that the people and officials, too, are tightening their belts, I am going to pass on to you my opinion, even though I know that I will be harshly criticized for it. I feel that should the situation in Japan permit, I would like to caution patience for one or two months in order to get a clear view of the world situation. This, I believe, would be the best plan.

Furthermore, I would like to call your attention again to my wires Nos. 894^a and 901^b sent to you on the 3rd and 4th of November, respectively.

Army 25139

Trans. 11/22/41 (NR)

* S. I. S. #23166 in which NOMURA gives his views on the present world situation.
b S. I. S. #23114 in which Ambassador NOMURA apologizes for expressing himself carelessly on the spur of the moment on October 3 and ventures the opinion that Japan will have to drastically reorganize her economy before she is able to become self-sufficient as a result of the establishment of the sphere of co-prosperity. He suggests a profitable foothold from a southward movement within several years.

* For Parts 1 and 2, see S. I. S. Nos. 24877 and 24887.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

15 November 1941

(Purple—CA)

#774

Re your #1087*

During the conversations with Hull, Wakasugi asked, with regard to the form in which the "B" suggestion should materialize, "or is it your intention to have it conducted by the consular representatives of Japan, the United States, and China?" As you are aware, the Imperial Government is opposed to its taking that course.

Please be aware of the fact that the "B" suggestion was taken up because we thought it might be a short cut to settlement. In other words, we decided to take it up because we thought it would speed up the procedure. We do not wish to give it even a chance to further complicate and prolong matters.

Bearing this in mind, do everything in your power to not only prevent further complications but to simplify matters as much as possible.

24833

JD-1: 6530

(D) Navy Trans. 11-15-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6521 (S. I. S. #24787).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
15 November 1941
(Purple)
#775

Through my various messages on the subject, you are fully aware of the fact that these talks have gone beyond the preliminary stage and that they are now well within the realm of the "real thing". It is true that at the time the Konoye statement was dispatched, the negotiations were more or less conducted as preliminary to a meeting of "the leaders". However, for all practical purposes, the talks had gone beyond the point where they could be termed as being of a "preliminary" nature. By that time, we had centered all of our efforts toward bringing about a speedy termination of the talks. That has been made perfectly clear. I feel sure that the United States too, regardless of what they may have said, recognized this fact from a realistic point of view.

It is true that the United States may try to say that since we made no particular mention of the changed status of the talks, they were under the impression that they were still of a preliminary nature.

Whatever the case may be, the fact remains that the date set forth in my message #736* is an absolutely immovable one. Please, therefore, make the United States see the light, so as to make possible the signing of the agreement by that date.

24834

JD-1: 6531

(D) Navy Trans. 11-15-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6264 (S. I. S. #24373).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
15 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#781

To Ambassador Kurusu.

I wish to express my sympathy on the presumption that you must be experiencing considerable fatigue as a consequence of your long trip by air. Not alone this Minister, but everyone in government circles, feels deep gratitude that you have agreed to tackle the exceedingly difficult problems which confront us. As I said, I realize that your task is a difficult one, but at the same time it is an important one; success or failure will have a great bearing on the rise or decline of our nation.

Please explain to Ambassador Nomura the conditions which exist here, and at the same time describe our determinations in detail to him. After you have perfect understanding of each other, cooperate with him in an unsparing effort to guide the negotiations to any early settlement. That is my fervent prayer which I hope may be granted.

Even after the presentation of the final proposal by us, the U. S. Government apparently continues to show laxness. There are even those who suspect that the United States is intentionally stalling for time. In view of the fact that the crisis is fast approaching, no subsidiary complications can be countenanced even when considering the time element alone. Such an eventuality would make impossible the surmounting of the crisis.

Please familiarize yourself with my various instructions to Ambassador Nomura on this subject, after which do everything in your power to make the United States come to the realization that it is indeed a critical situation. I beg of you to make every effort to have them cooperate with us in assuring peace on the Pacific.

Because of your expressed desires prior to your departure from here, we have not as yet presented our "B" proposal to the United States. We are of the opinion, however, that we had better submit it to them at an early opportunity.

24873

JD-1: #6556

(D) Navy Trans. 11-17-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

15 November 1941

(Purple)

#1095 (In 2 parts, complete)

On this, the 15th, I, accompanied by Wakasugi, called on Secretary Hull, (Ballantine was also present), for an interview which lasted about one hour and a half. I shall report in detail subsequently, but in the meantime, I am sending you a resume of the meeting as follows:

The United States handed us an explanation of their stand on the "non-discriminatory treatment in commerce" matter, which I am forwarding to you as separate wire "A", numbered my message #1096*; separate wire "B", numbered my message #1097, contains the text of their proposal involving this matter. (The latter is a proposed joint statement on economic policy and is composed of (1) general policy; (2) Japanese-U. S. relations; and, (3) policies involving the Pacific area).

We stated that we would give these notes our careful study and after requesting our government's advice, would make a reply. We went on to say that we insist that these talks have now progressed to the negotiations stage.

To this Hull replied that before any settlements can be reached, it is necessary that other countries involved, such as Britain and the Netherlands East Indies, be consulted. This procedure is desired by Japan too, he pointed out. There are reasons, he said, that make it inconvenient for the United States to state that negotiations are being conducted with Japan alone, before they have had a chance to participate therein. He went on to repeat that for those reasons, these talks shall continue to be of an exploratory nature. At the same time, the continuation of these conversations shall not be hampered, he promised.

We then requested that he reply with regard to other matters to which Hull said:

"Japan on the one hand is attempting to enter into a peaceful agreement with the United States, while simultaneously, on the other hand, she is insisting that her military alliance with Germany be maintained. I, personally, can understand Japan's explanations, however, I feel that it would be exceedingly difficult to make the general U. S. public and even of the world, see through the seeming paradox.

(Part 2)

"For this reason, it is essential that we have the definite word of the new Japanese Cabinet on the peaceful policy. In other words, it is essential that this new Cabinet give definite recognition and approval of the statement submitted by the previous government concerning this matter. On 21 June, we made certain proposals which concerned political stabilization of the entire Pacific area. Even if Japan were to favor limiting this area to only the southwestern Pacific area, the United States would continue to desire that it be made applicable to the entire Pacific area.

"Therefore, we shall submit our reply on the other two points only after we have received a reply to the proposal we are submitting to you today."

We therefore stated that our government's attitude has already been expressed by the contents of our proposal through which it may be seen that there has been no changes therein. However, for the sake of reassurance, we would ascertain this point, we said.

Hull expressed several doubts concerning our relations to the Tripartite Pact. He pointed out that in spite of the Japanese-U. S. S. R. neutrality pact, it was apparently essential that great armed forces of both countries had to constantly face each other across the Japanese-U. S. S. R. border. The United States wants no peace of that nature. He went on to say that the United States desires that simultaneously with a peace agreement between Japan and the United States, the Tripartite Pact shall become a mere scrap of paper.

We, therefore, repeated that part of our proposal which involved that alliance and again pointed out that there need be no clash between U. S.-Japanese peace and the continued existence of that treaty. We went on to say that our government would no doubt be very disappointed at the results of today's conversations. We then decided to meet again after I had received my government's further instructions.

Will you, therefore, please rush your instructions concerning the matters contained herein.

24930

JD-1: 6584

(D) Navy Trans. 11-18-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6585 S. I. S. No. 24931.

JD-1: 6586 S. I. S. No. 24932.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

5 November 1941

Purple)

#1098 (In 2 parts, complete)

Let us suppose that the Japanese-U. S. negotiations for the adjustment of relations between the two countries which are being conducted at present, unfortunately break down, and that, as a consequence, we pursue an unrestricted course. The following is my guess as to what would be the relationship between the United States and Japan under such circumstances.

Much, of course, would depend on what move we make and how we make it, but

(a) It is most probable that diplomatic relations between the two countries would be broken off immediately;

(b) Even if they are not, the same situation as now exists between Germany and the United States—that is, the closing of the consulates and recalling of the Ambassador—will probably be effected. Through the application of the order freezing the assets, economic relations have already been broken off for all practical purposes). Under such circumstances, only a small staff will remain at the Embassy here. (Please see my separate wire #1099* for my suggestion as to the personnel of such a reduced staff).

I presume that the government has given careful consideration as to the disposition of the various offices and our nationals residing here. I would appreciate being advised in confidence of your decision in these matters.

In the event of (b), I presume that the same procedure as was followed in the case of U. S.-Germany will be followed. That is, personnel of the consulates of the respective countries will no doubt be evacuated by mutual consent. We can see that it could be possible for the officials and business men who remained here at that time (they would total about 300 or 400), to be evacuated on another vessel. However, we fear that the number of persons desiring passage will undoubtedly skyrocket. The Consuls will, of course, urge our nationals to remain here even if the worst eventuality should materialize, but we feel that there will be many who, because of various circumstances, will find it impossible to do so.

It will be practically impossible to make a distinction between them and officials and business men. Will you, therefore, give your consideration to sending enough ships to evacuate these people.

(Part 2)

In the event of (a)—

(1) No doubt some agreement between the United States and Japan will be entered into to guarantee the safe passage of Embassy and Consulate staff members, (agreements will no doubt be entered into with regard to the course of the vessel, markers, and communication methods). (One plan may be to have these officials sent to some half-way point, for example Hawaii, some port in the Aleutian Islands, or, if unavoidable to French Tahiti, on ships belonging to the nation to which they are accredited, and at such prearranged place, have the respective ships exchange passengers). To the representative of what nation do we plan to entrust our national property and to protect the rights of our nationals remaining here? Is it correct to assume that negotiations with the country which has been selected will be completed in Tokyo with the diplomatic representative of that country and in that country by our ambassador or minister?

(2) Japanese residents here who are of military age, will undoubtedly be held here. Therefore, a plan to exchange our nationals residing here for Americans residing in Japan is conceivable, but in view of the difference in numbers, it is indeed a very slim hope. Dependence on ships of neutral register, too, would be an exceedingly precarious undertaking should war actually be declared. We would appreciate being advised of the government's attitude on these points.

25032

JD-1: 6631

(D) Navy Trans. 11-19-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6654 (S. I. S. #25083)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

15 November 1941

(Purple)

#1106 (In 6 parts, complete.)

Chief of Office routing.

The following is the conversation I had with Hull on the 15th, the gist of which I reported to you in my message #1095*:

Hull said that the United States is making sincere efforts too, and through such efforts, he said, he is now able to present a proposal concerning the commerce problem. So saying, he related to me Note "A", which was reported to you as my message #1096.

Hull: "The United States has entered into trade agreements with 22 nations, all of which are based on the status of a "most-favored nation". Through them trade barriers throughout the world are being removed. There actually are between 1000 and 1200 articles on which tariffs have been substantially reduced. I strongly advocated this policy at the Economic Conference which was held in London some time ago, but because opposition to it was voiced by some, it was not adopted at that time." (He added that Germany was one of the countries which was opposed to it.)

"In this way, the United States desires to apply the non-discriminatory policy over a wide scope. Japan wants that part of the proposal which advocates the application of these terms to the entire Pacific area to be revised so that it will be applicable to the entire world. The United States is unable to guarantee any conditions which are outside of the United States' sphere of influence. Therefore, I hope that Japan will agree to delete her condition, in which she insists that she will agree to applying the non-discriminatory treatment to the Pacific area only if it is applied to the world."

(Part 2)

So saying, he submitted Note "B" which contains the U. S. proposal and which was sent to you as my message #1097. Wakasugi asked Hull if this was a counter proposal to that part of our proposal which we submitted the other day concerning the three major problems, pertaining to non-discrimination. Hull replied that in its application it covers a wider range, (meaning, apparently, that its contents covers a wider range). I, therefore, advised Hull that we would give it our study and that we would seek our government's opinion thereon after which I would submit our reply.

I said: "Since official proposals have been submitted by me to the President and the Secretary of State, we feel that these talks should be looked upon as negotiations."

Hull: "Your government may consider those talks as being negotiations today. As I said at our previous meeting, however, the subjects being discussed must be taken up with Britain, Netherlands, and others. Moreover, the Foreign Minister himself told Ambassador Grew in Tokyo that it was essential that those countries participate in the negotiations. For these reasons, we feel that it is necessary to hold these preliminary exploratory conversations between Japan and the United States first. It would be inappropriate if we were to consider these talks formal negotiations, because then it would seem as if we were trying to force whatever settlements we reached upon those other nations.

"I feel that we should first find the basic principles on which a suitable agreement could be reached, after which, the United States would reveal its attitude to those other countries, and ask them to participate in the final settlement. Thus until we work things out to a point which would seem to be satisfactory to all parties concerned, I shall consider these talks to be exploratory in nature.

(Part 3)

"From a more practical viewpoint, too, if there were negotiations, the free exchange of opinions between the United States and Japan would be considerably hindered. In Tokyo the Foreign Minister requested to Ambassador Grew that . . . (several lines missing).

"In the United States proposal of 21 June, the United States advocates that that part pertaining to the political stabilization be made applicable to the entire Pacific area. Japan wants to limit it to the southwestern Pacific area only. In view of the fact that my talks with Your Excellency concerns the establishment of peace in the entire Pacific area, I find it difficult to understand Japan's desires to so limit the area. I would like to have this point explained."

He went on to repeat what he has said from time to time before, regarding Japan's peace policies and her connections in the Tripartite Pact.

(Part 4)

Hull, as he did on the previous occasion, requested that the present government of Japan give its definite approval of the spirit of peace contained in our statement of 28 August.

I therefore replied: "The spirit of that statement was contained in our latest proposal and therefore I am convinced that there has been no change in our government's attitude. We are doing everything in our power to bring about a settlement so that peace may be guaranteed on the Pacific. It is true that the words "southwestern Pacific" appear in the main text of our proposal, but in the preface thereto we made it clear that our aims are to establish and maintain peace on the entire Pacific area."

Hull: "The preface is not a part of the main text and therefore its contents had no binding powers. The only parts which have any binding powers are the contents of the main text."

So saying, he again repeated his doubts as to Japan's expressed peaceful intentions.

He went on to say that Japan is apparently wanting to enter into a peaceful agreement with the United States on the one hand while maintaining a military alliance with Germany on the other.

Hull: "I, myself, can understand Japan's viewpoint and explanations on this matter. The general public, however, are aware only that Japan is allied to Germany and to it—the general public—this has a very militaristic connotation. Should the United States, disregarding what seems to be a paradox, enter into a peace agreement with Japan, the general public and the world in general would probably howl with laughter. We would be in a very difficult position to try to make any explanations.

"If Japan succeeds in coming to an agreement with the United States, she would not find it necessary to hold on to the Tripartite Agreement, would it?

(Part 5)

"While on the one hand Japan is asking that Britain and the Netherlands, which are at war with Germany, to participate in a peaceful agreement which is to be established between Japan and the United States, while on the other she negotiates a military alliance with Germany which is the enemy of Britain and the Netherlands. That is incongruous."

I: "We have already explained our position in the Tripartite Pact in our proposal. As I said before, an alliance and a peace agreement need not necessarily be at odds with each other as may be seen by the example of the Japanese-British alliance. Fundamentally speaking, this alliance in question has peace as its main objective. Germany, too, understands that the alliance would not conflict with peace between Japan and the United States."

Hull: "If Japan insists on adhering to the alliance with Germany even after an agreement is reached between Japan and the United States, we could not explain the apparent paradox to other countries. The United States does not desire a situation such as exists between Japan and the U. S. S. R., which in spite of the fact that a Neutrality Pact exists, vast armed forces of each nation must constantly be facing each other across the national boundary. We desire that simultaneously with the establishment of an agreement between Japan and the United States, the Tripartite Pact shall disappear." (He called it a "dead letter").

Wakasugi: "In other words, do you mean that a U. S.-Japanese agreement is an impossibility as long as Japan does not withdraw from the Triple Alliance?"

Hull: "A peace agreement and a military alliance must be at odds with each other. Therefore, if and when an understanding is reached between Japan and the United States, I desire that the alliance become a dead letter".

Wakasugi: "May we consider that as your reply to our proposal pertaining to the matter of right of self-defense which is a part of the other two subjects?"

(Part 6)

Hull: "Our reply to the other two problems will be issued after we receive: Definite assurance that your present government approves the peace policy expressed in a statement issued by the previous government; clarification of the meaning of changing "the entire Pacific area" in the U. S. proposal, to Japan's proposal's "southwestern Pacific area"; Japan's reply to today's U. S. proposal regarding a joint statement on the economic policy."

I said: "In view of the very critical situation, I am afraid that my government will be very disappointed over your replies."

We agreed to meet again after I had received further instructions from my home government.

Today's talks can be boiled down to the fact that the United States did clarify their attitude on the trade question. On the other two problems, although we agree in principle, we differ on interpretations. They harbor deep doubts as to the sincerity of our peaceful intentions and apparently they view the China situation through those eyes of suspicion.

Since the above seems to have been fairly clearly established, will you please speedily express your definite approval of the government's statement involved, so that we may make a reply to their proposal.

25085

JD-1: 6627

(D) Navy Trans. 11-21-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6584 (S. I. S. #24030).

JD-1: 6585 (S. I. S. #24031 & 25006).

JD-1: 6586 (S. I. S. 24032 & 25007).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
15 November 1941
(Purple—J 19)
Circular #2330

The following is the order and method of destroying the code machines in the event of an emergency.

Note: Three paragraphs giving detailed instructions for the destruction of code machines have not been printed.

Washington relay to Mexico, Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.
Berne relay to NSW and NLH (Rome and Ankara (?)). Bangkok (?) relay to Hanoi.

25235

JD-1: 6752

(D) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 16, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)

#

For your Honor's own information.

1. I have read your #1090*, and you may be sure that you have all my gratitude for the efforts you have put forth, but the fate of our Empire hangs by the slender thread of a few days, so please fight harder than you ever did before.

2. What you say in the last paragraph of your message is, of course, so and I have given it already the fullest consideration, but I have only to refer you to the fundamental policy laid down in my #725.^b Will you please try to realize what that means. In your opinion we ought to wait and see what turn the war takes and remain patient. However, I am awfully sorry to say that the situation renders this out of the question. I set the deadline for the solution of these negotiations in my #736,^c and there will be no change. Please try to understand that. You see how short the time is; therefore, do not allow the United States to sidetrack us and delay the negotiations any further. Press them for a solution on the basis of our proposals, and do your best to bring about an immediate solution.

Army 24878

Trans. 11/17/41 (S)

^a For Part 1, see S. I. S. #24877. For Part 2, see S. I. S. #24857 in which NOMURA gives his views on the general situation. Part 3 not available.

^b S. I. S. #24330 in which TOGO says that conditions both within and without the Japanese Empire will not permit any further delay in reaching a settlement with the United States.

^c S. I. S. #24373 in which TOGO says that it is absolutely necessary that all arrangements for the signing of this agreement be completed by the 26th of this month.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

November 16, 1941

Purple

#782 (To be handled in government code.)

Re your #1083.^a

1. Please give the following reply to them regarding the question of recognition:

----- the various points in the statement made by the Japanese Government on August 28, which is included in the American oral statement, (quote only the points given in the said oral statement) were also included in our proposals of September 6 and 25, and the present cabinet also has no objection to recognizing them as they stand. However, these points have been given on the assumption that the Japanese-American negotiations would reach an agreement. Naturally, therefore, should the negotiations end in a failure, these points would not be binding on Japan alone. We wish to have this clearly understood.

2. Regarding the general question of use of force, the expression "without provocation" was used in the reply of the Japanese Government made on August 28. In the same reply, relative to the Soviet question, we used the words "as long as the Soviet Union remains faithful to the Soviet-Japanese Neutrality Treaty" and then in our proposal of September 6, we used the words "without any justifiable reason." Now all these expressions mean fundamentally the same thing. The reason for our having gone somewhat into detail concerning the Soviet Union is that we found it necessary to do so in view of the connection between the existence of the Japan-Soviet Neutrality Treaty and the Russo-German war.

In short, we had stipulated the "qualification" which we as an independent country should necessarily and naturally state. It goes without saying that this qualification by no means either limits nor minimizes our peaceful intentions.

Army 24879

Trans. 11/17/41 (S)

^a See S. I. S. #24785-88, inclusive. The text of an oral statement given to Ambassador NOMURA by Secretary Hull at the conference on the 12th.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 16, 1941

(Purple)

#1107 (Departmental Secret) (Strictly Secret)

1. I sent ARMSTRONG to the State Department on the 15th to have him feel out the atmosphere (see my #1029*). ARMSTRONG then informed TERASAKI that during the last two days something happened, apparently, to make the President strongly desire the maintenance of peace between Japan and the United States. (I dare say, however, that the attitude of the United States toward us is just about the same as always and that this is just a ripple on the sea. Nevertheless, as we have heard the same thing from other quarters, I send it to you for what it may be worth.)

2. ARMSTRONG, furthermore, said that the advent of Ambassador KURUSU is having a very good effect. (The newspapers, too, in general, have been showing considerable good feeling. Two or three days before Ambassador KURUSU arrived at his post, not only did news articles become quite friendly toward him, but the press interviews in every place drew, in general, the most favorable comments. Will you also, therefore, direct public opinion along these lines.)

Army #24978

Trans. 11/19/41 (2)

* S. I. S. #24475 which describes the organization of a committee for the promotion of friendly relations between Japan and America in which TERASAKI is liaison agent and through ARMSTRONG keeps in contact with the State Department.

From: Washington (Nomura).

To: Tokyo

17 November 1941

(Purple)

#1113

At 10:30 a. m. on the 17th I called on Secretary of State Hull accompanied by Kurusu, following which we both had an interview with the President at 11:00 which lasted for about an hour and 15 minutes. Today's conference was largely concerned with formalities and we did not get down to business. However, I stated that the intentions of the Japanese Government were peaceful, however as we see it the situation is very acute. To this the President replied that America also desired to preserve the peace of the Pacific. (In regard to maintaining peace in the Pacific I could see that he was outlining some formula in his mind). I will wire the details in a subsequent telegram.

25028

JD-1: 6648

(H) Navy Trans. 11-19-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

17 November 1941

(Purple)

#1114

Schmitt's report:

On the evening of the 16th, we had Schmitt try to feel out the State Department's attitude. He reports that he talked with his good friend Williamson (secretary to Assistant Secretary of State Hurley). According to him, Williamson, the stumbling points in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations are the Tripartite Pact and the matters pertaining to the China incident. A solution in so far as it involves the actual points is apparently quite possible from both the United States and Japanese viewpoints. The difficulty seems to be a more spiritual one—that is, the suspicion that the United States harbors of Japan. The United States bases its suspicion on the fear that the German and Japanese military cliques will apply pressure and prevail upon the Japanese Government. In other words, the United States believes that there is a possibility that immediately subsequent to the establishing of a U. S.-Japanese accord, the Japanese Government may be forced by Germany or by the Japanese military to pursue a course entirely different from that charted by the accord.

Compared to the above obstacles, the solution of the economic problems, of which the petroleum question is one phase, is indeed a very simple matter.

25133

JD-1: 6693

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (2)

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 16, 1941

(Purple)

#1118 (Part 1 of 5.^a) (To be handled in government code)

On the morning of the 17th at half-past ten, I, accompanied by Ambassador KURUSU, called on Secretary HULL. First HULL said, "After the last war there were no able statesmen; therefore, a situation like the present one came about. What we have to think about now is saving the world from this sort of extremity." KURUSU replied, "I am in entire agreement with what you say. Fortunately, the United States and Japan, who have not yet participated in this war, have a grave responsibility on their shoulders for working in this direction. However, before we can talk about that, there are some things which have to be settled between Japan and the United States. Still, if we do not engage in concrete negotiations, we cannot get anywhere." (Then he went on briefly to tell how he had come to the United States at the behest of the Premier and Your Excellency.) Then he continued: "The Premier earnestly hopes for a settlement between Japan and the United States. As a matter of fact, he seems to be rather hopeful beyond expectation. There are at present three problems causing a deadlock between Japan and the United States: They are: Equality in commerce, the Tri-partite Agreement, and evacuation. The Premier seems to be very hopeful of a settlement concerning the first two. However, when it comes to the third question—that of evacuation—he seems to entertain great concern.

Army 25091

Trans. 11/21/41 (1)

* Part 2, S. I. S. #24940; Part 3 not available; Parts 4 and 5, S. I. S. No. 25084.

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
November 16, 1941
Purple (Extremely Urgent)
#1118 (Part 2 of 5)^a

Since the time had come to meet the President and since HULL had expressed his wish to continue the conversation in the presence of the President, we all left our seats. Together with Secretary HULL, I went to see the President at 11:00 a. m.

KURUSU began his conversation by saying, "As I had already told Secretary HULL, the present Cabinet is very much interested in the Japanese-American negotiations. You, Mr. President, as a statesman, no doubt well understand in what frame of mind the Japanese people are after four years of experience in the China incident. While on my way to this country I noticed—though I am not by any means an expert in making such observations—that the situation is militarily strained in Hongkong, Manila and in other islands. The situation is so tense that we cannot tell when an explosion would occur and, even if it occurred, of what benefit would such a situation be to the United States and Japan? (The President showed that he felt the same way.) To be sure Japan wishes that the Japanese-American negotiations would prove to be a success. However, the time element must be taken into consideration. Delaying the solution avails Japan nothing since in the meantime conditions, both militarily and economically, would become less favorable to her if she is to defend herself. The Premier also seems to be quite hopeful that all of the three questions, namely, that of the Three Power Alliance and Pact and the question of withdrawing troops would be settled.^b However, he is very much worried over the question of withdrawing troops."

Army 24940

Trans. 11/18/41 (M)

^a Part 1, 2, 4 and 5 not available.

^b Translator's note: Apparently the writer neglected to include in the three questions that of non-discrimination in trade.

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
17 November 1941
(Purple)
#1118 (Part 3 of 5)

The President: "A long time ago, Secretary of State Bryan once said, 'There is no last word between friends'.

"There have been many so-called 'non-aggression pacts' in the past, but all of them are now out of date. I believe, however, that by the establishing of some general understanding between the United States and Japan, the situation may be saved."

Kurusu: "That would seem to be very acceptable from my point of view. From my way of looking at it, apparently the main difficulties in the U. S.-Japanese negotiations to date, have been over the problem of what to do about Japan's connections with the Tripartite Pact, and what to do about the various claims that the United States has made with regard to the method in which the China Incident should be settled. In the final analysis, it would seem as if adjusting these two points is the main problem at hand at the present time.

"With regard to the Tripartite problem, Japan is bound by certain duties under the terms of that instrument. Moreover, she must consider her dignity and honor as a great power. Because of these considerations, it is impossible for her to violate the terms of an alliance. Since the United States has been strongly insisting right along that international agreements must be adhered to, I cannot believe that the United States is urging us to do so now. I feel doubly sure of this where the Tripartite Pact is concerned since the basic objectives of that pact are the prevention of the war's spreading and the maintenance of peace.

"Under these circumstances, it seems as though it should be possible to coordinate and adjust the two problems so as to bring about a settlement. Please understand, however, that no proposal, regardless of how good it may sound, can be accepted by Japan if the terms contained therein cannot be put into effect."

The President: "With regard to the China problem, I have been advised that Japan finds the withdrawal of troops from China a very difficult undertaking. The United States is not trying to intervene or mediate in the problems of Japan and China. I don't know whether there is such a word in the parlance of diplomats or not, but the United States' only intention is to become an 'introducer'."

25129

JD-1: 6643

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

17 November 1941

(Purple)

#1118 (Parts 4 and 5 of 5) (Parts 1, and 3, not available). (For Part 2 see JD-1: 6643) (S. I. S. 24940).

(Part 4)

Kurusu: "Concerning Japan's duties to go to war under the terms of the Tripartite Pact, Japan has stated that Japan alone will determine this. The United States apparently interprets this to mean that Japan will wait until the United States is deeply involved in the battle on the Atlantic and then stab the United States in the back. This is not the case. There have been indications in the past that there are those in the United States who have been laboring under the erroneous belief that Japan would move at Germany's demands; that Japan was merely Germany's tool. Japan issued the statement that she would act in accordance with Japan's decisions alone, for the purpose of correcting this misapprehension.

"In any event, if at this time a great understanding between the United States and Japan with regard to the Pacific can be reached as described by the President, such an understanding would far outshine the Tripartite Pact. Under such circumstances, I feel confident that all doubts you may harbor regarding the application of the Tripartite Pact would automatically and completely melt away".

At this point, Hull broke in, and after describing Germany's policy of conquest, said: "Suppose that Germany succeeds in conquering England and then establishes various subservient governments in South America. Suppose after that that Germany attacks the United States with the British fleet. If the United States waits till then, it would be too late regardless of what she tries to do. That is why the United States must prepare her defenses now and this is what the United States calls her rights under defense. There is no reason why Japan cannot see this."

Thus did Hull go over his theory again.

The President: "The map I referred to in my speech the other day, which described German policy in Central and South America, was an authentic map. Its source was the German Government circles."

Kurusu: Mr. President, a while ago you made reference to the general relationship between Japan and the United States. As long as we are speaking of peace on the Pacific, and since at least one side of the western hemisphere is on the Pacific, the various countries in Central and South America must be covered when we speak of the Pacific area. It would be impossible for Japan to be a partner in any project aimed at disturbing the peace of the western hemisphere.

"You say that people would give voice to their disapproval should these negotiations lead to a successful settlement between us on the grounds that Japan would be promising the United States peace while on the other hand she would be carrying the spear for Germany. From the beginning, however, the Japanese Government has been saying that should a just peace be established on the Pacific, she would withdraw her troops from French Indo-China. If, therefore, matters progress to that point, this withdrawal should satisfy the general public of the United States as actual proof of Japan's peaceful intentions.

"In any event, I am convinced that the immediate objective is to successfully and speedily come to an agreement on the various problems now being discussed at present between Ambassador Nomura and Secretary Hull."

Hull: "I favor the continuation of these talks. Heretofore, I and Ambassador Nomura have met and talked on numerous occasions but we always seem to come to a certain point and then start going around and around the same circle. I would welcome your—Kurusu's—attacking this point from a different angle."

The President expressed his approval of this, and said: "I am planning to remain in Washington until this Saturday (the 24th). I shall be glad to discuss matters with you and Secretary Hull at any time before then.

25084

JD-1: 6654

(D) Navy Trans. 11-21-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 17 November 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #783

Re your #1110*

We have no objections to have it apply to the entire Pacific area. Therefore, we shall not object to your deleting the word "south-western" from Article 6 of our proposal of 25 September.

24881
 JD-1: 6560

(D) Navy Trans. 11-17-41 (S-TT)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 17 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #784

Re your #1096*

By "in the event that the principle of non-discriminatory treatment is applied to the entire world", we mean that the Imperial Government desires that said principle would be applied uniformly throughout the world. Upon the realization of this hope, we anticipate that the principle will be applied on China as well.

We do not imply that the United States shall be held responsible for any violations of this principle outside of the United States' sphere of influence.

Even before the outbreak of this European war, the trend was away from the above mentioned basic principle. Since the outbreak of this war, practically all traces of the principle have been obliterated. Under these circumstances it would be only one with a very unrealistic view of the situation who could expect any fruit from an attempt to apply the principle to China alone.

Japan is not refusing to apply the principle on China on the grounds that a few nations in the world refuse to comply. Japan desires to apply it to China when world conditions are such that a majority of the nations therein are in favor of the principle.

(Through an error, the serial number 781 was applied on two messages. Will you please give the number 781-B to that message dated the 16th which contained information for Your Excellency only).

24880
 JD-1: 6561

(D) Navy Trans. 11-17-41 (S-TT)

*Not yet available.

One available thus far. Dated 15 November; JD-1: 6556 (S. I. S. #24873).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
17 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#785

Re your #1097*

1. The contents of 3 of paragraph 2 pertaining to Japanese-U. S. relations, seems to be about the same as the terms contained in the supplementary provision of the United States' 21 June proposal. In view of the fact that "materials necessary for one's own country's safety and for self-defense" shall be an exception, there is a danger that even after the agreement is entered into, they will put some restrictions on the exporting of petroleum. We cannot accept that phraseology, therefore, unless they agree not to restrict exports on articles needed by us which will be clearly listed.

2. Regarding sub-sections 1 and 2 of paragraph 3 of that message which concerns the policy on the Pacific area: Under paragraph 5 of the basic terms of Japanese-Chinese peace which was appended to our 25 September proposal, regarding economic cooperation, there is no objection to a third country's engaging in economic activities in China as long as it is conducted on a fair basis. Our proposal is aimed at our having the right to develop and have access to natural resources vital to national defense. In view of the great sacrifices made by Japan in the past four and a half years, this is but a natural demand.

If, therefore, the United States recognizes the basic forms of our peace with China, and if the contents of your message #1096 and sub-sections 1 and 2 of the paragraph referred to, are meant to be the basis from which a permanent policy is to be established subsequent to the establishment of peace under the terms set forth by us, we shall give it our favorable consideration.

If, on the other hand, the contents of your message #1096 and sub-sections 1 and 2 of the referred to message (1097*) are aimed at making us alter the basic peace terms, the Imperial Government finds them absolutely unacceptable.

(Part 2)

3. Re the same paragraph 3:

It is feared that the terms included in this paragraph will lead to joint supervision of finances and credit in China. Since this conflicts with the fundamental principles of the New Order policy of the Empire, (please point out that these terms conflict with the basic principles that the United States has been proclaiming of late, too), for that reason, it is impossible for us to give our approval thereto.

4. After all is said and done, the various paragraphs noted above are apparently parts of a proposal which is attempting to completely disregard our sacrifices during four and a half years of war. Settlement based on this proposal is absolutely out of the question. Since the United States herself has stated that this was an unofficial and exploratory proposal which has no binding powers, please lead the United States to completely abandoning it and to proceed, using our proposal of 25 September as the basis on which to do so.

24937

JD-1: 6589

(D) Navy Trans. 11-18-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6586 (S. I. S. #24932).

JD-1: 5360 (S. I. S. #22550-51).

JD-1: 6585 (S. I. S. #24931).

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo.

17 November 1941

(Purple)

#1127

The most emphasis in the talks between Hull, I, and Ambassador Kurusu on the 18th, (lasting about three hours), was placed on matters pertaining to the Triple Alliance. Hull, in his customary manner, denounced the Hitlerian policy of expansion through armed force. He pointed out that as long as Japan is tied up with such a policy through the Tripartite Pact, it would be difficult to adjust Japanese-U. S. relations.

Kurusu then said that it would be impossible to comply if he was demanding of Japan that she abrogate the Tripartite Pact. He also pointed out that the alliance was not aimed at expansion through the force of arms.

Hull said that he was in no position to tell Japan to abrogate the Pact but that as long as there is no substantiating proofs of the real aims of the pact, it serves absolutely no purpose.

Then I and Kurusu explained that it was an impossibility to settle such a basic point in any specified time limit. However, to ease the exceedingly critical situation, the first step would be to mutually return to the situation which existed prior to the date on which the freezing of assets order was put into effect, (in other words, Japan would withdraw from south French Indo-China and the United States would rescind her order to freeze the assets): Talks should then be continued in a more congenial atmosphere, we suggested.

He did not seem particularly receptive to this suggestion. He said that if the government of Japan could make it clear that it wants to pursue a course of peace, then the United States would confer with the British on the subject of returning to the conditions which existed prior to the time that the freezing order went into effect. It is essential, however, that under those conditions, Japan continue to pursue a peaceful policy with ever increasing vigor.

There were indications that Hull, because of his usual cautious nature, was somewhat influenced by the exaggerated reports carried in the press regarding the Premier's speech in the Diet in which he expressed the three basic principles of international relations and intention of increasing the troops in French Indo China.

Details will be sent in a subsequent message.

25170

JD-1: 6722

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
18 November 1941 (Probable date of drafting)
19 November 1941 (Intercepted)
(Purple)
#1129

Re your #784* and my #1106.

During my talks with Hull on the 18th it became evident that he is thinking about readjusting the economic situation of the world after the conclusion of this war and that he has only a passing interest in the various problems of China. Furthermore, there are indications that the matter prognosticated by Ambassador Kurusu in the separate message, is also being given consideration by Hull.

As a matter of routine, of the three points contained in our Proposal "A", they are apparently desirous of first disposing the matter pertaining to non-discriminatory treatment. In view of this attitude on this subject, unless we delete from our Formula "A" that part which follows after "on the understanding", (as you are aware, Konoye's message contained no such qualification), and give them a more definite agreement, I fear that the progress of our talks may be impeded. This is, of course, not in accordance with our policy of a speedy settlement. Since our formula concerning non-discrimination is also contained in our "B" proposal, unless we reach an agreement on this point now, I fear that our Proposal "B" will not help matters any.

I realize thoroughly that there are domestic issues which make it very difficult. Please give your consideration to the deletion of that part which follows "on the understanding", etc.

25241

JD-1: 6758

(D) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (1)

*JD-1: 6561 (S. I. S. #24890). Explanation of phrase: "in the event that the principle of non-discriminatory treatment is applied to the entire world." We mean that it shall apply uniformly throughout the world. China included. Japan desires to apply it to China when world conditions are such that a majority of the nations are in favor of the principle.

JD-1: 6627 (S. I. S. #25085). "The following is the conversation I had with Hull on the 16th, the gist of which I reported to you previously".

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
18 November 1941*
(Purple)
#1131 (Part 1 & 2 of 5)
(Foreign Office Secret)
(Chief of Office routing)

On the 18th, I, together with Ambassador Kurusu called on Secretary Hull at 10:30 in the morning and we conversed for two hours and forty-five minutes.

Hull (in his customary tone): "I am one who worried about Hitler's activities right from the beginning. However, at that time, no one paid any attention. He is a man who does not know how to stop once he starts. The United States will no doubt become his objective in the near future." (So saying, he repeated his theory which he expounded on the 17th). "In the event that Hitler continues to be victorious, Japan should be thinking of his coming on to the East

* Translator's note: Date is evidently the 18th, though the first two parts were encoded with key for 17th.

Asiatic stage. If Japan doesn't see this for herself, I can't feel sorry for her." (He continued in his usual vein, bringing up again a description of the 'confused era (?)' and the turn about in Germany's attitude toward the Soviet Union).

"The basis of the national policy of the United States is and will be the maintenance of peace. Therefore, it is impossible for the United States to ever condone the policies of Hitler which depends on expansion through the force of arms.

"As long as Japan is tied to Hitler by means of the Tripartite Pact, there shall be great difficulties in adjusting Japanese-U. S. relations".

Placing emphasis on Japan's part in the Tripartite Pact the Secretary went on to describe his point of view.

Hull: "Even if an agreement is reached between Japan and the United States at this time, it would be impossible at this time to shake the general U. S. public's conviction that, as Germany is pursuing a policy of expansion by force of arms, Japan is doing likewise in the Far East.

"Of the extremists in the United States, there are those who even say that the United States has become Hitler's partner in his policy of aggression, through her relationship with Japan.

(Part 2)

"Even if some agreement is reached between Japan and the United States under present circumstances, it could mean no more than the existing agreement between Japan and the U. S. S. R., under which, the agreement notwithstanding, enormous forces, which are constantly being increased, have to be facing each other at all times.

"Unless the fundamental trouble is removed, it will be impossible to expect any progress in our talks."

Kurusu: "If something is impossible to do, it simply can't be done, regardless of what fancy words may be used to dress it up.

"Even if you tell us to abrogate, or at least to make ineffective, the Tripartite Pact at this time, that is something that is impossible for us to do."

Hull: "The United States is not in a position to demand that you nullify the effect of the Tripartite Pact. The only thing I say is that although I can comprehend the circumstances making it possible for Japan to maintain the status quo of her relationship to the Tripartite Pact and at the same time seek an agreement with the United States, in view of the nature of the United States, it is impossible to completely disregard the effects of public opinion."

Kurusu: "The alliance in question does not advocate, or even condone, expansion through the force of arms."

Hull: "If that is the case, it is a useless instrument unless some definite proof as to its purposes are presented."

Nomura: "It would be difficult to do so within any limited time. The situation in the southwestern Pacific area is at present very critical. To counter Japan's sending of troops to French Indo-China, Britain is increasing her armed forces in Singapore while the United States is doing likewise in the Philippine Islands.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 18, 1941

Purple

#1131 (Part 3 of 5)* (To be handled in government code.)

"If we both undertake to increase our military strength at any time, something which we would regret might occur. Therefore, since even though we keep fighting each other with broad, idealistic arguments there would be no end to them, let us first relax this tension for the time being. To do this we should return to the situation prior to the exercise of the freezing order. I mean Japan should evacuate southern French Indo-China, and in return the United States should rescind the freezing order. If the atmosphere is calm in this manner, there will be no need of sending warships to Singapore or strengthening military facilities in the Philippines. Then we would like to continue these talks." HULL said, "While we are not yet agreed on fundamental questions, it would be futile to do what you say as a temporary stop-gap measure. We hope that as first of the East Asiatic nations, Japan will take the leadership for a policy of peace. However, if a policy of armed conquest is to dominate Japan, we will consider it a danger to world peace, and we will not, by any means, yield. (To this both I an Ambassador KURUSU had something to say). If the leaders of the Japanese Government will show that they will exert a peaceful policy in any event, why then in turn, I will not object to getting in touch with Great Britain, the Netherlands, etc., and consider returning to the status prior to the exercise of the freezing order. However, this is so that Japanese politics will turn more and more toward a peaceful trend."

Army 25086

Trans. 11/21/41 (1)

* Parts 1 and 2 not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 18, 1941

Purple

#1131 (Part 4 of 5) (To be handled in government code)

Concerning the China question, HULL asked a question about the stationing of troops. I explained what you said in Proposal A of your #726 * (of course, I didn't mention the twenty-five years you spoke of), and HULL let it go at that. Referring again to the China question, he said that England, the Netherlands and China had all contacted him, and KURUSU wanted to know on what points they were concerned. HULL said that he assumed that Great Britain was mainly interested in the principle of equality of treatment in commerce; that it was the same in the case of the Netherlands; and as for China, she merely spoke in generalities without going into definite matters. Now concerning the principle of equality of treatment, the following conversation took place: HULL: "Have you received any reply from Tokyo on our proposal of the 15th?" (See my #1095.^b) KURUSU: "Well, we have a general answer, but further study is necessary. I haven't enough to tell you yet. You seem to mean that the United States can't bear the responsibility of other countries.

Well, aren't we pretty much in the same position? Until peace is established between Japan and China, we could say the same thing about the China question, I think. You see, Japan and the United States are in different economic positions. You Americans are in an advantageous position relative to the various nations when it comes to commercial negotiations. We do not have the advantageous bargaining position that you have.

Army 25087

Trans. 11/21/41 (1)

^a S. I. S. Nos. 24334, 5, 6, 7.

^b S. I. S. #24930 which gives an explanation of the U. S.'s stand on the "non-discriminatory treatment in commerce" matter.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 18, 1941

Purple (Urgent)

#1131 (Part 5 of 5) (To be handled in government code)

"There is a remarkable difference between the extent to which the economy of the United States depends on foreign trade and that to which ours does. You cannot measure them by the same rule. When the economic set-up is suddenly disrupted, great turbulence ensues. Take, for example, the question of controlled exchange in North China. If that were abolished now, the economy of a hundred million Chinese would be thrown into chaos. Now out of consideration of the welfare of the Chinese people alone, we could not do such a thing as that." HULL: "I well understand that. When I was insisting on the principle of equality of treatment in commerce, I had the post-war situation in mind. I rather think that in post-war economic reconstruction, probably the principle of non-discrimination will be an all-encompassing one. What I would like to see is Japan and the United States working together for the principle of non-discrimination. Now all along I've fought against the preferential system of the British Empire resulting from the Ottawa Conference, and now we are talking it over with England. I don't want you to tell anybody about this, but don't you know, only lately Great Britain is coming around to my point of view." (In this connection, see the newspaper article quoted in separate wire #1132.^a

Army 25088

Trans. 11/21/41 (1)

^a Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

(18 November—probable date of drafting)

(19 November—intercepted)

#1133 (In 2 parts, complete)

From Kurusu.

(1) According to Ambassador Nomura's and my own observations, the President is maintaining a very self-composed attitude outwardly, but he seems also to be very much in earnest in regard to effecting an understanding between Japan and the United States. Therefore, we must exercise great care just now against forming a hasty conclusion that they are merely deferring in order not to seem to swallow our proposals at a gulp, and also against taking any steps that might prove irretrievable.

(2) As a result of the revision of the neutrality act, the attention of the United States has turned more than ever toward the Atlantic of late, and a determination is being strengthened to be ready even for a war with Japan if necessary. However, there seems to be a desire to be reassured as to their rear by negotiations with our country. Herein seems to be the chief reason why both in the conference with the President on the 17th and in the one with Secretary Hull on the 18th the point of emphasis was on the Three Power Pact, and there was more insistence than heretofore on this. In other words, the United States, in order to give the American people the impression that an estrangement is taking place between Japan and Germany, would make use either of a joint declaration by Japan and the United States regarding non-discrimination in trade, or of having Japan become party to a treaty on problems similar to those on which negotiations are now in progress between Britain and the United States, or again, of a message from our country giving a declaration of peace policies, as was suggested by Secretary Hull in conference on the 18th.

(3) Of course, any sudden change in the present status of Japanese-German relations would be out of the question, but in view of the above mentioned situation I feel that it is most essential that we do everything we can to fully reassure the United States and let them become more and more involved in the Atlantic areas, and thus place us in a favorable position, not only for effecting a settlement of the China incident, but also, in regard to the international situation following the war.

(Part 2)

In regard to the question as to whether after the war Britain and America will not turn their weapons toward oppressing us, in our conference on the 17th, I explained about the bitter experience that came to us after the former world war, and frankly told them how some of our nation have felt in regard to Britain and the United States. To this the President replied that the treaty now under consideration would "cover all" such points.

(4) In view of the internal situation in our country, although I think there will be difficulties to be met in trying to reach a settlement in harmony with the wishes of the Americans, I feel that as a stop-gap for the present, we should ask them to consider our strong desires for a "time limit" in connection with the conclusion of such a Japanese-American agreement and for the purpose of breaking the present deadlock, as them for the removal at once of the freezing act and also for assurances regarding imports of a specified amount of oil.

In the conference of the 18th both Ambassador Nomura and I suggested the resumption of the status quo prior to 24 July, but in view of the progress of negotiations thus far, the Americans will likely not consent to this merely for our agreeing to not forcefully invade any territory aside from French Indo-China as per Proposal

"B" or for our promise in vague terms of evacuation of troops from French Indo-China ----- Please have your mind made up to this. I desire instructions re "time limit" and ----- as we desire to press for a speedy settlement, please give consideration to the above and advise at once.

25242

JD-1: 6759

(F) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 18, 1941

Purple

#1134 (Part 1 of 2)^a

Re my #1131^b.

In our conversations of today, as a practical means of alleviating the ever worsening front with which we are faced and to quiet the fearful situation, as well as, to bring about a return to the situation existing before the application of the freezing legislation, we suggested the evacuation of Japanese troops stationed in the southern part of French Indo-China.

HULL, showing considerable reluctance replied, "After Japan has clearly demonstrated her intentions to be peaceful I will confer with Britain, the Netherlands and other interested powers."

In the past it would seem that the greatest stumbling block for the American authorities was the question of our troops of occupation in China. Recently, however, the United States, what with her internal situation and, especially insofar as it concerns the revision of the Neutrality Agreement, her increasing involvement in the war in the Atlantic, seems to have undergone a change. She is now, rather, exhibiting a tendency to lay more emphasis on Japan's peace plans insofar as they pertain to the Tri-Partite Alliance. With regard to other questions, too, it seems very clear that they are of a mind to bring about a compromise after making sure of our peaceful intentions. In view of these circumstances, as a result of our deliberations of successive days it would seem that should we present Proposal "B" immediately, an understanding would be more difficult to realize than if we went on with our discussions of Proposal "A". Therefore, looking at it from a practical point of view, we are of the opinion that prior to presenting of Proposal "B" it would be more advisable to reach a practical settlement, principally on the questions of the acquisition of goods and the cancellation of the freezing legislation mentioned in Proposal "B" and then to try to proceed with the solution of other questions on this basis. Unless we follow this course we are convinced that an immediate solution will be extremely difficult.

Army 25090

Trans. 11/21/41 (2)

^a Part 2, in S. I. S. #25243.

^b See S. I. S. #25086.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

(18 November—Probable date of drafting)

(19 November—Intercepted)

#1134 (Pt 2 of 2) (This message should probably be #1128).

It is true that the Konoye government reiterated its approval of the government's statement referred to here. However, that statement carried several supplementary notes, some of which apparently aroused the suspicion of the United States. These supplementary notes were of such character that even if they are not written down in black and white, they would naturally become applicable under the rights of self-defense in the event that to do so becomes necessary.

Please therefore issue a statement as that of the new government's, in which there are no provisional notes, and which express our peaceful policies.

The United States, of course, has indicated clearly that she is not interested in mere promises as much as she is in putting said promises in effect. It is necessary, therefore, for us to be prepared to withdraw our troops as soon as the freezing order is rescinded and materials are made available to us.

Please advise us as to your intentions after perusing my message #1133*. (Hull told me that he would be glad to see me at any time. However, the day after tomorrow, the 20th, is a major holiday here, so if you could make it possible for me to make a reply tomorrow, it would be very convenient for me.)

25243

JD-1: 6760

(D) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6760 (S. I. S. #25242).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

November 18, 1941

Purple

#788 (Strictly Secret)

Re your #1098.*

1. It is hard to prophesy the future course of events, but in the case of "B" if we carry out the first sailing proposal in my #786* for: (a) the remaining officials; (b) such persons as must absolutely not be held back; (c) company employees; and (d) all residents who were unable to board the three ships previously dispatched, the matter can be satisfactorily handled. We will at this sailing have the families of our various diplomatic officials as well as members of their staffs who must return to Japan, without an exception, board the ship. However, we do not intend to warn any save those of our residents who must of a certainty return to sail. The number of those who actually embarked at the first sailing was much smaller than the original number of applicants. The reason was, doubtless, nostalgia and a reluctance to part with their property.

2. Will you secretly, therefore, suitably advise the several consuls to take the following steps: (a) to help our citizens who remain behind to work together for the common good; (b) to destroy immediately such secret documents and so forth as are in the possession of Japanese companies and chambers of commerce.

3. We are now studying ways and means of cooperation between our diplomatic officials and our consulates, as well as responsibility for the interests of our high offices in case of "B". We will negotiate concerning the latter here in Tokyo.

4. I am wiring you next a plan for reducing the members of staffs.
 Army 24976 Trans. 11/19/41 (S)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 November 18, 1941
 Purple CA
 #1135 (Departmental Secret)

On the evening of the 17th, both of us went to call on a certain cabinet member and this is what he told us:

"The President is very desirous of an understanding between Japan and the United States. In his latest speech he showed that he entertained no ill will towards Japan. I would call that to your attention. Now the great majority of the cabinet members, with two exceptions, in principle approve of a Japanese American understanding. If Japan would now do something real, such as evacuating French Indo-China, showing her peaceful intentions, the way would be open for us to furnish you with oil and it would probably lead to the reestablishment of normal trade relations. The Secretary of State cannot bring public opinion in line so long as you do not take some real and definite steps to reassure the Americans."

Army 25089 Trans. 11/21/41 (2)

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 19 November 1941
 (J 19)
 Circular #2353

Regarding the broadcast of a special message in an emergency.
 In case of emergency (danger of cutting off our diplomatic relations), and the cutting off of international communications, the following warning will be added in the middle of the daily Japanese language short wave news broadcast.

(1) In case of a Japan-U. S. relations in danger: HIGASHI NO KAZEAME.*

(2) Japan-U. S. S. R. relations: KITANOKAZE KUMORI.

(3) Japan-British relations: NISHI NO KAZE HARE.

This signal will be given in the middle and at the end as a weather forecast and each sentence will be repeated twice. When this is heard please destroy all code papers, etc. This is as yet to be a completely secret arrangement.

Forward as urgent intelligence.

25432
 JD-1: 6875

(Y) Navy Trans. 11-28-41 (S-TT)

*East wind rain.
 North wind cloudy.
 West wind clear.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
19 November 1941
(J 19)
Circular #2354

When our diplomatic relations are becoming dangerous, we will add the following at the beginning and end of our general intelligence broadcasts:

- (1) If it is Japan-U. S. relations, "HIGASHI".
- (2) Japan-Russia relations, "KITA".
- (3) Japan-British relations, (including Thai, Malaya and N. E. I.); "NISHI".

The above will be repeated five times and included at beginning and end.

Relay to Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Mexico City, San Francisco.

25392

JD-1: 6850

(Y) Navy Trans. 11-26-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
19 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#798

Re my #797*

The condition outlined by them namely "After the peaceful policies of Japan have been made more definite", we imagine would naturally have reference to the question of the three-power treaty. It does not mean merely that Japan will withdraw her troops from Southern Indo-China, and that then the U. S. will go back to conditions prior to the freezing act. It leaves the way open for the U. S. to bring up rather complicated terms.

On the other hand, the internal situation in our country is such that it would be difficult for us to handle it if we withdraw from Southern French Indo-China, merely on assurances that conditions prior to this freezing act will be restored. It would be necessary to have a proposed solution that would come up to the B proposal. With the situation as urgent as it is now, it is of utmost importance that you play your hand for the amelioration of the situation, to the extent of the proposal in your message, then to push on for an understanding.

The Ambassador did not arrange this with us beforehand, but made the proposal contained in your message for the purpose of meeting the tense situation existing within the nation, but this can only result in delay and failure in the negotiations. The Ambassador, therefore, having received our revised instructions, (after reading our #797*, #800, and #801*) will please present our B proposal of the Imperial Government, and no further concessions can be made.

If the U. S. consent to this cannot be secured, the negotiations will have to be broken off; therefore, with the above well in mind put forth your very best efforts.

We note what you say in your #1133 and #1134 , but in these negotiations consent can be given only within the scope of the instructions of this office. We would emphasize this.

S. I. S. #25040

JD-1: 6658

(F) Navy trans. 11-20-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6657.

JD-1: 6250, with additional paragraphs 5, 6, 7 in JD-1: 6528.

JD-1: 6660.

*JD-1: 6661.

Not yet available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

19 November 1941

(Purple—CA)

#799 (In 2 parts, complete)

In the proposal for a joint declaration by Japan and the United States, given in your #1096*, there are many points to which it would be difficult for the Imperial Government to give consent, as I have already cabled you. Secretary Hull's advocacy of a reciprocal trade agreement stated in the same dispatch, we can consent to as something he has advocated for many years, but we imagine it would have as many as possible of the opinions of the State Department's China specialists woven into it. Therefore, if we were to go into a discussion of each of these particulars, we would have to give up hopes of the possibility of reaching a settlement in a short time, (see my #736). Now that matters have progressed this far, we think the only way to reach a full solution is to conclude an agreement now on a few absolutely essential items in order to prevent matters from going from bad to worse by long-view political adjustments, thus first of all avoiding the danger of an outbreak of war.

(Part 2)

Therefore you will please delete from my #780, paragraph 6 (nondiscrimination in trade) and paragraph 7 (the Tripartite Agreement) and add my #801* as item 2 of paragraph 5, and hand this to Secretary Hull. This will "drop" the question of non-discrimination in international trade which has heretofore been an important pending problem between the two countries, and in view of the United States attitude regarding troops stationed in China, this will be made the subject of conversations between Japan and China, in an effort to ease up the present tension. ----- item 2: the transfer of troops from southern French Indo-China to the northern part, is an important concession we would venture to make for the sake of speeding the agreement, ----- in order to save the situation and with President Roosevelt's immediate (this should mean within one week) approval, have it ready for signatures of both countries.

Furthermore if they insist, it will be all right to agree to the ----- of 6 and 7 (non-discrimination in trade and ----- Tripartite Treaty) of my #780, but because of the reasons stated in your #1129*, in regard to our attitude to these two questions, we cannot change my #784*. (As Hull at present does not seem to be taking so much account of matters in China, I think he (or we) will not insist on deleting from "on the understanding" on.

In regard to paragraph 7 (the Tripartite Treaty) see the latter part of my #800**.

25035

JD-1: 6659

(F) Navy Trans. 11-20-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6585 (S. I. S. #24931 and 25006).

JD-1: 6254 (S. I. S. #24373).

JD-1: 6555 (S. I. S. #24872).

*JD-1: 6661 (S. I. S. #25037).

Not available.

JD-1: 6561 (S. I. S. #24890).

JD-1: 6660 (S. I. S. #25036).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

19 November 1941

(Purple—CA)

#800

Re my #799*

Re paragraph 1 of my #781.

Southeast Asia and the South Pacific includes the Netherlands East Indies and Thai, but does not include China. Re item 2 of paragraph 3. All the main items shall be considered and settled by the two governments before signatures are affixed to this agreement. Please bear in mind that paragraph 4 means the cessation of all help to Chiang Kai-shek by the United States.

Re paragraph 5. Article 2 (my #801) is an important concession we venture to make for the sake of speeding the conclusion of the agreement.

Re paragraph 6. We could not agree to the principle of no discrimination in trade being applied only to China, as I have stated in my #784*.

Re paragraph 7, item 2, the explanation of our attitude (- - - self-defense- - -) in the event of the United States entering the European war. - - - in such a case the Empire would- - - as to whether or not there had been an attack- - - the interpretation of the provision of the Tripartite Treaty. You may make it clear that there are no secret agreements in the Three Power Treaty. (However, you will please withhold your explanation of this item until you see prospects of this agreement materializing).

25036

JD-1: 6660

(F) Navy Trans. 11-20-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: (S. I. S. #25035).

JD-1: 6556 (S. I. S. #24873).

JD-1: 6661 (S. I. S. #25037).

*JD-1: 6561 (S. I. S. #24890).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 19 November 1941
 (Purple) (Eng.)
 #801

The government of Japan declares that it is prepared to remove the Japanese troops now stationed in the southern part of French Indo-China to the northern part of the said territory upon the conclusion of the present agreement.

25037
 JD-1 6661

(M) Navy Trans. 11-20-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington
 To: Tokyo
 19 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #1136

I know that it is beyond our powers to imagine the anxiety felt by the Cabinet leaders who bear the heavy responsibility of saving the nation and succoring the people at this time when relations between Japan and the United States have now at last reached the point of cruciality. There are now three ways which the Empire might take—

- (1) Maintain the status quo.
- (2) Break the present deadlock by an advance under force of arms.
- (3) Devise some means for bringing about a mutual non-aggression arrangement.

No. 1 would mean that both sides would continue to increase war preparations and send out larger fleets of war vessels bringing about a state where only a contact would be needed to start a conflagration. In other words this would finally result in an armed clash and it differs from No. 2 only in the matter of the longer or shorter time involved.

No. 3 would mean finding some provisional arrangement by which the present deadlock might be broken, and at the same time attaining our objectives under the peace for which we have been striving. My #1134* of yesterday was sent with this purpose in mind. The displeasure felt by the government is beyond my power of comprehension, but as I view it, the present, after exhausting our strength by four years of the China incident following right upon the Manchuria incident, is hardly an opportune time for venturing upon another long drawn out warfare on a large scale. I think that it would be better to fix up a temporary "truce" now in the spirit of "give and take" and make this the prelude to greater achievements to come later.

I am thus frankly setting before you my humble opinion as supplementary to my message of yesterday.

25248
 JD-1: 6769

(F) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6665.

Wash-Tok #1138 (JD-1: 6771) says: "At the end of my message #1136 (S. I. S. #25250) please add 'please convey the above to the (Prime ?) Minister'".

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
19 November 1941
(Purple)
#1140

Re your #791*

(1) We assume that the date, 25 November, mentioned in your message #736, is an absolutely unalterable one. We are making all our arrangements with that as the basis.

We are also in receipt of your instructions concerning your conversations with the British Ambassador (your message #763).

In view of those, we have been hinting to the United States that it is of much importance that we receive some definite reply within ten days and that it is impossible for us to continue with the negotiations if there is any further delay.

At a time when we are thus pressing them for an early reply, I feel that it would do us great harm were we to announce that we are having ships, with all the accompanying dark implications, leave on or about the 25th or 26th. We feel that such a statement by us would lead to their having doubts of the determined front we have been putting up. We feel that such a step would not be in accordance with your repeated instructions to bring about an early settlement.

In view of these facts, I beg of you to reconsider the matter.

If it is impossible to do so, please let us postpone our making that announcement for at least four or five days to permit us to see how the talks are progressing.

After you have given these points your consideration, please advise us.

(2) The number of persons connected with business firms who still remain here and who wish to return to Japan does not warrant the sending of a ship at this time. If it is for the purpose of taking our nationals home from Panama, we feel that a ship sent to South America could be rerouted for them.

(3) If the final decision is reached to have the ship sent here, there will be no difficulty in arranging matters for the evacuating of government officials and their wives. However, there will no doubt be much complication if it is your intention to have all men connected with business firms depart. We feel that it would be necessary that the home offices of these people should be notified, and that the said home offices should in turn send notifications and instructions to their personnel on the scene.

Please give these points your consideration.

25142

JD-1: 6708

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (2)

*Not available.

JD-1: 6254.

JD-1: 6416.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 20 November, 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #806

It seems that your #1136* passed my #798 enroute, but under the circumstances here, we regret that the plan suggested by you, as we have stated in our message would not suffice for saving the present situation.

We see no prospects for breaking the deadlock except for you to push negotiations immediately along the lines of the latter part of our #798. Please understand this. The Premier also is absolutely in accord with this opinion.

S. I. S. #25038
 JD-1: 6663

(F) Navy Trans. 11-20-41 (S-TT)

*Not yet available.
 JD-1: 6668.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
 To: Ankara
 November 20, 1941
 J-16
 Circular #2364 (Strictly secret)

1. Since the formation of the Cabinet, the Government has been in conference for successive days with the Imperial General Headquarters. They have given due consideration to the development of a fundamental national policy which will correspond to the urgent exigencies of the situation. Insofar as this is concerned, in the conference which took place on the morning of the 5th, decisions were reached covering fundamental policies having to do with the adjustment of diplomatic relations with Japan and the United States.

2. Insofar as Japanese-American negotiations are concerned, in proceeding upon these negotiations for the adjustment of diplomatic relations on a just basis, conferences have been in progress since the 7th. However, there is great disparity between their opinions and our own. In the light of the trend of past negotiations there is considerable doubt as to whether a settlement of the negotiations will be reached. Insofar as we are concerned we have lent our maximum efforts in order to bring about a settlement of the negotiations. However, the situation not permitting any further conciliation by us, an optimistic view for the future is not permitted. In the event that negotiations are broken off, we expect that the situation in which Japan will find herself will be extremely critical. The above is for your information alone.

This message is addressed to Switzerland, Turkey and Moscow. Switzerland will transmit to France, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Finland and South Africa. Turkey will transmit to Roumania, Bulgaria, Hungary.

Army: 25427

Trans. 11/28/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
November 20, 1941
Purple (Extremely Urgent)
#1144

At noon on the 20th I, accompanied by Ambassador KURUSU, called on Secretary HULL at the State Department and we talked for an hour and a half. Today we went into a somewhat lengthy explanation of the various subjects taken up in the instructions in your message #798^a. On everything else HULL expressed no noteworthy differences of opinion, however, when we came to the part about the United States doing nothing to obstruct our efforts for a comprehensive peace with China, he showed that he was terribly aroused. He said, "So long as it is not made clear that Japan is turning toward a peaceful policy it will be impossible to stop aiding CHIANG just like it will also be impossible to cut off assistance from Great Britain," or words to that effect. He said that in any case, after particular study, he would have some views to express.

Army 25137

Trans. 11/22/41 (2)

^a See S. I. S. #25040. Tokyo says that no further concessions can be made other than the "B" Proposal and if the United States' consent to this cannot be secured negotiations will have to be broken off.

[Secret]

To: Tokyo
From: Washington
November 20, 1941
Purple (Very Urgent)
#1147. Departmental secret

To be handled in Government Code.
(Part 1 of 2)

Our conversation with HULL on the 20th may be summarized as follows: (That day is America's biggest holiday. They call it "Thanksgiving." In spite of that, however, Mr. HULL not only agreed to talk with, but seemed glad to see both me and Ambassador KURUSU when we went to call on him.)

First, we explained the various items mentioned in the instructions in your #798^a. HULL had only one or two questions about the other parts and expressed hardly any opinions but, when we came to the part where we state that we do not want the United States to do anything to hinder us in bringing about a complete peace over China, he seemed extremely reluctant to consider it. He went on to reiterate what he has always said about the Tri-Partite Alliance. He said that so long as fears emanating from that treaty existed in the heads of the Americans, the United States would find it well-nigh impossible to cease aiding CHIANG KAI-SHEK and that, as we knew, the United States is now opposing the German policy of military expansion which knows no bounds; that on the one hand she is helping Great Britain and on the other hand CHIANG KAI-SHEK; that therefore until we Japanese made it perfectly clear that our policy is to be one of peace, it will be impossible to cease aiding China, just like it will be impossible to stop aiding England. He continued that, leading up to the state of affairs we find today, American interests in Japan, including Manchukuo, had undergone terrible embarrassment.

Army 25179

Trans. 11-24-41 (S)

* S. I. S. #25040 which tells Ambassador NOMURA to present Proposal "B" to the U. S. Government and says that no further concessions will be made.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 20, 1941

Purple

#1147 (Part 2 of 2) (Departmental Secret)

(To be handled in Government Code.)

KURUSU said, "When I had an interview with the President the other day, he talked as if he would like to act as an introducer. Now if he wants to take the trouble to do this introducing in order to bring about peace, I cannot reconcile it with continued assistance to CHIANG KAI-SHEK, which actually hinders peace. In other words, it seems quite reasonable to us to ask the President to stop aiding CHIANG if he is going to act as an introducer." HULL replied, "Well, what the President meant when he said that was that he was presupposing that you Japanese would first make it apparent that your fundamental policy was peaceful. Heretofore, influential Japanese statesmen have expressed opinions favorable to HITLER's military expansion policy, and the American people find it very difficult to believe that Japan is turning peaceful." I said, "Well, the plan which I proposed today makes no progress whatever on two or three points. However, since the situation is so tense, if the tension between Japan and the United States can be relaxed, be it ever so little, particularly in the southwestern Pacific, and quickly clear the atmosphere, then I think we could go on and settle everything else." HULL said, "Yes, I understand what you mean thoroughly, but that would be very hard to do. In any case, you and I have on our shoulders a heavy responsibility toward both the Japanese and American people. I might say toward the whole human race." Mr. HULL's face assumed a sadly compassionate expression, and he said, "I want to think over this proposal you have brought me fully and sympathetically, and then I want to talk to you again.

Army 25180

Trans. 11/22/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 20, 1941

Purple

#1148. (To be handled in government code)

Secretary of State HULL, in the conversations I detailed in my #1144 *, expressed his satisfaction that in the last two or three days Japanese newspaper editorial comment on the United States had become calm. This, doubtless, is due to your great efforts.

Since newspaper editorial comment in this country has become extremely circumspect in conjunction with our conversations, no doubt as a reflection of State Department opinion, I would like to have you continue your efforts in guiding newspaper opinion.

Army 25174

Trans. 11/24/41 (2)

* S. I. S. #25137 in which HULL says that so long as it is not made clear that Japan is turning toward a peaceful policy, it will be impossible to stop aiding China.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

21 November 1941

(Purple)

#810 (Part 1 of 2) (Separate wire)
(Chief of Office routing)

Formal note

"I have the honor of addressing this note to you to inform you that my home government has instructed me to forward you a copy of an agreement drawn up between the government of Japan and the government of the United States of America on the . . . (blank) . . . of this month. At the same time I have the honor to transmit to you the following information:

"For the purpose of assuring the maintenance of peace on the Pacific and through that to contribute to the recovery and promotion of peace throughout the world, this agreement was drawn up between Japan and the United States.

"The Imperial Government is firmly convinced that the government of your country, like the governments of Japan and of the United States, is vitally interested in the purposes indicated above. We, therefore, beg permission to draw your government's attention to the contents of this agreement, and particularly to Article One, Article Two, Article Three, Article Four, and Article Six, (Article Six, only if it is included), thereof.

"The various articles enumerated above concern, respectively, the political stabilization in the Pacific area; access to materials produced in the Netherlands Indies; the trade relations between Japan and the United States; the China Incident; and, the non-discriminatory treatment in international commerce, (this last, only if it is included in the agreement).

"The two governments have made a joint declaration including the above points. We feel that your government and mine could utilize the understandings in the same manner as between Japan and the United States.

"Therefore, in the hopes that the aims thus drawn up in this agreement may more fully be realized, the Imperial Government herewith wishes me to advise you that it is prepared to take suitable steps to come to a formal understanding between your government and mine on the specific points enumerated above. We expectantly await your government's advice that it would be similarly disposed.

"Accept, Sir, these renewed assurances of my highest consideration."

—formal close—

/s/

(Part 2 follows)

25126

(JD-1: 6687)

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 21 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #810 (Part 2 of 2)

Formal reply

"I have the honor of addressing you in order that I may respectfully acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the Agreement on a Joint Understanding which has been drawn up between your government* and the government of the United States dated the (blank date)---- of this month and your accompanying explanatory note.

"Your explanation was to the effect that "I have the honor to inform you that I am receipt of a reply from my government to the effect that the government of Great Britain (or the Netherlands Government) understands the objectives drawn up in this draft agreement, and in the hope that they may be more fully realized, is disposed to take suitable steps to come to a formal understanding between your country and mine on the points specifically enumerated above.

"Accept, Sir, renewed assurances of my highest consideration."

(Leave some space, and then way down at the bottom place:)

—formal close—

/s/ **

25126 JD-1: 6687

(D) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (S-TT)

*Japan.

This is Japanese language epistolary style.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 21 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #811

In case you use Proposal "B"* for an agreement, as an introductory paragraph please tentatively incorporate the following draft:

"The Imperial Japanese Government and the Government of the United States of America, impelled by their strong desire of preserving peace in the Pacific, and recognizing the vital importance of a frank expression on the part of both countries of a sincere determination to embrace peaceful methods, declare it as their mutual understanding that:"

25130

JD-1: 6688

(M) Navy Trans. 11-22-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6250 (S. I. S. #24338).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Berlin
21 November 1941
(Purple)
#969

At present, the possibility of peace between Germany and the Soviet Union seems remote. However, it may be that Germany would prefer to avoid being faced with a long term resistance by the U. S. S. R., so that she—Germany—may transfer her entire fighting forces to some other part. On the Soviet side, it seems possible that sentiment for peace may develop when she views the situation from the standpoint of reconstruction.

Our relations with the United States may have considerable effect on our southward program, depending, of course, on what turns those relations take. In other words, our relationship with Great Britain and the United States has a great bearing on the future of our national greatness.

For this reason, we would like to avoid the rise of any violence at this time. At the same time, we would like to break up the policy of British-U. S.-U. S. S. R. joint action. We would, therefore, welcome, if anything, peace between Germany and the Soviet Union. For the purpose of enhancing our position, we would not be opposed to mediating in a peace, if such a course is possible.

Will you, therefore, bearing the above in mind, keep an eye on developments----- (message unfinished).

25171
JD-1: 6731

(D) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 22, 1941
Purple CA (Urgent)
#812

To both you Ambassadors.

It is awfully hard for us to consider changing the date we set in my #736*. You should know this, however, I know you are working hard. Stick to your fixed policy and do your very best. Spare no efforts and try to bring about the solution we desire. There are reasons beyond your ability to guess why we wanted to settle Japanese-American relations by the 25th, but if within the next three or four days you can finish your conversations with the Americans; if the signing can be completed by the 29th, (let me write it out for you—twenty ninth); if the pertinent notes can be exchanged; if we can get an understanding with Great Britain and the Netherlands; and in short if everything can be finished, we have decided to wait until that date. This time we mean it, that the deadline absolutely cannot be changed. After that things are automatically going to happen. Please take this into your careful consideration and work harder than you ever have before. This, for the present, is for the information of you two Ambassadors alone.

Army 25138

Trans. 11/22/41 (S)

* See S. I. S. #24373. Tokyo wires Washington that because of the various circumstances it is absolutely necessary that arrangements for the signing of the agreement be completed by the 25th of this month.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 22, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #815

The Anti-Comintern Agreement runs out on the 24th, and for some time we have been conferring with the signatories. It has been decided that this agreement shall be in effect for five more years and that on the 25th in Berlin, Japan, Germany, Italy, Manchukuo, Hungary, and Spain will all six sign the protocol.

Germany, fighting Russia as she is, seems to be thinking about the propagandistic effect of this signing. However, we, for several considerations, intend to handle the matter circumspectly. You know we have Japanese-American relations to think about. This is for your information.

Army 25140

Trans. 11/22/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 22, 1941.
 Purple (CA) (Urgent)
 #816.

So it seems that the United States is reluctant to definitely promise to do nothing to prevent the establishment of peace between Japan and China in accordance with Clause 4 of Proposal "B". Well, if they will accept our proposal "B", we will have no objection to letting President ROOSEVELT be our introducer. Through his mediation, on the basis of the American proposal (B) of the 12th, China would be made to express her friendly intentions toward Japan, and, as a result, peace negotiations would ensue. Then as soon as an armistice agreement were established between Tokyo and Chungking, there would be no basis in fact for continuance of American assistance to CHIANG KAI-SHEK. Thus, as a result of the mediation which President ROOSEVELT would exercise, CHIANG KAI-SHEK would by the American Government be caused to propose a cessation of hostilities. The American Government accordingly, hoping for the establishment of amicable relations between the Japanese and Chinese, should do her best to support our efforts in this direction and they should make it clear that they will refrain from any act that would hinder us in achieving this objective. Therefore, will you please endeavor to have the Americans accept our "B" proposal and, in case an understanding is reached, please endeavor by the date set in my #812 * to have the President prevail upon CHIANG KAI-SHEK to send us a peace proposal (a very brief one will be all right).

Army 25175

Trans. 11-24-41 (2)

* S. I. S. #28138 in which the deadline is extended from the 25th to the 29th

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 22, 1941.
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#817

Re your #1144.*

I take it that the "B" plan which you proposed on the 20th included the second clause of (5) relative to moving troops from southern to northern French Indo-China, and left out (6) concerning non-discrimination in commerce and (7) the Tri-Partite Treaty. Am I right? Wire me back just as soon as you get this whether or not the Americans took any particular note of the fact that you left out (6) and (7).

Army #25212

Trans. 11-25-41 (S)

* S. I. S. #25137—Ambassador NOMURA says Secretary HULL has expressed no noteworthy differences of opinion except with regard to China. He said that so long as it is not made clear that Japan is turning toward a peaceful policy, it will be impossible to stop aiding CHIANG.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
November 22, 1941
Purple
#1158 (Government Code) (Secret outside the Department)

Re your # 817.*

As you are aware, I have advised them concerning the first part. Insofar as the latter part of that message is concerned, on the occasion of the interview outlined in my #1147,^b no reference was made to this matter. However, after they have studied the matter, they will doubtless present some opinions concerning it.

Furthermore, Ambassador KURUSU and myself, at their request, are scheduled to have an interview, as already announced, with Secretary of State HULL at 8:00 P. M. today, the 22nd.

Army 25181

Trans. 11/24/41 (2)

* Available, being worked on.
^b See S. I. S. #25179-80.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
23 November 1941
(Purple)
#1159 (In 4 parts, complete)

On the 22nd, I, together with Ambassador Kurusu, called on the Secretary of State, Hull. (Ballentine was also present). The resume of our conversation follows:

Hull: "I conferred with the Ambassador and Ministers of Britain, Australia, and the Netherlands on the 22nd." (The press reports that this conference lasted for about two and a half hours.) "I sought their opinion on the Japanese proposals. They all said that if Japan's intentions are assuredly pacific, then they would wholeheartedly favor them. They said that it would be the source of much joy to them to cooperate in the matter of resuming trade relations with Japan under those circumstances.

"However, they said, we are not sure of Japan's real intentions as yet, for while on the one hand she apparently indicates her desire for peace by dispatching a special envoy, the tone of the politicians and press of Japan seems to be in direct opposition.

"The diplomats who called on me also pointed out that just prior to the application of the freezing order, Japanese imports of petroleum took a very sudden upward swing, disproving any contention that it was to be used solely for peaceful undertakings, but that it was being stored away by the navy.

"They further expressed the opinion that the embargo should be lifted only in slow degrees.

"These diplomats, however, said that they would seek their home governments' instructions regarding the Japanese proposals and would submit their replies by the coming Monday. Upon receiving these advices, I shall make a reply to you."

(Part 2)*

Thus the Secretary seemed to feel considerable concern over the recent trend of Japan's public opinion. He pointed out that a clear statement by the Japanese Government of its desire for peace would have a most important reaction on the public opinion of the United States. (Ballantine said that a clear statement of attitude from the government of Japan to the Japanese people, which would of course be cabled abroad, would bear more fruit than propagandistic reports sent through press channels for foreign consumption only) and in turn would have a most favorable bearing on the chances of a settlement. He even went on to say that was it not the duty of every politician to strive for peace up to the day before war is found to be unavoidable? The President and the Secretary of State, he said * * * (two or three lines too badly garbled).

I then said: "Leaving British, Australian and Dutch opinions aside for the time being, what is the attitude of the United States itself regarding our proposal?"

His subsequent reply, which he made by taking up the proposal paragraph by paragraph, was a complete evasion. However, there were indications that what the United States, Britain, Australia, etc. actually desire is to dissolve the crisis in the south Pacific, so that the fighting powers they have to maintain in this area to keep things under control, may be transferred for action in other parts.

(Part 3)

He pointed out that since that is their main objective, the assurances given by Japan in her proposals were insufficient.

I said: "Our troop concentrations in the northern part of French Indo-China are aimed at cutting Chungking's life line. Therefore, they are, for the most part, directed towards Yunnan. As such, they do not and are not intended to form a threat to the south Pacific area."

After I pointed out this fact, Kurusu said that the acceptance of our proposal would naturally lead to the conditions desired not only by the United States, but by the other nations he referred to. To this, Hull replied that what these countries desired was a quick turn-about in the situation.

Hull: "With regard to resumption of trade, a rapid change in the situation can be wrought here, too, once Japan's Pacific intentions have been ascertained. This change for the better can be brought about in a mere matter of days."

Regarding aid to China, Hull said:

"We must take into consideration the possibility of a U. S. mediation when considering the possibility of cutting off aid to Chiang. If we promise Japan that we shall cease aiding China, the United States could no longer be considered a fair and neutral party to propose peace between China and Japan.

(Part 4)

"Moreover, if it is terminated immediately upon the beginning of the negotiations, the promise would be utterly without value. In any event, the so-called 'aid to Chiang Kai-shek' is not as great as is commonly publicized.

"It is Japan's desire to improve the situation which has reached a critical stage by first settling the outstanding factors involved. Since that is the desire expressed by your proposals, we cannot at this time concur in Japan's demands with regard to stopping aid to Chiang."

He went on to say that he did not believe that the time was as yet ripe for the President to suggest peace to China.

I said "I feel that on Monday the United States will submit some sort of a counter proposal to us. I further feel that this proposal will contain a suggestion that Japan join in some plan to maintain peace on the Pacific and in some kind of a trade agreement. No doubt it will be necessary for the United States and Japan to come to some preliminary agreement, after which it would be submitted to the other countries for their approval."

Kurusu: "If it is intended that a sort of a group be formed by those nations and that if they expect to make it appear as if we were 'voted down' by the majority of the voters, we wish to state now that we shall be absolutely unable to accept such a proposal."

25347

JD-1: 6839

(D) Navy Trans. 11-26-41 (2)

*Part 2 badly garbled; considerable reconstruction work contained.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

23 November 1941

(Purple)

#1160 (In 2 parts, complete)

Re my #1159*

From Kurusu:

Secretary Hull and I conferred for about a half an hour on the 21st to arrange our talks for the 22nd. At that time Hull said that he thought my idea of attaching so much importance to the agreement that it would outshine the Tripartite Pact, as expressed by me during our talks on the 18th, was wholeheartedly in favor of peace on the Pacific through joint action of the United States and Japan, and through this accomplishment, to contribute to the peace of the world.

He went on to say that he still remembers with pleasure that at the Economic Conference in London, he fought for free commerce shoulder to shoulder with Viscount Isii and (Eigo Fukai ?). Hull said that he has looked upon Japan's leadership in the Far East as only a natural phenomenon. It is true that Japan's actions and statements regarding the East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere have been slightly on the unpolished and abrupt side but he is able to be sympathetic with the spirit of it.

(Part 2) (Garbled)

As long as Japan strives for this goal without resorting to the force of arms, the United States has nothing against the program and has no intention of interfering with its realization.

"I would like to see the U. S.-Japanese relationship which existed shortly subsequent to the Russo-Japanese war reestablished. At that time Japan and the United States exercised their influence over the Far East and the Western Hemisphere respectively, but at the same time maintained very friendly relations and close cooperation in all matters with each other.

"I hope that we can revive the spirit of those times and reach an agreement to maintain peace on the Pacific. At the same time, I wish that Japan would make it clear that the Tripartite Pact is not an obstacle to attaining that goal".

Under the present critical conditions, the United States acceptance or rejection of our Proposal "B" may have a vital bearing on whether or not the negotiations will break down. However, because of the circumstances outlined in my message referred to in the heading, we may receive some proposal from Hull with regard to an agreement covering the Pacific area on Monday.

In the meantime, if you have any suggestions which may lead to a settlement, please advise us immediately.

25397

JD-1: 6857

(D) Navy Trans. 11-27-41 (2)

*JD-1: 6839 (S. I. S. #25347).

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

23 November 1941

(Purple)

#1161 (In 2 parts, complete)

Regarding my #1160*

General outline of conversation on the night of 22nd is as follows:

Trade between Japan and the United States could gradually be resumed if Japan were willing to take a peaceful attitude, representatives of foreign powers that are friendly with the United States met in conference yesterday. They were all advised of this and are to meet again on Monday, after they have reported to their own government and received their answers.

Hull continued that there was a limit to his powers, and although he understood the reason for Tokyo's demand of urgency regarding the matter, he does not seem to see the reason why Tokyo can not wait a few days.

The Chinese Ambassador KOTEKI came to the conference yesterday, getting up from bed (due to illness) and arriving at the end of the conference.

According to Hull he does not intend to act as a mediator in the Japan-China incident right now, or to give up aid to China, (however the aid to China today is not to a very great extent). It seems as though he wishes to handle (discuss) the China incident later.

According to reliable information it seems that to station troops for duration of necessity can be considered as stationing of troops indefinitely, but if it was stated that troops were to be stationed for a certain period of four or five years, at the end of which period conditions were to govern restationing of troops, there might not be so much opposition. But with just an indefinite stationing of troops for an indefinite period, it would be against the U. S. policy which is against annexation and interfering with self-government. (The fact that during the preparatory conference last July, the Japanese troops went into French Indo-China, causing the conference of that time to be broken off)—the above was mentioned again today and thus hinting that it was hoped a similar occurrence would not develop this time.

He continued that to merely move troops which were in southern French Indo-China to the north would not relieve the tension in the south Pacific or relieve the anxiousness of the countries of the south Pacific, etc. so that it was explained that to an experienced military observer this was great information and should add much to the peace of that part. Hull explained that the contents of the conference would be strictly restricted to himself alone, (then later said he would mention it to a few), so that gave the appearance of his not understanding much about military aspects.

I presented the prelude of our B Proposal and tried to get his answer of yes or no on each item, and Hull seemed to feel that our B Proposal was a demand on the United States by Japan, and seemed very displeased. He said there was no cause for Japan's making such demands, and that he was greatly discouraged in the attitude of Japan of insisting on direct answers when he was trying so hard to arrange a peaceful negotiation between the two countries.

We (Japanese Ambassadors) kept a calm appearance throughout the talk, and at no time became excited, and the opponent's attitude was also the same.

Hull explained that the United States was following peaceful attitude in the negotiations and he hoped Japan would also follow this peaceful attitude of the United States throughout the negotiations.

25588

JD-1:

(Y)-Navy Trans. 12-2-41 (X)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 24, 1941
 Purple (Very Urgent)
 #821 (Government Code)

1. It seems that the United States as well as England, Australia, and the Netherlands is not satisfied with evacuation merely from the Southern part of French Indo-China. We have gone out of our way to venture this proposal in order to break the deadlock. We absolutely cannot make any further concessions.

2. Our expectations, as I told you in my #798,^b go beyond the restoration of Japan-American trade and a return to the situation prior to the exercise of the freezing legislation and require the realization of all points of Proposal B with the exception of clauses 6 and 7. Therefore, our demand for a cessation of aid to CHIANG (the acquisition of Netherlands Indies goods and at the same time the supply of American petroleum to Japan as well) is a most essential condition. In view of the fact that this is a just demand, the fact that the government of the United States finds it hard to accept it makes us here in Japan suffer inordinately. Therefore, on the basis of what I told you in my #816,^c as well as all that has gone before, please make every effort to persuade the Government of the United States.

3. Insofar as what we propose in Proposal B is concerned, the United States has misconstrued it as our demand. We here in Japan, in view of the extremely critical situation, only hope most earnestly for a speedy settlement. Naturally, that's all we want. Speaking further on this, it is necessary to warn the United States against enticing England, Australia, the Netherlands, etc., in paving the way for a joint hostile set-up. As you have written, we would like to secure the agreement of other competent countries in accordance with the gist of my #731^d at the same time Japan and the United States reach an understanding.

Army 25176

Trans. 11/24/41 (S)

^a Not available.
^b S. I. S. #25040 which tells Ambassador NOMURA to present Proposal B to the U. S. Government and says that no further concessions will be made.
^c See S. I. S. #25176.
^d S. I. S. #24333 in which Tokyo instructs Washington to impress upon the American officials the importance of having Great Britain and the Netherlands also agree to the proposals.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 24, 1941
 Purple (Very Urgent)
 #822. Secret outside the department.

Re my #821.^a

On the 23d I asked the American Ambassador in Tokyo to visit me and added the following to what I had told him in my caption telegram: The movement of Japanese troops from southern French Indo-China to the north is very important from a military standpoint. The occupation of northern French Indo-China is related to the basic settlement of the China incident, whereas the occupation of the southern portion was related to the freezing of funds by England and America. At the present time a total withdrawal of troops is utterly impossible and when the American President, acting as a spokesman for CHIANG KAI-SHEK, brings a proposal of peace to Japan in the China question, if Japan accepts this and enters into negotiations, it is only proper that we demand that America should not interfere with our efforts for peace. The above solution is not only the best, but the only way. Until this point is made clear, it is absolutely incompatible with the sentiment of the Japanese people to settle the Japan-American negotiations and it is impossible for us to understand why America does not agree to this. I have been making the greatest efforts for our new proposal from the standpoint of cooperation with the American peace policy and have tried to cut down our stipulations, making them clear and concise. When these negotiations are established, we intend to pursue an increasingly peaceful policy on this basis. After I had told him this, the Ambassador left at once to cable the gist to his home office.

Army 25177

Trans. 11-24-41 (S)

• S. I. S. #25176.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 24, 1941
Purple
#823 (Restricted Distribution)

For both Ambassadors.

The time limit set in my message #812 * is in Tokyo time.

Army 25178
JD 6744

Trans. 11/24/41 (NR)

• S. I. S. #25138 in which the deadline is extended from the 25th to the 29th.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Nanking
25 November 1941
(Purple)
#499

Re your #818*

To Naval authorities:

We are now in the midst of very serious negotiations and have not reached an agreement as yet. As the time limit is near please have them (defer ?) for a while.

25390

JD-1: 6848

(F) Navy Trans. 11-27-41 (6-AR)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

25 November 1941

(Purple)

#1177

Re your #792*

In this office we are withholding all reports regarding the content of the Japanese-American negotiations themselves or any predictions regarding the future. The State Department also is exercising extreme caution in its press conferences. Hence the Japanese correspondents here are transmitting various trends of the negotiations copied from newspaper articles here that are based on pure conjecture. Among these correspondents are those who recognize that the articles are valueless but who are being pressed by the head office for news. I have observed particularly this meaningless competition to get the news among the correspondents who have come to Washington from New York. That this senseless competition to gather inaccurate news will not exert a harmful influence on the course of the negotiations themselves is something that I cannot guarantee. In view of this situation I would greatly appreciate it if the Foreign Office would speak a word of caution to the newspapers concerned regarding this useless competition between their special correspondents in collecting news regarding these negotiations. And it would be particularly helpful if the head offices of the newspapers concerned would issue orders direct to their special correspondents along this line.

25434

JD-1:6880

(H) Navy Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Hanoi

To: Tokyo

25 November 1941

(Purple—YO)

#118

(Strictly secret.)

We are advised by the military that we are to have a reply from the United States on the 25th. If this is true, no doubt the Cabinet will make a decision between peace and war within the next day or two. It goes without saying here, of course, that if the U. S.-Japanese negotiations are brought to a successful termination, the various enterprises shall be launched in accordance with the plans which have been laid down in advance.

Should, however, the negotiations not end in a success, since practically all preparations for the campaign have been completed, our forces shall be able to move within the day.

Under these circumstances, however, there shall have to be some alterations in the program we have laid out for the various enterprises. We shall, undoubtedly, have to establish organs and conduct negotiations which will not conflict with the campaign. The thing that we are most concerned about is whether or not, in the event of war, the status quo will be maintained as far as the French Indo-China's governmental set-up is concerned. I feel that it is essential that we not only be advised of this, but it must be done immediately as we wish to make all prearrangements as far in advance as possible.

If you have any opinions as to the outcome of the Japanese-U. S. negotiations, will you please inform this office of them together with whatever other pertinent information you may deem wise to impart to us.

Of course, I realize that secrecy is of the utmost importance. According to press reports, however, the United States conferred with the representatives of Britain, Australia, the Netherlands, and even of China, in Washington, and hence the governments of these countries are now aware of the matters being discussed in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations. Moreover, by means of (courier ?) service, the military here are aware of not only our stand in the negotiations but also of the general atmosphere of the said negotiations.

We feel as if we, a Foreign Office organ, alone have been left out of the picture. As you pointed out in your circular message #2353* the situation is becoming exceedingly critical. Please, therefore, make arrangements to advise us on these points by means of either cable or by special messenger services.

25345

JD-1: 6838

(D) Navy Trans. 11-26-41 (S-TT)

*Available, dated 19 November.

[Secret]

From: Bangkok

To: Tokyo

25 November 1941

(Purple)

#849 (In 2 parts, complete)

In the event of the Empire's taking decisive action in a southward advance, it will of course be necessary in the exercise of a belligerent's rights to make clear the relations of sovereign and subjects. On the one hand it will be absolutely necessary to bring Thai into our camp. My conversation with Pibul as reported in my #834* was undertaken with this as the underlying motive. If and when Japan at last does make her proposals of joint defense, the following three points should be made especially definite, and Thai should be led to voluntarily take an attitude of cooperation with us.

(1) In the event of an attack upon Burma and Malay, there would of course be a temporary infringement upon the territorial sovereignty of Thailand, but after our objectives have been attained, restoration would immediately be made, and the independence of Thai would be respected even more than at present while Thai is maintaining neutrality.

(2) In case she cooperates in a positive way with Japan, full assurances will be given that Thailand's swamp lands will be reclaimed in the areas concerned.

(3) In the event of Thai's assets in England being frozen great fluctuation would result in the value of Thai's money, but Japan would make available sufficient funds to create a foundation for a yen "bloc" money system, and also give every consideration to providing petroleum and other essential commodities.

To summarize: By cooperating with Japan the racial longings of Thailand will be realized, and with indivisible relations with Japan her existence as an independent nation will be strengthened . . . (three lines missed) . . . stop with as simple a . . . as possible to the effect that "will cooperate in every way for the realization of the objectives of East Asia coprosperity and stability", while the particulars as necessity may require will be put into a secret treaty . . .

Furthermore, in the light of Japan's basic national policy which has for its purpose the establishment of an East Asia coprosperity sphere, and the emancipation of the Asiatic peoples, it goes without saying that Thailand's sovereignty must not be impaired beyond the minimum limits of necessity, and that her standing as an independent nation must be maintained to the very last; while strictest military discipline must be used to reassure the Thai populace and strict control should by all means be exercised over any attempts at profiteering.

Have sent ----- by the hand of Consul General Asada who has returned to Japan, but to make doubly sure I am also cabling it to you.

25389

JD-1:6844

(F) Navy Trans. 11-27-41 (S-TT)

*Available, dated 21 November.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
To: Washington
November 26, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#830

To both Ambassadors.

It seems that the American newspapers think that there is a connection between the question of withdrawing our army from French Indo-China and that of the freezing of assets. As I have already indicated in my #798,^a my proposal made on the 17th, even if submitted by you, would be inadequate to meet the situation. Our final proposal envisages an agreement on the basis of the "B" proposal in toto (it excludes from the "B" proposal paragraphs 6 and 7; namely, the question of non-discrimination in trade and the question of the Three-Power Agreement, and includes, as indicated in my #816,^b the proposal which the United States Government made on the 12th; that is, the question of mediation by the United States for the purpose of establishing peace between Japan and China as contained in our Proposal "B"), and so the acceptance of this proposal is the most that we can expect. In view of the fact that time is getting short with but few days left this month, I would like to have you at once contact the United States authorities again and do your utmost in getting them to accept our proposal.

I need not suggest the following, for you, no doubt, have already thought of it. I would like to have you make full use of influential Americans about whom you have wired me in the past and put pressure on the United States authorities indirectly as well.

Army 25790

Trans. 12-5-41 (6)

^a S. I. S. #25040 which states that no further concessions can be made and if the U. S. does not consent to Proposal B, the negotiations will have to be broken off.

^b S. I. S. #25175. If the U. S. accepts Proposal B, Japan will have no objection to letting Pres. ROOSEVELT act as mediator between Japan and China.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 26, 1941
Purple (Priority)
#833 (To be handled in Government Code)

Re my #798*

When you reach a settlement in accordance with our new proposal, it is essential that you secure guarantees for the acquisition of goods in connection with clauses 2 and 3 of that proposal. Of these goods, the acquisition of petroleum is one of the most pressing and urgent requirements of the Empire. Therefore, in accordance with the course of negotiations, prior to the signing of an understanding, and at as early a date as possible, I would like to have you make our wishes known insofar as petroleum imports are concerned along the following lines:

4,000,000 tons per year from the United States. (This figure is the average amount of imports during the years 1938, '39, and '40 from the United States. The breakdown according to type, aviation gasoline included, corresponds to the actual figures covering imports before the freezing legislation went into effect.) That is to say, roughly 333,000 tons per month.

In addition, on the basis of past negotiations and roughly in the agreed amounts, we hope to import from the Netherlands Indies 1,000,000 tons per year.

After the establishment of a verbal agreement, I would like to have a definite promise of the above incorporated into an exchange of documents between Your Excellency and the Secretary of State.

Furthermore, these figures are to be taken as the basis for negotiation (however, they can not be called our absolute minimum figures). On the other hand, as far as we are concerned, along with a restoration of trade in the future, we hope for an increase of these figures over the past. Therefore, after you have read all this, please negotiate along these lines to the best of your abilities.

Army #25346

Trans. 11/26/41 (S)

E

* S. I. S. #25040 which states that no further concessions can be made and if the United States does not consent to Proposal B, the negotiations will have to be broken off.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 November 26, 1941.
 Purple

#836. To be handled in Government Code.

The situation is momentarily becoming more tense and telegrams take too long. Therefore, will you cut down the substance of your reports of negotiations to the minimum and, on occasion, call up Chief YAMAMOTO of the American Bureau on the telephone and make your report to him. At that time we will use the following code:

Japanese	English
Sangoku Joyaku Mondai	Nyuu Yooku
(Three-Power Treaty question)	(New York)
Musabetsu Taiguu Mondai	Shikago
(The question of nondiscrimina-	(Chicago)
tory treatment)	Sanfuranshisuko
Shina Mondai	(San Francisco)
(The China question)	Itoo Kun
Soori	(Mr. Itoo)
(Premier)	Date Kun
Gaimudaijin	(Mr. Date)
(Foreign Minister)	Tokugawa Kun
Rikugun	(Mr. Tokugawa)
(The Army)	Maeda Kun
Kaigun	(Mr. Maeda)
(The Navy)	Endan
Nichi-bei kooshoo	(Marriage proposal)
(Japan-American negotiations)	Kimiko San
Daitooryoo	(Miss Kimiko)
(President)	Fumeko San
Haru	(Miss Fumeko)
(Hull)	Shoobai
Kokunaijoosei	(Trade)
(Internal situation)	Yama Wo Uru
Jooho Suru	(To sell the mountain)
(To yield)	Yama Wo Urenu
Jooho Sezu	(Not to sell the mountain)
(Not to yield)	Kodomo Gaumareru
Keisei Kyunten Suru	(The child is born)
(Situation taking critical turn)

For your information, telephone addresses other than our Home Office are as follows:

Bureau Chief YAMAMOTO: Setagaya 4617
 Section Chief KASE: Yotsuya 4793
 The Minister's residence: Ginza 3614
 The Vice-Minister's residence: Ginza 1022

Army #25344
 JD-6841

Trans. 11-26-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

26 November 1941 (1745 EST)

(Telephone code)*

Trans-Pacific Telephone

To Kumaicho Yamamoto from Kurusu:

Wakasugi speaking, said:

"This is Wakasugi speaking at Kurusu's request. Kurusu and Nomura have at this very moment gone to meet Hull with whom they had an appointment at 4:45."

Yamamoto: "Would they then meet the President?"

Wakasugi: "The would (arrange ?) (to) meet the President after seeing Hull, but they had not yet taken steps to see the President. Hull has been conversing with the Chinese for three days past and had seen the Chinese today also. The future of the present talks would be decided during the course of today's conversations."

Yamamoto: "Call me by telephone again upon completion of today's meeting."

Wakasugi: "Have you anything you want me to tell Kurusu?"

Yamamoto: (Reply unintelligible to interceptor and according to him unintelligible to Wakasugi as well.)

After above few unintelligible sentences Wakasugi concluded with a promise to phone later.

(Note: A call has been placed for 2100 EST this evening).

25348

JD-1: 6842

(M) Navy Trans. 26 Nov. '41 (12-TT)

*See JD-1: 6841 (S. I. S. #25344).

Head of American Division of Japanese Foreign Office.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

26 November 1941 (1946 to 1953 EST)

(Telephone Code)

Trans-Pacific Telephone

To Kumaicho Yamamoto* from Kurusu:

Kurusu: "I have made all efforts, but they will not yield I sent a cable expressing my opinions to the Foreign Minister this morning. The situation is just like that. Otherwise there is no means of accomplishing it. I shall cable you now. Already," he interrupted himself, "you have a general understanding I imagine. Accordingly, I do not know how things will turn out regarding my meeting with the President. Hull is not making much progress it seems."

Apparently referring to the above mentioned cable he continued: "If that method can be worked out I shall work night and day on it. But there is no other means we can use. It is very regrettable."

Yamamoto: "The situation in Tokyo is extremely critical also." After thanking Kurusu for his efforts he continued: "The proposition sent to the Foreign Minister is extremely difficult."

Kurusu: "I believe it is of no avail".

Yamamoto reiterated his opinion regarding its difficulty.

Kurusu: "I rather imagine you had expected this outcome."

Yamamoto: "Yes, I had expected it, but wished to exert every effort up to the final moment in the hope that something might be accomplished."

Kurusu: "I am unable to make any movement (i. e. progress?) at all. Something will have to be done to get out of this situation."

25349

JD-1: 6843

(M) Navy Trans. 11-26-41 (12-TT)

*Head of American Division of Japanese Foreign Office.

See JD-1: 6841, (S. I. S. #25344), of this date.

Interpretation is doubtful as yet. The interceptor read this as "Sore . . . kess" (that . . . this morning) and translated this as "It is now . . .", with a distinct pause before and after this phrase. However, the telephone code was not available to him. Verification will follow receipt of record.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely urgent)

#1180. (Part 1 of 2)

From NOMURA and KURUSU.

As we have wired you several times, there is hardly any possibility of having them consider our "B" proposal in toto. On the other hand, if we let the situation remain tense as it is now, sorry as we are to say so, the negotiations will inevitably be ruptured, if indeed they may not already be called so. Our failure and humiliation are complete. We might suggest one thing for saving the situation. Although we have grave misgivings, we might propose, first, that President ROOSEVELT wire you that for the sake of posterity he hopes that Japan and the United States will cooperate for the maintenance of peace in the Pacific (just as soon as you wire us what you think of this, we will negotiate for this sort of an arrangement with all we have in us), and that you in return reply with a cordial message, thereby not only clearing the atmosphere, but also gaining a little time. Considering the possibility that England and the United States are scheming to bring the Netherlands Indies under their protection through military occupation, in order to forestall this, I think we should propose the establishment of neutral nations, including French Indo-China, Netherlands India and Thai. (As you know, last September President ROOSEVELT proposed the neutrality of French Indo-China and Thai.)

Army 25435

JD: 6891

Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
November 26, 1941
Purple (Extremely urgent)
#1180. (Part 2 of 2)

We suppose that the rupture of the present negotiations does not necessarily mean war between Japan and the United States, but after we break off, as we said, the military occupation of Netherlands India is to be expected of England and the United States. Then we would attack them and a clash with them would be inevitable. Now, the question is whether or not Germany would feel duty bound by the third article of the treaty to help us. We doubt if she would. Again, you must remember that the Sino-Japanese incident would have to wait until the end of this world war before it could possibly be settled.

In this telegram we are expressing the last personal opinions we will have to express, so will Your Excellency please be good enough at least to show it to the Minister of the Navy, if only to him; then we hope that you will wire us back instantly.

Army 25436

JD: 6896

Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
November 26, 1941.
Purple (Extremely urgent)
#1189. (Part 1 of 2)

At 4:45 on the afternoon of the 26th I and Ambassador KURUSU met with Secretary HULL and we talked for about two hours.

HULL said, "For the last several days the American Government has been getting the ideas of various quarters, as well as conferring carefully with the nations concerned, on the provisional treaty proposal presented by Japan on the 20th of this month, and I am sorry to tell you that we cannot agree to it. At length, however, we feel compelled to propose a plan, tentative and without commitment, reconciling the points of difference between our proposal of June 21st and yours of September 25th." So saying, he presented us with the following two proposals:

A. One which seeks our recognition of his so-called "four principles."

B. (1) The conclusion of a mutual non-aggression treaty between Tokyo, Washington, Moscow, the Netherlands, Chungking and Bangkok.

(2) Agreement between Japan, the United States, England, the Netherlands, China and Thai on the inviolability of French Indo-China and equality of economic treatment in French Indo-China.

(3) The complete evacuation of Japanese forces from China and all French Indo-China.

(4) Japan and the United States both definitely promise to support no regime in China but that of CHIANG KAI-SHEK.

(5) The abolition of extra-territoriality and concessions in China.

Army 25441

Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely urgent)

#1189. (Part 2 of 2)

(6) The conclusion of a reciprocal trade treaty between Japan and the United States on the basis of most favored nation treatment.

(7) The mutual rescinding of the Japanese and American freezing orders.

(8) Stabilization of yen-dollar exchange.

(9) No matter what sort of treaties either Japan or the United States has contracted with third countries, they both definitely promise that these treaties will not be interpreted as hostile to the objectives of this treaty or to the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. (This is, of course, supposed to emasculate the Three-Power Pact.)

In view of our negotiations all along, we were both dumbfounded and said we could not even cooperate to the extent of reporting this to Tokyo. We argued back furiously, but HULL remained solid as a rock. Why did the United States have to propose such hard terms as these? Well, England, the Netherlands and China doubtless put her up to it. Then, too, we have been urging them to quit helping CHIANG, and lately a number of important Japanese in speeches have been urging that we strike at England and the United States. Moreover, there have been rumors that we are demanding of Thai that she give us complete control over her national defense. All that is reflected in these two hard proposals, or we think so.

Army: 25442

Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely urgent)

#1190. (Part 1 of 2)^a

Judging from the progress of present Japanese-American relations, with which you are well acquainted through successive telegrams, the American proposal on the 26th (message #1189^b) showed a great disparity between the demands of both parties. Unfortunately, there are no hopes of acceptance of our demands within the time limit you set.

Although we have requested the agreement of various countries to the numerous demands made, the United States presented this proposal after having conferred with the same countries. Although we cannot allow ourselves to be caught napping by this scheming, we must follow out instructions. Up to the present we have only been able to press them for an early solution. During this time we have not expressed any final intention. Even the President on the 17th said that there would be "no last words." If we do not cause any stop in the present negotiations, in the case of taking independent action after the time set—

Army 25444

Trans. 11-28-41 (1)

^a Part 2 not available.
^b S. I. S. #25441.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely Urgent)

#1190. (Part 2 of 2)^a

To be handled in Government Code.

The United States is using the excuse that she is at present negotiating with the various competent countries. In view of the fact that she will propagandize that we are continuing these negotiations only with the view of preparing for our expected moves, should we, during the course of these conversations, deliberately enter into our scheduled operations, there is great danger that the responsibility for the rupture of negotiations will be cast upon us. There have been times in the past when she could have considered discontinuing conversations because of our invasion of French Indo-China. Now, should we, without clarifying our intentions, force a rupture in our negotiations and suddenly enter upon independent operations, there is great fear that she may use such a thing as that as counter-propaganda against us. They might consider doing the same thing insofar as our plans for Thai are concerned. Nevertheless, such a thing as the clarification of our intention is a strict military secret; consequently, I think that it might be the better plan, dependent of course on the opinions of the Government, that the current negotiations be clearly and irrevocably concluded either through an announcement to the American Embassy in Tokyo or by a declaration for internal and external consumption. I would like, if such a course is followed, to make representations here at the same time.

Furthermore, in view of the fact that there are considerations of convenience having to do with my interview with the President, should there be anything that you would want me to say at that time, please wire me back at once.

Army 25480

Trans. 11-29-41 (1)

^a S. I. S. #25444. (Part 1 of 2).

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely Urgent)

#1191 Part 1 of 4.

On the 26th at the request of Secretary HULL, KURUSU and I visited him. First of all, we read over cursorily the documents he handed us, which we sent you in separate messages #1192^a, 1193^b and 1194^c, and then engaged in an argument. The gist of it was as follows:

(1) HULL said: "Although we have conferred with the various nations concerned and have studied your proposal of the 20th (B proposal with 6 and 7 left out) for five days, we have decided that we cannot consider it."

(2) I said: "You talk of reconciling the American proposal of June 21st with ours of September 25th, but this is vastly different from either."

HULL retorted: "As for that I want you to read and compare the paragraph I point out with the one immediately preceding it. I said that it was a plan for reconciling both the Japanese and American proposals. Since the opening of conversations, the contents of it have been kept secret and, therefore, in this country where popular opinion counts for so much, various surmises are arising; particularly rumors are being circulated to the effect that we are leaving China in the lurch. I myself am in the foreground and in spite of what Japan said at the time of our conversation of the 22nd, various important people are still uttering non-pacific statements. There does not seem to be much I can do in the fact of that."

Army 25481

Trans. 11/29/41 (2)

- See S. I. S. #25485.
- See S. I. S. #25489.
- See S. I. S. #25491.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 November 26, 1941
 Purple (Extremely Urgent)
 #1191 Part 2 of 4.

To be handled in government code.

(3) Concerning Section 1 of the proposal, I pointed out that of the four principles, the fourth has changed the so-called Stimson Doctrine; but I got no clear reply. I reminded him of their insistances so far concerning the principle of non-discrimination and said that if we applied that immediately to China there would be a sudden darkening of the already cloudy economic situation and that this was improper and impossible.

HULL replied: "I fully understand that and the principle as such does not necessarily have to be put into effect right away."

(4) Concerning 1 of Section 2 of this proposal, I said: "If this plan aims to revive a Nine-Power Treaty set-up, we cannot feature it at all because we have fought a four year war in China without a cent of profit."

To this he countered with no strong rebuttal.

Army 25482

Trans. 11/29/41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
 To: Tokyo
 November 26, 1941
 Purple (Extremely Urgent)
 #1191 Part 3 of 4

(5) I said that paragraphs 3 and 4 of the same section were out of the question and, as for paragraph 4, for a country like the United States, who recognizes the Chungking Government, to say that she cannot desert the Chiang Regime is just like us saying that we certainly cannot desert the Nanking Regime."

In reply HULL said: "The evacuation under 3 would be carried out by negotiations. We are not necessarily asking that it be effected immediately. As for the Nanking Government, according to the best reports available to us, it hasn't much influence over China as a whole any way."

I retorted: "Well, that argument is based on the statement that in the long history of China there have been many rises and falls of governments."

(6) When we came to the question of the Three Power Treaty, I said: "For the United States to hope, on one hand, that she can make us make the last possible concession regarding the Three Power Pact and on the other virtually to say to us concerning the China question 'apologize to Chungking' is certainly strange. I do not suppose that that is what the President meant the other day when he spoke of 'introducing'."

HULL made no special answer.

Army 25483

Trans. 11/2/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 26, 1941

Purple (Extremely urgent)

#1191. (Part 4 of 4)

I said, "Well, I have read this only cursorily. It is a very difficult plan for us to consider accepting. As far as the China part is concerned, it contains clauses which are entirely out of the question so I, who would like to see an understanding established between Japan and the United States, do not know if I should even report it to Japan as it now stands. I have grave doubts. We will both read it over again and consider it fully. Then we will reply." Finally I said, "I wonder if the United States means that there is no other way but for us to consider this plan. You know the President the other day said that between friends there are no last words. I wonder if you could arrange for an interview." To the former he replied that in a word this was a plan, and to the latter he said that, although he did not think that much progress was being made, he would manage the matter.

Army 25484

Trans. 11-29-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

27 November 1941

(Purple)

#841

Please make the following corrections throughout the entire English text of the B Proposal:

Delete the "the" preceeding the word "peace" in "the peace in the Pacific";

Change "elucidating" to affirming";

Change "agreed upon" to "reached; and

Delete "mutual" from "mutual understanding".

25791

JD-1: 7079

(D) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (6-AR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
 To: Washington
 27 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #842

In the middle of your message #1280*, there is the part which mentions that the United States might make a protective occupation of the Dutch East Indies. Now this is a very important matter, and a point which we would like to know more about.

Will you please give us the reason for your mentioning this point, and any other item which might be of help to us in this matter.

25781

JD-1: 7080

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (6-AR)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 27 November 1941
 (J 19)
 Circular #2409 (In 4 parts, complete)
 Rio de Janeiro to Santiago as Circular #324

(Washington sent to Ottawa, Mexico City, Bogota, Caracas, Havana, Panama, New York, and New Orleans as unnumbered message.)

(Part 1)

Handle as Chief of Office routing.

With international relations becoming more strained, the following emergency system of despatches, using INGO DENPO (hidden word, or misleading language telegrams) is placed in effect. Please study this carefully.

Make up a table with the left column containing the code words and the right the corresponding plain (decoded) text. Please see that there is no mistake in transcribing this.

Example. A message meaning:

"Japan and U. S. S. R. military have clashed", will read:

"HIJIKATA and KUBOTA, clerks, have both been ordered to your embassy on 15th (begin spell) S T O P (end spell)."

In order to distinguish these cables from others, the English word S T O P will be added at the end as an indicator. (The Japanese word "OWARI" (end) will not be used).

(Part 2)

Code Word	Meaning
ARIMURA	Code communications prohibited.
ASAI	Communications will be by radio broadcasts.
ASAKURA	Will communicate by radio broadcast. You are directed to listen carefully.
ASIKAGA	Reception of overseas broadcast impossible due to interference.
AZUMA	Pressure on Japan increasing continually.
EDOGUTI	Prepare for evacuation.

Code WordMeaning

HANABUSA	Preparations for evacuation have been completed.
HANAZONO (?)	Prepare to entrust Embassy property to suitable foreign envoy (or consul) there.
HATAKEYAMA	Relations between Japan and (blank) have been severed.
HATTORI	Relations between Japan and (blank) are not in accordance with expectation.

(Part 3)

HIZIKATA	Japan's and ' (blank's) military forces have clashed.
HOSINO	Japan and (blank) are entering a full fledged general war.
IBARAGI	Communicate to us probable date of breaking off of relations between Japan and the country to which you are accredited.
INAGAKI	Have you - ?- - the . . . (blank) . . . matter?
ISHIKAWA	I have - ?- - the . . . (blank) . . . matter.
KASHIWAGI	We are commencing military action ? against . . . (blank) . . .
KOBAYAKAWA	Stop issuing all entrance and transient visas to Japan, to persons of . . . (blank) . . . nationality.
KODAMA	Japan.
KOMIYAMA	China.
KOYANAGI	England.
KUBOTA	U. S. S. R.
KURIBARA	France (?)
KUSUNOKI	Germany.
MATUTANI	Italy.

(Part 4)

MINAMI	U. S. A.
MIWATA	Canada.
MIYAZAKI	Mexico.
MOROKOSI	Brazil.
MOTIZUKI	Panama.
NAGAMINE	Argentina.
NAKAZATO	Thailand.
NANGO	French Indo-China.
NEGI (?)	Netherlands East-Indies.
OGAWA	Burma (?).
OKAMOTO	Malaya.
OKUMURA	Australia.
ONIZUKA	Union of South Africa (?).
ONODERA	Enemy country.
OTANI	(?) (Possibly: friendly, or allied country?)
ONISI	Year.
SIMANAKA	Day (?)
SAKAKIBARA	Tsuki) Month

Code Word	Meaning
SIGENOI	(KŌ) Paragraph
SANZYŌ	(Toki) Time
ITIRŌ	1
NISAKU	2
SANTARŌ	3
YOITI	4
GORŌ	5
MASAROKU	6
SIMETARŌ	7
YASOKITI	8
HISAMATU	9
ATUMI	0

25609

JD-1: 6985

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-2-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

27 November 1941 (2327-2334 EST)

(Telephone Code)—(See JD-1: 6841) (S. I. S. #25344)

Trans-PacificTelephone

(Conversation between Ambassador Kurusu and Japanese Foreign Office American Division Chief, Yamamoto.)

Literal translationDecode of Voice Code

(After connection was completed:)

KURUSU: "Hello, hello. This is Kurusu".

YAMAMOTO: "This is Yamamoto".

KURUSU: "Yes, Hello, hello."

(Unable to get Yamamoto for about six or eight seconds, he said aside, to himself, or to someone near him:)

KURUSU: "Oh, I see, they're making a record of this, huh?"

(It is believed he meant that the six second interruption was made so that a record could be started in Tokyo. Interceptor's machine had been started several minutes earlier.)

KURUSU: "Hello. Sorry to trouble you so often."

YAMAMOTO: "How did the matrimonial question get along today?"

KURUSU: "Oh, haven't you got our telegram* yet? It was sent—let me see—at about six—no, seven o'clock. Seven o'clock. About three hours ago.

"There wasn't much that was different from what Miss Umeko said yesterday."

"How did the negotiations go today?"

"There wasn't much that was different from Hull's talks of yesterday."

Literal translationDecode of Voice Code

YAMAMOTO: "Oh, there wasn't much difference?"

KURUSU: "No, there wasn't. As before, that southward matter—that south, SOUTH—southward matter, is having considerable effect. You know, southward matter."

YAMAMOTO: (Obviously trying to indicate the serious effect that Japanese concentrations, etc. in French Indo-China were having on the conversations in Washington. He tries to do this without getting away from the "Miss Umeko childbirth, marriage" character of the voice code.)

YAMAMOTO: "Oh, the south matter? It's effective?"

KURUSU: "Yes, and at one time, the matrimonial question seemed as if it would be settled."

"Yes, and at one time it looked as though we could reach an agreement".

KURUSU: "But—well, of course, there are other matters involved too, but—that was it—that was the monkey wrench. Details are included in the telegram* which should arrive very shortly. It is not very long and you'll be able to read it quickly."

YAMAMOTO: "Oh, you've dispatched it?"

KURUSU: "Oh, yes, quite a while ago. At about 7 o'clock."

(Pause.)

KURUSU: "How do things look there? Does it seem as if a child might be born?"

"Does it seem as if a crisis is at hand?"

YAMAMOTO: (In a very definite tone): "Yes, the birth of the child seems imminent."

"Yes, a crisis does appear imminent."

KURUSU: (In a somewhat surprised tone, repeating Yamamoto's statement):

"It does seem as if the birth is going to take place?"

"A crisis does appear imminent?"

(Pause.)

KURUSU: "In which direction. . ."

(Stopped himself very abruptly at this slip which went outside the character of the voice code. After a slight pause he quickly recovered, then to cover up the slip, continued:)

KURUSU: "Is it to be a boy or a girl?"

YAMAMOTO: (Hesitated, then laughing at his hesitation took up Kurusu's cue to re-establish the voice code character of the talk. The "boy, girl, healthy" byplay has no other significance):

YAMAMOTO: "It seems as if it will be a strong healthy boy."

Literal translationDecode of Voice Code

KURUSU: "Oh, it's to be a strong healthy boy?"

(Rather long pause.)

YAMAMOTO: "Yes.

"Did you make any statement (to the newspapers) regarding your talk with Miss Kimiko today?"

"Did you make any statement regarding your talks with the President today?"

KURUSU: "No, nothing. Nothing except the mere fact that we met."

YAMAMOTO: "Regarding the matter contained in the telegram of the other day, although no definite decision has been made yet, please be advised that effecting it will be difficult."

KURUSU: "Oh, it is difficult, huh?"

YAMAMOTO: "Yes, it is."

KURUSU: "Well, I guess there's nothing more that can be done then."

YAMAMOTO: "Well, yes."

(Pause)

YAMAMOTO: "Then, today . . ."

KURUSU: "Today?"

YAMAMOTO: "The matrimonial question, that is, the matter pertaining to arranging a marriage—don't break them off."

"Regarding negotiations, don't break them off."

KURUSU: "Not break them? You mean talks."

(Helplessly:)

KURUSU: "Oh, my."

(Pause, and then with a resigned laugh:)

KURUSU: "Well, I'll do what I can."

(Continuing after a pause:)

KURUSU: "Please read carefully what Miss Kimiko had to say as contained in today's telegram*."

"Please read carefully what the President had to say as contained in today's telegram*."

YAMAMOTO: "From what time to what time were your talks today?"

KURUSU: "Oh, today's was from 2:30."

(Much repeating of the numeral 2)

KURUSU: "Oh, you mean the duration? Oh, that was for about an hour."

YAMAMOTO: "Regarding the matrimonial question."

"Regarding the negotiations."

"I shall send you another message. However, please bear in mind that the matter of the other day is a very difficult one."

Literal translation

KURUSU: "But without anything,—they want to keep carrying on the matrimonial question. They do. In the meantime we're faced with the excitement of having a child born. On top of that Tokugawa is really champing at the bit, isn't he? Tokugawa is, isn't he?"

(Laughter and pause.)

KURUSU: "That's why I doubt if anything can be done."

YAMAMOTO: "I don't think it's as bad as that."

YAMAMOTO: "Well,—we can't sell a mountain."

KURUSU: "Oh, sure, I know that. That isn't even a debatable question any more."

YAMAMOTO: "Well, then, although we can't yield, we'll give you some kind of a reply to that telegram."

KURUSU: "In any event, Miss Kimiko is leaving town tomorrow, and will remain in the country until Wednesday."

YAMAMOTO: "Will you please continue to do your best."

KURUSU: "Oh, yes. I'll do my best. And Nomura's doing everything too."

YAMAMOTO: "Oh, all right. In today's talks, there wasn't anything of special interest then?"

KURUSU: "No, nothing of particular interest, except that it is quite clear now that that southward—ah—the south, the south matter is having considerable effect."

YAMAMOTO: "I see. Well, then, good bye."

KURUSU: "Good bye."

Decode of Voice Code

"But without anything,—they want to keep on negotiating. In the meantime we have a crisis on hand and the army is champing at the bit. You know the army."

"Well,—we can't yield."

"In any event, the President is leaving town tomorrow, and will remain in the country until Wednesday."

25443

JD-1: 6890

(M) Navy Trans. 11-28-41 ()

*JD-1: 6915 (S. I. S. #25495). Outline of interview on 27 November with Roosevelt-Hull-Kurusu-Nomura.

Probably #1189 (S. I. S. #25441-42). (JD-1: 6896). Washington reports the two proposals presented by the U. S. on 26 November.

[Secret]

From: Washington
 To: Tokyo
 27 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #1204

Re your #842*.

The United States has been conferring with the Netherlands on subjects pertaining to U. S. claims and because we asked them to do so. In the midst of these talks, the White House suddenly came forth with the announcement on the 24th, that the United States is occupying Dutch Guiana, with the agreement of the government of the Netherlands, for the purpose of protecting it.

As was made plain in the text of this announcement, the main objective of this occupation was to guarantee accessibility to aluminum produced there, which is vital to the national defense of the United States. Ordinarily, the Netherlands Government would dispatch its armed forces stationed in the Netherlands East Indies for this purpose, but she is unable to do so at present because of the present situation in the southwest Pacific area. For this reason, the U. S. Army is being used to protect the aluminum mines in that area. At the same time, at the invitation of the Netherlands Government, Brazil is also taking part in protecting them.

The Netherlands Foreign Minister stopped in the United States en route to visiting the Netherlands East Indies, and conferred with U. S. government officials. Since then, there has been a considerable increase in the amount of military supplies being shipped to the Netherlands East Indies; the traffic of technicians and experts between the United States and N. E. I., has swung up sharply. From these indications as well as from the history of the Netherlands East Indies, it is believed, that depending upon the atmosphere at the time the Japanese-U. S. negotiations break off, Britain and the United States may occupy the Netherlands East Indies. They will do this, probably, much in the same manner as U. S.-Brazil joint occupation of Netherlands Guiana, in the name of protecting the products of the N. E. I. which are vital to national defense, tin and rubber.

I feel that it is essential that we give careful consideration to this possibility. I made reference to this point in my message #1180. The gist of this message does not differ from that contained in that message.

25535

JD-1: 6914

(D) Navy Trans. 11-29-41 (X)

*Not available.

JD-1: 6991 (S. I. S. #25435-36).

[Secret]

From: Washington.
 To: Tokyo.
 27 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #1206 (In 4 parts, Part 4 not available)

On the 27th, I, together with Ambassador Kurusu, called on the President. (Secretary Hull was also present.) The résumé of our talks follows:

The President: "In the last Great War, Japan and the United States were together on the side of the Allies. At that time, both Japan and the United States were given ample proof that Germany failed to comprehend the way the people of other countries think.

"Since these conversations were begun, I am aware of the fact that much effort has been made by the Japanese side, too, by those who cherish peace. I am highly appreciative of this fact. It is clear that the majority of the American people are anxious to maintain peaceful relations with Japan. I am one of those who still harbors much hope that Japanese-U. S. relations will be settled peacefully."

I: "Your recent proposal will no doubt be the cause of painful disappointment to the Japanese Government."

The President: "To tell you the truth, I, too, am very disappointed that the situation has developed in the manner that it has. However, during the several months that these conversations were being conducted, cold water was poured on them when Japan occupied southern French Indo-China. According to recent intelligences, there are fears that a second cold water dousing may become an actuality." (He apparently meant the increase in our troops to French Indo-China and our occupation of Thai.) (See my message #1205*.) "I fully understand that the general public in Japan who has been living in war conditions for the past year, cannot see a parallel with conditions in the United States, which is living under peaceful conditions.

"During all of the time, however, that Your Excellency and Secretary Hull have been conversing, we have never heard of or seen concrete proof of any peaceful intention by the leading elements of Japan. This has made these talks an exceedingly difficult undertaking.

(Part 2)

"Even the suggestion that the present situation be overcome by a 'modus vivendi' would be without any value if in the final analysis the basic principles of international relations of Japan and the United States do not agree. If there is a basic difference, no stop gap measure could carry any weight, it seems to me.

"In my conversations with Churchill on the high seas, for example, it was predetermined that our respective basic policies coincided. Moreover, even the subjects which were to be agreed upon had been clearly defined in advance."

Kurusu: "Judging from the records of the developments of our negotiations in the past, the differences of opinions between Japan and the United States were not differences in the basic principles of each. Rather, the differences arose in the practical applications thereof. For a very simple example Japan has no disagreements to the principle of non-discriminatory treatment of commerce, strongly advocated by the United States.

"However, it is when we consider the immediate application of this principle in China, bringing about a radical and sudden change in the economic situation there, it is only natural that Japan insists upon certain special conditions. I feel that this difference may have been the source of some misunderstanding."

Hull: "By your frequent explanations, we thoroughly understand that point. According to advice I have received, however, there are approximately 250,000 Japanese merchants in China at present who followed or accompanied the military. These are engaging in various business enterprises. There have been indications that various incidents have arisen involving the relations between these merchants and nationals of a third country. If you are going to consider the profits of these people, the problem of course will become an exceedingly difficult one."

Kurusu: "Japan's claims are not based on such minor factors, but concern only the various major problems."

(Part 3)

We then went on and brought up the subject which has reference to the President's "suggestions".

The President: "have not abandoned giving consideration to that matter. However, it is first essential that both Japan and China simultaneously desire that that be done."

We pointed out that from a practical standpoint that would be very difficult to accomplish. To this, the President said:

"In domestic issues, I have had several experiences along the same lines. No doubt, some method will be found in this case, too."

I. "We have, as yet, received no instructions from Tokyo regarding your proposal. I, for one, hope that you, Mr. President, whose statesmanship I respect highly after over thirty years of close acquaintance with it, will find some way that will lead to a settlement."

The President: "To tell you the truth, I have since the end of last week, twice postponed a trip which I was going to take for my health, because of a critical domestic issue, and because of the arrival of Ambassador Kurusu to the United States. I am leaving tomorrow afternoon, Friday, for the country for a rest." (He looked very tired). "I plan to return next Wednesday. I would like to talk with you again then. It would be very gratifying, however, if some means of a settlement could be discovered in the meantime."

(Part 4 not available.)

25495

JD-1: 6915

(D) Navy Trans. 11-29-41 (X)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

27 November 1941

(Purple)

#1206 (Part 4 of 4) (Parts 1, 2, and 3 previously translated)

In the middle of our talks, Hull, with reference to the cause for the failure to agree upon a modus vivendi, said:

"There are other factors other than those pointed out by the President. Japan has sent vast numbers of troops to French Indo-China with which to keep the military powers of other countries checked. With this advantage on her side, Japan carries in one hand, the Tripartite Pact, and in the other, the Anti-Communism Pact. Armed with these, she demands of the United States that petroleum be made available to her.

"It would be absolutely impossible to reconcile the people of the United States to granting such a demand. As I stated during our last conversations, while we here are putting forth our best efforts in attempting to bring about peaceful settlements of Japanese-U. S. differences, your Premier nor your Foreign Minister nor any other influential person utters not a single word nor moves one finger to facilitate these talks of ours. On the contrary, they insist upon promoting the establishment of a New Order through might. This is an exceedingly regrettable state of affairs."

Parts 1, 2, & 3 see S. I. S. 25495.

25608

JD-1: 6915

(D) Navy Trans. 12-2-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
November 28, 1941.
Purple (CA)
#844

Re your #1189 *

Well, you two Ambassadors have exerted superhuman efforts but, in spite of this, the United States has gone ahead and presented this humiliating proposal. This was quite unexpected and extremely regrettable. The Imperial Government can by no means use it as a basis for negotiations. Therefore, with a report of the views of the Imperial Government on this American proposal which I will send you in two or three days, the negotiations will be de facto ruptured. This is inevitable. However, I do not wish you to give the impression that the negotiations are broken off. Merely say to them that you are awaiting instructions and that, although the opinions of your Government are not yet clear to you, to your own way of thinking the Imperial Government has always made just claims and has borne great sacrifices for the sake of peace in the Pacific. Say that we have always demonstrated a long-suffering and conciliatory attitude, but that, on the other hand, the United States has been unbending, making it impossible for Japan to establish negotiations. Since things have come to this pass, I contacted the man you told me to in your #1180 ^b and he said that under the present circumstances what you suggest is entirely unsuitable. From now on do the best you can.

Army 25445

JD 6898

Trans. 11-28-41 (S)

* S. I. S. # 25441, # 25442.
^b S. I. S. # 25435, # 25436.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
To: Honolulu
November 28, 1941
J 19 (Priority)
#118

Re your #232 *

To be handled in government code.

Anticipating the possibility of ordinary telegraphic communication being severed when we are about to face the worst of situations, these broadcasts are intended to serve as a means of informing the diplomats in the country concerned of that situation without the use of the usual telegraphic channels. Do not destroy the codes without regard to the actual situation in your locality, but retain them as long as the situation there permits and until the final stage is entered into.

Army 25859

Trans. 12/7/41 (S)

^a Not available.
^b S. I. S. #25432 in which Tokyo sends a circular giving hidden-meaning words which will be broadcast in the event that code communication is cut off.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Hanoi

November 28, 1941

Purple (YO)

#93

Re your #118 ^a.

The trend of Japan-American negotiations is as I told you in my circular #2414 ^b. The current outlook is as I delineated in my circular #2416 ^b. Even though the worst possible situation developed, and it will in all likelihood, the Imperial Government has made no decisions with regard to changing the position of the French Indo-Chinese Government. Therefore, I would like to have you give due consideration to the policy of maintaining the status quo for the time being. If you have no objections, bearing this in mind, I would have you act with prudence.

We have transmitted this to France and Germany.

Army 25547

Trans. 12-1-41 (5)

^a S. I. S. #25345 in which Hanoi suggests that they be advised as early as possible whether the status quo will be maintained as far as French Indo-China's governmental set-up is concerned, so that pre-arrangements can be made.

^b Not available.

[Secret]

From: Rio

To: Santiago

November 28, 1941

J-19

Circular #326 (Message from Tokyo Circular #2416)

(To be handled in Government code)

Concerning Japanese-American negotiations, the counter proposal presented to us by the United States on the 27th, overlooks all we stand for; therefore, of course we disregard it. There is nothing to do but break off negotiations, and our relations with England and the United States within the next few days will assuredly take a critical turn. The above is for your information only.

Army 26000

Trans. 12/9/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 28, 1941

Purple (Priority)

#1209. To be handled in Government Code.

What the Imperial Government must, of course, consider is what Great Britain, Australia, the Netherlands and China, egged on by the United States, will do in case the Imperial forces invade Thailand. Even supposing there is no armed collision with British forces, in the Oral Statement of President ROOSEVELT on the 17th of this month he prophesied that suitable action would be taken immediately in case Japan carries on any further penetration beyond French Indo-China. Moreover, newspaper reports at present would tend to lead to the conclusion that, even though England and the United States might not oppose us militarily within Thai, the United States assisting all nations concerned would adopt the policy of so-called joint defense throughout the whole southwestern Pacific area; thus, as I said in my #1204 *, there is no slight possibility that she might occupy the Netherlands Indies on the excuse that this action would be necessary for purposes of defense. I am sure you already have all these things in your mind, but in view of the gravity of the present situation, I just wanted to remind you again.

Army 25793

Trans. 12-6-41 (X)

* S. I. S. #25535 in which Ambassador NOMURA discusses the United States' occupation of Dutch Guiana and says it is believed that, depending upon the atmosphere at the time the Japanese-American relations break off, Britain and the United States may occupy the Netherlands East Indies. He says it is essential that the Japanese give careful consideration to this possibility.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 28, 1941

Purple

#1214. To be handled in Government Code

Re my #1190*

So far silence has been maintained here concerning our talks with the United States; however, now the results of our conference of the 26th are out and headlines like this are appearing in the paper: "Hull Hands Peace Plan to Japanese," and "America Scorns a Second Munich." The papers say that it is up to Japan either to accept the American proposal with its four principles, or face war, in which latter case the responsibility would be upon Japan.

This we must carefully note.

Army 25548

Trans. 12-1-41 (2)

* S. I. S. #25444 and #25480 in which NOMURA expresses the danger of the responsibility for the rupture of negotiations being cast upon Japan should Japan enter into her scheduled operations during the course of the negotiations. He suggests that the negotiations be irrevocably concluded either through an announcement to the American Embassy in Tokyo or by a declaration for internal and external consumption.

[Secret]

From: Hsinking
 To: Tokyo
 November 28, 1941
 Purple
 #781. Strictly Secret

To be handled in Government Code.

In view of the situation, after conferring with the competent authorities, the following measures having to do with the treatment of British and American nationals in Manchukuo in the event that war breaks out with England and the United States are as outlined below. We are unanimously agreed on these matters. Should there be any questions regarding them, please wire me at once.

I. Policy. On the outbreak of war with England and the United States, after you have at the appropriate time gathered all these nationals together, they are to be returned each to his own homeland at as early a date as possible. However, until this return can be arranged, they are to be interned in places of concentration in Manchukuo.

The control of such property as they might leave behind will be administered by the Manchukuo Government.

II. Detailed outline.

1. Persons to be interned:
 - a. British nationals—339.
 - b. American citizens—81.
 - c. Of these, consular officials and Catholic missionaries are to be given preferential treatment.
 - d. Nationals of the Soviet or other third powers observed to be obnoxious characters with pro-British and American leanings are to be suitably taken care of.
2. Time and Method of Internment.
 - a. Persons mentioned in the paragraph above are to be advised to get in touch with the Japanese Chief of Detention. They are to be concentrated in the three areas, Harbin, Mukden and Chōkinshū.*
 - b. Then, depending on negotiations, they will be returned each to his own country. When evacuation is through the Soviet, we will release them at Manchuli, and when they are to be transported to Shanghai, they will be released in Dairen.
 - c. This will be carried out by the Manchukuo Police authorities. (In Kwantung Province the procedure will be controlled by the Provincial Police Office.)
 - d. All property left behind is to be administered through legal measures by the Manchukuo Government.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
29 November 1941
(Purple—CA)
#857

Re my #844*

We wish you would make one more attempt verbally along the following lines:

The United States government has (always?) taken a fair and judicial position and has formulated its policies after full consideration of the claims of both sides.

However, the Imperial Government is at a loss to understand why it has now taken the attitude that the new proposals we have made cannot be made the basis of discussion, but instead has made new proposals which ignore actual conditions in East Asia and would greatly injure the prestige of the Imperial Government.

With such a change of front in their attitude toward the China problem, what has become of the basic objectives that the U. S. government has made the basis of our negotiations during these seven months? On these points we would request careful self-reflection on the part of the United States government.

(In carrying out this instruction, please be careful that this does not lead to anything like a breaking off of negotiations.)

25496

JD-1: 6921

(F) Navy trans. 30 Nov. 1941 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6898 (S. I. S. 25445) dated 28 Nov., in which Tokyo's first reaction to the new U. S. proposals castigates them as humiliating. When Japan sends a reply in 2 or 3 days giving its views on them the negotiations will be 'de facto' ruptured. However, do not give the impression that negotiations are broken off.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
29 November 1941
(Purple)
#1216

In the Washington special intelligence dated the 28th concerning the White House interview, President Roosevelt is the person meant where reference is made to "authoritatively stated" and to an "administration spokesman". We understand that Roosevelt particularly requested that the source be kept unclear.

(Please exercise caution in handling this).

25711

JD-1: 7038

(D) Navy Trans. 12-3-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Berlin

To: Tokyo

29 November 1941

(Purple)

#1393 (In 3 parts, complete)

By his request, I was supposed to have called on Foreign Minister Ribbentrop during the evening of yesterday, the 28th. Suddenly, however, he requested that the time be postponed and it was not until 10:30 at night that I finally saw him.

This delay was occasioned by the fact that a long conference of the bigwigs of the government and military, from Goering down, was being held at the official residence of the Fuehrer. The war against the Soviet Union has now taken definite shape and the outcome can be unerringly foretold. Next year's campaigns were mapped at this conference, taking into consideration the points brought up at the conference of the various Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of Europe. It is an absolute certainty that Japan's moves were also given discussion at this conference.

1. Ribbentrop opened our meeting by again inquiring whether I had received any reports regarding the Japanese-U. S. negotiations. I replied that I had received no official word.

Ribbentrop: "It is essential that Japan effect the New Order in East Asia without losing this opportunity. There never has been and probably never will be a time when closer cooperation under the Tripartite Pact is so important. If Japan hesitates at this time, and Germany goes ahead and establishes her European New Order, all the military might of Britain and the United States will be concentrated against Japan.

"As Fuehrer Hitler said today, there are fundamental differences in the very right to exist between Germany and Japan, and the United States. We have received advice to the effect that there is practically no hope of the Japanese-U. S. negotiations being concluded successfully, because of the fact that the United States is putting up a stiff front.

"If this is indeed the fact of the case, and if Japan reaches a decision to fight Britain and the United States, I am confident that that will not only be to the interest of Germany and Japan jointly, but would bring about favorable results for Japan herself."

I: "I can make no definite statement as I am not aware of any concrete intentions of Japan. Is Your Excellency indicating that a state of actual war is to be established between Germany and the United States?"

Ribbentrop: "Roosevelt's a fanatic, so it is impossible to tell what he would do."

Concerning this point, in view of the fact that Ribbentrop has said in the past that the United States would undoubtedly try to avoid meeting German troops*, and from the tone of Hitler's recent speech as well as that of Ribbentrop's, I feel that German attitude toward the United States is being considerably stiffened. There are indications at present that Germany would not refuse to fight the United States if necessary.

(Part 2)

2. I made inquiries as to the future of the war against the Soviet Union.

Ribbentrop: "The Fuehrer has stated that he is now determined to crush the Soviet Union to an even greater extent than he had planned at first. He is now bent on completely wiping out that state and went on to announce that practically all of the main military objectives had been attained and that a greater part of the German troops would shortly be brought back to Germany.

"Following up those campaigns, the Caucasus campaign will be launched in earnest. Next Spring Germany will advance to and cross the Ural Mountains and chase Stalin deep into Siberia."

I: "Approximately when do you expect that?"

Ribbentrop: "The campaign will be launched in about May of next year, according to present schedules."

I: "According to what you say, Germany is apparently preparing to gamble quite a bit in her Russian campaign. We hope that air connections between Germany and Manchukuo can be established at an early time."

Ribbentrop: "That is an item that Germany has been considering for some time. By summer of next year I do not believe that air connection from the Ural area to Manchukuo will be an impossibility."

3. I then asked him about the campaign against England proper to which he replied that before launching landing operations against England, Germany will probably completely wipe out Britain's influence in the Near East, Africa, Gibraltar and the Mediterranean Sea. I got the impression that more emphasis is being placed on this area than heretofore. So, I asked whether it was Germany's intention to conclude the war without attempting to go through with a campaign against England.

Ribbentrop: "Germany has, of course, made all necessary preparations for this campaign. However, Germany is in receipt of intelligences which would seem to indicate that all is not well within England herself. For example, we hear that there is a split within the ranks of the Conservatives; that Churchill's influence is on the wane; that Bevin, Chief of the Labor Party, is advocating revolutionary measures. All of these are tending to make the preservation of order there increasingly difficult.

"Of course, I am not one to implicitly believe all of this. However, I am convinced that things are getting bad in England. Under these circumstances, it may be that Germany's various other campaigns may cause England to fall even without our going through with our landing operations against England herself.

(Part 3)

"In any event, Germany has absolutely no intention of entering into any peace with England. We are determined to remove all British influence from Europe. Therefore, at the end of this war, England will have no influence whatsoever, in international affairs. The Island Empire of Britain may remain, but all of her other possessions throughout the world will probably be divided three ways by Germany, the United States, and Japan. In Africa, Germany will be satisfied with, roughly, those parts which were formerly German colonies. Italy will be given the greater share of the African colonies. Germany desires above all else, to control European Russia."

4. In conclusion, I said: "I am fully aware of the fact that Germany's war campaign is progressing according to schedule smoothly. However, suppose that Germany is faced with the situation of having not only Great Britain as an actual enemy but also have all of those areas in which Britain has influence and those countries which have been aiding Britain as actual enemies as well. Under such circumstances, the war area will undergo considerable expansion, of course. What is your opinion of the outcome of the war under such an eventuality?"

Ribbentrop: "We would like to end this war during next year. However, under certain circumstances, it is possible that it will have to be continued on into the following year.

"Should Japan become engaged in a war against the United States Germany, of course, would join the war immediately. There is absolutely no possibility of Germany's entering into a separate peace with the United States under such circumstances. The Fuehrer is determined on that point."

In closing this conference, Foreign Minister Ribbentrop requested that the contents of our talks be kept a strict secret. Please, therefore, exercise particular caution in handling this message.

I have shown copies of this message to the military and naval attache's, Lt-Gen. (Vice Adm.?) Nomura, and Maj-Gen (Rear Adm.?) Abe. Please show a copy to the Army and Navy authorities in Tokyo, too.

(In the last section of the first part of this message, we wrote * * * "the U. S. would undoubtedly try to avoid meeting German troops" * * * That should have read: "the U. S. would undoubtedly try to avoid war".)

25556

JD-1: 6942

(D) Navy Trans. 12-1-41 (7)

* See end of message.

[Secret]

From: Bangkok

To: Tokyo

29 November 1941

(Purple)

#872 (In 2 parts, complete)

Re my #855.*

As a result of my conversation with PIBUN, I have been able to ascertain his attitude to a large degree, and therefore through Yoshioka who as the outside agency of the Naval Attache's office, we have suggested to SIN and WANITTO that, in the event of Thai's abandoning her neutrality policy in the future, it would be better both from the standpoint of face and also for material reasons for her to go through the formality herself of requesting cooperative action from the nation concerned, rather than to be put in the position of being compelled to consent to it because of pressure brought to bear. The shifts within the government mentioned in my caption message, are a result of the above. When SIN heard this from Yoshioka, he said that this is a matter he has been concerned over the past two years, and as he feels that he himself is the most suitable person to handle the matter he promised to put forth every effort for its realization. He is also said to have told WANITTO that the matter should be left to him. WANITTO and SIN are keeping in touch with us through Yoshioka in regard to subsequent developments within the government, and we are giving them appropriate guidance under cover. The main points of the same are as follows: (Yoshioka's mediation in this puts him in a "delicate" position in relation to the army attache' so this should be kept absolutely confidential within the department).

(1) Whenever there is discussion in the cabinet the points raised are, the real intentions of Japan, that is, the meaning of the East Asia Coprosperity plan, the involvements of the southward expansion policy, the extent of commodity supplying, and the duration of the time of stationing troops. Great Britain seizes upon these points and furnishes all kinds of contradictory material with which to keep the pro-British elements busy. To meet this WANITTO presents the absolute necessity of union between Japan and Thai and this has already become the firm conviction of the pro-Japanese group, and there thus is no need for further discussion as far as they are concerned. However the opposition have been bringing up troublesome arguments and hold tenaciously thereto. Since it was so difficult to convince them an appeal was made to us for material with which to counter them and their arguments.

(2) Since then the pro-Japanese group have been having better success in their attempts, and their position has become more favorable. As a result the opposition, since about the 25th has kept silent. However, the matter has not been concluded.

(Part 2 being translated)

From: Bangkok
To: Tokyo
29 November 1941
(Purple)
#872 (Part 2 of 2)

3. The question of joint military action between Thai and Japan has already been brought up by the pro-Japanese faction, but up to date, they have expressed a desire to pursue a course of strict neutrality. They had taken a fairly firm stand that the first one, regardless of whether this be Britain or Japan, who makes the first move shall be considered Thai's enemy. Therefore, for Japan to be looked upon as Thai's helper, she should put Britain in a position to be the first aggressor. For the purpose of accomplishing this, Japan should carefully avoid Thai territory, and instead, land troops in the neighborhood of KOTAPARU in British territory, which would almost certainly force Britain to invade Thailand from PATANBESSA. The consequence would be Thai's declaration of war on Britain.

This strategy is being given careful consideration. Apparently this plan has the approval of Chief of Staff BIJITTO. Our naval Attache has advised the Naval General Staff, also, I think.

4. WANITTO and SIN are both considerably concerned of the weak character of PIBUN. As a means of making PIBUN make a decision, they think that it would be well to have some outside pressure brought to bear on him. As one means, they suggest that some undesirable Japanese be forcibly removed from Thai by Japan, and then to publicize this as the forerunner of a general evacuation of Japanese nationals from Thai.

From the above and from other considerations, including that of the tone of PIBUN's radio broadcast which was reported in my message #871*, the situation here may show some unexpectedly speedy and favorable developments. I feel that we should not fumble this situation, but should proceed carefully and take the best advantage of it.

25499

JD-1: 6923

(D) Navy Trans. 12-1-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6881 (S. I. S. #25417).
 Premier and Foreign Minister.
 Actively in charge of Foreign Office.
 *Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Berlin
 November 30, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #985. (Part 1 of 3)*

Re my Circular #2387.^b

1. The conversations begun between Tokyo and Washington last April during the administration of the former cabinet, in spite of the sincere efforts of the Imperial Government, now stand ruptured—broken. (I am sending you an outline of developments in separate message #986 *) In the face of this, our Empire faces a grave situation and must act with determination. Will Your Honor, therefore, immediately interview Chancellor HITLER and Foreign Minister RIBBENTROP and confidentially communicate to them a summary of the developments. Say to them that lately England and the United States have taken a provocative attitude, both of them. Say that they are planning to move military forces into various places in East Asia and that we will inevitably have to counter by also moving troops. Say very secretly to them that there is extreme danger that war may suddenly break out between the Anglo-Saxon nations and Japan through some clash of arms and add that the time of the breaking out of this war may come quicker than anyone dreams.

Army 25552

JD: 6943

Trans. 12-1-41 (NR)

* Part 2 not available. For Part 3 see S. I. S. #25553
^b Not available.
 • See S. I. S. #25554, 25555.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Berlin
 November 30, 1941.
 Purple (CA)
 #985. (Part 3 of 3)

4. If, when you tell them this, the Germans and Italians question you about our attitude toward the Soviet, say that we have already clarified our attitude toward the Russians in our statement of last July. Say that by our present moves southward we do not mean to relax our pressure against the Soviet and that if Russia joins hands tighter with England and the United States and resists us with hostilities, we are ready to turn upon her with all our might; however, right now, it is to our advantage to stress the south and for the time being we would prefer to refrain from any direct moves in the north.

5. This message is important from a strategic point of view and must under all circumstances be held in the most absolute secrecy. This goes without saying. Therefore, will you please impress upon the Germans and Italians how important secrecy is.

6. As for Italy, after our Ambassador in Berlin has communicated this to the Germans, he will transmit a suitable translation to Premier MUSSOLINI and Foreign Minister CIANO. As soon as a date is set for a conference with the Germans and Italians, please let me know.

Will you please send this message also to Rome, together with the separate message.

Army 25553

Trans. 12-1-41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Berlin

November 30, 1941

Purple

#986 (Strictly Secret) (To be handled in Government Code)
(Part 1 of 2) (Secret outside the Department)

1. Japan-American negotiations were commenced the middle of April of this year. Over a period of half a year they have been continued. Within that period the Imperial Government adamantly stuck to the Tri-Partite Alliance as the cornerstone of its national policy regardless of the vicissitudes of the international situation. In the adjustment of diplomatic relations between Japan and the United States, she has based her hopes for a solution definitely within the scope of that alliance. With the intent of restraining the United States from participating in the war, she boldly assumed the attitude of carrying through these negotiations.

2. Therefore, the present cabinet, in line with your message, with the view of defending the Empire's existence and integrity on a just and equitable basis, has continued the negotiations carried on in the past. However, their views and ours on the question of the evacuation of troops, upon which the negotiations rested (they demanded the evacuation of Imperial troops from China and French Indo-China), were completely in opposition to each other.

Judging from the course of the negotiations that have been going on, we first came to loggerheads when the United States, in keeping with its traditional ideological tendency of managing international relations, re-emphasized her fundamental reliance upon this traditional policy in the conversations carried on between the United States and England in the Atlantic Ocean. The motive of the United States in all this was brought out by her desire to prevent the establishment of a new order by Japan, Germany, and Italy in Europe and in the Far East (that is to say, the aims of the Tri-Partite Alliance). As long as the Empire of Japan was in alliance with Germany and Italy, there could be no maintenance of friendly relations between Japan and the United States was the stand they took. From this point of view, they began to demonstrate a tendency to demand the divorce of the Imperial Government from the Tri-Partite Alliance. This was brought out at the last meeting. That is to say that it has only been in the negotiations of the last few days that it has become gradually more and more clear that the Imperial Government could no longer continue negotiations with the United States. It became clear, too, that a continuation of negotiations would inevitably be detrimental to our cause.

Army 25554

Trans. 12/1/41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Berlin
 November 30, 1941
 Purple
 #986. (Part 2 of 2)

3. The proposal presented by the United States on the 26th made this attitude of theirs clearer than ever. In it there is one insulting clause which says that no matter what treaty either party enters into with a third power it will not be interpreted as having any bearing upon the basic object of this treaty, namely the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. This means specifically the Three-Power Pact. It means that in case the United States enters the European war at any time the Japanese Empire will not be allowed to give assistance to Germany and Italy. It is clearly a trick. This clause alone, let alone others, makes it impossible to find any basis in the American proposal for negotiations. What is more, before the United States brought forth this plan, they conferred with England, Australia, the Netherlands, and China—they did so repeatedly. Therefore, it is clear that the United States is now in collusion with those nations and has decided to regard Japan, along with Germany and Italy, as an enemy.

Army 25555

Trans. 12-1-41 (NR)

[Secret]

From: Washington
 To: Tokyo
 30 November 1941 (2230 to 2238 EST)
 Telephone Code
 TransPacific Radio Telephone

(NOTE.—Following is a preliminary, condensed version of conversation between Ambassador Kurusu and the Japanese Foreign Office American Division Chief Yamamoto on Sunday night)

Kurusu: "It is all arranged for us to meet Hull tomorrow. We received a short one from you, didn't we? Well, we will meet him in regard to that. There is a longer one coming isn't there? In any case we are going to see him about the short one." (i. e. telegram. The longer one is probably Tokyo's reply to Mr. Hull's proposals.)

Yamamoto: "Yes. I see."

Kurusu: "The President is returning tomorrow. He is hurrying home."

Y: "Is there any special significance to this?"

K: "The newspapers have made much of the Premier's speech, and it is having strong repercussions here."

Y: "Is that so?"

K: "Yes. It was a drastic statement he made. The newspapers carried large headlines over it; and the President seems to be returning because of it. There no doubt are other reasons, but this is the reason the newspapers are giving."

(Pause.)

"Unless greater caution is exercised in speeches by the Premier and others, it puts us in a very difficult position. All of you over there must watch out about these ill-advised statements. Please tell Mr. Tani."

Y: "We are being careful."

K: "We here are doing our best, but these reports are seized upon by the correspondents and the worst features enlarged upon. Please caution the Premier, the Foreign Minister, and others. Tell the Foreign Minister that we had expected to hear something different, some good word, but instead we get this." (i. e. Premier's speech)

(After a pause, Kurusu continues, using voice code.)

K: "What about the internal situation?" (In Japan.)

Y: "No particular ---- (one or two words faded out) ----"

K: "Are the Japanese-American negotiations to continue?"

Y: "Yes."

K: "You were very urgent about them before, weren't you; but now you want them to stretch out. We will need your help. Both the Premier and the Foreign Minister will need to change the tone of their speeches ! ! ! ! Do you understand? Please all use more discretion."

Y: "When will you see them. The 2nd?"

K: "Let's see—this is Sunday midnight here. Tomorrow morning at ten. That will be Monday morning here."

(Pause.)

"Actually the real problem we are up against is the effects of happenings in the South. You understand don't you?"

Y: "Yes. Yes. How long will it be before the President gets back?"

K: "I don't know exactly. According to news reports he started at 4:00 this afternoon. He should be here tomorrow morning sometime."

Y: "Well then—Goodbye."

25497

JD-1: 6922

(M) Navy trans. 30 Nov. 1941 (R-5)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

November 30, 1941

Purple

#1222 (Secret)

Premier TOJO's speech was published here on the 30th in the newspapers under conspicuous headlines. They printed especially noticeably the sentence, "The exploitation of the Asiatics by Americans 'must be purged with vengeance'." On the other hand, according to the newspapers, a White House secretary has issued an announcement to the effect that Secretary HULL had at once telephoned the President, resting at Warm Springs, concerning the Premier's speech and, as a result, the President, changing his schedule, was leaving Warm Springs on the afternoon of the 30th and is expected to return to Washington on the morning of the first. Inasmuch as this speech will be used extensively for propaganda purposes by the Americans, will you please take suitable steps. Furthermore, will you please send me at once copies of the text (both Japanese and English)?

Army 25761

Trans. 12/5/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Manila (Nihro)
 To: Tokyo
 November 30, 1941
 Purple (Priority)
 #809

Due to the straining of international relations, we have destroyed in readiness for emergency out of the codes kept at this office the Yokohama Special Bank code, the TU code, MATU Chinese Character List (it was, of course, reported in my #806 (?)) on the 29th.

As a result we find it impossible to decipher your message of the 29th (Yokohama Special Bank request telegram — number of words 18.)

Will you please wire the same in the Foreign Office code.

25862

Trans. 12/7/41 (6)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 1 December 1941
 (Purple—CA)
 #865

Re my #857*.

1. The date set in my message #812 has come and gone, and the situation continues to be increasingly critical. However, to prevent the United States from becoming unduly suspicious we have been advising the press and others that though there are some wide differences between Japan and the United States, the negotiations are continuing. (The above is for only your information).

2. We have decided to withhold submitting the note to the U. S. Ambassador to Tokyo as suggested by you at the end of your message #1124. Please make the necessary representations at your end only.

3. There are reports here that the President's sudden return to the capital is an effect of Premier Tojo's statement. We have an idea that the President did so because of his concern over the critical Far Eastern situation. Please make investigations into this matter.

25605

JD-1: 6983

(D) Navy Trans. 12-1-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 6921 (S. I. S. #25496).
 JD-1: 6710 (S. I. S. #25138).
 Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 1 December 1941
 (Purple)
 Circular #2436

When you are faced with the necessity of destroying codes, get in touch with the Naval Attache's office there and make use of chemicals they have on hand for this purpose. The Attaché should have been advised by the Navy Ministry regarding this.

25545

JD-1: 6939

(D) Navy Trans. 12-1-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

1 December 1941

(Purple)

Circular #2444

The four offices in London, Hongkong, Singapore and Manila have been instructed to abandon the use of the code machines and to dispose of them. The machine in Batavia has been returned to Japan. Regardless of the contents of my Circular message #2447*, the U. S. (office) retains the machines and the machine codes.

Please relay to France, Germany, Italy, and Turkey from Switzerland; and to Brazil, Argentina, and Mexico from Washington.

25606

JD-1: 6984

(D) Navy Trans. 12-1-41 (S-TT)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: London

1 December 1941

(Purple)

Circular #2443

Please discontinue the use of your code machine and dispose of it immediately.

In regard to the disposition of the machine please be very careful to carry out the instructions you have received regarding this. Pay particular attention to taking apart and breaking up the important parts of the machine.

As soon as you have received this telegram wire the one word SETUJU in plain language and as soon as you have carried out the instructions wire the one word HASSO in plain language.

Also at this time you will of course burn the machine codes and the YŪ GŌ No. 26 of my telegram. (The rules for the use of the machine between the head office and the Ambassador resident in England.)

25787

JD-1: 7091

(H) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (L)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.

To: Hsinking.

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#893

----- In the event that Manchuria participates in the war ----- in view of various circumstances it is our policy to cause Manchuria to participate in the war in which event Manchuria will take the same steps toward England and America that this country will take in case war breaks out.

A summary follows:

1. American and British consular officials and offices will not be recognized as having special rights. Their business will be stopped (the sending of code telegrams and the use of short wave radio will be forbidden). However it is desired that the treatment accorded them after the suspension of business be comparable to that which Japan accords to consular officials of enemy countries resident in Japan.

2. The treatment accorded to British and American public property, private property, and to the citizens themselves shall be comparable to that accorded by Japan.

3. British and American requests to third powers to look after their consular offices and interests will not be recognized.

However the legal administrative steps taken by Manchoukuo shall be equitable and shall correspond to the measures taken by Japan..

4. The treatment accorded Russians resident in Manchoukuo shall conform to the provisions of the Japanese-Soviet neutrality pact. Great care shall be exercised not to antagonize Russia.

25783

JD-1: 7092

(H) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (5-AR)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1225 (Part 1 of 3)*

When I and Ambassador Kurusu called on Secretary Hull on the 1st, we conveyed to him the matter contained in your message #857*. Roughly speaking, Hull's reply stayed within the bounds of his earlier explanations. He placed the most emphasis on two points, namely, the tone and trend of the Japanese Government's expressions and movements and that of the general public opinion organs; and, the increase in strength of the garrisons in French Indo-China.

From the beginning of today's conference, Secretary Hull wore a deeply pained expression. Without wasting any time, he brought up the subject of the Premier's statement, (see my message #1222), and said that that was one of the reasons for the President's sudden return to Washington. (Upon our arrival at the State Department, we found not only newspaper men, but even some members of the Departmental staff crowding the corridors. Some of these speculators were of the opinion that the issue of war or peace was to be immediately decided upon. In general, the scene was highly dramatic.)

We, therefore, replied that we were convinced that the Premier's statement had been erroneously and exaggeratedly reported in the vernacular. We pointed out that regardless of who the speaker may be if only an excerpt from his speech is reported, without having the entire text available, it is quite possible that the reader will get exactly the opposite meaning from that intended by the speaker.

We went on to advise the Secretary that we were at present awaiting the delivery of the entire text.

During the course of our explanations, the Secretary showed visible signs of relief.

He said: "Since our talks were begun recently, there has not been a single indication of endorsement and support from Japan. I have not heard of any steps being taken in Japan aimed at facilitating these conversations, all of which is exceedingly regrettable."

25778

(D) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (2)

JD-1: 7042

* For Part 2 see S. I. S. #25715.

*JD-1: 6021 (S. I. S. #25496).

Available, dated 30 November (S. I. S. #25761).

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1225 (Part 2 of 3) (Parts 1 and 3 not available)

(Message having the indicator 20803* is part one of three.)

For this reason CHA has been the target of considerable attack and dissatisfaction. It was admitted that he was in a very tight spot. As the President recently said, it is clearly understood that the people of Japan, after over four years of the Japanese-Chinese incident, are very tense.

Japan, too, is highly desirous of having peace on the Pacific assured by successfully concluding these negotiations. It is our hope that he would give his support and encouragement to the efforts that Hull and we are making in this direction.

With regard to the matters pertaining to French Indo-China . . . the government of the United States, too, cannot help but feel concern since it has been receiving report after report during the past few days, from U. S. officials stationed in that area, of unusual movements of the Japanese army and navy; the landing of various types of arms; and the movements of transport vessels. Concern is felt as to the goal of all these activities (the implication was that they feared that they were going to be used not only against Thailand but in the southwestern Pacific area).

As to what plans the responsible persons in the Japanese army and navy are planning are not difficult to guess if one goes on the assumption that the Japanese army and navy joins forces with the Germans; even if, in actuality, that is not what is taking place, preparations must be made for this possible eventuality, and all nations concerned must concentrate their fighting forces in that area.

25715

JD-1: 7042

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (7)

*Not available, probably is Part 1 of this message.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1225 (Part 3 of 3)

(Purple)

Hull: "In the final analysis, that means that Hitlerism is being given indirect support, and for this reason please exercise the utmost of caution.

"In view of the fact that Japan is acting in the manner described above, there is absolutely no way of bringing about a settlement of the situation.

"Disruptions in Japanese-U. S. relations is exceedingly unfortunate, not only for our two countries, but to the world in general. There shall be nothing constructive about a Japanese-U. S. war. We fully realize that it can be nothing other than destructive. For this reason, we are still highly desirous of bringing these conversations to a successful conclusion.

"However, with the existence of the above described conditions, and because of the nature of this country, the Secretary of State and the President are placed in an exceedingly difficult position."

I: "It seems mutually regrettable that all of our efforts which lead to the 21 June and 25 September proposals, should have been in vain."

In general he expressed his agreement to this.

Hull: "The recent situation in Japan and the U. S. public opinion made it necessary for us to return to the most recent proposal."

We then said that behind the problems at hand, there has always been the China problem.

"As I have pointed out on several occasions", I said, "this has been the bitterest experience since the Washington Conference. Peace between Japan and China could not be attained through any such terms as were contained in your most recent proposal. We hear your argument to the effect that you cannot stand by and do nothing while China dies. The converse of that argument should be even stronger. That is, that it is of the utmost importance for us to avoid standing by and watching our own respective countries die, just because of the China problem."

Hull indicated his agreement with this, but went on to say:

"Because the situation is as I have already described, I hope that Japan will take steps to bring about order through her public organs."

25778

JD-1: 7042

(D) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1226

Re my #1222*

Following up the reporting of Premier Tojo's speech, the press here carried reports of the speech delivered by Vice President Ando of the Imperial Rules Assistance Association, on the 30th. Special attention was paid in these dispatches to those parts of the speech in which the Vice President advocated the reinvigorating of the alliance ties with Germany and Italy, and where he pointed out the United States as being the biggest obstacle to the establishment of the Far Eastern Co-Prosperity Sphere.

This report together with the report of President Roosevelt's sudden decision to return immediately to Washington and the disclosure of Hull's conferences with the British Ambassador on the 29th and the 30th, is attracting considerable attention of the general public

The general tone of these reports is that Roosevelt decided to cut his vacation short and rush back to Washington because Hull advised him by telephone that Premier Tojo had made an unusually strong speech, and relayed to him that a Far Eastern crisis may be at hand. Within governmental circles, although decisive comments were withheld, the general opinion seems to be that Tojo's speech indicates the refusal of the Japanese Government to accept the proposals submitted to it by the United States on the 26th. These circles also seem to feel that the speech indicated Japan's decision to give up hope for the talks and to resort to stronger measures.

The press on the 1st carried a U. P. dispatch from Tokyo reporting that though Japan was not satisfied with the United States' reply, Japan is desirous of having the discussions continue for at least two more weeks. In view of the reports of the Premier's speech, this report has an ominous tone about it.

Some of the newspapers comment that since Japan's invasion of Thai has already been definitely mapped out, the above is merely a means of stalling for time so as to give the Japanese a chance to seize the most opportune moment with respect to developments in Europe. to launch this attack.

25726

JD-1: 7054

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (1)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1227

Indications are that the United States desires to continue the negotiations even if it is necessary to go beyond their stands on the so-called basic principles. However, if we keep quibbling on the critical points, and continue to get stuck in the middle as we have been in the past, it is impossible to expect any further developments. If it is impossible from the broad political viewpoint, to conduct a leaders' meeting at this time, would it not be possible to arrange a conference between persons in whom the leaders have complete confidence, (for example, Vice President Wallace or Hopkins from the United States and the former Premier Konoye, who is on friendly terms with the President, or Adviser to the Imperial Privy Council Ishii). The meeting could be arranged for some midway point, such as Honolulu. High army and navy officers should accompany these representatives. Have them make one final effort to reach some agreement, using as the basis of their discussions the latest proposals submitted by each.

We feel that this last effort may facilitate the final decision as to war or peace.

We realize of course that an attempt to have President Roosevelt and former Premier Konoye meet, failed. Bearing in mind the reaction to that in our nation, it may be to our interest to first ascertain the U. S. attitude on this possibility. Moreover, since we have no guarantee either of success or failure of the objectives even if the meeting is held, careful consideration should first be given this matter.

We feel, however, that to surmount the crisis with which we are face to face, it is not wasting our efforts to pursue every path open to us. It is our opinion that it would be most effective to feel out and ascertain the U. S. attitude regarding this matter, in the name of the Japanese Government. However, if this procedure does not seem practical to you in view of some internal condition, then how would it be if I were to bring up the subject as purely of my own origin and in that manner feel out their attitude. Then, if they seem receptive to it the government could make the official proposal.

Please advise me of your opinions on this matter.

25727

JD-1: 7055

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (1)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

1 December 1941

(Purple)

#1230

Re your #865.*

The immediate reasons for the President's sudden return to Washington are as I reported in my message #1222. Basically speaking, however, the United States has been aroused against us by the reports of Premier Tojo's speech to Parliament, and by the speech of Cabinet official Kaya and Suzuki to the Convention of the Imperial Rules Assistance Association. The dispatches concerning these speeches gave one the impression that anti-foreignism, crushing of Britain and the United States, were the points most emphasized.

Japan's true motives are being further doubted here because of the reports of increased troop movements in French Indo-China.

Thus, in the midst of this atmosphere, fraught with suspicion as it was, the report of Premier Tojo's speech arrived, in which it was alleged that the Premier advocated the purging of all Britons and Americans out of the Far East.

Since the alleged speech was made at a time when the United States was expectantly awaiting our reply to their official note of the 26th to Japan, particular importance was attached to it. (It is possible that the U. S. Government assumes that the speech was made by way of expressing our complete disapproval of the U. S. proposal and that it foreshadowed our launching a military campaign. Some of the newspapers go to the extreme of commenting that if the speech is given a literal interpretation it can mean nothing except a declaration of war.)

The President's speeches concerning foreign affairs are consistently very cautiously worded, for they are usually taken as a description of U. S. national policy. It is almost natural that people who are accustomed to interpret speeches in that manner, reacted the way they did to the Premier's speech.

I assume that you have already taken measures to do so, but may I suggest that when the Prime Minister or any Cabinet officer is to touch upon Foreign Affairs, careful consideration be given to those factors. I make this suggestion only because our country is at a very critical point in her history. Even if the worst eventuality materializes, we should be in a position to show all neutrals and outsiders the complete innocence on our part.

25728

JD-1: 7056

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (1)

*JD-1: 6983 (S. I. S. #25605).

Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Washington

December 2, 1941

Purple

CORRECTED TRANSLATION

#867. (Strictly Secret)

1. Among the telegraphic codes with which your office is equipped burn all but those now used with the machine and one copy each of "O" code (Oite) and abbreviating code (L). (Burn also the various other codes which you have in your custody.)

2. Stop at once using one code machine unit and destroy it completely.

3. When you have finished this, wire me back the one word "haruna."

4. At the time and in the manner you deem most proper dispose of all files of messages coming and going and all other secret documents.

5. Burn all the codes which Telegraphic Official KOSAKA brought you. (Hence, the necessity of getting in contact with Mexico mentioned in my #860^a is no longer recognized.)

Army 25640

Translated 12-3-41 (X) Corrected 12-4-41

^a S. I. S. #25550 in which Tokyo wires Washington advising them to have KOSAKA return to Japan on the Tatsuta Maru which sails on the 28th. If this makes it impossible for KOSAKA to make his trip to Mexico, make some other arrangements with regard to KOSAKA's business in Mexico.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Havana

December 2, 1941

J 19-K 9

Circular #2445 Strictly secret.

Take great pains that this does not leak out.

You are to take the following measures immediately:

1. With the exception of one copy of the O and L code, you are to burn all telegraph codes (this includes the code books for communication between the three departments and the code books for Army and Navy communication).

2. As soon as you have completed this operation, wire the one word Haruna.

3. Burn all secret documents and the work sheets on this message.

4. Be especially careful not to arouse the suspicion of those on the outside. Confidential documents are all to be given the same handling.

The above is preparatory to an emergency situation and is for your information alone. Remain calm — — —.

Also sent to Ottawa, Vancouver, Panama, Los Angeles, Honolulu, Seattle and Portland.

Army 25879

Trans. 12/8/41 (3)

[Secret]

From: Bern (Mitani)
To: Ankara
December 2, 1941
J 19-K 9

(Tokyo Circular #2447)

Orders have been issued to our diplomatic officials in North America (including Manila), Canada, Panama, Cuba, the South Seas (including Timor), Singora, Chienmai, and to all our officials in British (including our Embassy in London) and Netherlands territory to inform me immediately upon the burning of all their telegraphic codes except one copy of Oite and "L".

Relay from Berlin to Lisbon, Helsinki, Budapest and Vienna; Relay from Rome to Bucharest, ———; relay from Berne to Vichy, Ankara, Lisbon, Madrid; relay from Rio to Buenos Aires, Lima, Santiago, ———, Mexico, Panama, Bogota; relay from Bangkok to Hanoi, Saigon; relay from Canton to Haihow, ———.

Army 25837

Trans. 12/6/41 (M)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Singapore
December 2, 1941
Purple

Circular #2450 (5 parts complete.)

Re my Circular #2409^a.

We have drawn up the following table for the particular needs of your localities to supplement for the already given list.

Code Word	Meaning
KIKUTI	Shipments on the road whereby CHIANG receives assistance (the Burma road ?) are now very lively.
KAGEYAMA	Shipments along the road whereby CHIANG receives assistance (the Burma road ?) have now virtually stopped.
(DE ?)GUTI	... (blank) ... (blank) ... has been forced backward at ... (blank) ...
AYAOKA	The Burmese Independence movement is gradually gaining momentum. The officers are endeavoring to quell this with every resource, however, the movement is gradually growing more fierce.
ITAGISI	On the ... the Burma ... (blank) ... was attacked by the Independents wing with pistols (or dynamite).
FUKUNISI	On the ... th in the ... (blank) ... area rioting broke out.

Code Word
MIYAMOTO

Meaning
I will continue the action I described to you until advised by you to do otherwise, then I will end it immediately.

(Part II)

KITAMURA

Recently . . . (blank) . . . American military planes arrived at . . . (blank) . . .

MUTO

. . . (blank) . . . and pilots numbering . . . (blank) . . . arrived at . . . (blank) . . .

NAGAOKA

. . . (blank) . . . divisions of . . . (blank) . . . troops arrived at . . . (blank) . . . and left for . . . (blank) . . . on the . . . th.

INABA

. . . (blank) . . . divisions of . . . (blank) . . . troops are reportedly concentrated on the . . . (blank) . . . border.

YASIROEN

The Independents movement at . . . (blank) . . . and negotiations thwarting England are now progressing smoothly.

TUMURA

At present there is a total of . . . (blank) . . . enemy merchant men docked at . . . (blank) . . .

HINO

Merchant ships now docked at . . . (blank) . . . are as follows: American . . . (blank) . . . ; British . . . (blank) . . . ; Netherlands . . . (blank) . . .

NAGAI

. an merchant ships left for . . . (blank) . . . loaded with arms.

HIGUTI

Our means of communication with Burma and the South Seas is disrupted and we cannot receive.

SEGAWA

Our resident Nationals have been camped.

Part III

YASUI
NARUSE

It is reported that riots are breaking out. Progressing with preparations to bomb oil fields.

KUBOTA
NIBA

Oil fields bombed.

The residents of ————— area re preparing to flee.

MOORI

Orders issued to residents of . . . (blank) . . . area to flee.

SEKYA
TUKAMOTO
OCHIAI
KURIBARA
NISIYAMA
YAMANOUTI NOSE KURODA HIRAI
INOYAMA
ENDOO

Morale wavering.

Netherlanders.

Japanese Nitta Natives.

Japanese.

Premier.

Specialists' Commission.

High tide (?)

Some officers and private citizens -----.

Telegraphy.

The Yamashita Agency.

Code Word	Meaning
ATUKAI	The Nakamura Company.
KOIZUMI	India.
ABE	Java.
EDOGUTI	Sumatra.
HIROSE	Celebes.
HUKUI	Borneo.
INOUE	_____
FUKA	British India.
KASAURA	Ceylon.
IKAWA	_____
 (Part IV)
HUJIMURA	Hainan Island.
IJIMA	The Spratleys.
ARIASA	Singapore.
HURUYA	Pinan.
NIWA	Bangkok.
KAMIYA	Chien mai* _____ Singora.
ISIDA	Saigon.
NINOMIYA	_____
HOSOKAWA	_____
NEZU	Tonkin.
YOKOTA	Cambodia.
NUMATA	_____
WATANZAKA	Manila.
NOZAKI	_____
KERI	Batavia.
SEKINE	Menado.
SERISAWA	Makassar.
SONE	_____
ANDO	Pankaran-Brandan*.
DOBASI	Pankan Susu*.
FUKUSIMA	Mandalay.
HAKAMATSU	Palembang.

PART V

ISTUMOTO	Jambi.
NAKINO	Tarakan.
MAKINO	Pa _____ Pan.
SAKURAI	Sageirinda*.
TAKANO	Sanga Sanga*.
UEDA	Puura*.
YANAGIYA	Banka*.
WATAGI	Biriton*.
EGAWA	Sunda*.
AIDA	Malacca.
BANDO	Sumaran*.
FUNABASI	Timor.
IKEDA	New Guinea.
KATAGIRI	Lashio.
MIZOCUTI	The Perurisu* region.
NUKADA	The Geta* region.

Code Word	Meaning
SAWAKAWA	The Kota Bharu Region.
TAKESITA	East.
UTSUNOMIYA	West.
YAMANE	South.
ARAMAKI	North.
DOOKE	Island.

Army 25943

Trans. 12/9/41 (NR)

* See S. I. S. #25609 in which Tokyo sends out a circular containing hidden-meaning words to be used as an emergency system for dispatches.

*Kana spelling.

[Secret]

From: Rio de Janeiro (Ishii)

To : Santiago

2 December 1941

(J 19)

Circular #328

Tokyo to Rio de Janeiro as Circular #2431, 29th November

Re my Circular #2409.*

Additions to the list already sent; please use with others.

Code Word	Meaning
KASIMA	Have Japanese living there been interned?
KANŌ	Japanese living here are all safe.
KIKUTI	Japanese living here have all been interned.
KATUNO	Some of Japanese living here have been interned.
KAWASIMO	The wave length of General Information broadcast will be changed to . . kilocycles from . . . (day) . . . (month) . . .
KAKAO (Kayao)	Reception of General Information broadcast bad, please change wave length.
TUJIKITA	Please change wave length of General Information broadcast to a shorter wave length than the present wave length.
TABUSE (Tabuti)	Please change wave length of General Information broadcast to a longer wave length.
SAITŌ	The time of General Information broadcast is to be changed starting on . . . (day) . . . from . . . (time) . . . to . . . (time) . . .
HAYASAKI	Please change time of General Information broadcast, starting on . . . (day) . . . to, from . . . (time) . . . to . . . (time) . . .
ISEZAKI	100 (hyaku).
WANAMI	1,000 (sen).
YASUNO	10,000 (man).
UNO	100,000 (jyu man).
ITIOTA	1,000,000 (hyaku man).
(perhaps ITIOKA)
(probably UTIOKA)

26144

JD-1:

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-11-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Rio de Janeiro (Ishii)

To: Santiago

2 December 1941

(J 19)

Circular #329 (In 3 parts, complete)

Tokyo to Rio as Circular #2432, on 29 Nov.

Re my Circular #2409*.

The following are added this date to my Circular #2409*, for special use in your area. Please use them together with the others, (after making them up in a table).

(Translator's note. Underlined values are doubtful due to garbles. Probable correct value added below in parenthesis.)

Code Word	Meaning
ASHINA*	From . . . (blank) . . . (date), Japanese ships stopping here will not be allowed to take on fuel.
DATE*	Please telegraph probable amount of . . . (blank) . . . that can be imported.
KAWAHARA	I estimate we can probably import about . . . (blank) . . . tons of . . . (blank) . . .
NIWAGUCHI (Kawaguchi)	It is impossible to carry out . . . (blank)
NAKAMUTA (Nakamura)	. . . Are in the process of arranging for importation of . . . (blank) . . .
SATUNAKATA (Munakata)	Send communications via . . . (blank)
KAZAMA	. . . (country).
TOKUSIMA	Communications will be through offices stationed in . . . (blank) . . . (country).
TAKENOUTI	Japanese ship should arrive in . . . (blank)
YA GI (YANAGI)	. . . (country) on . . . (blank) . . . (month)
TONEGI	. . . (blank) . . . (day).
	Is it possible for Japanese ships to come to . . . (blank) . . . (country)?
	It is not possible to send Japanese ships to . . . (blank) . . . (country).
	It is possible to send Japanese ship(s) to . . . (blank) . . . (country).

(Part 2)

TAKAGI	Minerals
SAWAMURA	Lead.
SUMI (Kasumi)	Mercury.
IWASAKI	Petroleum.
HIROHATA	Diamonds for industrial use.
ITAMI	Platinum.
KADA	Copper.
NAKAGAWA	Carat.
MAEHATA	Peru.

Code Word	Meaning
MASUKO	Chile.
SENEDA	Colombia.
TAKENAKA	Paraguay or Uruguay (?)
SIMAZU	Paraguay or Uruguay. (?)
IMAZAWA	Venezuela.
FUJIKAKE	San QINY
HASIMOTO	Cuba.
SINDO	Havana.
TIBA	Rio de Janeiro.
TOZAWA	Sao Paulo.

(Part 3)

HASEGAWA	Riberao Preto.
IRIFUNE	Santos.
ENOMOTO	Bauril.
BEPPU	Curityba.
TIKAMATU	Belem.
SUETUGU	Buenos Aires.
OKIZUMI	Santiago.
YAMATO	Lima.
UMEGAWA	Bogota.
HARA	Caracas.
ISONO	Montevideo. (?)
FUKAMATI	Asuncion.

Relay from Rio de Janeiro to TPT, Lima, Sao Paulo. Mexico
City relay to Washington, Panama, Havana, Caracas (?), Bogota.

25830

JD-1

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (7)

*JD-1: 6985 (S. I. S. #25900). List of code names to be used in plain language messages, with indicator S T O P at end.

Code value is QINY, (probably Salvador or Domingo).

Probably "Buenos Aires and Santiago."

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
December 2, 1941
Purple
#1232 (Part 1 of 2)

COMPLETED TRANSLATION

Re my #1231.*

Today, the 2nd, Ambassador KURUSU and I had an interview with Under-Secretary of State WELLES. At that time, prefacing his statement by saying that it was at the direct instruction of the President of the United States, he turned over to us the substance of my separate wire #1233.* Thereupon we said: "Since we haven't been informed even to the slightest degree concerning the troops in French Indo-China, we will transmit the gist of your representations directly to our Home Government. In all probability they never considered that such a thing as this could possibly be an upshot of their proposals of November 20th." The Under-Secretary then said: "I want you to know that the stand the United States takes is that she opposes aggression in any and all parts of the world." Thereupon we replied: "The United States and other countries have pyramided economic pressure upon economic pressure upon us Japanese. (I made the statement that economic warfare was even worse than forceful aggression.) We haven't the time to argue the pros and cons of this question or the rights and wrongs. The people of Japan are faced with economic pressure, and I want you to know that we have but the choice between submission to this pressure or breaking the chains that it invokes. *We want you to realize this as well as the situation in which all Japanese find themselves as the result of the four-year incident in China; the President recently expressed cognizance of the latter situation.

Army 25659-B

Trans. 12/3/41 (7)

* Not available.

*Original translation incomplete from this point on.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

December 2, 1941

Purple

#1232 (Part 2 of 2)

Furthermore, I would have you know that in replying to the recent American proposals, the Imperial Government is giving the most profound consideration to this important question which has to do with our national destiny." Under-Secretary of State WELLES said: "I am well aware of that." I continued: "We cannot over-emphasize the fact that, insofar as Japan is concerned, it is virtually impossible for her to accept the new American proposals as they now stand. Our proposals proffered on the 21st of June and the proposals of September 25th, representing our greatest conciliations based on the previous proposal, still stand. In spite of the fact that the agreement of both sides was in the offing, it has come to naught. At this late juncture to give thoughtful consideration to the new proposals certainly will not make for a smooth and speedy settlement of the negotiations. Recently, we promised to evacuate our troops from French Indo-China in the event of a settlement of the Sino-Japanese incident and the establishment of a just peace in the Far East. In anticipating the settlement of fundamental questions, the question of the representations of this date would naturally dissolve." The Under-Secretary assiduously heard us out and then said: "The American proposals of the 26th were brought about by the necessity to clarify the position of the United States because of the internal situation here." Then he continued: "In regard to the opinions that you have expressed, I will make it a point immediately to confer with the Secretary."

I got the impression from the manner in which he spoke that he hoped Japan in her reply to the American proposals of the 26th would leave this much room.

Judging by my interview with Secretary of State HULL on the 1st and my conversations of today, it is clear that the United States, too, is anxious to peacefully conclude the current difficult situation. I am convinced that they would like to bring about a speedy settlement. Therefore, please bear well in mind this fact in your considerations of our reply to the new American proposals and to my separate wire #1233*.

Army 25660

Trans. 12-3-41 (7)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)

To: Tokyo

December 2, 1941

Purple (Urgent)

#1234

Strictly Secret.

Re your #862*.

I knew that to leave that error in the publication of this speech as it now stands would have a bad effect on negotiations, so on the morning of the 2nd prior to my interview with WELLES I sent TERAZAKI to visit BALLANTINE at the State Department to explain the substance of your #862. BALLANTINE said, "At this tense psychological moment in Japanese-American negotiations, the fact that such a strong statement as this has been circulated has given a severe shock to the American Government and people and it is very unfortunate and dangerous." TERAZAKI replied, "Well, as it was the American newspapers that made such a clamor about it, I did not come to vindicate ourselves or make any explanation. I merely wished to state the facts." He added, "At present the newspapers of both countries ought both to be cool and calm, so will you please advise them hereafter concerning this point."

Army 25730

JD: 7059

Trans. 12-4-41 (2)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

December 2, 1941

Purple

#1239

Re my #123.*

On the 2nd in a press interview the President stated that he had sent us an inquiry that day concerning our increasing troops in French Indo-China. Expressing his own views for the first time, he briefly stated that the trend of Japanese-American negotiations for the past few days and our rumored increasing of troops in southern French Indo-China had both thrown obstacles in the way of the progress of the negotiations (see special intelligence from Washington). This was the first interview since returning from Warm Springs, and particular attention is to be paid to the fact that he referred directly to negotiations.

Army 25690

Trans. 12/4/41 (NR)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Canton
To: Tokyo
December 2, 1941
J-19

#512 Secret outside the department

If hostilities are to begin we here are all prepared. The army has completed all preparations to move immediately upon Thai. Should the British resist to the bitter end, it is understood that the army is prepared to go so far as to militarily occupy the country.

(Japanese)

Army 26103

Trans. 12/11/41

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
3 December 1941
(Purple)

#875 Chief of Office routing

Re your #1232*.

Please explain the matter to the United States along the following lines:

There seem to be rumors to the effect that our military garrisons in French Indo-China are being strengthened. The fact is that recently there has been an unusual amount of activity by the Chinese forces in the vicinity of the Sino-French Indo-China border. In view of this, we have increased our forces in parts of northern French Indo-China. There would naturally be some movement of troops in the southern part as a result of this. We presume that the source of the rumors is in the exaggerated reports of these movements. In doing so, we have in no way violated the limitations contained in the Japanese-French joint defense agreement.

25725

JD-1: 7057

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 7021 (S. I. S. #25659-60).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
3 December, 1941
(Purple)

#876

Re your 1227* (Washington to Tokyo).

As you are well aware, during the tenure of the previous cabinet, a meeting between the leaders of the two countries was suggested by us but the proposal failed to materialize. It is felt that it would be inappropriate for us to propose such a meeting again at this time. Please be advised of this decision.

25699

JD-1: 7018

Navy Trans. 12-3-41

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#877

Re #1225* from Washington to Tokyo.

Your message #1225* of course refers to the U. S. proposal of June and our September proposal but it goes without saying that the one we are holding to now is our 20 November proposal, which now supercedes the September proposal.

25700

JD-1: 7019

Navy Trans. 12-3/41

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
To: Washington.
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#878 (In 2 parts, complete)

Re your #1225*.

Chief of Office routing.

1. Apparently, the United States is making much of the statements issued by our governmental organs, the trend of the public opinion, as well as of our troop movements in the south. They have used these as an excuse to doubt our sincerity in wanting to bring about a successful settlement in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations.

We explained the truth behind the alleged Tojo statement in my message #866. The English translation (this was done in the offices of the Domei News agency) of that statement was very different from the original, and that was responsible for the unexpected reactions.

With regard to guiding general public opinion, this Minister himself has made considerable effort.

The State Department should be in receipt of a report from the U. S. Ambassador in Tokyo regarding this point. As a matter of fact, as your report in your message #1148 Secretary Hull has expressed his satisfaction over the change for the better along these lines.

In spite of this, the tone of some of the U. S. newspapers seem to be unduly ominous. Moreover, the radio (particularly those which are aired via short wave from San Francisco very recently) has been daily broadcasting in considerable detail, the progress being made in the negotiations. It is quite evident that persons who have access to the records of the meetings are acting as liaison agents for those broadcasts, for otherwise it would be impossible to obtain some of the information that is being aired. We feel that it is very inappropriate for the United States to criticize us without looking after her own house.

(Part 2)

2. Recently, Britain, the United States, and others have been making military preparations against Japan at an every increasing tempo. At the same time, they have been acting in a more and more antagonistic manner of late. For example, on the 20th of last month, a

U. S. plane made a reconnaissance flight over Garanpi in the southern part of Formosa. (We filed a protest with the U. S. Ambassador on the 27th regarding this matter). Since then, however, the British and the United States have shown no indication of ending such activities. In view of the very critical times, we cannot help but hope that such incidents would cease.

3. Our proposal which was submitted on 20 November was based on just principles. Will you please point out again that these principles undoubtedly offer the best chance of leading to an eventual settlement. (We assume that when the United States says in their counter proposal that our terms are not in sympathy with the existing principles, they refer to the contents of Article 4 in which it is stated that the peace between Japan and China shall not be disturbed. We are insisting that all aid to Chiang cease as soon as Japanese-Chinese negotiations, at the instigation of the President of the United States, are launched. Hence, our proposal in no way conflicts with the spirit of the so-called fundamental principles being proclaimed by the United States. Please bear that in mind.

25720

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 7042 (S. I. S. #25715).

Available, dated 3 December.

JD-1: 6737 (S. I. S. #25174).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: — (Circular)
3 December 1941
(PA-K2)
Circular #2461

Please keep the code list (INGO HIKAE)* (including those in connection with broadcasts) until the last moment, and if by any chance you have already destroyed them they will have to be resent to you, so please notify us of this fact immediately.

This message is as a precaution.

25855

JD-1: 7123

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S-TT)

*"Hidden Word" code to be used in plain Japanese language messages.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Vancouver
3 December 1941
(PAK-2)
#92

Please retain the "hidden meaning" codes and the codes to be used in conjunction with radio broadcasts until the last moment. If you have already destroyed them, advise and we will retransmit them.

26787

JD-1: 7775

(D) Navy Trans. 12-24-41(CN)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#1243

If we continue to increase our forces in French Indo-China, it is expected that the United States will close up our Consulates, therefore consideration should be given to steps to be taken in connection with the evacuation of the Consuls.

25721

JD-1: 7050

(F) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#1243

Judging from all indications, we feel that some joint military action between Great Britain and the United States, with or without a declaration of war, is a definite certainty in the event of an occupation of Thailand.

25785

JD-1: 7098

(D) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#1245

Terasaki now in the midst of — — — intelligence work at a most important time, would like to have him stay over a while and go by the sailing on the 19th. Takagi busy on Tatsuta Maru business. (Negotiating with State Department for securing space) — — — — — — air plane.

(NOTE.—Many gaps in this message.)

25722

JD-1: 7051

(F) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Washington (Nomura)
To: Tokyo
December 3, 1941
Purple (Urgent)
#1256.

Re your #875 *.

I received your reply immediately. I presume, of course, that this reply was a result of consultations and profound consideration. The United States Government is attaching a great deal of importance on this reply. Especially since the President issued his statement yesterday, it is being rumored among the journalists that this reply is to be the key deciding whether there will be war or peace between Japan and the United States. There is no saying but what the United States Government will take a bold step depending upon how our reply is made. If it is really the intention of our government to arrive at a settlement, the explanation you give, I am afraid, would neither satisfy them nor prevent them taking the bold step referred to—even if your reply is made for the mere purpose of keeping the negotiations going. Therefore, in view of what has been elucidated in our proposal which I submitted to the President on November 10th, I would like to get a reply which gives a clearer impression of our peaceful intentions. Will you, therefore, reconsider this question with this in mind and wire me at once.

Army 25849
JD: 7128

Trans. 12/7/41 (1)

* See S. I. S. #25725—Explanation of Japan's increase of their forces in French Indo-China.

[Secret]

From: Rome
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(Purple—CA)
#985

Re your message #985* to Berlin.

On this day, at 11 o'clock in the morning, I, accompanied by Ando, called on Premier Mussolini, (Foreign Minister Ciano was also present). I described the developments in the Japanese-U. S. negotiations in accordance with the contents of your message #986 to Berlin.

Mussolini: "I have been carefully watching the progress of the Japanese-U. S. talks from the very beginning and therefore am not at all surprised to receive your report. As a matter of fact, in view of the utter bull-headedness of the United States and the meddlesome nature of President Roosevelt, I should say that the outcome was nothing but what should have been expected. One of the aims of the United States is to make the Far East her own, from an economic standpoint. I have felt from the beginning that if it was the intention of the United States to separate Japan from the Axis first and then intervene in Europe, the United States was doomed to fail because of Japan's loyal and sincere nature.

"As Your Excellency and Your Excellency's predecessor know, I wholeheartedly endorse Japan's policy of creating a New Order in East Asia. This has been true in the past, is true now and will be so in the future. I am one who is firmly convinced that Japan has every right to be the leader of the Great East Asia area."

I continued by relating to him the contents of your message referred to in the heading, (with regard to paragraph 3 of that message, I said that I had been advised that some arrangements were being made between our Ambassador in Berlin and Ribbentrop).

With regard to paragraph 2, Mussolini said that should war break out, Italy would give every military aid she had at her disposal, i. e., that she would make every effort to keep the British navy checked in the Mediterranean.

Mussolini: "Recently, the formation of an Italian-German air force bloc was discussed so as to afford closer cooperation between the two to apply further pressure on the British in the Mediterranean. The negotiations on this proposal have progressed to a point where it may be signed any day now."

Regarding paragraph 2 again, should Japan declare war on the United States and Great Britain, I asked, would Italy do likewise immediately? Mussolini replied: "Of course. She is obligated to do so under the terms of the Tripartite Pact. Since Germany would also be obliged to follow suit, we would like to confer with Germany on this point."

With reference to paragraph 3, I submitted the French text of your message #987, as one proposal, and asked him whether he preferred it to be separately or jointly. He replied that as long as it was done simultaneously with Germany it did not make much difference to him, but if it were done jointly he thought it would give the impression of more strength. He said he would confer with Ambassador MAKKENZEN.

Mussolini failed to bring up the subject of Soviet Russia, so the matter was not brought up at all.

In the first part of this message, please correct "N-NKEN WA" to "KINKENSHA WA".

25833

JD-1:

(D) Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (W-TT)

*JD-1: 6043 (S. I. S. #25552-53).

JD-1: 6044 (S. I. S. #25554-55).

Not available.

[Secret]

From: Bangkok
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(Purple)
#892

In order to meet an emergency situation it is most important that we have our currency arrangements for Thailand in readiness. Therefore please have the Finance Minister appoint a suitable person as a member of the Embassy Staff, and send him out as soon as possible.

25724

JD-1: 7053

(F) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Peking

To: Net

3 December 1941

(Purple)

Circular #616 (In 3 parts, complete)

Peking to Tokyo #763 (Most secret outside the Ministry).

Kitazawa, Commander Army of North China.

Arisue, Vice Chief of Staff.

Nishimura, 4th Section, Staff Headquarters.

Kazayama, Chief of Staff.

Shiozawa, Liaison Officer, Chinese Development Board.

At a meeting on December 1st and 2nd, of the above five, the following conclusions and decisions were reached:

"If this war does start, this will be a war which will decide the rise or fall of the Japanese Empire. For this reason it goes without saying, do not have small, or local, insignificant matters, occupy you. Instead quiet such things immediately and settle in a most advantageous way to us. In addition, all administrative control of these districts should be carefully planned anew with the above in view. For example, 'the fact that this war is one which is unavoidable for the existence of Japan and the maintenance of peace in East Asia' should be made very clear to all foreign nations and thus internally strengthen the unity of the people while guiding the world's public opinion in a direction beneficial to Japan. Thus both during the period of war and at the end of the war during the peace negotiations the greatest benefit will accrue to Japan.

"Especially on the minds of the southern native peoples we must make an impression so as to draw them towards us and against the United States and Britain. For this purpose, when this war starts all district and regional authorities must as much as possible adhere to existing international laws, etc. and under no condition should any action which would look like 'stealing while the house burns' to foreign countries be taken which might result in the loss of the main issue for a small immediate local profit.

(Part 2)

"In order to end this affair in a profitable note for Japan, one need but remember that in the Russo-Japan war it was necessary to have President Roosevelt act as peace mediator, to appreciate that for the expected coming war the only one who can be imagined as an intermediary is the Pope. This fact should be kept in mind in any step which is taken in the occupied territory. And for this reason too the enemy's position should be considered, and the handling of enemy churches etc. in China should be carefully studied.

"It is evident that Japan will have to put everything that they have in the coming war, and for this reason it is only natural that our burden in China be made as light as possible, so that our strength must be saved. For this reason matters other than political or economic, that can be handled by China should as much as possible be left to China to manage and thereby get credit for this from the Chinese, too.

"It can be imagined that the next war is to be a longer one than the China incident, so that in this region the main issue should be the obtaining of materials. For this reason the question of closed trade and methods of gathering material should again be thoroughly studied.

(Part 3)

II "The military will of course try to handle matters as much as possible according to the International code. They will increase even more their close cooperation with the Legations, especially regarding protection of churches. In this regard they have already planned a complete education of the soldier groups stationed in the occupied territories."

Arisue mentioned that he was on close terms with the Vatican here
----- (2 lines garbled) -----

(Arisue mentioned that he had always approved of allowing the Chinese to handle their own affairs and as a matter of fact he had been acting with that in mind. However, he was only worried that by handing over the management of things to the Chinese, that they might get the mistaken idea that the Japanese had become weakened. This point should be kept in mind and any action of this kind should be done in such a way as to not let them get such a mistaken idea.)

"It is of course important to obtain materials, but regarding easing the ban on free trade in enemy territory, this subject should be studied from various angles."

III Shiozawa expressed his agreement with most items mentioned, and declared that very close touch has been kept with military forces and different methods of leading North China politically were being studied.

26881

JD-1: 7848

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-26-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 4, 1941
Purple
#881

Re my #867.*

Before you burn the codes brought you by KOSAKA, have him teach all your telegraphic staff how to use them. If you have not yet burned the keying described in my Circular #2400^b, keep it in your custody until the last moment. Moreover, send it by some suitable plane to our ministry in Mexico in care of Junior Secretary MATSUI or Secretary NAGAKI in San Francisco or some other suitable courier. Wire this to Mexico and let me know what reply they make.

Army 25754

Trans. 12-4-41 (S)

* S. I. S. #25640 which gives instructions regarding the destruction of codes.

^b See S. I. S. #26753.

(Secret)

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 4, 1941
 Purple (Urgent)
 #891

To be handled in Government Code.

Re your #1256*.

What you say in your telegram is, of course, true, but at present it would be a very delicate matter to give any more explanations than set forth in my #875^b. I would advise against it because unfortunate results might follow, so please reply in accordance with my aforementioned message.

Army 25731
 JD-7105

Trans. 12-4-41 (S)

* Not available.
^b S. I. S. #25726.

(Secret)

From: Tokyo
 To: Net
 December 4, 1941
 Purple
 Cir #2467

Departmental secret to be handled in Government code. Strictly secret outside the department.

On the 4th, the Government held a conference for control and liaison and decided on the policy which Manchukuo must follow in case of a sudden change in the International relations. It is as follows:

Policy

When Japan enters a war, Manchukuo for the time being shall not enter it because of Manchukuo's relation to Japan and her policy. Manchukuo shall treat Great Britain, the United States and Netherland Indies as enemy countries, and shall take measures to that end.

The Principal Points.

1. Manchukuo shall not recognize either the consuls and or as enjoying privileges and shall forbid them to carry on their duties. (The use of code telegrams and short wave radio sets shall be prohibited). Furthermore in regards to the treatment to be accorded, performance of their duties. Manchukuo shall accord treatment in the spirit of fairness following the methods employed by Japan in dealing with latest

2. Manchukuo follows the same methods as Japan in dealing with public and private properties of and the

3. Manchukuo shall not recognize any request addressed to any third power for the protection of consulate buildings and the interests of the residents. However, Manchukuo shall carry out her legal measures following the methods employed in Japan for dealing with and do so in the spirit of fairness and justice.

4. In the treatment to be accorded the citizens of Soviet Russia residing in Manchukuo in view of the existence of a neutrality treaty between Soviet Russia and Japan, she shall keep in step with Japan and take every precaution so as not to provoke Soviet Russia.

This message sent to Peking, Nanking, and Shanghai.

(Japanese)

Army 25994

Trans. 12/9/41 NR

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Nanking, Shanghai, Peking, Hsinking

December 4, 1941

Purple

Circular #2468 Separate wire, Restricted Distribution.
(Secret outside the Department).

1. Until a state of war develops between Japan and the Netherlands, the Netherlands Government will be considered a quasi-enemy power. Already they have put into force prohibitions regarding the use of codes and are exercising rigid control and surveillance of our officials (consequently it is indicated that they are positively working in conjunction with enemy powers).

2. In the event the Netherlands declares war, we will issue a declaration to the effect that a state of war exists between Japan and the Netherlands. In the event that a state of war exists between our country and the Netherlands before the Netherlands has actually made a declaration of war, we will issue a declaration to the effect that a state of war exists between Japan and the Netherlands. Otherwise, in accordance with International Law, we will treat her as an enemy nation.

A. The advantages accruing the Netherlands Government through repudiation would be that at the same time she carried out her repudiation she would declare the Minister to be persona non grata. Though there are indications that she has gone beyond this, there will be no need to handle the situation any other way but in accordance with (1) above.

B. Should the Netherlands Government repudiate this, there will be no responsibility under International Law for the Netherlands to protect our nationals in the Netherlands East Indies. Then, too, even after a state of war has been brought about in her relations with us, she will be forced to stand in the position of not accepting a protest under International Law. Then again, she could bring about great inconvenience by demanding the evacuation of our Consular officials.

C. To date the Netherlands Government has actually maintained her position under International Law, but should she repudiate this, there would be no advantage in any other plan but A, mentioned above. Then, too, in the event that the Netherlands Government begins hostilities, this would indicate her intention to repudiate our relationships and there would be no necessity to handle her in any other way but as a qiesa enemy nation.

(Translation sketchy due to garbles.)

Army 26101

(Japanese)

Trans. 12/11/41

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Hsinking
 December 4, 1941
 Purple
 #909 (Strictly Secret)

Re my #892*.

On the fourth, in a joint conference with the Government Control Board, we decided upon steps which we will have Manchukuo take in case the international situation turns critical. Differing from what I said in my #873* our policy was changed as follows:

"When the Japanese Empire commences hostilities, for the time being Manchukuo will not participate. Because Manchukuo is closely bound up with the Japanese Empire and because England and the United States and the Netherlands have not recognized the Government of Manchukuo, as a matter of fact, Hsinking will regard those three nations as de facto enemies and treat them accordingly."

Wherever "England and the United States" and "English and Americans" occur in the text, we changed them to "England, the United States, and the Netherlands" and "English, Americans and Netherlands."

(Japanese)

Army 26142

Trans. 12/11/41 (5)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Berlin
 To: Tokyo
 December 4, 1941
 Purple (CA)
 #1410

In case of evacuation by the members of our Embassy in London, I would like to arrange to have Secretary MATSUI of that office and three others (URABE and KOJIMA and one other) from among the higher officials and two other officials (UEHARA and YUWASAKI) stay here. Please do your best to this end.

Army 25807
 JD-7134

Trans. 12-5-41 (W)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 5 December 1941
 (Purple)
 #896

Re your #1245*

Will you please have Terasaki, Takagi, Ando, Yamamoto and others leave by plane within the next couple of days.

25839
 JD-1: 7140

(D) Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 7051 (S. I. S. #25722).

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

5 December 1941

(Purple)

#1261 (In 2 parts, complete)

On the 5th, I, together with Ambassador Kurusu, called on Secretary Hull, and, putting the matter contained in your instructions in writing, submitted it to him.

Hull: "You explain the matter as if the Chinese have concentrated troops near the border and that there is a fear that they would take aggressive action."

We: "Whether or not they would attack and where from if they do attack, depends entirely on such things as the military strengths of each and on other considerations. We who do not have a clear picture of the exact conditions on the scene, cannot make any explanations other than those contained in the instructions we receive."

"However, the fact remains that there is a possibility that the Chinese would take the offensive. We have been in receipt of advices for some time past that the Chinese have been concentrating large forces in the Kwangsi area."

Hull said that he would relay the explanations to the President.

While we were there, we continued along the following line:

"Fundamentally speaking, it was because we wanted to avoid just exactly what happened as a result—namely, the misinterpretations and the consequent belligerent argumentations—of the President's most recent inquiries, that we wished to bring about a speedy settlement through our 20 November proposal."

"You keep bringing up the subject of our occupation of French Indo-China. Basically this is merely a phase of 'power politics'. Your country herself, has stated that the 'best defense is an offense'. Your military men in particular have taken this adage literally, and as proof thereof, have been making every effort to strengthen the army and the fleet of the ABCD. With this situation being flaunted before their eyes, our army and navy cannot remain unconcerned."

So saying, we repeated the gist of the contents of your message #878.

(Part 2)

Hull: "Since these conversations were started this spring until 24 July when Japan occupied the southern part of French Indo-China, the United States continued to permit the exporting of oil to Japan. During that time, I was the target of terrific criticism for allowing this, from Senators and from many other sources. Even in those times, the opposition to allowing this was of blistering intensity. Public opinion would absolutely prohibit the resumption of exporting of petroleum to Japan today."

We: "If the relationship between Japan and the United States underwent some improvement and if peaceful cooperation between our two countries is established, in accordance with that which is Your Excellency's custom to advocate, the concern you express now would automatically be dissolved."

"We are convinced that the correct starting point leading to the above described ideal situation, is to settle our major differences individually, rather than attempt to reach a blanket agreement, along the lines proposed by us on 20 November."

Hull then pointed out that the general tone of our press and other publications were making it difficult for the United States and Japan to reach an agreement. We therefore said that the same can be said of a portion of the U. S. press and went on to relate to him the contents of paragraph 1 of your message #878.

(Translator's note: Last 5 lines of text unreadable).

25842

JD-1: 7139

(D) Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S-TT)

JD-1: 7049 (S. I. S. #26720).

*JD-1: 7105.

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

5 December 1941

(Purple)

#1268

Re your #867*.

From Councillor of Embassy Iguchi to the Chief of the Communication Section:

We have completed destruction of codes, but since the U. S.-Japanese negotiations are still continuing I request your approval of our desire to delay for a while yet the destruction of the one code machine.

25836

JD-1: 7136

(M) Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S-TT)

*(Dated 2 December) JD-1: 7017 (S. I. S. #26640): Directs Washington to destroy all copies of codes except one copy of certain ones, and also destroy one code machine.

[Secret]

From: Peking

To: Tokyo

5 December 1941

(Purple)

Cir #625—(Circular Number) To be handled in government code.

Re my secret military communication #262* of November 30th.

1. Concurrent with opening war on Britain and America we have considered Holland as a semi-belligerent and have exercised strict surveillance over her consulates and prohibited all communication between them and the enemy countries.

2. Coincident with the beginning of the war against Britain and America we have taken steps to prohibit the use of code messages and the use of wireless by the Holland consulates.

3. In case war breaks out with Holland we will take the same steps toward that country that we have taken in the case of Britain and America.

26108

JD-1: 7335

(H) Navy Trans. 12-11-41 (AR)

*Not available.

[Secret]

From: Peking.
 To: Shanghai.
 5 December 1941
 (Purple)
 #626 (Circular)

Peking to Tokyo #770 (To be handled in government code)

Re your Circular #2467*

(Strictly confidential)

1. It is recognized that the treatment accorded to the property and staff of the consulates of Britain, America, and Holland in North China should be, as a matter of policy, comparable to that accorded them in occupied territory. We have gone ahead with our preparations on this basis. This is for your information.

2. Is there any objection to our adopting the policy of recognizing a suitable person of a third power (say for instance Belgium, Spain, or Brazil) as custodian of the interests of Britain, America, and Holland in North China.

Relayed to NANJŌ (GAISIN), Shanghai.

26107

JD-1: 7334

(H) Navy Trans. 12-11-41 (5-AR)

*JD-1: 7246. Re policy of Manchukuo in event Japan enters war. S. I. S. No. 26994.

[Secret]

From: Panama (Akiyama)
 To: Tokyo
 5 December 1941
 (PA-K2)
 #367

Re your #134.*

Reporting destroying by burning the code books in accordance with instructions.

26068

JD-1: 7313

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (7)

*Available, badly garbled, not yet identified.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 6, 1941
 Purple (Urgent)
 #897

Re your #1268.*

To Counselor IGUCHI from KAMEYAMA.

What I meant in paragraph 2 of my #867^b was that of the two sets of "B" code machines with which your office is equipped, you are to burn one set and for the time being to continue the use of the other.

Army 25835

Trans. 12/6/41 (S)

* Not available.

^b S. I. S. #26640 regarding the destruction of codes and one code machine in the Washington office

[Secret]

From: Tokyo (Togo)
 To: Washington
 December 6, 1941
 PA-K2
 #899 (Strictly Secret.)

1. The recent occupation of Netherlands Guiana by American troops, or call it what you will—occupation it is, is the first example in the present war of the United States' invading South America. In the light of the Havana agreement, French territory may next be expected to be taken over. As for the Good Neighbor Policy, so far it has been used merely for getting military bases and aeronautical rights together with certain economic and financial interest. But now that the situation is tenser, the hitherto good neighbor, the United States, will no longer hesitate to use arms. This at length has come to the surface, and we must be on the strictest alert.

2. Based on an agreement with France, we penetrated Southern French-Indo China for joint defense. Scarcely were our tracks dry, when along comes good old nonchalant America and grabs Netherlands Guiana. If she needs any of the American countries for her own interest, hiding under the camouflage of joint defense, she will take them, as she has just proven. This is a menace to the Latin American nations; so will you please at every opportunity, impress upon the Government and people of the country to which you are accredited that the United States bodes them naught save ill. Moreover, please investigate the following points and wire me back.

(1) Has there been any other agreement or understanding established between the Netherlands Government and the Latin American Nations and the United States besides the one concerning Netherlands Guiana? If so, what is it like with reference say to bases, troop movements, annexation, etc.?

(2) The attitude of the country to which you are accredited toward this act of aggression, and the trend of public opinion.

Please send to all Ambassadors and Ministers in Central and South America (including San Paula).

Sent to Washington. Washington will send to Ottawa.

25868

Trans. 12/7/41 (7)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 6, 1941
 Purple
 #901

Re my #844^a.

1. The Government has deliberated deeply on the American proposal of the 26th of November and as a result we have drawn up a memorandum for the United States contained in my separate message #902^b (in English).

2. This separate message is a very long one. I will send it in fourteen parts and I imagine you will receive it tomorrow. However, I am not sure. The situation is extremely delicate, and when you receive it I want you to please keep it secret for the time being.

3. Concerning the time of presenting this memorandum to the United States, I will wire you in a separate message. However, I want you in the meantime to put it in nicely drafted form and make every preparation to present it to the Americans just as soon as you receive instructions.

Army 25838

JD: 7149

Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

^a See S. I. S. #25445 in which Tokyo wires Washington the Imperial Government cannot accept the United States proposal and, therefore, with a report of the views of the Imperial Government which will be sent in two or three days, the negotiations will be de facto ruptured. Until then, however, Washington is not to give the impression that negotiations are broken off.

^b Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 1 of 14) Separate telegram

MEMORANDUM

1. The Government of Japan, prompted by a genuine desire to come to an amicable understanding with the Government of the United States in order that the two countries by their joint efforts may secure the peace of the Pacific area and thereby contribute toward the realization of world peace, has continued negotiations with the utmost sincerity since April last with the Government of the United States regarding the adjustment and advancement of Japanese-American relations and the stabilization of the Pacific area.

The Japanese Government has the honor to state frankly its views, concerning the claims the American Government has persistently maintained as well as the measures the United States and Great Britain have taken toward Japan during these eight months.

2. It is the immutable policy of the Japanese Government to insure the stability of East Asia and to promote world peace, and thereby to enable all nations to find each its proper place in the world.

Ever since the China Affair broke out owing to the failure on the part of China to comprehend Japan's true intentions, the Japanese Government has striven for the restoration of peace and it has consistently exerted its best efforts to prevent the extension of war-like disturbances. It was also to that end that in September last year Japan concluded the Tri Partite Pact with Germany and Italy.

JD-1: 7143

25843

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 2 of 14)

However, both the United States and Great Britain have resorted to every possible measure to assist the Chungking regime so as to obstruct the establishment of a general peace between Japan and China, interfering with Japan's constructive endeavours toward the stabilization of East Asia, exerting pressure on The Netherlands East Indies, or menacing French Indo-China, they have attempted to frustrate Japan's aspiration to realize the ideal of common prosperity in cooperation with these regions. Furthermore, when Japan in accordance with its protocol with France took measures of joint defense of French Indo-China, both American and British governments, willfully misinterpreted it as a threat to their own possession and inducing the Netherlands government to follow suit, they enforced the assets freezing order, thus severing economic relations with Japan. While manifesting thus an obviously hostile attitude, these countries have strengthened their military preparations perfecting an encirclement of Japan, and have brought about a situation which endangers the very existence of the empire.

JD-1:7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41(S)

25843

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 6, 1941
Purple
#902 (Part 3 of 14).

Nevertheless, facilitate a speedy settlement, the Premier of Japan proposed, in August last, to meet the President of the United States for a discussion of important problems between the two countries covering the entire Pacific area. However, while accepting in principle the Japanese proposal, insisted that the meeting should take place after an agreement of view had been reached on fundamental —(75 letters garbled)—The Japanese government submitted a proposal based on the formula proposed by the American government, taking fully into consideration past American claims and also incorporating Japanese views. Repeated discussions proved of no avail in producing readily an agreement of view. The present cabinet, therefore, submitted a revised proposal, moderating still further the Japanese claims regarding the principal points of difficulty in the negotiation and endeavoured strenuously to reach a settlement. But the American government, adhering steadfastly to its original proposal, failed to display in the slightest degree a spirit of conciliation. The negotiation made no progress.

JD-1:7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41(S)

25843

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 6, 1941
Purple
#902 (Part 4 of 14)

Thereupon, the Japanese Government, with a view to doing its utmost for averting a crisis in Japanese-American relations, submitted on November 20th still another proposal in order to arrive at an equitable solution of the more essential and urgent questions which, simplifying its previous proposal, stipulated the following points:

(1) The Governments of Japan and the United States undertake not to dispatch armed forces into any of the regions, excepting French Indo-China, in the Southeastern Asia and the Southern Pacific area.

(2) Both Governments shall cooperate with a view to securing the acquisition in the Netherlands East Indies of those goods and commodities of which the two countries are in need.

(3) Both Governments mutually undertake to restore commercial relations to those prevailing prior to the freezing of assets.

The Government of the United States shall supply Japan the required quantity of oil.

(4) The Government of the United States undertakes not to resort to measures and actions prejudicial to the endeavours for the restoration of general peace between Japan and China.

(5) The Japanese Government undertakes to withdraw troops now stationed in French Indo-China upon either the restoration of peace between Japan and China or the establishment of an equitable peace in the Pacific area; and it is prepared to remove the Japanese troops in the southern part of French Indo-China to the northern part upon the conclusion of the present agreement.

JD-17143
25843

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 6, 1941
Purple

#902 (Part 5 of 14)

As regards China, the Japanese Government, while expressing its readiness to accept the offer of the President of the United States to act as "Introducer" of peace between Japan and China as was previously suggested, asked for an undertaking on the part of the United States to do nothing prejudicial to the restoration of Sino-Japanese peace when the two parties have commenced direct negotiations.

The American government not only rejected the above-mentioned new proposal, but made known its intention to continue its aid to Chiang Kai-Shek; and in spite of its suggestion mentioned above, withdrew the offer of the President to act as the so-called "Introducer" of peace between Japan and China, pleading that time was not yet ripe for it. Finally, on November 26th, in an attitude to impose upon the Japanese government those principles it has persistently maintained, the American government made a proposal totally ignoring Japanese claims, which is a source of profound regret to the Japanese Government.

JD-1:7143
25843

Navy Trans. 12-6-41(S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 6, 1941
Purple

#902 (Part 6 of 14)

4. From the beginning of the present negotiation the Japanese Government has always maintained an attitude of fairness and moderation, and did its best to reach a settlement, for which it made all possible concessions often in spite of great difficulties.

As for the China question which constituted an important subject of the negotiation, the Japanese Government showed a most conciliatory attitude.

As for the principle of Non-Discrimination in International Commerce, advocated by the American Government, the Japanese Government expressed its desire to see the said principle applied throughout the world, and declared that along with the actual practice of this principle in the world, the Japanese Government would endeavor to apply the same in the Pacific area, including China, and made it clear that Japan had no intention of excluding from China economic activities of third powers pursued on an equitable basis.

Furthermore, as regards the question of withdrawing troops from French Indo-China, the Japanese government even volunteered, as mentioned above, to carry out an immediate evacuation of troops from Southern French Indo-China as a measure of easing the situation.

JD:1-7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41(S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 4, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 7 of 14)

It is presumed that the spirit of conciliation exhibited to the utmost degree by the Japanese Government in all these matters is fully appreciated by the American government.

On the other hand, the American government, always holding fast to theories in disregard of realities, and refusing to yield an inch on its impractical principles, caused undue delays in the negotiation. It is difficult to understand this attitude of the American government and the Japanese government desires to call the attention of the American government especially to the following points:

1. The American government advocates in the name of world peace those principles favorable to it and urges upon the Japanese government the acceptance thereof. The peace of the world may be brought about only by discovering a mutually acceptable formula through recognition of the reality of the situation and mutual appreciation of one another's position. An attitude such as ignores realities and imposes one's selfish views upon others will scarcely serve the purpose of facilitating the consummation of negotiations.

25843

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 8 of 14)

Of the various principles put forward by the American government as a basis of the Japanese-American agreement, there are some which the Japanese government is ready to accept in principle, but in view of the world's actual conditions, it seems only a Utopian ideal, on the part of the American government, to attempt to force their immediate adoption.

Again, the proposal to conclude a multilateral non-aggression pact between Japan, the United States, Great Britain, China, the Soviet Union, The Netherlands, and Thailand, which is patterned after the old concept of collective security, is far removed from the realities of East Asia.

The American proposal contains a stipulation which states: "Both governments will agree that no agreement, which either has concluded with any third powers, shall be interpreted by it in such a way as to conflict with the fundamental purpose of this agreement, the establishment and preservation of peace throughout the Pacific area." It is presumed that the above provision has been proposed with a view to restrain Japan from fulfilling its obligations under the Tripartite Pact when the United States participates in the war in Europe, and, as such, it cannot be accepted by the Japanese Government.

JD-1:7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 9 of 14)

The American Government, obsessed with its own views and opinions, may be said to be scheming for the extension of the war. While it seeks, on the one hand, to secure its rear by stabilizing the Pacific area, it is engaged, on the other hand, in aiding Great Britain and preparing to attack, in the name of self-defense, Germany and Italy two powers that are striving to establish a new order in Europe. Such a policy is totally at variance with the many principles upon which the American Government proposes to found the stability of the Pacific area through peaceful means.

3. Where as the American Government, under the principles it rigidly upholds, objects to settling international issues through military pressure, it is exercising in conjunction with Great Britain and other nations pressure by economic power. Recourse to such pressure as a means of dealing with international relations should be condemned as it is at times more inhuman than military pressure.

JD-7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 10 of 14)

4. It is impossible not to reach the conclusion that the American Government desires to maintain and strengthen, in collusion with Great Britain and other powers, its dominant position it has hitherto occupied not only in China but in other areas of East Asia. It is a fact of history that one country—(45 letters garbled or missing)—been compelled to observe the status quo under the Anglo-American policy of imperialistic exploitation and to sacrifice the —es to the prosperity of the two nations. The Japanese Government cannot tolerate the perpetuation of such a situation since it directly runs counter to Japan's fundamental policy to enable all nations to enjoy each its proper place in the world.

JD1-7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 11 of 14)

The stipulation proposed by the American Government relative to French Indo-China is a good exemplification of the above-mentioned American policy. That the six countries,—Japan, the United States, Great Britain, The Netherlands, China and Thailand,—excepting France, should undertake among themselves to respect the territorial integrity and sovereignty of French Indo-China and equality of treatment in trade and commerce would be tantamount to placing that territory under the joint guarantee of the governments of those six countries. Apart from the fact that such a proposal totally ignores the position of France, it is unacceptable to the Japanese government in that such an arrangement cannot but be considered as an extension to French Indo-China of a system similar to the n—(50 letters missed)—sible for the present predicament of East Asia.

JD1-7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902 (Part 12 of 14)

5. All the items demanded of Japan by the American government regarding China such as wholesale evacuation of troops or unconditional application of the principle of Non-Discrimination in International Commerce ignore the actual conditions of China, and are calculated to destroy Japan's position as the stabilizing factor of East Asia. The attitude of the American government in demanding Japan not to support militarily, politically or economically any regime other than the regime at Chungking, disregarding thereby the existence of the Nanking government, shatters the very basis of the present negotiation. This demand of the American government falling, as it does, in line with its above-mentioned refusal to cease from aiding the Chungking regime, demonstrates clearly the intention of the American government to obstruct the restoration of normal relations between Japan and China and the return of peace to East Asia.

JD-1: 7143

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

25843

From: Tokyo

To: Washington

December 6, 1941

Purple

#902. (Part 13 of 14)

5. In brief, the American proposal contains certain acceptable items such as those concerning commerce, including the conclusion of a trade agreement, mutual removal of the freezing restrictions, and stabilization of the Yen and Dollar exchange, or the abolition of extra-territorial rights in China. On the other hand, however, the proposal in question ignores Japan's sacrifices in the four years of the China Affair, menaces the empire's existence itself and disparages its honour and prestige. Therefore, viewed in its entirety, the Japanese government regrets that it cannot accept the proposal as a basis of negotiation.

6. The Japanese government, in its desire for an early conclusion of the negotiation, proposed that simultaneously with the conclusion of the Japanese-American negotiation, agreements be signed with Great Britain and other interested countries. The proposal was accepted by the American government. However, since the American government has made the proposal of November 26th as a result of frequent consultations with Great Britain, Australia, The Netherlands and Chungking, *ANDND presumably by catering to the wishes of the Chungking regime on the questions of *CHTUAL YLOKMMTT be concluded that all these countries are at one with the United States in ignoring Japan's position.

JD-1: 7143
25843

Navy Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

*Probably "and as."

Probably "China, can but."

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
7 December 1941
(Purple—Eng)
#902 Part 14 of 14

(NOTE.—In the forwarding instructions to the radio station handling this part, appeared the plain English phrase "VERY IMPORTANT")

7. Obviously it is the intention of the American Government to conspire with Great Britain and other countries to obstruct Japan's efforts toward the establishment of peace through the creation of a New Order in East Asia, and especially to preserve Anglo-American rights and interests by keeping Japan and China at war. This intention has been revealed clearly during the course of the present negotiations. Thus, the earnest hope of the Japanese Government to adjust Japanese-American relations and to preserve and promote the peace of the Pacific through cooperation with the American Government has finally been lost.

The Japanese Government regrets to have to notify hereby the American Government that in view of the attitude of the American Government it cannot but consider that it is impossible to reach an agreement through further negotiations.

25843

JD-1: 7143

(M) Navy trans. 7 Dec. 1941 (S-TT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Washington
December 6, 1941
Purple
#904

Re my #902.

There is really no need to tell you this, but in the preparation of the aide memoire be absolutely sure not to use a typist or any other person.

Be most extremely cautious in preserving secrecy.

Army 25844

JD: 7144

Trans. 12-6-41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Berlin
December 6, 1941
Purple (CA) (Urgent)
#1003

Re 2 of your #1418 *.

1. From the standpoint given in 4 of my #985^b, we would like to avoid bringing about any situation likely to result in an armed clash with Soviet Russia until strategic circumstances permit it; and so get the German Government to understand this position of ours and negotiate with them so that at least for the present they would not insist upon exchanging diplomatic notes on this question.

In doing this, explain to them at considerable length that insofar as American materials being shipped to Soviet Russia through any point lying within the scope of our intelligence are concerned, they are neither of high quality nor of large quantity, and that in case we start our war with the United States we will capture all American ships destined for Soviet Russia. Please endeavor to come to an understanding on this line.

2. However, should Foreign Minister RIBBENTROP insist upon our giving a guarantee in this matter, since in that case we shall have no other recourse, make a ----- statement to the effect that we would, as a matter of principle, prevent war materials from being shipped from the United States to Soviet Russia via the Japanese waters and get them to agree to a procedure permitting the addition of a statement to the effect that so long as strategic reasons continue to make it necessary for us to keep Soviet Russia from fighting Japan (what I mean is that we cannot capture Soviet ships), we cannot carry this out thoroughly.

3. In case the German Government refuses to agree with 1 or 2 and makes their approval of this question absolutely conditional upon our participation in the war and upon our concluding a treaty against making a separate peace, we have no way but to postpone the conclusion of such a treaty. This point is intended for you to bear in mind.

4. Concerning our participation in the war and the question of our promising not to conclude a separate peace, I shall wire you later.

Army 25925

Trans. 12/8/41 (NR)

* Not available.
 b Parts 1 and 3, S. I. S. Nos. 25552, 3; Part 2 not available. Tokyo informs Berlin that there is extreme danger of war suddenly breaking out between the Anglo-Saxon nations and Japan and that if Russia joins hands with England and the United States against her, Japan will turn upon her with all her might.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo

To: Canton

December 6, 1941

Purple

#225 (Strictly secret)

Re your #516 *.

You are to note the following points:

1. In your communication to the British and American Consuls, the statement, "We will take over the concessions and other interests", is not necessarily accurate so you had better change it to "We will place the settlements and other interests under the control of the Imperial Army."

2. The evacuation of the Consular staffs and resident Nationals of hostile nations will have to parallel and coincide with measures concerning the departure of our Consular staffs and our resident Nationals, so when you receive orders from Headquarters you may proceed to handle this matter.

3. Public property of hostile nations, Consulates, and buildings will be seized or commandeered and after being sealed they will be in our custody.

4. Private property, even though it might serve us in some military way, cannot be seized. It might merely be taken over and kept under surveillance.

(Japanese)

Army 25997

Trans. 12/9/41 (5)

* Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: Bangkok
December 6, 1941
Purple (Urgent)
(CA)
#852.

The (—)* day (X Day) decided by the ———^b liaison conference on the 6th (?)^c is the 8th and the day on which the notice is to be given is the 7th (?) (Sunday). As soon as you have received this message, please reply to that effect.

Army 25881

Trans. 12/8/41 NR)

Translator's assumptions:

* "Proclamation" or "declaration."

^b "Ambassadorial" or "China."

^c This word is garbled and could be either the word "6th" or the word "November."

[Secret]

From: Washington
To: Tokyo
December 6, 1941
Purple (Urgent)
#1272

In addition to carrying on frontal negotiations with the President and HULL, we also worked directly and indirectly through Cabinet members having close relations with the President and through individuals equally influential (because of its delicate bearing upon the State Department, please keep this point strictly secret). Up until this moment we have the following to report:

(1) On the 4th those engaged in Plan "A" dined with the President and advised him against a Japanese-American war and urged him to do the "introducing" at once between Japan and China. However, the President did not make known what he had in mind. According to these men, this attitude of the President is his usual attitude. Recently, when the President discussed matters with LEWIS and settled the strike question, I understand that he did so on the advise of these individuals.

(2) Those carrying on Plan "B" included all of our proposal of November 20th into that of September 25th and after incorporating those sections in the United States' proposal of November 26th which are either innocuous or advantageous to us ----- (MESSAGE INCOMPLETE) -----

Army 25846
JD: 7176

Trans. 12/7/41 (2T)

[Secret]

From: Bangkok
 To: Tokyo
 December 6, 1941
 Purple
 #919 (Departmental Secret)

Re your #821^a and #23^a addressed to Your Excellency from Singora.
 All telegraphic codes referred to have been destroyed on December 5th
 Army 25885

Trans. 12-8-41 (NR)

^a Not available.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 7, 1941
 Purple (Urgent—Very Important)
 #907 To be handled in government code

Re my #902.^a

Will the Ambassador please submit to the United States Government (if possible to the Secretary of State) our reply to the United States at 1:00 p. m. on the 7th, your time.

Army 25850

Trans. 12/7/41 (S)

^a S. I. S. #25843—text of Japanese reply.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 7, 1941
 Purple (Urgent)
 #908 (To be handled in government code)

All concerned regret very much that due to failure in adjusting Japanese-American relations, matters have come to what they are now, despite all the efforts you two Ambassadors have been making. I wish to take this opportunity to offer my deepest thanks to you both for your endeavors and hard work as well as for what all the members of the Embassy have done.

Army 25853

Trans. 12/7/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 7, 1941
 Purple (Urgent)
 #909

From Bureau Chief YAMAMOTO to Commercial Attache IGUCHI and his staff as well as to Secretary YŪKI.

I, together with the members of the Bureau, deeply appreciate and heartily thank you for your great effort which you have been making for many months in behalf of our country despite all difficulties in coping with the unprecedented crisis. We pray that you will continue to be in good health.

Army 25858

Trans. 12/7/41 (S)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Washington
 December 7, 1941
 Purple (Extremely Urgent)
 #910

After deciphering part 14 of my #902 ^a and also #907 ^b, #908 ^c and #909 ^d, please destroy at once the remaining cipher machine and all machine codes. Dispose in like manner also secret documents.

Army 25854

Trans. 12/7/41 (S)

^a S. I. S. #25843—text of reply.

^b S. I. S. #25850.

^c S. I. S. #25853.

^d S. I. S. #25858.

[Secret]

From: Tokyo.
 To: (Circular)
 7 December 1941
 (Purple)

#2492 Confidential within diplomatic circles.

The Departments concerned have been giving study to the question of handling enemy subjects, and enemy property in Japan, as well as the handling of neutrals, and on the 6th the results were reported to the Imperial Headquarters; the main points of which I am giving in my separate circular #2493*. Both this message the separate message are addressed to Manchoukuo, Taiwan, NANSŌ, (for foreign propaganda), Peking, Shanghai, Tientsin, Tsingtao, Hankow, Canton.

Peking will contact Kalgan, and Dairen (?). Tsingtao will contact Tsinan; Canton will contact Amoy.

25966

JD-1: 7229

(F) Navy Trans. 12-9-41 (C-NR)

*JD-1: 7231 (S. I. S. #25967).

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
 To: Net
 7 December 1941
 (Purple)

Circular #2493 (In 2 parts, complete) Secret Separate message Policies:

In regard to our handling of enemy subjects and enemy property in Japan, we will approach this matter in the magnanimity of a great nation, complying with international law as far as possible, and exercising care not to give the enemy nations or other third party nations any occasion for taking retaliatory measures, or for making unfavorable propaganda.

Main points:

(1) Diplomatic officials of enemy countries:

(a) Evacuation. The evacuation of enemy diplomatic officials will be carried out on the basis of exchanges for our diplomatic and consular officials resident in enemy countries.

(b) Handling of the above until their evacuation. The inviolable rights pertaining to diplomatic officials of enemy countries, whose duties come to an end simultaneously with the beginning of war, will be respected as a general rule. However, telephones will be cut off, and the use of both code and plain language telegrams will be prohibited. Short wave radios and wireless transmitters will be seized. Members of the staffs of embassies and legations, for the present, as a general rule will be allowed to live in the embassy or legation compounds, and no inconvenience will be caused in the matter of daily living.

(2) Consular officials:

(a) Evacuation. As far as possible consular officials will be handled under the same heading with diplomatic officials.

(b) The handling of the same until the time of their evacuations: The offices will be closed and sealed. Short wave radio and wireless equipment will be seized. Members of consulate staffs for the time being will be allowed to live at their present places of abode and as far as conditions warrant may use their official residences, with no restrictions upon their daily living.

(3) Enemy subjects residing in Japan:

In addition to such police surveillance and protection as is necessary, individuals regarding whom there is ample ground for suspicion will be rounded up; and all military men, seamen, or aviation personnel as well as those qualified for these services, persons of special technical skill, persons suspected of being foreign spies, and all males between 18 and 45 will for the present be placed under arrest. However in view of the fact that we have a very large number of subjects residing in enemy territory, we will exercise caution so that there may be nothing of the nature of ill-treatment occasioned for them.

(4) Publicly owned enemy property:

Such public property, aside from embassy, legation and consular buildings, which can be used either directly or indirectly for military purposes will, if necessary, be confiscated.

(5) Privately owned enemy property: Privately owned property will not be seized or confiscated except in the event of general requisitioning.

(6) While no special restrictions will be placed upon the diplomatic and consular officials of neutral countries resident in Japan, those of quasi enemy countries (such as Panama, Iran, Norway, Belgium, Egypt, Greece, etc.) will be denied the use of codes.

The evacuation of the enemy diplomatic and consular officials who are in Manchoukuo and China will be handled in the same manner as the above.

25967

JD-1:

(F) Navy Trans. 12-9-41 (C-NR)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: (Circular telegram)
7 December 1941
(Plain Japanese language using code names)
Circular #2494

Relations between Japan and England are not in accordance with expectation.

25856

JD-1: 7148

(M) Navy Trans. 7 December 1941 (STT)

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: (Circular)
7 December 1941
(Purple)
Circular #2499 (Part 1 of 3) (Part 2 not available)

In the event of international crisis following upon our pursuance of our national policy regarding the China affair, which was decided on at the liaison-conference held on November 13th, the following steps will be taken in China:

(1) British concessions—upon issuance of orders, the present force will occupy and take over these areas. However, every effort will be made to accomplish this end through the instrumentality of existing set-ups.

(2) Shanghai International Settlement and the Peking Legation compounds: Upon issuance of orders, our troops will take over these grounds, however, without exceeding their present strength they will make every effort to maintain order and avoid causing confusion.

Also this will be accomplished by the aid of the existing set-ups and their staffs as well as that of various important Chinese agencies.

(3) Amoy settlement: The same procedure as the above will be employed.

(Part 2 not available)

JD-1: 7210

(A) Navy Trans. 12-8-41 (6-AR)

25937

[Secret]

From: Tokyo
To: (Circular)
7 December 1941
(Purple)

Circular #2499 (Part 3 of 3) (Part 2 not available)

Upon declaration of war by Japan, the Nanking government will not be directed to participate in war but will be directed to maintain close relations and absolute cooperation with Japan.

(10) In maintaining close relations with our country the Nanking Government will be directed and guided in strengthening its morale and organization so that it may help alleviate Japan's burden in participating in a protracted world war.

(11) Steps will be taken to propagate among the people through the cooperation of the Nanking Government, the true meaning of the present war, and to issue orders to maintain quiet and order among the general public.

(12) Regarding economic plans in China, with a view to retaining and increasing mutual economic self-sufficiency, the emphasis will be placed on the utilization of productive powers, solicitation of local capital and investments, increased production of commodities. For this purpose efforts of every department will be made use of.

NOTE.—Those departments in the above category which are connected with the Nanking Government will continue to maintain even closer contact with that government.

25937

JD-1: 7210

(A) Navy Trans. 12-8-41 (6-AR)

[Secret]

From: Washington

To: Tokyo

7 December 1941

(Purple)

#1278

Re your #910.*

Your instructions and your #911 have been duly received and decoded, and as soon as we have composed and dispatched this telegram we will commence the demolition and destruction by fire.

Also we have destroyed the codes brought by Kosaka. (The HA code, O code, NE code, and the YO code).

Furthermore, the key of your #881, first part, and your Circular #2400*, should have been burned but because the mails to Mexico are not safe it has not yet been sent.

Please be advised of the above.

26047

JD-1: 7299

(H) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (S-TT)

*JD-1: 7147 S. I. S. 26854. Directs destruction of remaining cipher machine and machine codes.

Not available.

JD-1: 7101 S. I. S. 26754. Instructions for disposing of codes.

*JD-1: 7076 S. I. S. 25753. Re new keying method for cipher machine.

[Secret]

From: Budapest

To: Tokyo

December 7, 1941

LA

#104

Re my #103.*

On the 6th, the American Minister presented to the Government of this country a British Government communique to the effect that a state of war would break out on the 7th.

Relayed to Berlin.

Army 25866

JD 7184

Trans. 12/7/41 (2)

[Secret]

From: Berlin
To: Tokyo
December 8, 1941
Purple (Priority)
#1437 Limited distribution

Re my #143(9?).^a

At 1:00 p. m. today (8th) I called on Foreign Minister Ribbentrop and told him our wish was to have Germany and Italy issue formal declarations of war on America at once. Ribbentrop replied that Hitler was then in the midst of a conference at general headquarters discussing how the formalities of declaring war could be carried out so as to make a good impression on the German people, and that he would transmit your wish to him at once and do whatever he was able to have it carried out promptly. At that time Ribbentrop told me that on the morning of the 8th Hitler issued orders to the entire German navy to attack American ships whenever and wherever they may meet them.

It goes without saying that this is only for your secret information.

Army 25978

Trans. 12/9/41

^a Not available.

EXHIBIT NO. 2

JAPANESE MESSAGES CONCERNING MILITARY INSTALLATIONS, SHIP MOVEMENTS, ETC.

CONTENTS

	Page
1. Hawaii
a. Translated before 7 December 1941-----	2
b. Translated after 7 December 1941-----	16
2. Panama Canal
a. Translated before 7 December 1941-----	31
b. Translated after 7 December 1941-----	48
3. Philippines
a. Translated before 7 December 1941-----	54
b. Translated after 7 December 1941-----	97
4. Southeast Asia and Netherlands East Indies
a. Translated before 7 December 1941-----	100
b. Translated after 7 December 1941-----	107
5. West Coast
a. Translated before 7 December 1941-----	109
b. Translated after 7 December 1941-----	113
6. Miscellaneous-----	115
7. Messages of particular interest transmitted before 1 August 1941-----	117

NOTE.—Except for messages of particular interest (see section 7) and messages relating to Hawaii (see section 1), this exhibit includes only those messages transmitted after 1 August 1941.

All the messages were classified "Secret" at the time of translation.

[1]

1. HAWAII

A. MESSAGES TRANSLATED BEFORE 7 DECEMBER 1941

[2] From Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
2 December, 1940
(J17-K6)
#216

The following ships were observed at Pearl Harbor on the 1st:

Battleship: Texas type-----	1
Total-----	1
Heavy cruiser:
Indianapolis type-----	1
Unidentified type-----	2
Total-----	3

Light cruiser :
Honolulu type -----	2
Omaha type (1 in dock) -----	6
Total -----	8
Destroyer : -----	27
Submarine : -----	6
Special Service ship: 1 troop ship -----	3
A so two des.royers off Waikiki.

JD-1: 268 13655 2 December, 1940

Navy Trans. 1-14-41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
 To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
 20 December, 1940
 (J17-K6)
 #232

1. There was no ship movement in Pearl Harbor on the 19th.
2. On the same day, I dispatched a man to Lahaina and learned that the fleet has not been in for over three weeks. Apparently training is being done elsewhere.

JD-1: 393 13868 20 December, 1940

Navy Trans. 1-23-41 (2)

[3] From: Honolulu (Okuda)
 To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
 24 December, 1940
 (J17-K6)
 #234

It is reported that ships from the battleships down returned to Pearl Harbor on Dec. 20th. and will stay until Jan. 4 (5th or 6th) on Christmas leave.

JD-1: 74 13380 24 December, 1940

Navy Trans. 1-6-41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
 To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
 6 January, 1941
 (J17-K6)
 #002 (in 2 parts—complete)

Re my message #234 of last year.*

Vessels seen in Pearl Harbor on the morning of the 5th were as follows:

Five battleships (New Mexico, Mississippi, and probably the Idaho as well as two of the Texas class); five heavy cruisers (one of the Portland class, three of the ——— class, and one of the New Orleans); nine light cruisers (five) of the Honolulu class and four of the Omaha class); 37 destroyers; five destroyer tenders; two (patrol boats?); several special service ships (of which two seemed to be submarines, but it could not be definitely determined); two heavy cruisers in (dry dock?); one vessel—either a battleship or a cruiser, is outside the harbor.

Key-shaped cranes, similar to those toward the stern of the Idaho class cruisers, are being constructed on the five light cruisers of the Honolulu class, on the extreme end of the after-deck.

It was also noted that the more modern masts have replaced the mainmasts which used to be on the four Omaha class vessels.

The vessels which were previously reported to be mine sweepers are, in reality, patrol boats, so please make corrections.

JD-1: 165 13495 6 January, 1941

Navy Trans. 1-10-41 (2)

*JD-1 74 (SIS #13380).

[4] From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
7 January, 1941
(J17-K6)
#003

Re my #002*.

Battleships New Mexico (flag), Oklahoma, Idaho, and Mississippi, together with many cruisers and destroyers left Pearl Harbor on the morning of the 6th for training. It is reported that they will return on the 12th†).

JD-1: 185 13525 7 January, 1941

Navy Trans. 1-10-41 (2)

*JD-1: 165.

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
9 January, 1941
(J17 K6)
#005

Re message #474* of last year from (Manila) to you.

It is reported that the light cruiser Cincinnati returned here from the Philippine Islands. This message sent to Washington and Manila.

JD-1: 434 13899 9 January, 1941

Navy Trans. 1-25-41 (7)

*Not available.

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
16 January, 1941
(J17 K6)
#011 (2 parts, complete)

Re my #008*.

1. The capital ships returned to Pearl Harbor immediately. The Pennsylvania arrived on the 14th.

2. The number of vessels seen in the harbor on the morning of the 16th was as follows: 5 battleships (Mississippi, New Mexico, Idaho, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma), 5 light cruisers of the Omaha class (of which one is in dock), 19 destroyers, 2 destroyer tenders, 1 patrol boat, 7 vessels which may have been patrol boats, 3 transports. The Yorktown is not in port.

[5] 3. It is reported that the capital ships Arizona, Tennessee, California, West Virginia, Colorado and Maryland which are at present around the mainland, will return here by 1 February.

The CinCUS shifted the flag from the New Mexico to the Pennsylvania on 15 January.

JD-1: 629 14163 16 January, 1941 Navy Trans. 1-31-41 (2)

*Available, not translated; too garbled to read. (Re: U. S. Navy ship movements.)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
21 January, 1941
(J17 K6)
#014

The aircraft carriers Lexington and Enterprise, together with four destroyers arrived in Pearl Harbor from the mainland on the 21st.

JD-1: 563 14078 21 January, 1941 Navy Trans. 1-30-41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)
28 January, 1941
(J17 K6)
#018

Re contents of my No. 11*.

1. Four battleships of the Colorado class and fourteen destroyers arrived in Pearl Harbor from the continent on the 27th.

2. The following vessels were seen in Pearl Harbor during the afternoon of the 27th, (the numbers in the parentheses represent the increase since the previous day); 9 battleships (4); 2 aircraft carriers; 1 heavy cruiser (1); 14 light cruisers (3); 4 old light cruisers of the Omaha class (1); 48 new destroyers (12); patrol boats, 5 Eagles (1) and 3 SC's (1); 1 submarine tender; 1 oil supply ship. There was also one destroyer lying outside of the harbor.

3. One cruiser of the 10,000 ton class and one light cruiser (both were included in the counts in the above paragraph) were alongside the repair dock. They were apparently being equipped with anti-U-boat wirings, and with antiaircraft guns.

[6] JD-1:747 14304 28 January, 1941 Navy Trans. 2-6-41 (2)

*JD-1: 629. Re: U. S. Navy ship movements (SIS #14163).

From: Honolulu (Okuda)
To: Tokyo
February 6, 1941
J17-K6
#25

This morning I observed the following ships of war in Pearl Harbor: 8 battleships, 3 of which were of the San Francisco, Pensacola and

New Orleans class. Of the 5 remaining, 3 were of the Honolulu class and 2 of the Omaha class.

16 destroyers

3 destroyer tenders

10 _____

4 auxiliary ships.

Now, the airplane carrier Enterprise, accompanied by 14 or 15 destroyers and some 6 submarines, left on the morning of the 5th.

Have forwarded by mail in code form to Washington, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Seattle.

ARMY #14405

Trans. 2/10/41 (7)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)

To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)

21 February, 1941

(J17 K6)

#029 (In 2 parts, complete)

1. The capital ships and others departed from Pearl Harbor on the 13th and returned on the 19th. (It is said that they will depart again on the coming Wednesday and return on the following Wednesday).

[7] Judging from the statements by various sailors who were on these vessels, the training was apparently held in the vicinities of Kauai, Lahaina and Hilo.

2. The following vessels were seen in Pearl Harbor in the afternoon of the 20th.

Seven battleships (three of the New Mexico class, two of the Pennsylvania class, one each of the Oklahoma and California classes); four heavy cruisers, (two of the New Orleans class and two of the Portland class); ten light cruisers, (four of the Honolulu class; six of the Omaha class of which one is in drydock); thirty destroyers; three destroyer tenders; aircraft carriers, Yorktown and Enterprise; one troop transport; one submarine tender; (no submarines were visible).

Besides the above, three destroyers and one vessel of the Pensacola class were at anchor outside of the harbor, while one destroyer was sailing in the general direction of Lahaina.

Mailed to _____, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle.

JD-1: 1189 14967 21 February, 1941 Navy Trans. 2-28-41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)

To: Tokyo

February 24, 1941

J17-K6

#31

The Enterprise came into port from the continent on the 21st, having transported 31 Army pursuit planes of the Curtiss-Hawk P36 classification. She immediately returned to the continent; (there is a rumor that she went on to Manila). I have observed the following ships in Pearl Harbor:

6 battleships, two of the New Mexico, two of the Pennsylvania, one of the Oklahoma, and one of the California type.

4 heavy cruisers, two of the New Orleans, and two of the Portland class.

7 light cruisers, three of the Honolulu and four of the Omaha type.
The aircraft carrier Yorktown.

35 destroyers.

[8] 3 destroyer tenders for those destroyers.

1 auxiliary ship.

3 hospital ships.

36 submarines.

Have forwarded by mail in code form to Washington, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle.

ARMY 15149

Trans. 3/8/41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Okuda)

To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)

27 February, 1941

(J17 K6)

#034

Re my #29*.

Apparently the Fleet goes to sea for a week of training and stays in Pearl Harbor one week. Every Wednesday, those at sea and those in the harbor change places. This movement was noted on last Wednesday, the 26th.

The following vessels were seen in Pearl Harbor on the 27th: 4 battleships (1 of the California class and 3 of the Maryland class); 4 heavy cruisers (all of the San Francisco class); 6 light cruisers (4 of the Honolulu class and 2 of the Omaha class); 25 destroyers (of which 3 were outside of the harbor); 2 destroyer tenders; 1 troop transport; several transports; several submarines; and 2 submarine tenders.

The Yorktown was not in port. A vessel which appeared to be a heavy cruiser was anchored outside of the harbor.

JD-1: #1339 15165

Navy Trans. 3-7-41 (2)

*JD-1: 1189; U. S. Navy ship movements in Pearl Harbor.

[9] From: Honolulu (Okuda)

To: Tokyo (Gaimudaijin)

10 March, 1941

(J18 K8)

#043

Vessels seen in Pearl Harbor on (9th) were the following:

Four battleships (two of the New Mexico class and two of the Pennsylvania class).

Five heavy cruisers (two of the _____ class, one of the _____ class, and two of the _____ class).

Six light cruisers (four of the _____ class and two of the Omaha class).

Yorktown.

25 destroyers (_____).

Two destroyer tenders.

Several submarines.

One submarine tender.

Several transports.

Mailed to Washington, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle.

JD-1: 1842 15976

Navy Trans. 4-5-41 (S)

[10] From: Honolulu

To: Tokyo

May 12, 1941

J18-K8

#78

Warships observed at anchor on the 11th in Pearl Harbor were as follows:

Battleships -----	11
Colorado, West Virginia, California, Tennessee, Idaho, Mississippi, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Oklahoma, and Nevada.
1 old battleship (a target ship, probably the Utah).
Heavy cruisers -----	6
Pensacola class 1.
----- class 1.
----- class 1.
San Francisco (?) class 3.
Light cruisers -----	10
----- class 5.
Omaha class 5.
Destroyers -----	37 (?)
Destroyer tenders -----	2
Submarine tenders -----	1
Submarines -----	11
Eagle boats (?) -----	10
Transports -----	several

The airplane carrier "The Lexington", accompanied by two destroyers, is cruising off the east shores of Oahu Island.

ARMY 177784

Trans. 6-4-41 (2)

[11] From: Honolulu (Kita).

To: Tokyo.

May 26, 1941.

J18-K8.

#86

Warships anchored in Pearl Harbor on the 24th (?) and the 25th (?) were as follows: six battleships—the Pennsylvania, Arizona, California, Tennessee, Oklahoma, and Nevada; light cruisers, seven, four of the ----- class and three of the Omaha class; destroyers, nineteen; destroyer tenders, one; submarines, five, submarine tenders, one; -----, four; -----, one; large type oil tankers, two; transports, three, aircraft carriers ----- (rest of message consisting of two groups unintelligible).

ARMY 19955

Trans. 7/24/41 (7)

From: Honoliulu (Kita)
To: Tokyo
June 14, 1941
J18-K8
#100

On the 11th (?) two English converted cruisers entered Pearl Harbor and are at present undergoing repairs at the old (?) dry docks.

ARMY 18805

Trans. 6/30/41 (2)

From: Honolulu (Kita)
To: Washington
September 22, 1941
J-19

Circular #38. Message to Tokyo #173.

Re my message #166.*

A — destroyer left port on the 16th bound for New Caledonia. Naval Captain G. T. GARGENLIEU, High Commissioner for Pacific territories under the jurisdiction of the DeGaulle Regime, and Commander G. GABANTER, Commander of Defense, took passage on this destroyer to take up their new posts.

ARMY 23095

Trans. 10-6-41 (2)

* Not available.

[12] From: Tokyo (Toyoda)
To: Honolulu
September 24, 1941
J-19
#83

Strictly secret.

Henceforth, we would like to have you make reports concerning vessels along the following lines insofar as possible:

1. The waters (of Pearl Harbor) are to be divided roughly into five sub-areas. (We have no objections to your abbreviating as much as you like.)

Area A. Waters between Ford Island and the Arsenal.

Area B. Waters adjacent to the Island south and west of Ford Island. (This area is on the opposite side of the Island from Area A.)

Area C. East Loch.

Area D. Middle Loch.

Area E. West Loch and the communicating water routes.

2. With regard to warships and aircraft carriers, we would like to have you report on those at anchor, (these are not so important) tied up at wharves, buoys and in docks. (Designate types and classes briefly. If possible we would like to have you make mention of the fact when there are two or more vessels along side the same wharf.)

ARMY 23260

Trans. 10/9/41 (S)

[13] From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Washington

29 September 1941

(J19)

Circular #041

Honolulu to Tokyo #178

Re your #083*.

(Strictly secret.)

The following codes will be used hereafter to designate the location of vessels:

1. Repair dock in Navy Yard (The repair basin referred to in my message to Washington #48): KS.

2. Navy dock in the Navy Yard (The Ten Ten Pier): KT.

3. Moorings in the vicinity of Ford Island: FV.

4. Alongside in Ford Island: FG. (East and west sides will be differentiated by A and B respectively.

Relayed to Washington, San Francisco.

JD-1: 5730 23312

(D) Navy Trans. 10-10-41 (X)

*Not available.

Available, dated 21 August.

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Honolulu (Riyoji)

15 November 1941

(J19)

#111

As relations between Japan and the United States are most critical, make your "ships in harbor report" irregular, but at a rate of twice a week. Although you already are no doubt aware, please take extra care to maintain secrecy.

JD-1: 6991 25644

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-3-41 (S)

[14] From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokyo

November 18, 1941

J-19

#222

1. The warships at anchor in the Harbor on the 15th were as I told you in my #219^a on that day.

Area A^b—A battleship of the Oklahoma class entered and one tanker left port.

Area C^c—3 warships of the heavy cruiser class were at anchor.

2. On the 17th the Saratoga was not in the harbor. The carrier, Enterprise, or some other vessel was in Area C. Two heavy cruisers of the Chicago class, one of the Pensacola class were tied up at docks "KS". 4 merchant vessels were at anchor in Area D^d.

^a Available, dated November 14. Code under study.

^b Waters between Ford Island and the Arsenal.

^c East Loch.

^d Middle Loch.

3. At 10:00 a. m. on the morning of the 17th, 8 destroyers were observed entering the Harbor. Their course was as follows: In a single file at a distance of 1 000 meters apart at a speed of 3 knots per hour, they moved into Pearl Harbor. From the entrance of the Harbor through Area B to the buoys in Area C, to which they were moored, they changed course 5 times each time roughly 30 degrees. The elapsed time was one hour, however, one of these destroyers entered Area A after passing the water reservoir on the Eastern side.

Relayed to _____.

ARMY 23817

Trans 12/6/41 (2)

[15] From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Honolulu

November 18, 1941

J-19

#113

Please report on the following areas as to vessels anchored therein: Area "N", Pearl Harbor, ~~Manila Bay~~ Honolulu,^a and the Areas Adjacent thereto. (Make your investigation with great secrecy.)

ARMY 25773

Trans. 12/5/41 (S)

^a Probably means Mamala Bay.

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Honolulu

November 20, 1941

J-19

#111

Strictly secret.

Please investigate comprehensively the fleet _____ bases in the neighborhood of the Hawaiian military reservation.

ARMY 25694 JD 7029

Trans. 12-4-41 (S)

From: Tokyo

To: Honolulu

29 November 1941

J-19

#122

We have been receiving reports from you on ship movements, but in future will you also report even when there are no movements.

JD-1: 7086 25823

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (2)

[16]

B. MESSAGES TRANSLATED AFTER 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokyo

November 24, 1941

J-19

#234 (Part 1 of 2)

Re your #114^a.

Strictly Secret.

1. According to normal practice, the fleet leaves Pearl Harbor, conducts maneuvers and forthwith returns.

^a Not available.

2. Recently the fleet has not remained for a long period of time nor conducted maneuvers in the neighborhood of Lahaina Roads. Destroyers and submarines are the only vessels who ride at anchor there.

3. Battleships seldom, if ever, enter the ports of Hilo, Hanalei, or Kaneohe. Virtually no one has observed battleships in maneuver areas.

4. The manner in which the fleet moves:

Battleships exercise in groups of three or five, accompanied by lighter craft. They conduct maneuvers for roughly one week at sea, either to the south of Maui or to the southwest. Aircraft carriers maneuver by themselves, whereas sea plane tenders operate in concert with another vessel of the same class. Airplane firing and bombing practice is conducted in the neighborhood of the southern extremity of the island of Kahoolawe.

ARMY 26351 (Japanese)

Trans. 12-16-41 (2)

[17] From: Honolulu

To: Tokyo

November 24, 1941

J-19

#234 (Part 2 of 2)

The heavy cruisers in groups of six carry on their operations over a period of two to three weeks, doubtless going to Samoa. The length of time that they remain at anchor in Pearl Harbor or tied up at docks is roughly four or five days at a stretch.

The light cruisers in groups of five spend one to two weeks in operations. It would seem that they carry on their maneuvers in the vicinity of Panama.

The submarines go out on 24-hour trips Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

The destroyers, in addition to accompanying the principal units of the fleet, carry on personnel training activities in the waters adjacent to Hawaii.

Mine layers (old-style destroyers) in groups of ———, have been known to spend more than three weeks in operations in the Manila area.

Furthermore, on the night of the 23rd, five mine layers conducted mine laying operations outside Manila harbor.

ARMY 26352 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/16/41 (2)

[18] From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Honolulu

November 28, 1941

J19-K9

#119

Re your message #243.*

Secret outside the Department.

Intelligences of this kind which are of major importance, please transmit to us in the following manner:

* Available in code under study.

1. When battleships move out of the harbor if we report such movement but once a week the vessels, in that interval, could not only be in the vicinity of the Hawaiian Islands, but could also have travelled far. Use your own judgment in deciding on reports covering such movements.

2. Report upon the entrance or departure of capital ships and the length of time they remain at anchor, from the time of entry into the port until the departure.

ARMY 25880 JD-7158

Trans. 12/8/41 (S)

[19] From: Honolulu
To: Tokyo
November 28, 1941
J-19
#238

Military report:

(1) There are eight "B-17" planes at Midway and the altitude range of their anti-aircraft guns is (5,000 feet ?).

(2) Our observations at the Sand Island maneuvers are:—number of shots—12; interval of flight—13 seconds; interval between shots—2 minutes; direct hits—none.

(3) 12,000 men (mostly marines) are expected to reinforce the troops in Honolulu during December or January.

(4) There has usually been one cruiser in the waters about (15,000 feet ?) south of Pearl Harbor and one or two destroyers at the entrance to the harbor.

ARMY 25928 JD-7212

Trans. 12-8-41 (7)

[20] From: Honolulu (Kita)
To: Tokyo
1 December 1941
(J19)
#241 (In 2 parts, complete)

Re your #119*.

Report on ship maneuvers in Pearl Harbor:

1. The place where practice maneuvers are held is about 500 nautical miles southeast of here.

Direction based on:

(1) That direction taken when the ships start out is usually south-east by south and ships disappear beyond the horizon in that direction.

(2) Have never seen the fleet go westward or head for the "KAIUI" straits northwards.

(3) The west sea of the Hawaiian Islands has many reefs and islands and is not suitable as a ocean maneuver practice sea.

(4) Direction of practice will avoid all merchant ship routes and official travel routes.

Distance based on:

- (1) Fuel is plenty full and long distance high speed is possible.
- (2) Guns can not be heard here.
- (3) In one week's time, (actually the maneuvers mentioned in my message #231 were for the duration of four full days of 144 hours), a round trip to a distance of 864 nautical miles could be reached (if speed is 12 knots), or 1152 nautical miles (if speed is 16 knots), or 1440 nautical miles (if speed is 20 miles) is possible, however, figuring on 50% of the time being used for maneuver technicalities, a guess that the point at which the maneuvers are held would be a point of about 500 miles from Pearl Harbor.

2. The usual schedule for departure and return of the battleships is: leaving on Tuesday and returning on Friday, or leaving on Friday and returning on Saturday of the following week. All ships stay in port about a period of one week.

JD-1: 7294 26053

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (2)

*JD-1: 7158.

Available, dated 23 November.

[21] From: Tokyo (Togo)
To: Honolulu
December 2, 1941
J-19
#123

(Secret outside the department.)

In view of the present situation, the presence in port of warships, airplane carriers, and cruisers is of utmost importance. Hereafter, to the utmost of your ability, let me know day by day. Wire me in each case whether or not there are any observation balloons above Pearl Harbor or if there are any indications that they will be sent up. Also advice me whether or not the warships are provided with anti-mine nets.

ARMY 27065 JD 8007 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/30/41 (5)

NOTE.—This message was received here on December 23.

From: Honolulu (Kita)
To: Tokyo
3 December 1941
(PA-K2)
#247

Ship report:

2nd. Military transport (name unknown) sailed out toward mainland.

3rd. RARIN came into port from San Francisco.
26065

JD-1: 7309

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (2)

[22] From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokyo

3 December 1941

(PA-K2)

#245 (In 2 parts, complete)

(Military secret.)

From Ichiro Fuji to the Chief of #3 Section of Military Staff Headquarters.

1. I wish to change my method of communicating by signals to the following:

I. Arrange the eight signals in three columns as follows:

Meaning		Signal
Battleship divisions including scouts and screen units	Preparing to sortie.	1
A number of carriers	Preparing to sortie.	2
Battleship divisions	All departed between 1st and 3rd.	3
Carriers	Several departed between 1st and 3rd.	4
Carriers	All departed between 1st and 3rd.	5
Battleship divisions	All departed between 4th and 6th.	6
Carriers	Several departed between 4th and 6th.	7
Carriers	All departed between 4th and 6th.	8

26145

[23] 2. Signals.

I. Lanikai* Beach. House will show lights during the night as follows:

	Signal
One light between 8 and 9 p. m.-----	1
" " " 9 and 10 p. m.-----	2
" " " 10 and 11 p. m.-----	3
" " " 11 and 12 p. m.-----	4

II.

Two lights " 12 and 1 a. m.-----	5
" " " 1 and 2 a. m.-----	6
" " " 2 and 3 a. m.-----	7
" " " 3 and 4 a. m.-----	8

(Part 2)

III. Lanikai* Bay, during daylight.

If there is a "star" on the head of the sail of the Star Boat it indicates signals 1, 2, 3, or 4.

If there is a "star" and a Roman numeral III it indicates signal 5, 6, 7, or 8.

IV. Lights in the attic window of Kalama House will indicate the following:

Times	Signal	Times	Signal
1900-2000-----	3	2200-2300-----	6
2000-2100-----	4	2300-2400-----	7
2100-2200-----	5	0000-0100-----	8

V.K.G.M.G. Want Ads.

A. Chinese rug etc. for sale, apply P. O. box 1476 indicates signal 3 or 6.

B. CHIC. . CO farm etc. apply P. O. box 1476 indicates signal 4 or 7.

C. Beauty operator wanted etc. apply P. O. box 1476 indicates signal 5 or 8.

3. If the above listed signals and wireless messages cannot be made from Oahu, then on Maui Island, 6 miles to the northward of Kula Sanatorium * * * * at a point halfway be- [24] tween Lower Kula Road and Haleakala Road (latitude 20° 40' N., longitude 156° 19' W., visible from seaward to the southeast and southwest of Maui Island) the following signal bonfire will be made daily until your EXEX signal is received:

Time	Signal	Time	Signal
From 7-8-----	3 or 6	From 9-10-----	5 or 8
From 8-9-----	4 or 7

JD-1: 7370

(M) Navy Trans. 12-11-41 (7)

*Between Waimanalo and Kailua Beaches on east coast of Oahu.
 A beach village on east coast of Oahu, 1 mile northwest of Lanikai.
 A radio broadcast station in Honolulu.
 *At latitude 20-42-45 N., longitude 156-20-20 W.

From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokyo

3 December 1941

(PA-K2)

#248

Ship report.

December 3rd. Wyoming and 2 seaplane tenders left port. No other movements.

26066

JD-1: 7310

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (2)

[25] From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokio

December 4, 1941

PA-K2

#249

On the afternoon of the 3rd one British gunboat entered Honolulu harbor. She left port early on the morning of the 4th. She was roughly of the 1,100 ton class. She had but one funnel and carried one 4 inch gun fore and aft. _____.

Furthermore, immediately after the vessel entered port a sailor took some mail to the British Consular Office and received some mail in return.

ARMY 26161 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/12/41 (2)

[26] From: Honolulu (Kita)

To: Tokyo

5 December 1941

(PA-K2)

#252

(1) During Friday morning, the 5th, the three battleships mentioned in my message #239* arrived here. They had been at sea for eight days.

- (2) The Lexington and five heavy cruisers left port on the same day.
 (3) The following ships were in port on the afternoon of the 5th:
 8 battleships.
 3 light cruisers.
 16 destroyers.

Four ships of the Honolulu class and ———— were in dock.

26029

JD-1: 7280

(D) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (2)

*Available. dated 29 November.

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Honolulu

December 6, 1941

PA-K2

#128

Please wire immediately re the latter part of my #123* the movements of the fleet subsequent to the fourth.

ARMY 26158 JD 7381 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/12/41 (5)

* Not available.

[27] From: Honolulu

To: Tokyo

December 6, 1941

PA-K2

#253

Re the last part of your #123.*

1. On the American Continent in October the Army began training barrage balloon troops at Camp Davis, North Carolina. Not only have they ordered four or five hundred balloons, but it is understood that they are considering the use of these balloons in the defense of Hawaii and Panama. In so far as Hawaii is concerned, though investigations have been made in the neighborhood of Pearl Harbor, they have not set up mooring equipment, nor have they selected the troops to man them. Furthermore, there is no indication that any training for the maintenance of balloons is being undertaken. At the present time there are no signs of barrage balloon equipment. In addition, it is difficult to imagine that they have actually any. However, even though they have actually made preparations, because they must control the air over the water and land runways of the airports in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor, Hickam, Ford and Ewa,^b there are limits to the balloon defense of Pearl Harbor. I imagine that in all probability there is considerable opportunity left to take advantage for a surprise attack against these places.

[28] 2. In my opinion the battleships do not have torpedo nets. The details are not known. I will report the results of my investigation.

ARMY 25877

Trans. 12/8/41 (2-TT)

* Not available.
 • Kana spelling.

270 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[29] From: Honolulu

To: Tokyo

December 6, 1941

PA-K2

#254

1. On the evening of the 5th, among the battleships which entered port were ——— and one submarine tender. The following ships were observed at anchor on the 6th:

9 battleships, 3 light cruisers, 3 submarine tenders, 17 destroyers, and in addition there were 4 light cruisers, 2 destroyers lying at docks (the heavy cruisers and airplane carriers have all left).

2. It appears that no air reconnaissance is being conducted by the fleet air arm.

ARMY 25874 JD-7179

Trans. 12/8/41 (2-TT)

[30]

2. PANAMA CANAL

[31]

A. TRANSLATED BEFORE 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)

To: Panama

August 2, 1941

J-19

#63

If possible, I would like you to telegraph me concerning the transit of the canal by English and American merchant ships.

ARMY 23506

Trans. 10-15-41 (S)

From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

August 18, 1941

J-19

#120

Report on observations:

1. Ships moving through the Panama Canal toward the Atlantic:

August 15th	Four U. S. submarines (number ———)
" 16th	Two " freighters
" 17th	One " "
	One ——— "

2. Moving toward Pacific:

August 15th	One U. S. freighter
	One DeGaulle Government destroyer (Triumphant) (now anchored at Balboa)

3. August 17th

One U. S. destroyer anchored at Balboa
One warship which appeared to be a cruiser was seen to arrive.

Recently five large-size destroyers have been in port (taking on fuel, rations and other supplies).

ARMY 22813

Trans. 9-29-41 (S)

Panama (Akiyama)

)

glas B-18, the Martin B-17A bombers, totaling 100 as a number of heavy Boeing 24's, which have been lbrook Field in the past, completely disappeared about
. I am attempting to find out where they went.
heard that approximately (35 or 45 ?) two-motored es are stationed at the newly constructed Agua Dulce he province of Cocli.

5

Trans. 9/30/41 (S)

na (Akiyama)

941 refer to (?) of my message #120. The Triumphant for Tohita on the 17th according to report.

19th two United States freighters and 1 British freighter ed to transmit the Canal toward the Pacific.

23342

Trans. 10/11/41 (2)

3. #22813. Panama reports movements of ships through the Panama Canal.

From: Panama (Akiyama)

o

r 22, 1941

passing through the Canal between the 17th and 21st are as:

Pacific bound:

1. American Tanker
4. American Freighters

Atlantic bound:

- 2 American Tankers
- 4 American Freighters
- 1 English Freighter

7 #22954

Trans. 10/2/41 (J)

From: Buenos Aires

Panama

September 1941

lar #146

Buenos Aires to Tokyo #416.

Strictly secret; C. O. R.

When Minister Yamagata* was in Panama he was asked by the Panamanian Minister there to deliver some maps and charts of the Panama Canal Zone for him, which he did. Since then, we had Usui go to Chile to take charge of those maps and upon their arrival here they were delivered to the Italian Ambassador. At the same time, we requested that we be given copies of them.

Recently, these copies were delivered to us. (At the time of this delivery, Assistant Attache Kameda and Usua were present to ascertain that they were exact copies of the originals). And we entrusted them to our Navy's courier Tatuma who is returning home on the Buenos Aires Maru.

The Italian Ambassador here requests that upon the arrival of these papers in Tokyo, we notify the Italian Government to that effect through (our Embassy in Rome?)

Minister Yamagata has already advised Chief of Bureau Terasaki regarding this matter. The Navy has also sent a report.

23814

JD-1: 5970

(D) Navy Trans. 10-22-41 (X)

*Minister to Chile.

[35] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Washington

September 30, 1941

J 19

#51

(Message to Tokyo #188.)

On the (29th?) two (French ?) warships left port bound for the Pacific. One vessel of the Omaha class left port on the night of ——— for an unknown destination. In spite of the rumor that the raider is in the neighborhood of the Galapagos, rumors are circulating that it is in water adjacent to the Canal.

Relayed to Washington.

ARMY 23304

Trans. 10/10/41 (X)

[36] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

October 2, 1941

J-19

#190 (2 parts complete)

1. Since the recent shift in military aviation efforts to the Pacific Area the "Panama Air Depot" located at France Field was transferred to Curunda Heights (immediately adjacent to Albrook Field).

2. Rear Admiral SADLER, Commander of the 15th Naval District, since the extensive activities on the Pacific end of the Canal, made public on the 1st a statement to the effect that because of the increase of naval supplies a four-story warehouse built on pier 18 (it will be completed the middle of November), the ammunition unloading pier (west of pier 18) consisting of 32 buildings, and the existing buildings in the neighborhood of the Balboa dry dock would all be taken over as warehouses. Furthermore, the petroleum supply tanks at Boca on the Pacific side and at Mt. Hope (the railroad junction from which the line branches to Colon and Ft. Randolph) on the recently it is believed that these tanks have been camouflaged and taken over.

Intelligences at hand concerning the construction of a depot at Corozal which would contain sufficient food for the Canal Zone for a six-month period, even though the lines between this point and the United States are severed.

9

Trans. 10-20-41 (2)

From: Panama (Akiyama)

941

Priority)

On the 30th and the 2nd, three American freighters and one hospital ship transited the canal to the Pacific, and nine freighters and one American liner transited the canal to the Atlantic.

668

Trans. 10/18/41 (2)

From: Panama (Akiyama)

10

, 1941

9) (Urgent)

Message #193.

Ship left for the Pacific at 11:00 A. M. on the 3rd.

On the 3rd until the morning of the 4th three American freighters, the French steamer moved out into the Pacific. During the same day, seven American freighters, the "Union tanker", one destroyer and two British freighters went through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic (one of the two British freighters was of the 10,000 tons class). All of the vessels bound for the Atlantic went through the Canal successively. The two cruisers which I mentioned in my previous message accompanied these vessels as far as Balboa. There would seem indicated that their entire cargoes were made up of military supplies.

Reported to Washington.

Y 23664

Trans. 10/18/41 (2)

Not available.

From: Panama (Akiyama)

Tokyo

October 6, 1941

4

The result of my investigations, as I reported in my secret letter of October 12, are as follows:

1. The airplane bases which the United States is constructing are located at La Chorrera in Panama province, (please refer to part 4 of my report).

of my #149^a) Chitre in Herrera province, Mensabe^b in Los Santos province and at Remedios and Las Ra—Hasu in Chiriqui province.

2. The Panamanian airports already constructed which will be converted into military establishments are the ones at David in Chiriqui province and Paidonya^b outside the limits of Panama City.

3. Airports which have been surveyed but because of the poor condition of the terrain have not been constructed, are the airports at Guarare in Los Santos province and at eight other projected points.

ARMY 24465

Trans. 11/7/41 (2)

^a Not available.
^b Kana spelling.

[39] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

October 18, 1941

J-19

#220 (Part 1 of 2)

1. Ship movements from the 14th to the 18th:

Moving toward the Pacific: 4 American, 1 British freighters; 2 American tankers.

Moving toward the Atlantic: 4 American, 2 British, 1 Dutch freighters; 1 American tanker, 1 American passenger steamer. Recently ships have been going through the canal at night.

2. In order to find out the plans of the Canal command, I inspected the military establishment at the Pacific end on the 10th. (Naturally they do not allow us to inspect the forts.) I found that construction is going on at a rapid rate and the whole area is being covered with fortifications. Specifically, at Albrook Field, 3 large hangars, storehouses for airplane parts, underground tanks, and 8 barracks to accommodate 200 men each.

At Corozal, 4 two-hundred-men barracks, 55 two-family officer's quarters and a 500-patient hospital are nearing completion.

ARMY 23909

Trans. 10-23-41 (2)

[40] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

October 18, 1941

J-19

#220 (Part 2 of 2)

At Fort Clayton there are stationed, as before, the 2nd Field Artillery Battalion, the 1st Engineers, and the 33rd Infantry. Besides barracks for the (signal ?) unit attached to these groups, 18 or (48 ?) barracks large enough to accommodate 250 persons each are approaching completion. In addition to the recently completed hangars at Howard Field, barracks for 26 companies have been roughly completed at Fort Kobbe. Some of these are already in use (details will be sent (by mail ?)). In the Canal Zone there are between the two oceans three cruisers, 8 new type destroyers, 18 submarines, one gunboat, and one submarine tender. The construction work of the submarine base at Balboa is progressing. According to information com-

—, 16-inch guns have been emplaced on Pearl Islands, warships of (this country?) are patrolling the waters

Trans. 10/24/41 (2)

: Panama (Akiyama)

41

7th, a warship of the Omaha class left this port for the same day, two single-funnel destroyers, one light cruiser, 60 ton class transport were anchored in Balboa harbor.

26th, one American destroyer and two submarines were in the harbor at Cristobal.

On the 22nd until the 27th, four American and four British vessels passed through the Canal bound for the Pacific (one of the vessels was of the 14,000 ton class). Six American merchant ships, one American tanker, and one Netherlands cargo ship passed through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic.

5

Trans. 11/19/41 (2)

From: Panama (Akiyama)

, 1941

On the 3rd, one American destroyer was seen to pass through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic. On the same day, an American warship (which did not seem to be the Zane), having two gun turrets on her fore deck and airplane equipment on her after deck, 3,000 tons, was seen to pass through the Canal going in the direction of the Atlantic.

From the 2nd to the 4th of this month, nine American freighters passed through the Canal heading in the direction of the Atlantic. Five American Freighters and one American passenger vessel as one Danish ship were observed passing through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic.

4749

Trans. 11/14/41 (2)

From: Panama (Akiyama)

To

October 1941

According to news from an Italian source, it is reported as forty army air officers of Italian origin who had been training at Riohato departed for China during the end of October. It is thought that they were sent to China as they are of Italian blood and would not be suitable for Europe.

2. Report on ships passing through Panama.

November 2nd, an army transport of over 6,000 tons, with capacity load of army men, headed for Pacific.

3. November 4th, two cruisers of Omaha type anchored at Balboa.

4. Ships that passed during 4th and 5th towards Pacific, one U. S. freighter, one British freighter, 1,400 tons. From Pacific, three U. S. freighters, one U. S. tanker, one British freighter, 20,000 tons.

JD-1: 6745

(Y) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (7)

25228

[44] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

J-19

#265

1. The warship mentioned in my #262* is not of the Vanoc class but has been confirmed to be the Diomedes. Its destination is the Pacific.

2. On the 10th two American submarines moved through the Canal into the Pacific.

ARMY 24989

Trans. 11/19/41 (2)

* Available in code under study.

From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

11 November 1941

(J 19)

#273

Ships passed through Panama on 11th and 12th.

To Pacific: Freighters: 1 American, 2 British, (one 10,000 ton with tower looked like warship).

To Atlantic: Freighters: 3 American, 3 British, (One with 2 guns, two with 1 gun.)

JD-1: 6748

(Y) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (2)

25231

[45] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

J-19

#282

1. On the night of the 11th, a British light cruiser went through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic. This cruiser is understood to have undergone repair in San Francisco and seems to have been the Liverpool.

th, a British military transport of approximately 27,000 Union Castle class, passed through the Canal on its way to Sicily, filled to capacity with military personnel.

November, 12 Douglass two-motored bombers and six B-24 planes, flew here to increase the Canal air force.

Trans. 12/3/41 (2)

from: Panama (Akiyama)

1941

Shipping report:

A commercial ship of Union Castle type passed through toward the Canal, with about 1000 of what seemed like evacuees (women and children) and a few wounded, aboard, on the 13th.

A heavy cruiser which passed through on the 11th is believed to be going through to make up a convoy on the Atlantic, and looks like it had accompanied #1 (Union Castle type commercial ship) through the Pacific. The German reports say it is a Liverpool class ship, not the Liverpool.

An Omaha type ship has the bow painted black and the stern white and at a glance looks like a destroyer.

1 (Y) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (J)

from: Panama (Akiyama)

18, 1941

On the 18th, one British ship and one Netherlands vessel of approximately 17,000 tons went through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic. One 10,000 ton British vessel and one American ship went through the Canal in the direction of the Atlantic.

A destroyer and one submarine are undergoing repairs in the Canal.

5774

Trans. 12/5/41 (2)

B. TRANSLATED AFTER 7 DECEMBER 1941

from: Panama (Akiyama)

1941
December 20, 1941

On the 19th and 20th, four American cargo ships, one British ship and one tanker, and one French ———, passed across to the

2. An American cargo ship and one tanker passed across to the Atlantic.

3. (—— message goes off ——.)

ARMY 26092 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/10/41 (2)

[49] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

November 22, 1941

J-19

#321 (Part 1 of 4)

Strictly secret.

I suppose you are already acquainted with these facts but the manner of defending the canal is now as follows:

1. The United States is publishing as though it were utterly true that a Troy horse has been found not only among the foreigners in Panama but also in government circles. However, this country replies that her principle is Panama for Panamanians. ARIAS stated that though Panama was weak, if certain concessions were made to neighboring countries, the United States might be defied. The United States, however, fixed his regime good and proper. At present the canal officials are checking over, one by one, 2,000 Germans, 700 Italians, and 400 Japanese.

2. I hear that the United States has set up in Panama air bases (some of which have ——), anti-aircraft gun bases, and airplane detector bases (some of these detectors are said to be able to discover a plane 200 miles away). Thus we see that in her policy toward South America the United States is now exerting unprecedented pressure.

ARMY 26820 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/25/41 (X)

[50] From: Panama (Akiyama)

To: Tokyo

November 22, 1941

J-19

#321 (Part 2 of 4)

Strictly secret.

In spite of the fact that it is in violation of the treaty concluded in 1936, the United States is coercing Panama where the canal is. She is expending vast sums of money there, and if necessary will take still more drastic steps. However the difference in the points of view is forever and eternally a cancer's growth in the relations of the two countries.

3. From the Pacific to the Atlantic coast, between Panama and Colon, there is no thoroughfare. The reason why one has not been constructed, is that the jungle constitutes a natural defense for the canal. As an indication of the United States' policy of defense, lately they have begun to construct a road even of macadam which will probably go as far as Colon. However it is not yet completed. This is an exceptional case in preparation for the possible destruction of so seems that when complete the American continental extend as far as the borders of Colombia, but when this tain.

(Japanese)

Trans. 12/25/41 (X)

#26794. Part 1, S. I. S. #26820. Part 4 available, being translated.

: Panama (Akiyama)

1941

3 of 4 *)

ted States Government is going on the assumption that n the Canal will be made from both air and sea. preparation for a possible attack from the Pacific side, ced the special fleet recently, as I have already indicated um. They have mapped out an area 900 (kilometers?), er of the radius at Panama, as a patrol area and are con- ling it. The Army has built fortifications here and there y of Panama in which there are 16'' and 14'' gun em- (These forts are equipped with hygienic facilities. The ndulging in pleasures. The distance ——— of the forti- ——— exceeds 1500 (kilometers?).) In addition, leavoring to guard such vital points as locks, spillways, lly the control tower controlling the spillway on Lake he electric plant.

94 (Japanese)

Trans. 12/25/41 (2) nd 4 available. Being translated.

om: Panama (Akiyama)

22, 1941.

art 4 of 4 *)

-air defenses (?) on lock #1, which is now being used, are roved. (Of course, there are anti-air defenses (?) at lock e naval defense area, patrolled against possible lightning tends in the north from Salina Cruz on the Tehuantepec o Monepene^b (on ?) the Gulf of Fonseca. The southern end to the air base on the Galapagos Islands. ent army strength is 47,000; naval, 10,000; air force, 5,000. on, it is estimated that there is approximately twice this gen- , made up of the families and laborers (excluding Pan-).

96830 (Japanese)

Trans. 12-25-41 (X)

rts 1, 2 and 3 of 4 see S. I. S. #26820, #26821 and #26794 which report ilitary and naval preparations in the Panama region. elling.

From: Washington
To: Panama
1 December 1941
(J 19)
#040

Report passage through the Canal of the U. S. S. MISSISSIPPI, NORTH CAROLINA, WASHINGTON, WASP.

JD-1: 7318 26084 (G) Navy Trans. 12-10-41 (X)

[53]

3. PHILIPPINES

[54]

A. TRANSLATED BEFORE 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: Tokyo
To: Manila
1 August 1941
(Purple)
#245 (or 246) (?)

Please inform us regarding the camouflage and distinguishing marks of the American naval and military aeroplanes in Manila.

20983

JD-1: 4506 (H) Navy Trans. 8-13-41 (6-AR)

From: Manila (Nihro)
To: Tokyo
August 2, 1941
Purple
#474

1. Anchored warships—Dfionomi.*
2. There is (are) anchored Danish ship(s) ----- garbled ----- after loading at Webu * (Ebu ?) will leave for America. In addition two ships touched port on the 1st and 2nd from Orongabo.*
3. Harrison and Coolidge entered port on the 31st and 1st respectively.

20513

ARMY

Trans. 8/5/41 (6)

* Kana spelling.

[55] From: Manila (Nihro)
To: Tokyo
August 2, 1941
Purple
#476

Re your #245.*

In observing planes on practice flights, I notice that the color of military and naval planes has not been changed and that they are not camouflaged. However, I have heard that among the naval planes there are those which have been observed to be painted a light green.

making additional secret investigations, that is all for 5-re, in recent times, the number of planes flying above decreased considerably.

Trans. 8/7/41 (6)

m: Manila (Nihro)

41 ce of primary order.

estroyers sailed on the fourth. All the war ships at an-sailed. There are, however, several small destroyers in orhood of Corregidor*. (This was observed by the crews en Maru and the Kaisoku Maru.)

six-hundred American soldiers have arrived in Manila lidge. (This was learned from the crew of the Coolidge.)

334

Trans. 8/7/41 (6)

In Cavite Province at the entrance of Manila Bay.

rom: Manila (Nihro)

o

, 1941

our #254.*

the time a non-commissioned officer of the American Navy confidentially that the ship mentioned in my #414* (8?)*
 Warspite and I took this to be reliable information. This ship, however, had its name painted over. Some spies who he ship when it docked report that it was something like a vessel. It was further reported that this ship moored at pier on the —th. Now, considering the shallowness of the ere, I do not see how it could have been the Warspite. (When cinnati approaches that dock, it gradually lets out water bal-Judging from its shape, I would say that it was a light cruiser eander class. (According to another report it was an 8,000-ft. This seems rather accurate.) (2) Among the members crew who came on shore there were some with such names
 RK. GEORGE, etc., on their hatbands and we also have a spy to the effect that some forty-eight soldiers wounded in the Medean were being accommodated. (3) I know nothing of the ent of this ship after my #451.*

ly no British ships save this has entered port here (that is rom the Taggubwno (?) mentioned in my #494.*

Y 21094

Trans. 8/16/41 (6)

available.

S #20468) British cruiser which was anchored at Cavite for several days departed — on the 27th.

[58] From: Manila
 To: Tokyo
 August 20, 1941
 Purple
 #532

Re your Circular #1793 *.

I am reporting to you below information which I have been able to get, though it may be somewhat incoherent.

1. There are many tall buildings in the city, to the upper stories of which admittance is forbidden. It is thought, therefore, that anti-aircraft guns have been placed in them. It is fairly certain that guns have been placed on the Great Eastern Hotel (some have actually seen ten disguised machine guns on the top of it,) the (hitchcock?) Avenue Hotel (this is the former Marco Polo Hotel), and on the Insular Life and the Trading Commerce. Besides these, I presume guns have been placed on top of the Capitol, the Municipal Building, the post office, etc. (I believe that the army and the navy both have in their possession a map giving the locations of the tall buildings in the city.).

2. A person has seen during the evenings in the latter part of July, 36 anti-aircraft guns being transported to Camp Murphy.

ARMY 21461

Trans. 8/26/41 (6)

* Not available.

[59] From: Manila
 To: Tokyo
 August 20, 1941
 Purple
 #533 (Report of Primary Importance)

Last March work was begun on the reparation of the airplane base south of Darurakku * on the way to San Miguel. For a time, however, the work was stopped. Lately it seems that the undertaking has been resumed.

Eye witnesses say that they are using about 300 employees and are hurrying the work along. I understand that at present the gliding ground is being prepared.

ARMY 21563

Trans. 8/28/41 (6)

* Kana spelling.

[60] From: Davao (Kihara)
 To: Tokyo
 August 22, 1941
 J-19
 #104 (Intelligence of Primary Importance)

Because too much time would be required to fill in the paddy fields as originally planned in the construction of a new air base, it is rumored that these plans have been changed. Construction is to begin on an air base which will be laid down between the sea and the paddy fields where now stands a cocoanut grove. In order that bombing planes can use this air field, four concrete runways are to be constructed. It is understood that some 2,500 recruits from among the local populace will be used in this construction enterprise. Four red wheelbarrows which will be used in this construction already been unloaded onto the pier. When I last visited I made an investigation of the land they planned to use, and I told me that they would have to use more than three feet of soil in these paddy fields. A great deal of work will be entailed, not only in the cutting down and removal of the cocoanut trees in

63

Trans. 10/28/41 (6)

From: Davao (Kihara)

1941

During the middle of July a number of American destroyers entered the harbor of Jolo. We have intelligence to the effect that no ships came to this port from Hawaii, but we have no evidence to substantiate it.

During the last ten days of July, 6 American destroyers entered the harbor of Jolo, ^aKabunko ^band Kanbin. ^c(Please refer to part 3 of the report.) While in the area of these three ports, they engaged in practice with live ammunition.

During the middle of August, one large airplane capable of carrying passengers landed on the water in the vicinity of Jolo and was tied up for a number of hours.

It is understood that there are approximately 2,000 drums of gasoline stores within the military establishment at Jolo.

Furthermore, reports on the movements of war vessels in and out of the port of Jolo are prone to be delayed because of the existing conditions. Do you want me to send this sort of delayed information by wire? Please wire.

23958

Trans. 10-24-41 (6)

—
on the island of the same name, one of the southernmost islands of the Sulu Island group.
spelling.
available.

From: Manila (Nihro)

Cebu

1st 1941

2)

Ships in port on the 23rd.

A. Manila.

Transports 6.

HON

PISU (Arrived the morning of the 23rd).

B. Cavite.

Destroyers 1. (Arrived from Manila on the 21st).

Transports GORUDOSTNA (entered port about a month ago and is now under repairs.)

2. The oiler TORINIRCIC left harbor on the 22nd headed for Tarakan in order to take on oil.

3. Recently several destroyers and submarines have been stationed in the vicinity of Mariveles. We are investigating the number stationed at present.

4. Brig. General Cragette arrived here on the 20th apparently on the Dutch ship TIBADAEKY and had a conference with MacArthur on the 21st.

5. According to newspaper reports the CHANTO (formerly the Hilda Maersk) arrived here the 20th after having been repaired at Olongapo and her sister ship the KABARUNDO (formerly the Gertrude Maersk) is at present being repaired there. Hence the floating drydock must have been there formerly, however we will continue investigations.

6. On the 16th a ship which appeared to be the MADDO and two destroyers arrived in Cebu and all left that same night.

21518

JD-1: 4810

(H) Navy Trans. 8-27-41 (6-AR)

[63] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

August 26, 1941

Purple

#554

Four "S" ^a boats on the 24th and "REI" on the 25th entered the harbor.

ARMY 21611

Trans. 8/29/41 (6)

^a Submarine.

[64] From: Manila

To: Tokyo

August 30, 1941

Purple

#559 (Primary Intelligence)

1. Warships at anchor in this harbor on the 30th:

(1) In Manila, 3 destroyers of the Bell class; 6 submarines (submarines left port on the 27th but have returned). Furthermore, the tanker Trinity came to this port on the 27th and dropped anchor here (please refer to Part 2 of my #543 ^a).

(2) One destroyer (undergoing repairs) Gorudosu.

2. A large portion of the submarines, according to intelligences which have come to me, are now in the Ringaen ^b area.

3. 500 American soldiers arrived here on the Cleveland the 29th. Furthermore, on the same day the Migsk entered this harbor. (Though details of this ship could not be ascertained, it is understood that she is loaded to capacity with military equipment.

ARMY 21666

Trans. 9/2/41 (6)

^a S. I. S. #21518 regarding boats in harbor at Manila.

^b Lingayen on the west coast of the Island of Luzon.

1: Tokyo (Toyoda)

41 to intelligences obtained by naval authorities, the Houston arrived on the 20th or there about to pass through the harbor since that time they have not been able to learn where it is to investigate the waters in and around Manila for some warship and then make your report.

7

Trans. 11/8/41 (6)

Manila (Nihro)

1941

The Lehead returned to port on the 31st. Two destroyers left 1st.

3

(H) Navy Trans. 9-16-41 (AR)

From: Tokyo

a

1941

confidential.

As to the points you were to note, from now on in case there is a change, report once a week, but report each change of the as they occur:

arrival and departure of Houston.

arrival and departure of more than 5 or 6 destroyers or sub-arrival and departure of naval ships other than American; detail the particulars and relationships involved).

1937

(H) Navy Trans. 9-11-41 (6-AR)

From: Manila (Nihro)

yo

1941

)

On the 7th, the Houston and two destroyers entered port.

22061

Trans. 9/11/41 (6)

From: Manila (Nihro)
 To: Tokyo
 11 September 1941
 (Purple)
 #595

The Houston, which we reported having entered on the 7th, has been alongside the pier loading fuel and stores until today when it left for unknown destination accompanied by two submarines and two destroyers.

22254

JD-1: 5153

(M) Navy Trans. 9-15-41 (5-AR)

From: Manila
 To: Tokyo
 13 September 1941
 (Purple)
 #601

1. Ships in port on the 13th:
 BUKKU (Black Hawk?)
 2 destroyers.
 BERU
 1 submarine

2. On the 13th an American cruiser of the Brooklyn class entered port and is taking on supplies. It is said to have come from Hawaii. I am investigating names of ships and other details but am sending this much on for the present.

22422

JD-1: 6263

(H) Navy Trans. 9-17-41 (6-AR)

[68] From: Manila
 To: Tokyo
 15 September 1941
 (Purple)
 #604

Re my #601*.

According to secret information received, it is the St. Louis, with three other vessels (names unknown) said to be starting for Singapore. It was observed that waves of about 24 or 25 knots are painted on the bows. At present explosives are being lowered (red flags being hoisted).

22430

JD-1: 5271

(F) Navy Trans. 9-18-41 (6-AR)

*JD-1: 5268 (SIS #22422).

la (Nihro)

6, 1941

04^a.

the harbor early on the 16th loaded with food supplies. Three sea planes (single wing) were observed. Designated in my previous message. It is also reported that d here ?) by way of Australia but whether this is true or now.

3

Trans. 9/25/41 (6)

130. I have secret information that the St. Louis and three other ships Singapore and that they apparently have ammunition on board.

m: Manila (Nihro)

3, 1941

ernoon of the 17th, the Phoenix came in port and is now d at the pier.

ed two more ships of the same type will soon arrive.

7

Trans. 9/20/41 (6)

a (Nihro)

, 1941

nchored here, the 26th, are:

x
a boat (12,000 to 13,000 tons, number of crew unknown) approximately 200 sailors.

^a (Peters ?), which entered the harbor on the 18th, is ve carried 500 soldiers.

Trans. 9-27-41 (6)

1: Manila (Nihro)

, 1941

sage #618.^a x left port the morning of the 22nd.

Trans. 9/27/41 (6)

From: Davao (Kihara)

To: Tokyo

September 26, 1941

J-19

#135

Upon my arrival to take up my post here, I heard the following report concerning Zamboanga: ^a

Since last August American destroyer tenders, destroyers and submarines enter that port from the South Seas every Saturday. After they have lain at anchor for one or two days they leave again for the South. In summing up the statements of members of the crews of these boats, it appears that these warships ply the waters from Jolo ^b to Tawao ^c and Tarakan ^d on the island of Borneo.

ARMY 24468

Trans. 11/7/41 (6)

^a A city on the island of Mindanao.

^b Name of the island connecting the main Philippine group to Borneo.

^c Town in British North Borneo.

^d In Netherlands Borneo.

[71] From: Tokyo

To: Davao

October 2, 1941

J-19

#62

Re your #105.^a

Please wire me the location and movements of fishermen and _____ since your last report.

ARMY 25697

Trans. 12-4-41 (6)

^a Not available.

From: Tokyo (Toyoda)

To: Manila

October 4, 1941

Purple

#318

I want you to make a reconnaissance of the new defense works along the east, west and southern coasts of the Island of Luzon, reporting on their progress, strength, etc. Also please investigate anything else which may seem of interest.

ARMY 23207

Trans. 10/8/41 (6)

[72] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

October 14, 1941

Purple (Primary Intelligence)

#685

On the afternoon of the 13th, the Houston, the Marblehead, the Hoh,^a five destroyers, and two mine layers left port. Their destination is unknown.

The following ships are tied up in this harbor at the present time: The Black Hawk, the Pas,^a four destroyers, 10 submarines (the sub-

^a Kana spelling.

of Classes 170 and 190), and the Gold Star (all of the ned submarines are tied up on either side of the Gold taking on supplies).

5

Trans. 10/21/41 (6)

m: Manila

941 f reliability A.

ternoon of the 17th the

DO

stroyers
bmarines (140 class)

U minelayer and

TRINITY

rbor.

ion to the above ships in port at present on the 18th are

Manila.

The same as my #685*

Cavite.

REI

2 minelayers

—— (4 groups missing).

scale barracks are being constructed at NUEBA ESIHA Jabanatuan and Laur (about 131 kilometers from Manila).

said that mechanized maneuvers are being carried out be-ur and Aguilla.

04

(H) Navy Trans. 10-22-41 (6-AR)

952 (SIS #28755).

From: Manila (Nihro)

CVO

20, 1941

ury intelligence. The Houston, the Marblehead, eight des, ten submarines (of the 170 and 190 class) and one mine ft port on the morning of the 20th. Their destination is n.

23906

Trans. 10/24/41 (6)

From: Davao (Kihara).

To: Tokyo

21 October 1941

(J 19)

#156

Regarding my #124*.

As an air base for central Mindanao district, 300 men are being managed by Americans, and the ground is now being leveled.

An under ground hangar and under ground oil tanks are planned; however, the material for this is delayed so that building on this is not progressing as planned.

Already several times a week planes are flying here, and it seems they are expecting large heavy bomber planes too, very soon.

25580

JD-1: 6945

(Y) Navy Trans.12-1-41 (6)

*Not available.

[75] From: Manila

To: Tokyo

October 24, 1941

Purple

#707

1. Two destroyers, the Ton^a and the Maddo,^a two submarines, and one mine layer touched port on the afternoon of the 23rd.

2. The President Cleveland, which entered the port on the afternoon of the 23rd, landed American soldiers (an unconfirmed report is that there were 2,500).

3. The Chester, a Class A Cruizer no doubt convoying the Cleveland, also entered the port on the afternoon of the 23rd.

4. Referring to my #661^b and #685^c the Gold Star was a mistake for the Ohotos^a (or Ohotou^a) (estimated to be a 10,000 ton ship formerly Norwegian and remodeled after the war).

ARMY 23980

Trans. 10/27/41 (S)

^a Kana spelling.

^b Not available.

^c See S. I. S. #28755. Manila wires Tokyo the ships that are laid up in the harbor at the present time and the ones that left port on the afternoon of the 18th.

[76] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo.

25 October 1941

(Purple)

#711

1. The REI^{*} and one destroyer left during the morning of the 25th. Destination is not known.

2. Ships in port are the following:

a. Manila.

TON*

MADDO*

CHESTER

BUKKU*

BERU*

ROYGXOMU (?)

HON*

5 destroyers

11 large submarines

5 small submarines

ite.

PASU* (under repair)

2 destroyers

re indications that all of the vessels are to be repainted olor (almost a grey). the TON and one destroyer have repainted.

(D) Navy Trans. 10-29-41 (6-AR) alents for these abbreviations are:

gley

iston

Marblehead

Black Hawk

abel

'on nopus

1: Manila (Nihro)

41

BU entered Cavite on the 26th and the REI entered on of the 27th.

orning of the 27th, 3 destroyers, 11 submarines of the TON and 2 minelayers left port, destination unknown.

24284

(H) Navy Trans. 11-3-41 (6-AR)

B

41 and the MADDO* sailed on the afternoon of the 28th er on the morning of the 29th. Destination unknown.

25164

(H) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (5-AR)

1 (Nihro)

941

J*, MADDO, HON, 7 destroyers, 8 submarines and 3 entered port on the 31st. But the TON left again on f the 1st, destination unknown.

orning of the 1st the President Cleveland and the Presi-left port loaded with American soldiers whose time was ncertain).

3. According to reports received from [78] what we believe are reliable sources the number of American military and naval planes in the Philippine Islands is as follows:

- (a) Military planes.
 Large bombers, 29.
 Scout planes, 324.
 The same, B type, 62.
 Fighters, 317.
 The same, B type, 131.
 Pursuit planes, 302.
 The same, D type, 69.
 Training planes, 49.
 Total 1,283.

- (b) Naval planes.
 Large flying boats, 26.

4. Ships in port on the 1st: MADDO,* BUKKU,* PISU,* HON,* BERU,* 9 destroyers, 3 submarines, WOHOTOSU, 3 minelayers. In Cavite: REI,* PASU,* 2 Z.

5. According to a report from the De La Rama steamship company two of their ships, the Dona Estaban (1,616 tons), and the MADBUKARU (191 tons), had been requisitioned by the local American Army.

JD-1: 6335
 24533

(H) Navy Trans. 11-8-41 (6-AR)

* Possible equivalents for these abbreviations are: TON (Houston); MADDO (Marblehead); HON (Heron); BUKKU (Black Hawk); PISU (Canopus); BERU (Isabel); REI (Langley); PASU (Canopus).

[79] From: Manila (Nihro)
 To: Tokyo
 1 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #723

(RE your #318)*

Strict guard is being maintained hence the gathering of information is extremely difficult. We are making secret investigations but I will wire you the following newspaper and foreign office reports for the present.

1. The incorporation of the Philippine Army into the Far Eastern Army is progressing slowly but surely and it is reported that by the end of the year the incorporation of 120,000 will be completed. Additions to the barracks at the various camps are being rushed to completion. It seems that particular emphasis is being placed on the concentration of military strength.

Localities are as follows: Kabanatuan, San Marcelino ———— ———— (several groups missing).

Furthermore there is to be a great increase in the number of soldiers stationed in the vicinity Lingayen during the month of November. Army maneuvers are to be carried out during the middle of the month. This may be a temporary measure.

vicinity of Mariveles more than 3000 workmen are being the work on the various projects. However, there are 1300 infantry and cavalry troops stationed there.

1, what I estimated to be between 2000 and 3000 infantry anila by bus headed north. Their destination may have e place. It is being investigated at present. It appears rports are being built there and the docks are being an area the surveillance is particularly strict and it is 1 the entry of Filipinos is prohibited.

being rushed on the road between Dingalan and ur?) and by the middle of October there were less than rs that had not been completed [80] and this ed in the near future. The road between Infanta and ig widened to 5 meters. Work is being carried on day the progress is amazing.

ere are 30 or 40 fighter planes, 20 or 30 light bombers ore of altitude planes (?) it is said.
Mail.

(H) Navy Trans. 11-4-41 (S-TT)

"I want you to make a reconnaissance of the new defense works along the thern coasts of the island of Luzon, reporting their progress, strength, etc.
igate anything else which may seem of interest." (SIS #23207)

1, Hihro)

941

J, BERU D-8, S-13 and M-3 left on the afternoon of ation unknown ——— and D-1 are now zil ?).

Trans. 11/13/41 (6)

: Manila (Nihro)

941 ut a month ago little by little brown soldiers have been Stotsenburg Barracks. The number at present is about ousand. In view of the fact that these soldiers speak may be "Iko's." I understand that they are not very American soldiers. We are now secretly investigating e come from.

2. Taraiaō.^a Recently the Miguel Air Field has been extended to form a rectangle about 1,000 meters long.

3. All the wooden bridges on the national highway between Taraiaō and Lingayen^b have been replaced with concrete bridges.

4. At the foot of a hill situated to the north of Teraiaō (the hill overlooks the Lingayen Gulf) about 200 barracks have been constructed. I understand that new barracks are being built at Ste Ignatia.

5. From what I hear the American soldiers stationed at Stotsenburg maintained an arrogant attitude toward the Filipinos and, since there have been two or three cases of assault on Filipinas, the Filipinos are furious.

ARMY 24626

Trans. 11/12/41 (6)

^a Tarallo, Camarines Province.

^b Pangasinan Province, Luzon, Philippine Islands on Lingayen Gulf.

[82] From: Tokyo

To: Manila

5 November 1941

(Purple)

#355

For Secretary Yuki.

The Naval General Staff has requested that investigation be made on the following items. Please arrange as you think best for the same:

These items in regard to each port of call:

- (1) Conditions at air ports on land.
- (2) Types of planes at each, and number of planes.
- (3) Warships; also machinery belonging to land forces.
- (4) State of progress being made on all equipment and establishments.

JD-1: 6424

(F) Navy Trans. 11-13-41 (6-AR)

24696

[83] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 6, 1941

Purple

#735

Of first importance. Re my #743^a.

The following information has been pieced together from two intelligence reports.

1. 50 American officials and 1200 Philippine soldiers are stationed at Bugallon in Pangasinan^b province. There are also 8 light tanks and 8 aircraft guns (with fixed mounts). There is a number of American artillery men stationed in the Yashiyama (literally—Coconut(?) mountain) between Sual^c and Lingayen^d.

2. There are 10 two-motored light bombers, 190 Curtis fighting planes (up to now intelligence reports have given the number to be 60 but recently reinforcements were received) and 400 American air force officers stationed at Iba in Zambales^e province. A division of Philippine soldiers (15,000) are stationed at San Marcelino. This division is composed of 3 infantry regiments, 3 field artillery companies and 3 and armored artillery companies and it is expected that a nt of a large number of tanks will soon be received. They y started the construction of a new air field there.

 ore, 320 Philippine soldiers are stationed at Botolan.
 re now constructing barracks at three points (out 4 kilo-
 ; than 10) kilometers and 22 kilometers) on the [84]
 'arlac to Santa Ignacia in Tarlac province which will ac-100, 1000, 1500 soldiers respectively, a total of 3,000. Also is being started on a new air field 5 kilometers south of e year plan) apparently a part of the leveling has already
 d. A military road from Capas through O'Donnell to Zambales province is almost completed. (Upon several ely troop camouflaging was observed.)
 y 200 light tanks were (landed?) at Stotsenburg in Pam-13

Trans. 11/15/41 (6)

5.
 th of Manila beyond Tarlac province.
 Province.
 rn side of the peninsula across the bay from Manila.
 west shore of Manila Bay between Tarlac and Bataan Province.

m: Manila

1941

:353.^a

ttting that portion of the message following Raichaku.

3 my #723.^b

ie last part of last month a reinforcement of 4 or 5 thou-has been received in the province of Bataan.^c They were ng the coast and in the central mountain districts at Say-en, Linao, Limay, etc.

ellent military highway has been constructed between fariveres (154 kilometers to 157 kilometers from Manila) asts and in the interior. Sentries are posted at the en-biting the passage of civilians, Philippine military and ossessing special permits _____ erful?) guns and many defenses seem to have been put in.

 the road between Bagac and Balanga has already been to a military highway, construction of a military road loron and Olongapo has been suspended. I believe that onnections between these places have been by boat for a ncomplete).^c

4

Trans. 11/14/41 (S)

#24382; in which Manila wires a report on the defense activities in the s gathered from newspapers and foreign office reports.
 vince across the bay from Manila.
 ntioned in this message are in Bataan province.
 of the message was not retransmitted.

[86] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 8, 1941

Purple

#742

The warships at anchor in the harbor on the 8th are as follows: The Marblehead, the Black Hawk, eight destroyers, nine submarines, the Heron, the Wohotosu,^a the Isobel, and the tanker Trinity (the latter arrived on the 8th).

ARMY 24745

Trans. 11/14/41 (6)

^a Kana spelling.

From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple

#745

1. The Houston touched port at Cavite on the 8th.
2. Four destroyers left port on the 10th. Destination unknown.
3. Two cargo boats (former president boats of the 10,000 ton class with the names painted over) entered port on the 9th, landing 2,300 soldiers.

ARMY 24755

Trans. 11/14/41 (6)

[87] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

Purple

#746

Re my #722,^a first part of part 3—the number of large attack planes, latest models, 4-motored B-19's, is 32.

Re my #727,^b the black soldiers are American negroes.

ARMY 24850

Trans. 11/17/41 (6)

^a See S. I. S. #24533; in which Manila informs Tokyo in regard to the number of American military and naval planes in the Philippine Islands.

^b See S. I. S. #24626; in which Manila reports on defense activities in the Philippines, saying they are secretly investigating where the 2 or 3,000 brown soldiers arriving at the Stotsenburg Barracks have come from.

From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 12, 1941

Purple

#753

On the morning of the 12th, an American cruiser of the Chester class entered port. She is now tied up at dock #7 and is taking on _____. It is thought likely that this vessel accompanied one of the President line ships into port. This vessel preceded the cruiser into port.

ARMY 24923

Trans. 11/18/41 (6)

n: Manila (Nihro)

, 1941

to a report handed on to me by a Japanese who has lived ce of Ilocos Norte for some fourteen or fifteen years, the s been ascertained.

present time there are approximately 400 Philippine seven or eight officers stationed in Laoag.^a It is being ever, that the Philippine troops will be increased to y 1,700. At the present time they are constructing tracks.

ems to be no indication that they plan the expansion of vil airport in Laoag (length, 1,200 metres; width, 850 are they stationing any military planes at that field.
reconnaissance flight nightly (one plane) over the coastal icinity of the city, no extensive activity is in progress.
it is said that Claveria^b and Burgos^b are being equipped -----, the details are unknown. (I am continuing my igations in this connection.)

Trans. 11/21/41 (6)

Province of Ilocos Norte on the Island of Luzon, P. I. northern shore of the Island of Luzon, P. I.

t: Manila (Nihro)

1941 ven me by a Japanese who resides in Camarines Norte^a rea at the present time there does not seem to be many ed. Only about 60 members of the Philippine Patrol with headquarters in Daet,^b are located in that area.

or six of these patrolmen are dispatched as a relief unit nd Jose Panganiban.^d l Airport at Paracale is not being used at the present as the military air field at Daet is concerned, though ilitary planes landed there during February of this t time to this there has not been a single military plane field. As this field is located right on the beach, should it is said that naval planes could land in the shipping e beach as well.

oint of land, San Muricio,^e north of Jose Panganiban hat they are equipping ----- with -----, but this has
ed. (I am continuing my secret investigations.)

4. Twelve or thirteen coastal reconnaissance planes were seen to have flown over the area within a period of three days. Toward the latter part of last year 13 American freighters are said to have entered the port of Pangniban. Since then, almost on the average of once a week, American freighters sail from Batgasan¹ to Hondagua.⁵

ARMY 25162

Trans. 11/24/41 (6)

- [90] * Province near southeastern extremity of Luzon.
^b City on southeastern extremity of the Island of Luzon.
^c Seaport in the province of Camarines Norte.
^d English spelling. Cannot identify.
^e English spelling. Point of land cannot be identified.
^f Seaport in southwestern Luzon.
^g Seaport on Lopez Bay off Lamon Bay.

From: Manila

To: Tokyo

13 November 1941

(Purple)

#757

1. The CA heavy cruiser of my #753* was the Portland.
2. On the morning of the 13th a British destroyer of the Defender type entered port.
3. It has been ascertained that 8 (or 4 ?) of the nine submarines of my #742* are of the 129 class. They have entered port here recently but the exact date is uncertain.

JD-1: 6503 24780

(H) Navy Trans. 11-13-41 (S-22)

*Not available.

[91] From: Tokyo

To: Manila

15 November 1941

(Purple)

#368

Strictly confidential.

Re your #746*.

Please ascertain by what route the large bombers went to the Philippines, and also please make investigations again as to their number.

JD-1: 6753 25236

(H) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (AR)

*JD-1: 6545 (SIS #24850). Reports 32 B-19 bombers in the Philippines.

From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

15 November 1941

(Purple)

#767

1. It has been ascertained that the ship of my #757*, paragraph 2, was a British transport, the AWATEA which entered port at the same time under convoy, (12000 or 13000 tons, 700 or 800 soldiers on board). Both ships sailed again on the evening of the 14th, destination unknown.
2. On the afternoon of the 14th, 4 destroyers, 11 submarines, 1 mine-layer, entered port.

port on the 15th :

ila:

MADDO

Portland

BUKKU

BERU

BERU

HON

VOHOTOSU

destroyers

10 submarines

minelayer

ivate:

HON

PASU

5237

(H) Navy Trans. 11-25-41 (AR)

118 #24780). Re movements of U. S. Naval and British Naval craft in ed.

1941 transmitting our machine telegram of the 14th with indi-cause of a mistake on the plug board, as follows:

ing is from a report of a Japanese resident in Cebu.

nt there are about 300 American and 2,500 Filipino oned there. (There are four barracks each with a out 500 or 600 soldiers.

ort has an area of about 196 acres but is being enlarged ivict labor). About 12 planes (of medium size) used ine Army, have been transported to Java by air, and 12 n Army planes, (monoplanes—whether they were scout uit planes was not clear), are now stationed there. In se there is one large bomber in the hangar (double type, anes).

quarters of the former patrol force are being used as the storehouse and all sorts of provisions are being stored nd of September, about 20 American warships anchored est coast of the Sulu Archipelago. Around the middle o destroyers and one cruiser entered Cebu harbor and ith, one oil supply ship of the 20,000 ton class, and a ruiser of the 10,000 ton class, entered port and anchored ee days. It has been recognized that occasionally two ican ships anchor around the south of Mactan, Bacol, n open drydock at MAKUGAA (operated by Chinese) dling ships up to 10,000 tons.

4933

(H) Navy Trans. 11-18-41 (S-TT)

[93] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

17 November 1941

(Purple)

#769

On the morning of the 17th the

MADDO*

Portland

J 10 ships

M 1 ship left port. Destination unknown.

JD-1: 6761 25244

(H) Navy Trans. 11-24-41 (AR)

*Marblehead?

May be garble for "D"—destroyer.

Minelayer.

From: Tokyo (Togo)

To: Manila

November 20, 1941

Purple

#372 (Strictly Secret)

Please advise immediately the results of your investigations as to the type of drift —— presumed to be in the waters adjacent to Subic Bay*.

Furthermore, please transmit these details to the Asama Maru as well as to Tokyo.

ARMY 25314

Trans. 11-26-41 (6)

* Near Manila, P. I.

[94] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

November 22, 1941

Purple

#785

1. A camouflaged British cruiser (guessed to be 4 or 5 thousand tons; having 8 guns; name unknown) entered port on the morning of the 21st and anchored at Pier #7, sailing at 5 in the afternoon, destination unknown.

On the 21st an American transport (rumored to be the President Harrison) entered port and took on soldiers (number unknown) and materiel.

2. Boats anchored in port on the 22nd were:

Manila—Portland (entered the port on the 21st); Marblehead; Black Hawk; Isobel; Heron; Wohotosu*; Pisu*; one mine layer; 9 destroyers; 20 submarines.

Cavite—Houston (?); Canopus.

ARMY 25471

Trans. 11/29/41 (6)

* Kana spelling.

a (Nihro)

1941

together various reports, it appears that a large amount of property was removed from the "port area" during the "black-out" of the 21st. Forty or fifty civilian buses (carrying property of the Manila Electric Company) were seen in the Rizal district. Investigations are being made to find out if these buses were with troops.

At two o'clock in the afternoon of the 22nd, 60 light tanks (one gun, two ———) and 20 ammunition trucks were seen on Bridge 1). These light tanks and ammunition trucks were the 21st grouped near the headquarters of the "port area" command. It is conjectured that (troops ?) arrived on military barges entering the harbor. An English language "bulletin" stated that a large number of light tanks and ammunition trucks arrived at four and six o'clock on the afternoon of the 22nd in Zambayan in Bulacan Province and San Fernando in Pampanga Province. I believe that these had been landed sometime during the night. The final destination of these tanks and trucks is now unknown.

It is seen that there are two or three hundred American soldiers near the "port area" which have been imported at short notice, creating a hurried atmosphere. Also, troops have newly arrived at certain places in 1) the hills within the city. They are American reinforcements. Feeling among the people in Manila has become tense.

Trans. 12/1/41 (6)

1: Manila (Nihro)

1941

23rd a camouflaged submarine tender, the Holland * (1,000 tons, apparently a camouflaged Dutch vessel), entered port.

On 24th, 5 submarines left port, destination unknown.

On 25th, 7 destroyers left port, destination unknown.

25708 (H) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (6-AR)

1. S. S. HOLLAND (of 8000 tons).

1 (Nihro)

1941

On 26th, BUKKU*, 2 destroyers, 10 submarines, left port on 26th. Destination unknown.

25782 (H) Navy Trans. 12-5-41 (6-AR)

Hawk.

From: Manila (Nihro)
 To: Tokyo
 November 28, 1941
 Purple
 #799

Recently they have utilized a group of nine planes (one flight of six and another of three planes) in high-level scouting patrols over the city of Manila from four o'clock in the morning. In addition, three other planes fly over the city independently. Though in the morning and evening the weather is clear and windless, squalls come once a day.

ARMY 25764

Trans. 12/5/41 (6)

[97]

B. TRANSLATED AFTER 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: Manila (Nihro)
 To: Tokyo
 29 November 1941
 (Purple)
 #805

Ships in port on the 29th.

1. Manila:

Submarine tender WOTOSU and HORAN *

Submarines 190 class 5

Submarines 170 class 5

Submarines 180 class 5

(When the 180 class entered port there were 8 but 3 departed, destination unknown.)

Submarines 150 class 5

Submarines small size 4

Oilers, 2 (PISU * and TRINITY)

Destroyers, 2

Gunboats, 1 (BERU *)

2. Cavite:

TON *

PASU * (being repaired).

3. It was announced on the 27th that for a time the lights at Sangley Point in Cavite, at Manila, Baguio, and on the buoys in the bay would be turned out.

JD-1: 7207 25935

(H) Navy Trans. 12-8-41 (6-AR)

*Probably HOLLAND, PECOS, ISABEL.

[98] From: Manila (Nihro).
 To: Tokyo.
 1 December 1941
 (Purple)
 #812

Ships in port on the 1st.

1. A. Manila.

Submarine tender HOLLAND.

Submarines, small, 2.

ines, large, 6.

2 (PISU* and TRINITY).

ts, 1 (KASUBERU).

ASU* which was undergoing repairs at Cavite lies at or off ———.

hip, 1 (4000 ton class), taking on provisions.

marine tender WOTOSU.

e submarines and oyers, left port this morning, destination unknown.

can Navigation (10,000 ton class) entered port about from it are being unloaded 12 objects 1 meter in diameter eters in length. I think they are boilers. (I am making
).

Danish ship, the Manchén Maersk (10,000 ton class), ry Panama, present name unidentifiable (under inves-
red port this morning, about half loaded, it appeared.
eighters (6000 ton class) are at the pier taking on cargo, certainable.

or Kellogg (American registry, 6000 ton class), entered days ago, unloaded crude oil and is scheduled to load steban (requisitioned by the American Army) entered ning.

TON.*

25936

(H) Navy Trans. 12-8-41 (6-AR)

s, Canopus, and Houston.

SOUTHEAST ASIA AND NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES

A. TRANSLATED BEFORE 7 DECEMBER 1941

ia (Ishizawa)

41 side the department.)

transport planes turned out to be two DC 5's of KUNI-ow, according to a newspaper report, the KUNIRUMU^b ned planes are:

e DC 5 type

e DC 3 type

e DC 2 type

skheeds

e Sikorsky S 43 type e Guranmen^b G. E. 21 type laviland Dragon

e Fokker EHS 7 type

e Fokker LHU 12 type

And it is understood that the Kacfuera^b EMU has 4 of the DC 3 type.

While the Java class Cruiser was still at anchor in Puriooku^b harbor, on the morning of the 27th, one destroyer of the Bankerutu^b class entered port.

ARMY 21721

Trans. 9/3/41 (5)

^a Not available.
^b Kana spelling.

[101] From: Tokyo (Toyoda)

To: Singapore and Batavia

September 6, 1941

Purple

Cir. #1947 (Strictly Secret)

After you have made an immediate investigation on the following matters, please make a report, sending it to us in an appropriate manner.

1. Please inform me as to the various types of fishing entered into by Japanese from the point of view of their use in fishing of gasoline-powered vessels ("gasoline-powered vessels" is a military term for vessels known as "sea arks" which have a considerable cruising ability).

2. In regard to these fishing concerns who operates these so-called "sea arks":

- (a) List the number of vessels for each concern separately.
- (b) Give the tonnage of each vessel.
- (c) The speed of each vessel.
- (d) Whether or not they have wireless equipment.
- (e) Give the present position of each ship.
- (f) Should we require the use of these fishing vessels, please advise us as to the method by which we could transmit instructions for each vessel. (This is particularly important.)
- (g) The time of day we should wire these orders. (This is particularly important.)

[102] (h) Please ascertain the length of time required subsequent to receipt of orders to move from their present position to the southern part of French Indo-China.

ARMY 22009

Trans. 9/10/41 (6)

From: Tokyo

To: Singapore

October 22, 1941

Purple

#316

Strictly secret

From the Vice-Chief of General Staff. Through Chancellor TAHIRA please report the following two things concerning the air force now stationed in the Federated Malay States:

1. Their drills and battle maneuvers (aerial formations).
2. Investigate their organization.

ARMY 23902

Trans. 10-24-41 (S)

41

JURIYA from the Assistant Chief of Staff.

lease inspect and report on the air force in the Dutch rd to:

ning, formation, and aerial combat methods.

anization, types, number and location of planes.

es and number of planes being sent from England and d States.

Trans. 10/24/41 (S)

m: Batavia

41 in the Foreign Office.

in the Military.

vey to Assistant Chief of Staff: (Very secret).

—— message #25.

te and reliable information regarding the N. E. I. air yet in hand, I will merely report the main items:

concerning destroyer units:

tion —— 3 planes in small triangle formation (some-es in a diamond shaped formation) and three of these aking one unit.

their combat methods, they have been observed to work f having three pursuit planes attack light bombers from elow, attacking one plane at a time, but aside from this re not known.

concerning organization:

on headquarters —— in the army —— —— at
The first Bandoeng air force is at Malang in western e second air force seems to have charge of eastern and (its symbol is "LFX"). The number of planes stationed to be combat planes 9(?)2 planes —— —— light of planes: (The number of planes given in brackets liable).
—— ———.

estroyer) planes: ZATAISUHUOOKU and Curtis in—— —— reconnoiter and bombing plane—Curtis—out 5(?)).

pers: Glen Martin and Lockheed (about 150).

ts: DONIERU (about 20) and recent Catalina 5 sea-um and small types, about 50).

[104] (c) The number of planes for both army and navy total about 500 of first line planes, and adding second line planes it would come to between 700 and 1000, (including training planes). During the review of troops on 1 September, about 100 planes were flying over Batavia.

(d) Points at which planes are stationed: (numbers given are very unreliable). Also see Java message #18* in regard to stations.

(1) Aviation force #1. Bandon.

Light bombers, 30.

Combat planes, 70.

KARIJATE "LFX" and ——— parachute troops (temporarily created).

TIRIRITAN. Combat planes, 12; light bombers.

"LFX" BOITE SPORUHU, combat 70, light bombers, 6.

PUMXNBUKKU, (on south coast) ——— some light bombers.

(2) Aviation force #2. "LFX".

AARAN, quite a number of light bombers.

SOERABAJA, (north field), combat planes, 40; scout planes, 30; light bombers, 30.

MAOSTMATOI, (west of MAJION), light bomber "LFX".

JOKUJA, light bomber, combat plane.

(3) Naval planes:

SOERABAJA, flying boats, 20, (including some Catalinas recently arrived). Seaplanes, "LFX".

TANJONPURIOOKU, flying boats, "LFX".

(4) Outlying territories:

Menado, flying boats on the lake to the south, "LFX".

Anbon, flying boat, "LFX". Barikupapan, light bomber, "LFX".

[105] (3) The situation as regards replenishments and arrivals:

(a) Two Catalina flying boats were ferried from the United States in early part of September, and three the latter part of October.

(b) Others, it would seem, are being imported from time to time by American and Dutch ships, but the actual facts are not known.

(c) According to newspaper reports contracts have been made in the United States amounting to $24,000,000 for the purchase of two-motored medium weight bombers of the B type.

(d) The supplementary naval appropriation just passed provides 14,340,000 guilders for plane purchases for the purpose of creating a torpedo plane force.

(e) There seem to be supply depots at each of the flying fields at Soerabaja and Bandoeng; and assembling and repair of planes are done at these places.

(4) Other items:

(a) Of late volunteer flying corps are being organized in various places for the purpose of training second line pilots, and there are already about 40 each in training at Batavia and Soerabaja.

there has been an increase of plane accidents (especially in the Netherlands East Indies. This is thought to be due to efforts at expansion ———).

(F) Navy Trans. 10-30-41 (6-AR)

n: Honkong (Yano)

.941

Tokyo #542

been rumors to the effect that the Canada army troops sent to the Orient.

1 (morning) a Canadian Pacific line steamer came in by a British warship. This ship had on board about 1,000 soldiers, who were entered in the Kuryushinho barracks. These are Canadian volunteers and are of mixed nationality. Regarding the strength, etc. of this division a secret, but according to another 2000 are expected.

London, Ottawa. Relay to Shanghai and Nanking.

25481

(Y) Navy Trans. 11-28-41 (CN)

(Togo)

e

1941

— — — — that a squadron consisting of eight ships of the fleet and ten other boats set out from port on November 4th with 1,000 British troops, including many aviators, heading for the United States. Therefore, please pay particular attention to

Trans. 11-25-41 (6)

B. TRANSLATED AFTER 7 DECEMBER 1941

,

e

941

(Abstract)

mediate report on ships in port and movements of capital

26263

(A) Navy Trans. 12-13-41 (AR)

[108]

5. WEST COAST

[109]

A. TRANSLATED BEFORE 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: San Francisco (Muto)

To: Tokyo

September 18, 1941

J-19

#218

According to a spy report, the English warship Warspite arrived here from Bremerton on the ——— and is at present moored near the (naval arsenal at Mare Island ?). It has been determined that it requires two more months for repairs at Liverpool (my message #187*).

Relayed to ———, Los Angeles and Seattle.

ARMY 22689

Trans. 9/25/41 (2)

* Not available.

From: Seattle (Sato)

To: Tokyo

September 20, 1941

J-19

#123

1. The following warships are now at Bremerton:

The Warspite (repair work continuing. The upper part of the bridge and the left side of the bow spotted here and there with red paint.)

Maryland class—one ship (the bridge, turrets and other main armaments have been painted red. Also, they seem to be constructing mountings on the foreward main deck for ten anti-aircraft guns.

Saratoga class air-craft carrier, 1 ship (tied up alongside the pier.)

[110] One ship which appears to be a cruiser (it has two smoke stacks but we were unable to distinguish anything else.)

One other ship just arrived for repair.

2. The New Mexico class ship mentioned in message #101* has departed.

ARMY 22776

Trans. 9-27-41 (2)

* Not available.

From: San Francisco (Muto)

To: Washington

October 2, 1941

J-19

Circular #222. Message to Tokyo as #230.

1. One Oklahoma class battleship has arrived in port and is moored in front of the Bethlehem ship-building yard. No reconstruction work is going on on the outside but a great deal of repair work appears to be in progress within the ship.

2. It has been announced by the local headquarters of Naval District #(?) that the Hunter's Point shipyard, which was bought which has been undergoing repairs, will be taken over in the near future in advance of expectations. (Refer letter #216^a of last year.)

Washington, Los Angeles, Seattle and Honolulu.

Trans. 10-17-41 (2)

in Tokyo (Toyoda)

41

I would like to have you refer in your reports to the warships as follows:

As there are no great changes in the movement and bases, report on them at least once every ten days. In the daily intelligence, report such on each occasion.

On arrival or departure of American flagships of the fleet or more than ten vessels of any type arrive or depart from the base.

On arrival or departure of warships of countries other than the United States (give as detailed a report as possible on the class and name).

When anti-aircraft patrolling be inaugurated by naval planes, report it at once.

Trans. 10/29/41 (S) —

by (Sato)

41 city)

When warships entered Bremerton Naval Yard on the 21st: (repairs are to be made to her bridge), the Maryland which seems to be a cruiser.

— and Los Angeles.

Trans. 11/4/41 (7)

from: Seattle (Sato)

941
city)

On the occasion of Navy Day, the 27th, fifteen Coast Guard vessels entered the harbor here in single file. Their names were the Kane, Ciruma,^a the Brooks, the Fox (the above listed vessels have had their four-inch guns replaced by five-inch guns; all of these were brand-new ones), the Frigate Bird, the Crow, the Pintail, the Eagle 57, Batukei,^a the Butternut, the Amber, the YP 83, 87, 89, and 90.

310 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

ARMY 24997

Trans. 11/19/41 (2)

^a Kana spelling.

From: Seattle (Sato)

To: Tokyo

November 10, 1941

J-19 (Priority)

#165 (Message to Washington Circular #80.)

Vessels anchored in Bremerton on the 9th: Saratoga, Warspite, Colorado, (I have confirmed that the latter ship is the one which I have reported on successive occasions as the Maryland) and the Charleston.

Relayed to ——— and Los Angeles.

ARMY 24990

Trans. 11/19/41 (2)

[113]

B. TRANSLATED AFTER 7 DECEMBER 1941

From: Seattle

To: Tokyo

December 6, 1941

PA-K2

#184 (Urgent intelligence.)

1. The ships at anchor in Bremerton on the 5th were the Warspite (came out of the dock and at present is tied up at a pier) and the Colorado.

2. The Saratoga sailed the same day.

ARMY 25876

Trans. 12/8/41 (2-TT)

[114]

6. MISCELLANEOUS

[115] From: Havana (Nanjo)

To: Tokyo

August 2, 1941

J-19

#44 (Strictly secret)

Between the 16th and the 24th of July, the following American war-ships were anchored in the naval harbor of Guantanamo: 2 battle-ships; 4 light cruisers; 4 destroyers; 2 Coast Guard cutters; 2 (long range ?) heavy bombing planes.

ARMY 23382

Trans. 10-13-41 (2)

San Francisco
1941

431 report beginning December 1st on the following:

nationality, ship's name, port from which it departed, (or at ived), and port of destination, (or from where it started), arture, etc., in detail, of all foreign commercial and war in the Pacific, Indian Ocean, and South China Sea.

25710

(Y) Navy Trans. 12-4-41 (2)

7. OTHER MESSAGES OF PARTICULAR INTEREST, TRANSMITTED BEFORE 1 AUGUST 1941

From: Tokyo (Matuoka)
ington (Koshi)
ry, 1941

parts—complete)

#43 *.

formation we particularly desire with regard to intelligence
; U. S. and Canada, are the following:

ngthening or supplementing of military preparations on the oast and the Hawaii area; amount and type of stores and ; alterations to air ports (also carefully note the clipper p and plane movements (particularly of the large bombers planes).

ether or not merchant vessels are being requisitioned by the nent (also note any deviations from regular schedules), and ; any remodelling is being done to them.

lling up of army and navy personnel, their training, (outlook euvers) and movements.

ords and acts of minor army and navy personnel.

utlook of drafting men from the view-point of race. Particuwhether Negroes are being drafted, and if so, under what ions.

ersonnel being graduated and enrolled in the army and navy viation service schools.

Whether or not any troops are being dispatched to the South
c by transports; if there are such instances, give description.

utlook of the developments in the expansion of arms and the action set-up; the capacity of airplane production; increase in anks of labor.

General outlooks on Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, with par-ar stress on items involving plane movements and shipment of ary supplies to those localities.

. Outlook on U. S. defense set-ups.

1:

738 1030 (continued)

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (1)

312 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

[118] 12. Contacts (including plane connections) with Central and South America and the South Pacific area. Also outlook on shipment of military supplies to those areas.

Please forward copies of this message as a "Minister's Instruction" to New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland (Chicago or New Orleans?) Vancouver, Ottawa, and Honolulu. Also to Mexico City and Panama as reference material.

JD-1:

#14738 1030 15 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (1)

[119] From: Tokyo (Matuoka).

To: Honolulu (Riyoji).

15 February, 1941

(J17 K6)

#008

Re my #73 to Washington*.

In gathering intelligence material, your office will pay particular attention to paragraphs 1 and 2.

JD-1:

#14729 1035 15 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (S)

*JD-1 : 1030—Outlines details of intelligence information desired.
(SIS #14738)

From: Tokyo (Matuoka)

To: San Francisco (Riyoji)

15 February, 1941

(J17 K6)

#020

Secret.

Re my #73 to Washington*.

Will your office please pay particular attention to gathering intelligence material which will fall under the classifications outlined in paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, and 12.

JD-1: 1031

#14733 15 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-21 (S)

*JD-1 : 1030—Outlines details of intelligence information desired.
(SIS #14738)

[120] From: Tokyo (Matuoka)

To: Los Angeles (Riyoji)

15 February, 1941

(J17 K6)

#013

Secret.

Re my #73 to Washington*.

tion with collecting intelligence material, your office will lar attention to contents of paragraphs 1, 2, 8, 9 and 11.

5 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (S)

o—Outlines details of intelligence information desired.
 8)

yo (Matuoka).
 York (Riyoji).
 ry, 1941

#73 to Washington*.
 ering intelligence material, your office will pay particular to contents of paragraphs 4, 6, 7, and 9.
 1033

15 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (S)

1030—Outlines details of intelligence information desired.
 4738)

Tokyo (Japanese Foreign Minister). ncouver (Japanese Consul) uary, 1941
 3)

t.
 y #73 to Washington*.
 athering intelligence material, your office will lay particular on paragraph 10.
 1034

6 15 February, 1941

Navy Trans. 2-20-41 (S)

: 1030—Outlines details of intelligence information desired.
 #14738)

From: Tokyo (Japanese Foreign Minister)
 Vancouver
 ary 26, 1941
 36

my #8.*
 ase wire reports covering the positions and movements also of the of Canada's Pacific Fleet. Please transmit to Ottawa and from office — to the Naval Attache.

FY 15310

Trans. 3/18/41 (S)

re S. I. S. #14738. Directs Vancouver, in gathering intelligence material, to lay ular stress on general outlooks in Alaska and Aleutian Islands, especially on items ring plane movements and shipments of military supplies to those localities.

From: Tokyo (Matsuoka)

To: Singapore

May 16, 1941

PA-K2

#120 (Strictly Secret)

According to a telegram from our consul in Colombo, a New York Reuters dispatch states that it is reported that the United States has already stationed a fleet in the Indian Ocean. Please pay great attention to the movements of American warships.

ARMY 19894

Trans. 7/23/41 (6)

[122] From: Tokyo (Jap Foreign Minister)

To: Mexico (Koshi)

23 June 1941

(Purple)

#106

Regarding the plans for procuring maps of the Panama Canal and vicinity, please have career attache Kihara make an official trip to Panama. (It might be well to have secretary Yoshimizu accompany him.)

Have the maps taken out by plane, and then have Sato, the Naval Attache, bring them to Tokyo with him when he returns.

Furthermore, since the Panama Legation, in their #62* from Panama to me, mentioned the question of a trip, get in touch with them regarding date and time of arrival. (American surveillance will unquestionably be vigilant. There are also some suspicions that they read some of our codes. Therefore, we wish to exercise the utmost caution in accomplishing this mission. Also, any telegrams exchanged between you and Panama should be very simple.)

18581

JD-1:3198

Navy trans. 6-24-41 (S)

*Available, not yet translated—dated 17 June.

i. e. "Kantan"—may also mean "Brief, short"; hence, cryptographically secure, or may infer that they should be in plain language, but innocuous in appearance.

[123] From: Vladivostok

To: Tokyo

25 June 1941

(Red)

#230

There has been no great change in conditions here up to the 25th. Emergency measures are in force, the regulation of commodities and supplies to the defense force ———. The fleet and the air corps began practice on the 24th. The attitude toward Japan (?) has undergone no change. Some civilians talk to the officials.

Details of military conditions are as follows:

1. Conditions on the 22nd.

(1) About 7:30 p. m. emergency orders were issued to the army and navy sentries who had gone out for the evening and they could be seen everywhere in the city running to their posts of duty.

out 9 p. m. one truck loaded to capacity with armoured and following this three navy trucks loaded with 4-turret machine guns could be seen moving out to guard (duty).
 fleet was inactive and nothing out of the ordinary could . The corps that had charge of air defense seemed to be at tions on the 23rd.

tary trucks were going back and forth constantly in con-
 h the air defense.

fleet was still inactive, but part of it engaged in target radio broadcast throughout the day concerning coastal itions on the 24th:

change on the land front from the previous day. The numbers in the city seemed to be about as before.

94 18959 (continued) (H) Navy Trans. 7-2-41 (6-AR)

(2) The warships that had been in the harbor for the al days sailed out early in the morning apparently for praceuvres.

he air corps began making flights from this morning. The ho are on duty in the city in ordinary times began practicing it.

25th.

o change during the forenoon.

he fleet had already gone out for practice maneuvers but the s left in the harbor at 8 a. m. were as follows:

light cruiser

mine layer

submarine tender

destroyers

torpedo boats

10-20 submarines

5 special service ships of these were being repaired.

(H) Navy Trans. 7-2-41 (6-AR)

From: Vladivostok

okyo

7 1941

)

port on recent naval activities in this area.

nce the beginning of the German-Soviet war the naval authorities have tightened up on watch and are engaged in naval preparaby enforcing various exercises to meet any eventuality. However, exercises are limited to only one section of the force for there many ships which are undergoing repairs. Evidently the preparas are intended for defense against Japan.

.) Activities of the fleet.

A part of the ERI type and SICHA type submarines assigned to this area appear to be operating somewhere else, for there are comparatively few submarines in port at present. However, the remainder of submarines, the torpedo boat division, mine layer division, mine sweeper division, high speed torpedo craft division, etc. are still here and are either undergoing repairs or are engaged in exercises. The first phase of exercises ended with the basic maneuvers in early June and the 2nd phase is already underway. Lately the departure of craft from the bay has become infrequent but since the war, those craft which do go out seldom return, even though it be Saturday or Sunday. Not only this, but planes of types SB, E15, E16 and OFUBOOHU are quite active and it appears that they are engaged in exercises with the fleet. However, the exercises appear to be greatly handicapped by so many ships being placed under repairs.

19616

JD-1: 3709

(A) Navy Trans. 7-16-41 (3)

[126] From: Manila (Nihro)

To: Tokyo

25 July 1941

(Purple)

#433

The United States is making a concentrated effort to strengthen Philippine defenses. There are at present 460 planes, and about 1300 pilots. Army force numbers 10,000 and an effort is being made to increase this number. The Philippine Army numbers about 130,000 including those on active duty, reserve lists and the gendarmerie. In an emergency, about 100,000 men could be turned over to U. S. officers to command, it is estimated by the bureau concerned.

20387

JD-1: 4155

(D) Navy Trans. 8-1-41 (6-AR)

EXHIBIT NO. 3

NAVY DEPARTMENT

EXTENSION NUMBER	ADDRESSES	PRECEDENCE
	ASTERISK (*) MAILGRAM ADDRESS
SOLL VENBER 1941	COM 12.	PRIORITY
		ROUTINE
		RRRRR
		DEFERRED
RG N	CINCPAC CINCAF COM 14 COM 16	PRIORITY
		ROUTINE
		RRRRR
		DEFERRED
DISPATCH WILL BE TRANSMITTED WITH DEFERRED PRECEDENCE AND AS ADMINISTRATIVE.		IF OPERATIONAL CHECK BELOW
252203 CR 0600		☐
ME:	DATE	TIME
		OCT 20

NOTES PLEASE LEAVE ABOUT ONE INCH CLEAR SPACE BEFORE BEGINNING TEXT

PACIFIC SHIPPING THRU TORRES
CINCPAC AND CINCAF PROVIDE NECESSARY
FOR YOUR DISPATCH 230258.

TOP SECRET

ON 12 16 38 38W CNO FILE
200P FILE

BE A TRUE COPY.

Joseph W. Lindahl
Lt. Comdr

SECRET

in Watch Officer in person. (See Art. 76 (4) NAVREGS.)

MASTER

EXHIBIT NO. 4

(Exhibit No. 4 is a map of the Hawaiian Islands showing the record of early flights 7 December 1941 obtained by Opana radar detector station. This map is printed as Item No. 1 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

EXHIBIT NO. 5ARMY EXHIBIT*INDEX TO ARMY EXHIBIT

Section	Subject	Page ¹
I.	Unit Locations by District, Hawaiian Department, 7 December 1941.....	1
II.	Strength Report by Unit and Station, Hawaiian Department, 30 November 1941.....	2-5
III.	Principal Weapons of Hawaiian Coast Artillery Command, 7 December 1941.....	6
IV.	Copy of Record of Early Flights, 7 December 1941, Obtained by Opana Detector Station.....	7
	Copy of Mobile Detector Station Records Prior to 7:00 a. m., 7 December 1941.....	8
V.	Status of Combat Planes, Before and After the Attack, 7 December 1941.....	9
VI.	Time of Take-offs by Airfield after Beginning of Attack 7 December 1941.....	10
VII.	Action and Disposition of Antiaircraft Batteries, 7 December 1941...	11-12
VIII.	Army Casualties, 7 December 1941.....	13

[1]

SECTION IKauai District:

3d Battalion, 299th Infantry (less Companies "K" & "L") and attached troops.

Company "C", 299th Infantry.

1st Platoon, Signal Company, Aircraft Warning.

Air Corps Detachment.

Maui District:

1st Battalion, 299th Infantry (less Company "C") and attached troops.

Company "K", 299th Infantry (MOLOKAI).

4th Platoon Signal Company, Aircraft Warning.

Air Corps Detachment.

¹ Pages referred to are represented by italic figures enclosed by brackets and indicate pages of original Exhibit.

t: on, 299th Infantry and attached troops.
achment, KILAUEA MILITARY CAMP.
Signal Company, Aircraft Warning.
Detachment.

ry Division (less 299th Infantry Regiment).
ry Division.
oast Artillery Command.
Air Force.

r Battalion (Aviation).
pany
, 1st Separate Chemical Battalion.
uck Train.

SECTION II

PORT BY UNIT AND STATION, HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT

30 NOVEMBER 1941.

	Enlisted	Officer		Enlisted	Officer
th			[5] Fort Shafter—Oahu:
...	67	3	9th Sig Serv Co.....	327	1
...	88	22	53rd CA Brig.....	181	14
...	262	37	64th CA.....	2,085	73
...	350	59	Hq Ft Shafter.....	0	16
...			Hq Med Depot.....	29	3
...	24	2	Hq Haw Dept.....	230	153
...	1,313	56	MP Co, Haw Dept.....	156	2
...	1,337	58	Det QM Ft Shafter.....	155	0
...			Det MD Ft Shafter.....
...			Det FD Ft Shafter.....
...	161	3	Fort Weaver—Oahu: 97th CA..	3,163	262
...	20	3		329	17
...	279	26	Hawaiian Ordnance Depot—
...	119	0	Oahu:
...	82	0	61st Ord Co.....	62	2
...	64	0	62nd Ord Co.....	68	2
...	61	-----	63rd Ord Co.....	65	1
...	786	32	74th Ord Co.....	39	1
...	128	5	Hq Haw Ord Dpt.....	0	11
...			Vet Genl Hosp.....	9	2
...				243	19
...	313	8	Hickam Field—Oahu:
...	169	5	8th Bomb Group.....	1,264	146
...	29	2	8th Cml Co Av.....	115	3
...	0	16	11th Bomb Group.....	930	126
...	511	31	12th Sig Plat AB.....	27	1
...			13th QM Co Tr.....	67	2
...	712	28	17th AB Group.....	940	24
...	507	10	Hq 18th Bomb Wing.....	173	16
...	463	12	19th Trans Sqd.....	140	7
...	339	15	39th QM Co.....	37	1
...	76	9	324 Sig Av Co.....	73	4
...	2,097	74	407th Sig Avn Co.....	72	3
...			428th Sig Avn Co.....	73	3
...	347	11	481st Ord Co Av.....	118	4
...	435	13	482nd Ord Co Av.....	129	4
...	70	7	740 Ord Co Av.....	26	1
...	9	14	Haw Communs.....	45	1
...	852	45	Haw Air Depot.....	0	21
			Weather Haw.....	31	2
			Hq, Hq Sqn Haw AF.....	242	41
			Det FD & MD Hickam
			Fld.....	167	0
			Det QM Haw Dept.....	161	11
			Sta Hosp.....	0	23
			Hq Hickam Fld.....	0	34
			Tow Target Det.....	122	8
				4,304	428

20 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

	Enlisted	Officer		Enlisted	Officer
lo—Hawaii: 299th Inf.....	453	15	Schofield Barracks—Oahu—
mestead Field—Molokai:			Continued
99th Inf.....	94	3	65th Engr Bn.....	521	19
Honolulu—Oahu:			72nd Sep QM Co.....	23	2
299th Inf.....	5	9	89th FA Bn.....	378	15
Dist Engr Off.....	0	16	90th FA Bn.....	480	20
Kam Schools.....	1	1	97th CA.....	475	24
McKinley High.....	2	2	98th CA.....	1,154	52
Punahou Academy.....	2	1	298th Inf.....	856	63
Roosevelt High.....	0	1	299th Inf.....	28	1
Univ of Hawaii.....	0	3	804th Engr Bn Av.....	610	21
Finance Off USA.....	5	3	Haw Pack Train.....	221	2
			Det Sta Vet.....	17	0
	15	36	Haw Cml WF Dept.....	18	2
hue—Kauai: 299th Inf.....	191	9	Sig Co Air Warn.....	348	13
hofield Barracks—Oahu:			Sta Hosp.....	275	137
Co "A" 1st Cml Bn.....	207	3	Hq Det Sch Brks.....	338	45
3rd Engr Bn.....	523	19	Rec Center.....	800	0
8th FA Bn.....	391	15		21,273	906
11th FA Bn.....	590	19	[5] Tripler General—Oahu:
11th QM Bn.....	141	1	Det QM TGH.....	278	126
11th Tank Bn.....	122	4	Det MD TGH.....
11th Ord Co.....	133	2	Walluku—Maui: 299th Inf.....	430	25
13th FA Bn.....	392	15
19th Inf.....	2,090	56	Wheeler Field—Oahu:
21st Inf.....	2,225	62	Hq 14th Pur Wing.....	120	8
24th Inf Div.....	185	20	15th Pur Group.....	790	82
24th Med Bn.....	92	8	18th Pur Group.....	848	106
24th Sig Co.....	133	4	18th AB Group.....	752	54
24th Div Arty.....	101	10	45th Sig Plat.....	23	1
25th Inf Div.....	184	23	307th Sig Co Av.....	71	3
25th Med Bn.....	91	8	674th Ord Co.....	49	2
26th Sig Co.....	136	5	696th Ord Co.....	54	3
25th Div Arty.....	146	12	741st Ord Co.....	36	2
27th Inf.....	2,135	54	Det QM Haw Dep.....	124	7
33rd Sep QM Co.....	191	2	Det MD WH Fld.....	37	11
34th Engrs.....	1,243	40	Det FD WH Fld.....
35th Inf.....	2,122	63	Det 39th QM Co.....	74	0
52nd FA Bn.....	392	16		2,978	279
63rd FA Bn.....	363	15		40,469	2,490
64th FA Bn.....	403	14
and total:
Enlisted.....				40,469
Officers.....				2,490
					42,959

6]

SECTION III

PRINCIPAL WEAPONS OF HAWAIIAN COAST ARTILLERY COMMAND

16" guns.	4 3" seacoast guns.
14" guns (obsolescent).	36 155 mm guns.
12" guns (2 obsolescent).	86 3" antiaircraft guns (70% mo-
12" mortars (obsolete).	mobile).
8 8" guns.	20 37 mm antiaircraft guns.
6" guns (obsolescent).	107 caliber .50 antiaircraft guns.

1

SECTION V

of planes, before and after the attack, 7 December 1941

HICKAM FIELD

avy mb- r	Medium bomber		Light bomber		Pursuit			Observation
	B-18*	B-12*	A-20	A-12*	P-40	P-36*	P-26*	O-47	O-49	OA-8	OA-9
17
6	20		5
6	12		7
12	32		12
4	10		5
4	10		5
8	20		10
4	12		2

FIELD (including planes temporarily assigned to Haleiwa)

1	1		2	52	20	10	1		1	3
0	2		0	35	19	4	0		0	0
1	3		2	87	39	14	1		1	3
1	1		1	27	16	4	1		1	1
0	2		1	30	19	4	0		0	0
1	3		2	57	35	8	1		1	1
				30	4	6				2

BELLOWS FIELD

				12			4	2
				0			2	0
				12			6	2
				6			4	1
				4			2	0
				10			6	1
				2				1

SECTION VI

FIELD AFTER BEGINNING OF ATTACK, 7 DEC. 1941

Hickam Field

1:30 p. m. 2 B-18's
3:20 p. m. 3 B-17's

Wheeler Field

9:30 a. m. 5 P-40's
6 P-36's
12:00 noon 5 P-40's
3:00 p. m. 11 P-40's

Bellows Field

9:50 a. m. 1 O-47	3:00 p. m. 3 O-47's
10:40 a. m. 3 O-47's	3:49 p. m. 6 P-40's
12:45 p. m. 5 P-40's

Haleiwa Field

8:15 to 10:00 a. m., Two flights, each consisting of 4
P-40's and 1 P-36.

[11]

SECTION VII

ACTION AND DISPOSITION OF 53RD CA BRIGADE (ANTI-AIRCRAFT) ON
7 DECEMBER 1941

64th CA (AA) Regiment

All 3-inch gun batteries and automatic weapons batteries of the 64th CA (AA) were alerted at Fort Shafter at 8:15 a. m. and were in position as follows:

Battery "A" (Searchlight) at Honolulu, 10:00 a. m.
 "B" (3-inch) at Aiea, 10:00 a. m.
 "C" (3-inch) at Allamānu, 10:30 a. m.
 "D" (3-inch) south of Allamānu, 11:00 a. m.
 "E" (Searchlight) at Ewa-Pearl Harbor, time not known.
 "F" (3-inch) at Pearl City, 11:05 a. m.
 "G" (3-inch) at Ahua Point, 10:30 a. m.
 "H" (3-inch) at Ft. Weaver, 11:45 a. m.
 "I" (37 mm.) at Allamānu.¹
 "K" (37 mm.) at Hickam Field.¹
 "L" (37 mm.) at Hickam Field.¹
 "M" (37 mm.) at Wheeler Field, 11:55 a. m.

97th CA (AA) Regiment

Batteries of the 97th CA (AA), except Battery "A" at Fort Kamehameha, were stationed at Ft. Weaver. They were alerted between 7:55 and 8:10 a. m. and were in position ready to fire as follows:

Battery "A" (Searchlight) at Ft. Kamehameha, 8:34 a. m. (Engaged enemy with small arms at 8:34 a. m.)
 "F" (3-inch) at Ft. Kamehameha, 8:55 a. m. (Engaged enemy at 9:00 a. m.)
 "G" (3-inch) at Ft. Weaver, 8:30 a. m. (Engaged enemy at 8:30 a. m.)
 "H" (3-inch) at Ft. Barrett, 10:20 a. m.
 "B", "C", "D", "E", and 3d Bn not yet organized.

98th CA (AA) Regiment

Batteries of the 98th CA (AA) Regiment were stationed at Schofield Barracks with the exception of Battery "D" which was stationed at Camp Malakole. They were in position ready to fire as follows:

Battery "A" (Searchlight) at Schofield Barracks, time not known.
 "B" (3-inch) at Schofield Barracks, 9:55 a. m.
 "C" (3-inch) at Schofield Barracks, 10:30 a. m.
 "D" (3-inch) at Puuloa Dump, South of Ewa, 11:45 a. m.
 "E" not yet organized.
 "F" and "G" (3-inch) at Kaneohe Naval Air Station, 1:15 p. m.
 "H" (3-inch) at Waipahu High School, 1:30 p. m.
 3rd Bn 98th CA (AA) not yet organized.

¹ Known only that batteries were in position before 11:45 a. m.

(AA) Regiment (less 3rd Bn.)

251st at Camp Malakole were alerted at 8:05 a. m.
 1st Battalion were in position and ready for action as chlight) at Ewa, time not known.

h) at West Loch, 11:45 a. m.

h) at Ewa Beach, 11:45 a. m.

h) at South of Ewa, 11:45 a. m.

l.) at Navy Yard, Pearl Harbor, 12:41 p. m.

m.) at Navy Recreation Area, 12:30 p. m.

m.) at Tank Farm, Schofield Barracks, 11:00 a. m.

m.) at Navy Yard, 12:05 p. m.

m 55th CA was at Sand Island when the attack started and with 3-inch guns at 8:15 a. m., shooting down two at time.

SECTION VIII

ES, 7 DECEMBER 1941, HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT

-----	194
-----	360
-----	22
-----	2
Law 490) -----	1
-----	21
-----	600

the foregoing Sections I-VIII, Exhibit No. 5, in-maps and diagrams:)

acific Ocean showing distances in miles between San Francisco, California; Honolulu, T. H., and Johnston, Palmyra, and Christmas Islands; and d Tokyo, Japan. This map is printed as Item
 S-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint n Islands showing disposition of Army forces.

 l as Item No. 3 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRAgs of Joint Committee.)

owing Army installations, including airfields.
 as Item No. 4 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRA-s of Joint Committee.)

eler Field, Oahu, T. H., showing number and g Japanese planes, times of attacks, disposition nes, and locations of bomb explosions. This Item No. 5 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS t Committee.)

im Field, Oahu, T. H., showing number and g Japanese planes, times of attacks, disposition locations of bomb explosions. This diagram
 No. 6 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Committee.)

vs Field, Oahu, T. H., showing number and g Japanese planes, times of attacks and disnes. This diagram is printed as Item No. 7
 STRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Com-

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Wrecked main PX, Hickam Field, 11:30 AM.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Machine-gunned army truck. Note bits of flesh and shattered rifle in foreground.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Wreckage of pursuit ship after bombing.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Firemen preparing to make attempt to extinguish oil flames.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Wrecked P-40 at Bellows Field, machine-gunned on ground.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Damage to barracks, Wheeler Field.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hickam Field, Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Barracks burning after being attacked by Japanese bombers.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Rear view of Hangar No. 11, Hickam Field.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Hangar No. 3 bombed by Japanese, Wheeler Field, Hawaii.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Base Engineering Building, Wheeler Field, Hawaii.

First Army photos of the bombing of Hawaii, Dec. 7, 1941. Remains of ten barracks after fire caused by attack of Jap bombers. Practically all were filled when barrack was machine gunned. Wheeler Field, T. H.

Item
Item
Item
Item
Item
Item

Item
Item

Item
Item
Item
Item

Item

Item

Item
Item

Item

Item

Item

EXHIBIT NO. 6NAVY EXHIBIT

TABLE OF CONTENTS

of United States Pacific Fleet 7 December 1941 tances in Pacific Area.
ing Areas, Hawaiian Area.
llations, Hawaiian Area.
rison Tables.
g Disposition of the United States Pacific Fleet
M. on 7 December 1941.
argo Carriers.
o Pearl Harbor Entrance Channel and Inshore
a.
Anchorage Plan, 7 December 1941.
at Pearl Harbor, 7 December 1941.
Flown in Hawaiian Area.
narizing Number of Japanese Planes Taking ttack.
y and Marine Corps Aircraft in Hawaiian Area
r 1941.
ng Disposition of Aircraft, Hawaiian Area,
r 1941.
ircraft Guns by Ship Classes.
United States Naval Forces and Installations, 1941.
Naval and Marine Corps Aircraft Losses. of Japanese Task Force Allocated to Pearl ack.
ic Showing Track of Japanese Striking Force.
Flown in Hawaiian Area and Track of Japan-Force.
ese Plane Attack Routes over OAHU.

ITEM 1

(Item 1 is a map of the North Pacific Ocean showing the disposition of the United States Pacific Fleet on 7 December, 1941. This map is printed as Item No. 8 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Committee)

ITEM 2

TABLE OF DISTANCES

table presents distances between important U. S. and other points in the Pacific Ocean (one nautical land miles; all distances are shortest navigable

Nautical miles	MIDWAY to—Con.	Nautical miles
2, 091	Guam.....	2, 301
2, 278	Salpan.....	2, 195
ong Beach) 2, 228	Manila.....	3, 685
4, 685	WAKE to—
2, 409	Yokohama.....	1, 740
1, 134	Hitokappu (tunnel).....	1, 865
1, 904	Sasebo.....	2, 255
711	Ominato.....	1, 025
1, 660	Kwajalein.....	636
190	Eniwetok.....	533
959	Truk.....	1, 117
2, 124	Guam.....	1, 334
1, 990	Manila.....	2, 772
3, 028	MANILA to—
2, 260	Pearl Harbor.....	4, 767
4, 767	Midway.....	3, 685
okosuka) 3, 397	Wake.....	2, 772
4, 072	Guam.....	1, 499
3, 683	San Francisco.....	6, 221
3, 370	Palao.....	930
n (Tunnel) 3, 150	Takao.....	495
	Sama (Hainan).....	720
2, 250	Sasebo.....	1, 349
ennel) 2, 035	Yokohama.....	1, 758
2, 898	Shanghai.....	1, 156
2, 260	Hong Kong.....	631
1, 034	Singapore.....	1, 330
1, 425	Saigon.....	907
2, 146	Davao to Palao.....	600

ITEM 3

ap of the Hawaiian Islands showing fleet operating Hawaiian area. This Map is printed as Item No. 9 in ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Com-

ITEM 3A

map of the Hawaiian Islands showing U. S. Naval In- the Hawaiian area. This map is printed as Item No. ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint

ITEM 4

Time comparison tables for each hour of the day at Greenwich, Washington, D. C., San Francisco, Hawaii, Japan, and Manila on December 6, 7 and 8, 1941

D. C.	SAN FRANCISCO	HAWAII	JAPAN	MANILA
00 ↑	1600 ↑	1330 ↑	0900 ↑	0800 ↑
00	1700 ↑	1430 ↑	1000 ↑	0900 ↑
00	1800 ↑	1530 ↑	1100 ↑	1000 ↑
00	1900 ↑	1630 ↑	1200 ↑	1100 ↑
00	2000 ↑	1730 ↑	1300 ↑	1200 ↑
00	2100 ↑	1830 ↑	1400 ↑	1300 ↑
00	2200 ↑	1930 ↑	1500 ↑	1400 ↑
00	2300 ↑	2030 ↑	1600 ↑	1500 ↑
00	0000 ↑	2130 ↑	1700 ↑	1600 ↑
00	0100 ↑	2230 ↑	1800 ↑	1700 ↑
00	0200 ↑	2330 ↑	1900 ↑	1800 ↑
00	0300 ↑	0030 ↑	2000 ↑	1900 ↑
00	0400 ↑	0130 ↑	2100 ↑	2000 ↑
00	0500 ↑	0230 ↑	2200 ↑	2100 ↑
00	0600 ↑	0330 ↑	2300 ↑	2200 ↑
00	0700 ↑	0430 ↑	0000 ↑	2300 ↑
00	0800 ↑	0530 ↑	0100 ↑	0000 ↑
00	0900 ↑	0630 ↑	0200 ↑	0100 ↑
00	1000 ↑	0730 ↑	0300 ↑	0200 ↑
00	1100 ↑	0830 ↑	0400 ↑	0300 ↑
00	1200 ↑	0930 ↑	0500 ↑	0400 ↑
00	1300 ↑	1030 ↑	0600 ↑	0500 ↑
00	1400 ↑	1130 ↑	0700 ↑	0600 ↑
00	1500 ↑	1230 ↑	0800 ↑	0700 ↑

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

SAN FRANCISCO	HAWAII	JAPAN	MANILA	GREENWICH
1600 ↑	1330 ↑	0900 ↑	0800 ↑	0000
1700	1430	1000	0900	0100
1800	1530	1100	1000	0200
1900	1630	1200	1100	0300
2000	1730	1300	1200	0400
2100	1830	1400	1300	0500
2200	1930	1500	1400	0600
2300	2030	1600	1500	0700
0000	2130	1700	1600	0800
0100	2230	1800	1700	0900
0200	2330	1900	1800	1000
0300	0030	2000	1900	1100
0400	0130	2100	2000	1200
0500	0230	2200	2100
0600	0330	2300	2200
0700	0430	0000	2300
0800	0530	0100	0000
0900	0630	0200	0100
1000	0730	0300	0200
1100	0830	0400	0300
1200	0930	0500	0400
1300	1030	0600	0500
1400	1130	0700	0600
1500	1230	0800	0700

D. C.	SAN FRANCISCO	HAWAII	JAPAN	MANILA
00	1600	1330	0900	0800
00	1700	1430	1000	0900
00	1800	1530	1100	1000
00	1900	1630	1200	1100
00	2000	1730	1300	1200
00	2100	1830	1400	1300
00	2200	1930	1500	1400
00	2300	2030	1600	1500
00	0000	2130	1700	1600
00	0100	2230	1800	1700
00	0200	2330	1900	1800
00	0300	0030	2000	1900
00	0400	0130	2100	2000
00	0500	0230	2200	2100
00	0600	0330	2300	2200
00	0700	0430	0000	2300
00	0800	0530	0100	0000
00	0900	0630	0200	0100
00	1000	0730	0300	0200
00	1100	0830	0400	0300
00	1200	0930	0500	0400
00	1300	1030	0600	0500
00	1400	1130	0700	0600
00	1500	1230	0800	0700

1. TABLE FOR CONVERTING NAVY TIME TO CIVILIAN TIME FOR EACH HALF HOUR OF THE DAY.

TIME CONVERSION

NAVY	CIVILIAN	NAVY	CIVILIAN
0000	MIDNIGHT	1200	NOON
0030	00:30 A.M.	1230	12:30 P.M.
0100	1:00 A.M.	1300	1:00 P.M.
0130	1:30 A.M.	1330	1:30 P.M.
0200	2:00 A.M.	1400	2:00 P.M.
0230	2:30 A.M.	1430	2:30 P.M.
0300	3:00 A.M.	1500	3:00 P.M.
0330	3:30 A.M.	1530	3:30 P.M.
0400	4:00 A.M.	1600	4:00 P.M.
0430	4:30 A.M.	1630	4:30 P.M.
0500	5:00 A.M.	1700	5:00 P.M.
0530	5:30 A.M.	1730	5:30 P.M.
0600	6:00 A.M.	1800	6:00 P.M.
0630	6:30 A.M.	1830	6:30 P.M.
0700	7:00 A.M.	1900	7:00 P.M.
0730	7:30 A.M.	1930	7:30 P.M.
0800	8:00 A.M.	2000	8:00 P.M.
0830	8:30 A.M.	2030	8:30 P.M.
0900	9:00 A.M.	2100	9:00 P.M.
0930	9:30 A.M.	2130	9:30 P.M.
1000	10:00 A.M.	2200	10:00 P.M.
1030	10:30 A.M.	2230	10:30 P.M.
1100	11:00 A.M.	2300	11:00 P.M.
1130	11:30 A.M.	2330	11:30 P.M.

ITEM V

J. S. Pacific Fleet at 8 a. m. on 7 Dec. 1941 (except ships in Pearl Harbor which are listed separately)

Ship name	Ship No.	Remarks
Enterprise.....	CV 6.....	This group of ships was designated Task Force Eight. Location was about 200 miles west of Pearl Harbor returning from Wake Island. Ships consisted of the following types: Aircraft Carrier..... 1 Heavy Cruisers..... 3 Destroyers..... 9 Total..... 13
Northampton.....	CA 26.....
Chester.....	CA 27.....
Salt Lake City.....	CA 25.....
Balch.....	DD 363.....
Maury.....	DD 401.....
Craven.....	DD 382.....
Gridley.....	DD 380.....
McCall.....	DD 400.....
Dunlap.....	DD 384.....
Benham.....	DD 397.....
Fanning.....	DD 385.....
Ellet.....	DD 298.....
Lexington.....	CV 2.....	This group of ships was designated Task Force Twelve. Location was about 460 miles from Midway Island enroute Midway. Ships consisted of the following types: Aircraft Carrier..... 1 Heavy Cruisers..... 3 Destroyers..... 5 Total..... 9
Chicago.....	CA 29.....
Portland.....	CA 33.....
Astoria.....	CA 34.....
Porter.....	DD 356.....
Drayton.....	DD 366.....
Flusser.....	DD 368.....
Lamson.....	DD 367.....
Mahan.....	DD 364.....
Indianapolis.....	CA 35.....	This group of ships was designated Task Force Three. Ships consisted of the following types: Heavy Cruiser..... 1 Destroyer Mine-sweepers..... 5 Total..... 6
Hopkins.....	DMS 13.....
Southard.....	DMS 10.....
Dorsey.....	DMS 1.....
Elliot.....	DMS 4.....
Long.....	DMS 12.....
Minneapolis.....	CA 36.....	Location was in the Fleet Operating Area, about 25 miles south of Oahu. Ships consisted of the following types: Heavy Cruiser..... 1 Destroyer Mine-sweepers..... 4 Total..... 5
Chandler.....	DMS 9.....
Hovey.....	DMS 11.....
Boggs.....	DMS 3.....
Lamberton.....	DMS 2.....
Plunger.....	SS 179.....	Three submarines. About 200 miles east of Oahu.
Pollack.....	SS 180.....
Pompano.....	SS 181.....	Destroyer. About 60 miles southwest of Oahu.
Litchfield.....	DD 336.....
Thresher.....	SS 200.....	Submarine. About 60 miles southwest of Oahu.
Robin.....	AM 3.....	Minesweeper. About 550 miles southwest of Oahu.
Wright.....	AV 1.....	Seaplane tender. About 300 miles west of Oahu.
Sonoma.....	AT 12.....	Ocean-going tug. Between Oahu and Wake.
Trout.....	SS 202.....	Submarine.
Argonaut.....	SM 1.....	Submarine. Near Midway.
Regulus.....	AK 14.....	Cargo ship. Near Midway.
Tambor.....	SS 198.....	Submarine. Near Wake.
Wm. Ward Burrows.....	AP 6.....	Transport. Enroute Wake.
Triton.....	SS 201.....	Submarine.
Kuala.....	AG 33.....	Enroute Palmyra, 60 miles northeast.
Kingfisher.....	AM 25.....	Minesweeper.
Louisville.....	CA 28.....	Heavy cruiser. Escort duty Solomons Is. area.
Pensacola.....	CA 24.....	Heavy cruiser. Escort duty Samoa area.
Seminole.....	AT 65.....	Ocean-going tug. Honolulu to San Diego.
Neches.....	AO 5.....	Oiler. Between San Francisco and Pearl Harbor.

AL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

U. S. Pacific Fleet at 8 a. m. on 7 Dec. 1941—Continued

Ship name	Ship No.	Remarks
Antares.....	AKS 3.....	Stores issue ship.
Vega.....	AK 17.....	Cargo ship.
Seagull.....	AM 30.....	Minesweeper.
Arctic.....	AF 7.....	Stores ship. At degaussing range.
Clark.....	DD 361.....	Ships at the Mare Island Navy Yard consisted of the following types:
Cushing.....	DD 376.....
Perkins.....	DD 377.....
Preston.....	DD 379.....
Smith.....	DD 378.....
Rathburne.....	DD 113.....
S-27.....	SS 132.....
S-28.....	SS 133.....
Nautilus.....	SS 168.....
Cuttlefish.....	SS 171.....
Tuna.....	SS 203.....
Kanawha.....	AO 1.....	Destroyer tender..... 1
Sabine.....	AO 25.....
Kaskaskia.....	AO 27.....	Total..... 17
Pelican.....	AV 6.....
Bridge.....	AF 1.....
Dixie.....	AD 14.....
Ballard.....	AVD 10.....	Seaplane tender.
Saratoga.....	CV 3.....	Ships at or off San Diego consisted of the following types:
Concord.....	CL 10.....
Dent.....	DD 116.....
Talbot.....	DD 114.....
Waters.....	DD 115.....
S-18.....	SS 123.....
S-23.....	SS 128.....
S-34.....	SS 139.....
S-35.....	SS 140.....
Harris.....	AP 8.....
Ortolan.....	ASR 5.....	Oiler..... 1
Cuyama.....	AO 3.....	Total..... 12
Sepulga.....	AO 20.....	Oiler. Near San Diego.
Pinola.....	AT 33.....	Ocean going tug.
Platte.....	OA 24.....	Oiler.
Procyon.....	AK 19.....	Stores ship.
Boreas.....	AF 9.....	Stores ships.
Aldebaran.....	AF 10.....
Tippecanoe.....	AO 21.....	Oiler.
Colorado.....	BB 45.....	Ships in Puget Sound Navy Yard:
Casco.....	AVP 12.....
Williamson.....	AVD 2.....
Teal.....	AVP 5.....	Seaplane tender.
Gillis.....	AVD 12.....	Seaplane tender.
Brazos.....	AO 4.....	Oiler. About 600 miles east of Dutch Harbor.
Richmond.....	CL 9.....	Light cruiser. Off Peru.
Trenton.....	CL 11.....	Light cruiser.
Fulton.....	AS 11.....	Submarine tender. Off Guatemala.
GAR.....	SS 206.....	Submarine. Off Mexico.

Name of ship	Position on 7 Dec. 1941, USAO	LAUNCHES	General cargo	None
S. S. Hawaiian Planter	1-S 167-W (between Honolulu and Samoa).	Samoa.	General cargo	None	3 December.
S. S. Harry Luckenbach	12-N 165-W (between Honolulu and the Fiji Islands).	Suva, Fijis.	do	do	5 December.
S. S. Jane Christensen	10-N 163-W (between Honolulu and Samoa).	Samoa.	do	do	4 December.
S. S. Mauna Loa	8-N 167-W (between Honolulu and the Fiji Islands).	Suva, Fijis.	do	do	3 December.
U. S. S. Chaumont	4-S 170-W (near Samoa)	Manila.	Troops	U. S. S. Pensacola	29 November (Convoy No. 4002).
U. S. S. Niagara	do	do	Some general cargo	do	Do.
U. S. S. Republic	do	do	Troops	do	Do.
U. S. A. T. Willard A. Holbrook	do	do	do	do	Do.
U. S. A. T. Meigs	do	do	General cargo	do	Do.
S. S. Bloemfontein	do	do	Troops and general cargo	do	Do.
S. S. Coast Farmer	do	do	General cargo	do	Do.
S. S. Admiral Halstead	do	do	do	do	Do.
U. S. A. T. Irving L. Hunt	6-N 167-W (between Fiji Islands and Honolulu).	Honolulu.	do	None	Bound for Honolulu.
U. S. A. T. Scott	8-S 171-E (near Solomons Islands)	do	Troops	U. S. S. Louisville	Do.
S. S. President Coolidge	do	do	do	do	Do.

348 CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

In addition, the following ships were in the ports indicated.

Name of ship:	Location on 7 Dec. 1941. 0800
S. S. Mariposa.....	Sidney.
S. S. Portmar.....	Do.
S. S. Collingsworth.....	Port Darwin.
S. S. Perida.....	Do.
U. S. A. T. Liberty.....	Port Moresby.
M. V. Day Star.....	Soerabaja, Java.
S. S. Admiral Cole.....	Philippine Islands.
S. S. American Leader.....	Do.
S. S. President Grant.....	Manila.
U. S. A. T. Ludington.....	Canton Island.

ITEM 7

(Item 7 is a map of the South coast of Oahu, T. H., showing the approaches to the Pearl Harbor Entrance Channel and the Inshore Patrol Area. This map is printed as Item No. 11 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

ITEM 8

(Item 8 is a map showing the Pearl Harbor Anchorage Plan, 7 December, 1941. This map is printed as Item No. 12 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

ITEM 9

List of ships present at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack Dec. 7, 1941

Name	Class	Tonnage	Year completed
Battleships:
West Virginia.....	West Virginia.....	31,800	1923
Maryland.....	do.....	31,500	1921
Tennessee.....	Tennessee.....	32,300	1920
California.....	do.....	32,600	1921
Pennsylvania.....	Pennsylvania.....	33,100	1916
Arizona.....	do.....	33,100	1916
Nevada.....	Nevada.....	29,000	1916
Oklahoma.....	do.....	29,000	1916
Heavy cruisers:
New Orleans.....	New Orleans.....	9,950	1934
San Francisco.....	do.....	9,950	1934
Light cruisers:
St. Louis.....	St. Louis.....	10,000	1939
Helena.....	Helena.....	10,000	1938
Phoenix.....	do.....	10,000	1938
Honolulu.....	do.....	9,650	1937
Raleigh.....	Raleigh.....	7,050	1922
Detroit.....	do.....	7,050	1922
Destroyers:
Bagley.....	Gridley.....	1,500	1938
Patterson.....	do.....	1,500	1938
Ralph Talbot.....	do.....	1,500	1938
Helm.....	do.....	1,500	1937
Mugford.....	do.....	1,500	1936
Henley.....	do.....	1,500	1937
Jarvis.....	do.....	1,500	1937
Blue.....	do.....	1,500	1938
Conyngham.....	Mahan.....	1,500	1937
Reid.....	do.....	1,480	1937
Tucker.....	do.....	1,500	1937
Case.....	do.....	1,500	1937
Shaw.....	do.....	1,500	1935
Cassin.....	do.....	1,500	1935
Downes.....	do.....	1,500	1936
Cummings.....	do.....	1,465	1937

*sent at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack
Dec. 7, 1941—Continued*

	Class	Tonnage	Year completed
	Porter	1, 850	1937
	do	1, 850	1936
	Farragut	1, 365	1934
	do	1, 395	1935
	do	1, 395	1935
	do	1, 365	1935
	do	1, 395	1935
	do	1, 345	1934
	do	1, 410	1935
	do	1, 395	1935
	Flush Deck DD	1, 060	1918
	do	1, 060	1918
		920	1917
	Tambor	1, 475	1941
	do	1, 475	1940
		1, 110	1933
		2, 730	1929
		1, 540	1932
		1, 430	1914
		1, 190	1920
		1, 160	1918
		1, 190	1920
		1, 190	1920
		1, 190	1920
		1, 160	1918
		1, 160	1918
		1, 160	1918
		6, 000	1907
rs:		1, 190	1922
		1, 190	1921
		1, 190	1922
		1, 196	1921
		840	1918
		840	1918
		840	1918
		840	1918
		840	1918
		840	1918
	Repair ship	13, 480	1923
	do	9, 435	1909
	Battle damage, repair ship	9, 245	1918
	Oiler	21, 077	1941
	do	16, 800	1919
	Destroyer tender	1, 245	1921
	do	1, 245	1921
	Seaplane tender	13, 880	1940
	do	17, 606	1940
	Small seaplane tender	840	1918
	do	840	1918
	Destroyer seaplane tender	1, 190	1919
	do	1, 190	1918
	Miscellaneous auxiliary	11, 400	1920
	do	4, 400	1915
	Hospital ship	8, 660	1927
	Store issue ship	13, 900	1939
	Submarine tender	14, 200	1939
	Target ship	19, 800	1909
	Oceangoing tug	1, 270	1940
	do	1, 080	1912
	Ammunition ship	7, 025	1920
	Destroyer seaplane tender	1, 190	1920
	Submarine rescue vessel	1, 060	1918

ITEM 10

s a diagram showing air searches flown in the Hawaiian December 1941, (b) prior to the Japanese attack 7 December (c) after the Japanese attack 7 December 1941. This printed as Item No. 13 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS-Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

ITEM 11

Table summarizing number of Japanese planes taking part in attack

	Torpedo planes	Dive bombers	Horizontal bombers	Totals
Total number of planes making attacks (including those which repeated)	21	90	45	156
Total number of planes (exclusive of those which repeated)	21	48	36	105
Phase I (torpedo and dive-bomber attacks)	21	30	15	66
Phase II ("Lull")		¹ 15		15
Phase III (horizontal bomber attacks)		18	¹ 21 (9)	48
Phase IV (dive-bomber attacks)		¹ 27		27

¹ Engaged in earlier attacks.

Location	Squadron	Number of planes	Type	Number available	Number in operating condition	Readiness in operating condition	Readiness of crews	Number participating in combat	Service assignment
NAS, Pearl Harbor	VJ-1	18	9 J2F-4	18	18	Operational	Same as planes	0	Utility.
	VJ-2	10	9 JRS-1	10	10	Operational	Same as planes	0	Do.
	VJ-2	2	10 J2F-4	2	2	do	do	0	Utility included in Patrol Plane Report.
			2 PBV-1					0	Normally based at Ewa.
Ewa, Marine Air Station.	VMJ 252	1	1 R3D-2	1	1	1 in repair	do	0	Utility.
	VMJ-252	8	1 R3D-2	1	1	Operational	do	0	Do.
			1 JO-2	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			2 J2F-4	2	2	do	do	0	Do.
			1 JRS-1	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			1 SNJ-3	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			1 SB2U-3	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			1 SBD-1	1	1	do	do	0	Utility (also included in Marine Scout Bomber Report).
NAS, Puunene (Mauli)	VJ-3	8	4 JRB-1	4	4	do	do	0	Utility.
			1 J2V	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			1 JRF-4	1	1	do	do	0	Do.
			2 BT-1	2	2	do	do	0	Do.
			PBV-1	2	2	do	do	0	Do.
NAS, Johnston Island	VJ-2	2						0	Utility (also included in Patrol Plane Report).
Pearl Harbor		4	F4F-3	4	4	do	do	0	Left by aircraft carriers.
		3	SBD-2	3	3	do	do	0	Do.
Kanoehe		1	OS2U	1	1	Warming up on airstrip.	do	0	Commandant's plane.

AL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

PATROL PLANES

Kaneohe	VP 11 VP 12	12 12	PBY-5 PBY-5	12 12	12 12	On 4-hour notice, 6 on 30-minute notice, 1 under repair.	On 4-hour notice, 5 on 4 hours, 6 on 30-minute notice.	0 0	Fleet operations. Do.
Midway	VP 14 VP 21	12 12	PBY-5 PBY-3	12 12	10 11	4 on 4-hour notice, 3 on 30-minute notice, 3 in air, 2 under repair. 7 in air, 4 on 10-minute notice, 1 under repair.	Same as planes do	11 0	Fleet operations, 3 covering operating area south of Oahu. Fleet operations, 4 as ready striking force; 5 search 120-170°; 2 rendezvous Lexington planes. Repair. Fleet operations.
Pearl Harbor	VP 21 VP 22 VP 23 VP 24	1 14 12 6	PBY-3 PBY-3 PBY-5 PBY-5	1 14 12 6	0 12 11 5	1 under repair. 12 on 4-hour notice, 2 under repair. 11 on 4-hour notice, 1 under repair. 4 in air, 1 30-minute notice.	Same as planes do do	0 0 0	Repair. Fleet operations. Do. 4 planes, inter-type tactics.
Johnson Island	VJ-2 VJ-2	2 2	PBY-1 PBY-1	2 2	2 2	Operational do	do do	0 0	Utility. Do.

WARD antisub action.

(Item 13 is a types, and op aircraft on 7 in EXHIBIT mittee.)

Units	Class
2 Nevada
2 Pennsylv
2 Tennessee
1 Colorado
1 West V
2 New C
3 Brookl
1 St. Lo
2 Omaha
8 Farro
8 Mah
8 Gridl
1 Alle
2 Self
2 Flu
4 Des
8 De
5 By
1 J
1 F
1
1
1
2
1
1
2
3

ITEM 13

nap of Oahu, T. H., showing the disposition, number, ational and readiness condition of the U. S. Navy ecember 1941. This map is printed as Item No. 14 -ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Com-

ITEM 14

Aircraft guns, by ship classes and types of guns

Type	5-inch, 38-cal- iber	5-inch, 25-cal- iber	3-inch, 50-cal- iber	3-inch, 23-cal- iber	1 1/2 quad- ruple mount heavy AA ma- chine guns	.50 cal- iber AA ma- chine guns	.30 cal- iber AA ma- chine guns	37 milli- meter
Battleships		16	4			16
do		16	4			16
do		16	8			16
do		8	4			8
do		8	4			11
Heavy cruisers		16	4		4	16
Light cruisers	8	16	6		6	24
do	8		2		2	8
do			18			16
Destroyers	40					32
do	40					40
do	32					32
do			3			4
do					4	4
do				2		4
High speed minesweep- ers.						24
Light mine- layers.				8		16
Repair ship			3			10
do			2			4
do			1			4
Oiler	4		4			4
do			4			4
Destroyer tenders.			8			8
Seaplane tender.	4					10
do						8
Small seaplane tenders.			4			4
Ex-destroyer seaplane tenders.						12
Stores issue ships.			4			4
do			4			2
Miscellaneous auxiliaries.			4			4
Submarine rescue ves- sel.			2			2	2
Sub tender				4		4
Gunboat						2		1
Minelayers			12			12	12
Tug			1			4
Ammunition ship.			2			4
Store ship			4			4
Minelayer			1
	136	96	121	14	16	397	14	1

out of ships' arsenals numerous light landing force guns, .30 caliber Lewis machine guns matic rifles, to augment standard antiaircraft batteries.

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

ITEM 15

U.S. naval forces and installations resulting from the attack on the island of Oahu on 7 Dec. 1941 ships were sunk or damaged at Pearl Harbor:

Name	Tonnage	Sunk
Arizona	33, 100	Sunk.
California	32, 600	Do.
West Virginia	31, 800	Do.
Oklahoma	29, 000	Capsized.
Nevada	29, 000	Heavily damaged.
Maryland	31, 500	Damaged.
Pennsylvania	33, 100	Do.
Tennessee	32, 300	Do.
Delaware	10, 000	Heavily damaged.
Honolulu	10, 000	Damaged.
Raleigh	7, 050	Heavily damaged.
Haw	1, 500	Do.
Cassin	1, 500	Heavily damaged, burned.
Downes	1, 500	Do.
Westal	9, 435	Badly damaged.
Oglala	6, 000	Sunk.
Turtiss	13, 880	Damaged.
Utah	19, 800	Capsized.

BATTLESHIPS

ms. Sank at her berth as a result of being hit by torpedoes and about eight heavy bombs. One (estimated as 2,000 pounds) exploded the forward bow was considered to be a total wreck except for what could be salvaged and reassigned.

tons. Sank at her berth as a result of hits by torpedoes and one or more near bomb misses. Also received a hit on starboard upper deck abreast of foremast, caused by 5-inch powder fire. She sank gradually for resting rather solidly on a mud bottom so that the bow was about 12 feet of water and the port side of the bow was about 3 feet of water.

8,800 tons. Sank at her berth as a result of four to five hits and at least two bomb hits and rested on the bottom. Spaces flooded up to 2 or 3 feet below the main deck. Damage from torpedoes was in the midship area, extending both below water and above water. A large hole was made in the firetop and the boat deck and apparently on the port side on the main or second deck. This extensive wreck and a terrific powder and oil fire spread over the whole area and extended to the foremast including the bridge. A second bomb hit the top of the mainmast and passed through the 6-inch top. The nature of the damage was defective material. This bomb did not explode but the slide of the left gun. Subsequently, another hit on the port side of the torpedo were located aft under the tons. Capsized at her berth within 8 to 11 minutes after receiving three or more hits by aircraft torpedoes. The ship was being upside down with a considerable portion of the starboard side above water.

Nevada.—20
and by at least misses caused respectively.
fire damage to second deck to from side to down to the caused considstructure and Maryland small bomb deck forward causing on ably 500 pe
under water
This explo ments caus temporari

Pennsyl starboard but not c casualties not exten
Tenne. type).
ing a la bomb e other si dud an of com officers the oil stern

H torp engi age and per po
th
a z
t
f

Struck by one or more aircraft torpedoes and two near misses. Each of the near misses hit the hull on the port and starboard bows, and one hit near the foremast, caused explosion and wrecked the vertical area extending from the second deck. Several bomb hits wrecked the forecastle and No. 1 turret, and this damage extended to the main deck. Fragments from a bomb hit amidships caused damage to the mainmast, stack, and other parts, and many casualties to 5-inch gun crews.

1,000 tons. Two bomb hits in the forecastle. One bomb (probably 100 pounds) passed through the forecastle chain pipes and exploded on the main deck, causing considerable damage. The second bomb (probably 100 pounds) passed through port side of the ship about 12 feet below the construction and repair storeroom, wrecked flats and bulkheads in that area, and caused serious leaks in the sides and bottom. These were repaired without going into drydock.

1,100 tons. One bomb hit near after 5-inch gun. The damage from bomb explosion was considerable, of serious nature, although there were a large number of 5-inch guns put out of commission. The damage did not extend to the second deck.

1,200 tons. Two bomb hits (probably 15-inch shell bombs) struck the center gun of No. 2 turret, causing which necessitated replacement of the gun. This did considerable local fragment damage. Another bomb struck the top of No. 3 turret. This bomb was a serious damage except for putting one rammer out. The Tennessee also suffered serious damage aft in due to fire resulting from the great heat caused by burning from the Arizona. The shell plates around the turret that buckled and joints broken.

LIGHT CRUISERS

1,000 tons. Hit at frame 80 starboard side by aircraft. The flooding of No. 1 and 2 firerooms and the forward part of the starboard engine was found to be seriously damaged. Repairs to hull were completed at Pearl Harbor, and the ship proceeded to Mare Island under two shafts to await repairs.

1,000 tons. Damaged by large bomb (probably 500 pounds) which passed through deck and exploded 15 or 20 feet from the mainmast at frame 40. This explosion caused considerable damage and resulted in the flooding of storerooms and magazine area and also dimmed out the electric power cables of the mainmast. Most of the flooding resulted from rupture of a magazine. The hull of the ship was not opened up but leaked from pulled joints and rivets. Permanent repairs were completed at Pearl Harbor.

1,050 tons. Hit by one aircraft torpedo amidships on the starboard side, which flooded the forward half of the machinery plant. The ship was also hit by one bomb (probably 500 pounds) which passed through three decks and out the ship's side and finally exploded about 50 feet away. The damage from the explosion was not extensive but, together with the hole made in the side, caused serious flooding on the port side aft. This flooding was out of all proportion to the extent of damage and resulted from inability to close armored hatches tightly against the water head. The bomb struck only a few feet abaft of the gasoline stowage. Permanent repairs to the hull were completed at Pearl Harbor.

DESTROYERS

Shaw.—1,500 tons. Hit by one bomb while docked on floating drydock and by many fragments from another bomb which struck the drydock. The serious fire following the bomb hits resulted in blowing up of forward magazine and heat damage to shell plating in the forward areas. The after part of the ship was not seriously damaged. The Shaw was redocked on the same drydock on January 26, 1942, for installation of a false bow at about frame 50.

Cassin and Downes.—Cassin was struck by one bomb and Downes by two (probably 500 pounds). One bomb explosion aft between the two vessels apparently knocked the Cassin partly off the drydock blocking and caused her to fall over on the Downes when the dock was being flooded during the raid. This caused a serious structural failure amidships and considerable local damage in way of the bridge. The torpedo warheads in the starboard tube of the Downes were set off and blew out the main deck and starboard side of the vessel in that area. This caused some damage to boilers and engines. A serious oil fire followed the explosion and caused extensive damage to the hull of both vessels. Fragments and explosions caused over 200 holes in the hull of the Cassin and probably well over 400 in the hull of the Downes.

REPAIR SHIPS

Vestal.—9,435 tons. Struck by two bombs (probably 500 pounds). One bomb hit forward and exploded in the steel shape storage which stopped a large part of the fragments and minimized damage considerably. The other bomb struck aft and exploded in the hold, causing a large number of fragment holes through the shell. Flooding aft caused the after part of the vessel to submerge to the main deck. The vessel was alongside the Arizona when the raid commenced and was beached at Aiea to prevent further sinkage.

MINELAYERS

Oglala.—6,000 tons. Sunk by one aircraft torpedo which passed under the ship from the starboard side and exploded against the starboard side of the Helena. Vessel sank slowly at 10-10 dock and capsized against the dock about 1½ hours after being struck.

SEAPLANE TENDERS

Curtiss.—13,880 tons. Struck on kingpost starboard crane by Japanese airplane out of control. This resulted in some wreckage and damage due to fire. Machinery of the crane was seriously damaged, ere put out of commission. One bomb (probthe forward end of the hangar on the port exploding on the second deck. The explosion d a great amount of wreckage and loss of

MISCELLANEOUS AUX.

Struck by two, and possibly three, aerial tor-berth. Ship was within a few degrees of being

ITEM 16

AND MARINE CORPS AIRCRAFT LOSSES

d damage to installations at Ford Island Naval Naval Air Station, the marine air base at Ewa, hown in the following table:
il Air Station.

	Airborne	Non- airborne	Total
-----	0	4	4
-----	0	3	3
-----	0	19	19
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	26	26

—The only portion of this station subject to severe lane hangars and parking area in the southwest to the station was as follows:

s set on fire apparently as a result of a bomb ex-y to the east of the hangar and the consequent the nearby patrol planes which were ignited by were at least five bomb hits in the vicinity of largest producing a crater approximately 20 feet feet deep. The northeast corner of Hangar No. 6 l by fire. In addition to the damage to the seaplane r damage was inflicted on Hangar No. 38 by nearby

9.

	Airborne	Nonair- borne	Total
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	27	27
(S)-----	0	1	1
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	0	0
-----	0	28	28

(2) Installations.—A complete hangar (No. I), in which planes were already stored, was destroyed together with the planes and with fire-fighting apparatus which had been brought there to fight the fire.

Two other hangars under construction, one almost completed, were not bombed. The seaplane parking area and the Aqua system were damaged.

3. Ewa.

(1) Plane losses.

	Airborne	Nonairborne	Total
Fighters (VF).....	0	9	9
Scout Bombers (VSB).....	0	18	18
Patrol Bombers (VPB).....	0	0	0
Observation/Scouts (VO-V8).....	0	0	0
Utility (VJ).....	0	3	3
Training (VN).....	0	1	1
Transports (VR).....	0	2	2
Total.....	0	33	33

(2) Installations.—Considerable damage was suffered by material, installations, machinery, tentage, and buildings at Ewa. Damage to Government motor vehicles was slight, but privately owned automobiles suffered heavily. Damage to aircraft was extremely heavy as the primary objective was aircraft on the ground and attacks were made on individual aircraft by enemy planes using explosive and incendiary bullets from extremely low altitudes.

4. Five Scout planes from the carrier Enterprise were lost.

ITEM 17

COMPOSITION OF TASK FORCE ALLOCATED TO PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Striking force

Commanding Officer: CinC 1st Air Fleet, Vice Admiral Chuichi NAGUMO.

Battleship Division 3 (1st Section) (HIEH, KIRISHIMA), 2 Battleships.

Carrier Division 1 (KAGA, AKAGI).

Carrier Division 2 (HIRYU, SORYU).

Carrier Division 5 (SHOKAKU, ZUIKAKU), 6 Aircraft Carriers.

Cruiser Division 8 (TONE, CHIKUMA), 2 Heavy Cruisers.

Destroyer Squadron 1 (ABUKUMA), 1 Light Cruiser, 4 Destroyer Divisions, 16 Destroyers.

11 Train Vessels.

Advance expeditionary force

Commanding Officer: CinC 6th Fleet, Vice Admiral Mitsumi SHIMIZU.

ISUZU, YURA, 2 Light Cruisers.

KATORI, 1 Training Light Cruiser.

I-class submarines (including Submarine Squadrons 1, 2, 3) 20 Submarines (I-1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22-24, 68, 69, 74)..

Midget submarines, 5 Midget submarines.

6 Train Vessels.

ITEM 18

(Item 18 is a map of the North Pacific Ocean showing the track of the Japanese Striking Force. This map is printed as Item No. 15 in EXHIBITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

ITEM 19

showing air searches flown in the Hawaiian Islands, (b) prior to the Japanese attack 7 December 1941, and the Japanese attack 7 December 1941, and the Striking Force. This diagram is printed as BITS-ILLUSTRATIONS to Proceedings of showing track of Japanese plane attack routes. This diagram is printed as Item No. 17 in EXHIBITS to Proceedings of Joint Committee.)

ITEM 20

NOTE

and hereto copies of official photographs of damages and installations at Pearl Harbor on 7 December

U. S. S. Raleigh, light cruiser, with decks awash after Jap attack on Pearl Harbor.

U. S. S. Shaw—Hit by three bombs which exploded her forward magazine, the 1,500-ton destroyer Shaw lies a twisted mass of wreckage in the heavily bombed floating drydock YFD-2. Note the bow of the Shaw lying on its side in the foreground. Part of the drydock, at right, is under water while the other side is listing heavily. Both the Shaw and the drydock are now back in use.

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

After the Japanese attack—Warships damaged at Pearl Harbor in the Japanese attack of December 7, 1941.

The side of the hull of the capsized mine ship Oglala is shown here in Pearl Harbor before she was salvaged. The Oglala capsized after being hit in the Japanese raid of December 7, 1941. In the background alongside Ford Island the hull of the capsized Oklahoma can be seen.

ATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Hangar and planes damaged and set afire by Japanese bombs.

U. S. S. Arizona, at height of fire, following Japanese aerial attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Maryland—Moored inboard of the U. S. S. Oklahoma, which capsized, the 31,500-ton Maryland was damaged slightly and was one of the first ships to rejoin the fleet after the Japanese attack.

Pearl Harbor attack—Jap version—"Our Sea Eagles' determined attack had already opened, and a column of water from a direct torpedo hit on a Maryland class is rising. On the surface of the water concentric waves are traced by the direct torpedo hits, while murky crude oil flows out. The three bright white streaks between the waves are the torpedo tracks. In the distance the conflagration at the Hickman Field hangars is seen." The above caption and Japanese aerial photograph were sent to neutral countries for propaganda purposes.

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Wing from Japanese bomber shot down on the grounds of the Naval Hospital, Honolulu, T. H., December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Raleigh—Torpedoed and bombed, the 7,000-ton light cruiser U. S. S. Raleigh is held afloat near her anchorage in Pearl Harbor by a barge. The capsized U. S. S. Utah is in the background. The Raleigh rejoined the fleet months ago.

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Wing from Japanese bomber shot down on the grounds of the Naval Hospital, Honolulu, T. H., December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Raleigh—Torpedoed and bombed, the 7,000-ton light cruiser U. S. S. Raleigh is held afloat near her anchorage in Pearl Harbor by a barge. The capsized U. S. S. Utah is in the background. The Raleigh rejoined the fleet months ago.

INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Wing from Japanese bomber shot down on the grounds of the Naval Hospital, Honolulu, T. H., December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Raleigh—Torpedoed and bombed, the 7,000-ton light cruiser U. S. S. Raleigh is held afloat near her anchorage in Pearl Harbor by a barge. The capsized U. S. S. Utah is in the background. The Raleigh rejoined the fleet months ago.

CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Reckage of the U. S. S. Shaw at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, hit directly on the forecastle during Japanese aerial attack, December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Doris at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, in a damaged condition, December 7, 1941.

es—Destroyer, hit by Japanese bombs during attack on Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941. U. S. S. Cassin, destroyer, in about same position behind the Downes.

N PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Hangar burning after Jap air raid on Pearl Harbor, T. H.

Hangar burning after Jap air raid on Pearl Harbor, T. H., December 7, 1941.

ESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

This port quarter shot of the West Virginia, taken from the capsized Oklahoma, shows a general view of the damage to the West Virginia, sunk in the Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941.

Back in the fight—Run aground opposite Hospital Point, during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the U. S. S. Nevada, known as the "Cheerup Ship," lived up to its name by being one of the first of the Pearl Harbor casualties to go back into action.

IGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

California hit—Battered by aerial bombs and torpedoes, the U. S. S. California settles slowly into the mud and muck of Pearl Harbor. Clouds of black, oily smoke pouring up from the California and her stricken sister ships conceal all but the hulk of the capsized U. S. S. Oklahoma at extreme right.

Seaman rescued—A small boat rescues a seaman from the 31,800-ton U. S. S. West Virginia burning in the foreground. Smoke rolling out amidships shows where the most extensive damage occurred. Note the two men in the superstructure. The U. S. S. Tennessee is inbound.

U. S. S. Vestal—This U. S. repair ship, twice bombed by Japanese fliers, was beached after the ship started flooding. The Vestal has since been repaired.

Patrol planes, Catalina type (PBV), wrecked on Ford Island at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, during Japanese attack, December 7, 1941.

Hangar area at NAS Kaneohe Bay, T. H., showing damage wrought by Japanese bombing attack of December 7, 1941. Altitude 700 feet. Looking northwest.

NAVAL AIR STATION—This is the wreckage-strewn naval air station at Pearl Harbor following one of the Japanese sneak attacks on the morning of December 7, 1941. In the background, an explosion sends a mass of flames and smoke high into the sky.

U. S. S. Nevada—Beached at Hospital Point.

The U. S. S. Oklahoma, shown capsized following Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, December 7, 1941.

The U. S. S. Oklahoma, shown capsized following Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, December 7, 1941.

MAGAZINE OF U. S. S. SHAW EXPLODES—This, one of the most remarkable combat photographs of all times, was made at the exact moment the destroyer blew up during Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Shaw, destroyer, shortly after Japanese aerial bomb made direct hit, Pearl Harbor, December 7, 1941.

Hangar area at NAS Kaneohe Bay, T. H., showing damage wrought by Japanese bombing attack of December 7, 1941. Altitude 500 feet. Looking west.

Wreckage of U. S. S. Arizona, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, December 7, 1941.

U. S. S. Downes and Cassin at drydock No. 1 are the only battleships in the Pacific Fleet, which survived the attack. The Pennsylvania is new hulls.

Cassin—The jumbled mass of wreckage in the foreground is the U. S. destroyer, Downes (left) and Cassin (right). In the rear is the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, 33,100-ton Flagship of the fleet, which suffered relatively light damage during the Japanese attack. The Pennsylvania was repaired shortly after the attack. Main and secondary armaments of the Downes and Cassin are being transferred

CONGRESSIONAL INVESTIGATION PEARL HARBOR ATTACK

Wreckage of the U. S. S. Arizona lying in the mud at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. end